Voters Decide Nominations Tuesday

BY CYNTHIA BLACK
Of The Graphic Staff

Next Tuesday's Preliminary Election is like a poker game in which the voters aren't tipping their hand at all.

Elections always give rise to a great deal of theorizing and speculation in city circles and the speculation this time all has the same theme: Why is everything so quiet?

Of Newton's 50,000 plus registered voters, best guesses are that 15 per cent, about 7,000, will be voting next Tuesday.

Voters will be nominating two of the three candidates for mayor, candidates for ward alderman in Wards 3 and 4 and candidates for alderman-at-large in Ward 7.

Ward 3 and 4 voters have the bulk of the small preliminary ballot. Voters in all other Newton wards will find only the mayoral candidates and the candidates in Ward 7 on their ballots.

The candidates for mayor are incumbent Theodore D. Mann, William Carmen and Elliott Berry. The two top vote-getters in this race will be on the November ballot.

This year's mayoral race is marked by several firsts. The fact that there is a run-off election this year is a first in itself. In prior years, any number of mayoral candidates appeared on the November ballot.

Mayoral candidates this year are also running for a four-year term for the first time in Newton's 100 years as a city.

Although this is a non-partisan election, Carmen has made a point of stressing the fact he is a Democrat and would, if elected, be the first Democratic mayor of Newton.

Newton, as of July 1, had 23,342 voters registered as Democrats as compared to 10,336 registered Republicans. Independents number 17,805. While Democrats outnumber Republicans 2-1 now in the city, the combination of Republicans and Independents still outnumber Democrats.

Mann, a Republican, has been critical of Carmen's emphasis on being a Democrat, saying it violates the spirit of the non-partisan election.

Berry, who describes himself as an independent, also points out that he is "probably far to the left" of either of his competitors.

Berry, who has seriously raised the issues of subsidized housing and rent control during the campaign, has no illusions about securing a nomination in next week's election.

In an interview Saturday, he explained that he entered the race because "social issues have to be faced if Newton is going to live up to its reputation as the bastion of Eastern Liberalism."

He said he feels he has succeeded in bringing rent control, housing and day care into the campaign and has forced his opponents to discuss these topics.

Berry, a law student who works at the Cambridge Law Commune, was also asked why he did not choose to run for alderman in Ward 6 and perhaps increase his chances of winning significantly.

He replied that he preferred, in this case, "to serve as a focal point for these issues," and said he would rather continue to "work behind the scenes."

The third candidate was also instrumental in arranging a televised debate, shown Monday on Channel 2 for the Newton mayoral candidates.

The issue that surfaced most noticeably in the debate was the impact of revaluation in Newton.

Carmen has accused the mayor of "frightening" people with revaluation and expressed his own fear in the debate, of the "Mass exodus" it may cause.

Carmen has a package of legislation involving revaluation and concerning abatements and remedies that he said may help people in Newton.

Mann, who points out that revaluation in Newton is court-ordered and non Mann-ordered, said that assessors maintain the impact of revaluation will probably meab an increase in taxes for one-third of the property taxpayers, a decrease of one-third for others, while the final third would stay the same.

Brotherhood Week

Two long-time Newton business establishments will soon close their doors and one does not seem to want to give up without a swipe at the landlord. "Forced To Vacate By My Own Brother" reads a sign in the window of the Model and Hobby Store in the 800 block of Washington Street. It appears the Nicolazzi Brothers of Newtonville are not getting along these days. Gath's Restaurant in the same block will also shut its doors.

Towers Ask For Fairness

In asking for an extension of permissive use to build the Towers at Chestnut Hill condominium, lawyer Richard Lovell appealed to the Land Use Committee's sense of reason and evoked a picture of the developer as a man who has "put his neck on the block."

"There is no public purpose to be served by dropping the guillotine on Albert Goodman's neck," Lovell said, referring to a loss of financing that may occur if the construction delay is long.

Lovell and his associate, Christopher Connolly dangled before the aldermen visions of taxes from the project in the amount of $5 on the tax rate, and the possibility of the Towers' "participating in or actively seeking low-moderate incoming housing."

The name of Mario DiCarlo, the other trustee in the Chestnut Hill Towers Trust, was mentioned only two or three times in Lovell's two-hour presentation, during which he explained in detail the intricacies of financing and the procedural matters affecting the Towers over the past seven years.

DiCarlo, the owner of the land, lost a mortgage commitment from New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. in 1966 and was unsuccessful in locating financing until Goodman arrived on the scene in 1970, Lovell said.

By 1971 Goodman had turned the Towers concept from one of a "fairly cheap, straight-walled, FHA-type" apartment complex to that of a luxury condominium," Lovell said, and took over full responsibility for carrying the project through.

The permissive use granted by the Board of Aldermen in 1966 actually expired at about the time Goodman took over, but for reasons unexplained, notice was not taken of the fact.

Lovell explained that when the concept of the buildings was changed, conferences were held at City Hall to find out whether the external walls could be changed without permission.

According to Lovell, the developers were told by then City Solicitor Melvin Dangel that as long as the "envelope" remained the same, the Building Department could authorize the changes. The "envelope" means the height-to-building area ratio.

By November, 1972, Lovell said, site work, under way since 1966, had cost $426,582, and a building permit had been renewed every six months since 1966.

In October, 1972, Volpe Construction Co. was awarded the construction contract for $25.1 million. Volpe invited bids for subcontractors to complete the site work. Low bid was from DiCarlo Bros.

Albert Goodman and his wife gave their personal guarantees to both the Volpe contract and the subsequent $29.75 million mortgage from the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Co.

"I am hit between the eyes by the way Mr. and Mrs. Goodman have signed their names right down the line.

DiCarlo Resigns Redevelopment Post

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Mario DiCarlo's resignation from the Newton Redevelopment Authority was received last week by Mayor Theodore Mann, one day after the Law Department reported to the mayor that it "can find no violation" by DiCarlo of the conflict of interest law.

DiCarlo's resignation ends almost eight years' tenure on the Redevelopment Authority. His term was often marked by controversy involving the Board of Aldermen, the neighbors, and in the past few years, both.

DiCarlo was appointed to the newly formed Redevelopment Authority by then mayor Monte Basbas, and was chairman until September, 1971.

He was forced to step down by the Board of Aldermen, who, angered by several questionable moves by the authority, refused to rezone the Lower Falls property until DiCarlo quit his chairmanship.

Two incidents this year increased the tension in the board and in the community.

The first was the selection in June of a developer for the Lower Falls project that was last choice of the community and the Lower Falls Project Area Committee, a government mandated community advisory group.

The Department of Community Affairs at a public hearing on the matter shortly thereafter refused to approve the authority's selection of a developer.

Then in August, DiCarlo Bros. trucks were photographed removing fill from the Redevelopment Authority site, where the authority was having the historic Baury House turned.

Allegations of conflict of interest stemming from the presence of the trucks were under investigation by the Law Department until last week.

The Law Department traced through a tangle of separate DiCarlo family enterprises before determining that DiCarlo Bros. trucks are

DiCarlo Explains Resignation

"Dear Mayor Mann:

"I am delivering to you with this letter my resignation as a member of the Newton Redevelopment Authority. I take this step with many regrets because I have felt and still feel that the work of the Authority is very significant to the City of Newton.

"As you know, I have considered for some time the possibility of tendering my resignation, but have been reluctant to do so until now because I wanted to see the fruition of the Authority's activities in the Lower Falls. I have now become convinced, however, that the political cross currents will impair the ability of the Authority to continue its work and that I will not do.

Student Faces Manslaughter Charge

A Boston College sophomore has been charged with manslaughter in connection with an apparently accidental shooting death of his 18-year-old brother on the Chestnut Hill campus.

Charles Eccles, 20, of 62 Allston St., Cambridge, was arraigned the following morning in Newton District Court, and, according to Police Chief William F. Quinn, was also charged with larceny and illegal possession of a firearm.

Both brothers were the sons of Mrs. Miriam Eccles, a candidate for City Council in the upcoming Cambridge municipal elections.

An original charge of murder in the case was reduced to manslaughter by Judge Frank Kilburn who also continued the case until Oct. 24, and set bail at $10,000.

The accused youth's attorney, Stephen Schneider of Cambridge, announced after the hearing he would seek a reduction in bail at Superior Court in Cambridge later in the week.

According to Chief Quinn, the charge was reduced to manslaughter after an investigation revealed the two brothers had stolen the weapon from a parked car in Cambridge earlier last week.

"It went off while they were examining it," stated Chief Quinn.

"The investigation also revealed," the Chief continued, "that the brothers had hidden the weapon under the bottom bureau drawer in Charles' room in Fenwick Hall at Boston College."

While examining the .32 calibre revolver in the dormitory room, the trigger was accidentally pulled, and Alfred was struck in the chest, police said.

Charles and two Somerville girls, one 17 and one 19, carried the stricken youth to the college infirmary. Police were then called by the attending physician, Dr. Joseph Burns, and Alfred was transferred to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brighton where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Sgt. Edward Ceurveles and Patrolmen Richard Lochiatto and Francis McKenzie arrested Charles at St. Elizabeth's and the police report revealed that both patrolmen were injured in a scuffle while trying to make the arrest.

The sons' mother is also a minister and graduate of the Harvard Divinity School. She teaches linguistics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Explorers Investigate Medicine

The Newton-Wellesley Hospital this fall is providing sponsorship and facilities to four different Explorer Posts in conjunction with the Norumbega Council, Inc., Exploring Division.

The hospital recently opened its medical doctor group for those students interested in more practical experience in the fields of surgery, general practice and the many specialized fields. The group, now totaling 55 high school members, meets every two weeks (next meeting is Oct. 11, 7:30 p.m.) for a general group discussion on the many different topics of medicine.

Last week, they learned how to take a patient's history and blood pressure. In the future they plan to discuss cancer, heart disease, surgery, first aid plus much more.

There is also the opportunity to be matched one on one with a doctor in a students field of interest in order to receive on the spot practical experience and career guidance. Students also have plans to witness operations and other functions of a hospital.

The Exploring Division is also planning a mock disaster in the spring in which all Explorers with special skills will participate. Many other Explorers will act as victims. The hospital also is sponsoring a medical technology Explorer Post.

This group is open to high school seniors and has a few openings still available. The program is exceptional and will cover hemotology, serulogy, endocrinology, bacteriology so that interested students should have a good background in chemistry and some knowledge of basic physics. They also have the opportunity to witness operations, autopsies and to do various tests to determine diseases in removed organs.

On Wednesday, Oct. 10 at 7:30 p.m., the Usen Auditorium at the hospital will be the site of the first meeting of a dentistry Explorer Post. The post is being sponsored by the B. U. School of Graduate Dentistry in conjunction with Newton-Wellesley Hospital's new department of dental services. The program will cover the entire field of dentistry and dental technology.

In this post as well as others, colleges available for future study will be discussed as well as admission requirements, courses needed, etc.

Exploring, the high school division of the Boy Scouts, is open to all high school students and is without uniform requirements and costs only $2.50 per year.

On Thursday, Oct. 18 at 7:30 p.m. the Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing will have its first meeting for all students interested in Exploring a career in nursing.

The school has designed an outstanding program which will include practical experience, career guidance and a complete overview of the field of nursing.

For further information about Exploring, call Peter Johnson or Larry Bearfield who are the Explorer Executives at 332-2220 before 5 p.m.

Fire Prevention Needs Everyone

Local observance of National Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 7 through 13, will be sponsored by the Newton Fire Department according to Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins.

The week was proclaimed by both President Nixon and the Governor-General of Canada and is sponsored on the international level by the National Fire Protection Association.

In observance of National Fire Protection Week, Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann and Chief Perkins have extended an invitation to the general public to visit the city's various fire stations aand fire alarm office.

Visiting days have been set aside on Sunday and Monday, Oct. 7 and 8, and Saturday, Oct. 13, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

The theme for this year's observance is "Help Stop Fire!" and Chief Perkins has stated that he expects the emphasis to be on the individual citizen's responsibility in fighting fires.

Chief Perkins also expressed a desire to remind all citizens that although one week is annually set aside for fire prevention week, "the actual practice of fire prevention in homes, schools, businesses, churches is a routine that must be observed every day of the year."

"The appalling figures for the past year revealed more than 11,900 people killed, untold injuries and billions of dollars in property damage from fires," Chief Perkins said.

"These figures can and will be reduced if fire prevention becomes a continuous habit, if practiced by all individuals," he said.

"Let's all observe Fire Prevention Week throughout the year," Chief Perkins concluded.

Lead Screening

The lead screening program for all Newton children ages 1-6 will continue Oct. 16 at the Angier School in Waban from 9 a.m. to noon. The first screening, at Emerson School in Newton Upper Falls, took care of 134 children with the simple finger prick test. Pictured, Linda Glazer, Newton-Wellesley Hospital technician, tests the Brearly family, Robert, Mary Beth and Bill, while grandmother, Mrs. Benjamin Brearly (left) and mother, Mrs. Robert Brearley, look on. # Drugs Topic Of A Forum

Dr. Norman R. Bernstein, director of the Newton Guidance Clinic, and Barbara G. Rubin, president of the Newton Mental Health Association, Inc., jointly offer an opportunity for the citizens of Newton to listen to and discuss with Dr. Dana L. Farnsworth "The Drug Situation Today" Wednesday, October 10 at 8 p.m. at the Grace Episcopal Church, 76 Eldredge St., Newton Corner.

A native of West Virginia and a graduate of Harvard Medical School, Farnsworth's entire professional life has been devoted to the health of college and university students.

Presently serving as professor of hygiene emeritus, Harvard University and psychiatric consultant, Harvard School of Public Health, Farnsworth has recently completed his work as vice chairman of the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

He has recently returned from a tour of France, Italy, Beirut and West Germany in that capacity and will present a world overview of the understanding of the use and abuse of drugs (including alcohol) and how, why and where the local community fits into the total picture.

During his career, Farnsworth has served as president and-or chairman of many professional organizations dealing specifically with the mental health problems of students and young adults as well as authored and co-authored 8 books in the same area. The community is invited!

This presentation is part of an on-going educational series initiated by Bernstein for both the professional staff at the clinic on one level and the public at large on another level. A teaching film "Referred for Underachievement" made by Bernstein in conjunction with Edward A. Mason from the Laboratory of Community Psychiatry, Harvard Medical School, was the first teaching session for the staff, followed by a presentation on the "Wholistic Approach to Therapy" by Prof. Morris Schwartz of Brandeis University.

Recreation Notes

Oct. 15 Target Date For Pool Opening

Monday, Oct. 15, is the target date for opening the new North High School swimming pool to the public.

Once the pool is available for public use, it will be open from 7 to 10 p.m., Monday thru Friday and from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

Public use of the gymnasium facilities at the new North High School will probably be delayed well into November according to John Penney. Public use must await completion of the installation work for equipment, including folding partitions, bleachers, basketball standards and fittings for tennis and volleyball, as well as the usual gym equipment.

According to Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle, the city's Edwin O. Child's Neighborhood Center at the Hawthorn Playground is now operating on a seven day a week basis. The facility is directed by Joseph Siciliano.

Hours are 3 to 5 p.m. and 6:30 to 9 p.m., Monday thru Friday; 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

Evening programs are Monday for women; Tuesday, junior high age boys; Wednesday, high school age boys; Thursday, neighborhood residents; and Friday and Saturday are reserved for teenagers. The Sunday afternoon program is for general recreation, while Sunday night is known as Alumni Night.

During school vacations the center will be open on an expanded basis.

Head table guests included Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Recreation Commission chairman and Mrs. Paul J. Burke and Recreation Commissioner and Mrs. Penney.

The championship trophy was presented to the Jesters and the runner-up Tony's Villa, also received a trophy. A special appreciation award was given to umpires, Janice and Jake Bruce. League officers this year were President Carol Stapleton; Vice-President Louise Kiley; Secretary Nancy Bartley and Treasurer Katherine Sweeney. Frank Towle was the League Director. Jean Cole was the coach of the Champion, Jesters.

The youth oriented programs are scheduled to reopen the week of October 8th. The West Newton Community Youth Center, sponsored jointly by the Newton Community Center and the Newton Recreation Department resumes its open gym program at the Warren Junior High School Friday, Oct. 12th. The co-educational program for those in junior and senior high school will run from 7 to 11 p.m.

Also reopening will be the Coffee House and Drop-in Center at the Unitarian Church in West Newton. This program is also tailored for young people of junior and senior high school age and will be open from 7 to 11 p.m.

Last year's defending champions, the Art Carroll Packers, are tied with the Capello Bros. team with two wins each and a share of first place. Next is the Paulini Loam team with one win and one tie, while Rogan's Sporting Goods, the Stumblebums and Gaths all stand at one win and one loss apiece.

Bill says the well balanced league should offer good competition and interesting games this season. Games are played Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights at the Albemarle Playground. First game at 7:30 and the second at 8:30. Friday is reserved for makeup games. Austin Moore, Director of the Boy's Street Hockey League, warns that unless more interest is shown in the programs for boys 11 to 15, it may be cancelled.

Interested young men should call Recreation Intern Austin Moore at the Recreation Department, 969-3171 for further details.

The Recreation Department, like all other city departments, will be closed on October 8 and October 22.

The Toneastics Classes sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department are set to resume Tuesday, Oct. 9.

The classes for Newton Women are held Tuesday and Thursday mornings at the Newton Centre Playground House on Tyler Ter. from 9:30 to 10:30. Barbara Valinski directs the program.

The classes will run for six weeks and women have the option of attending either the Tuesday or Thursday classes, or both the Tuesday and Thursday classes.

Medical Offices Receive Support

A new condominium medical-office building will soon be proposed for the land at the corner of Washington street and Neshobe road, Lower Falls.

The land is under a purchase-and-sale agreement from the owner subject to rezoning from Residence B district, to Business AA.

A petition for rezoning of the two-acres-plus was denied by the Board of Aldermen in January of this year for construction of an insurance company office building.

At a public hearing neighbors opposed the petition almost unanimously, citing traffic problems as the chief objection.

The insurance company building would have housed 110 employees, with an unknown number of customers transacting business there daily.

The proposed new medical center will contain 20-25 offices owned by their doctor occupants, according to current plans.

Planning Director Charles Thomas said that the proposal had been discussed once with him about two months ago.

Since the rejection of the insurance office had been based primarily on high peak-hour traffic counts, Thomas said, the developers would have to show that the medical building would not engender a large amount of traffic at rush hour.

"Horizons for Youth seeks to expand its vitally needed services so that no needy and deserving boy or girl will be denied the enriching experiences that help them mature into citizens of character and responsibility," he stated.

Court Upholds Regal Decision

The Election Commission's decision to allow Herbert Regal's candidacy for the School Committee from Ward 6 was affirmed this week by Judge Paul Rutledge of Middlesex Superior Court.

Regal, who is living temporarily in an apartment in Ward 4, in August was challenged in his bid for reelection to a third term as school committeeman from Ward 6 by Robert Cohen, also running for the post.

In his decision, Judge Rutledge denied Cohen's application for a writ of certiorari against the Election Commission on the grounds that there was substantial evidence presented to support the decision of the commission, and there were no errors of law.

Cohen claimed at a hearing before the Election Commission that Regal's not being "physically a resident of Ward 6" rendered him ineligible to run from that ward.

The Election Commission decision hinged on the fact that since Regal's legal and voting address were acknowledged by all parties to be 155 Homer st., Ward 6, then he cannot be denied the right to seek election from that ward.

Cohen indicated Tuesday that he did not intend to appeal the Superior Court decision.

Bids Are Too High

Bids received two weeks ago by the Housing Authority for low-income family and elderly housing have been declared too high by the Department of Community Affairs.

NHA Executive Director Frank Quinn said Wednesday that a decision will be made at the authority's meeting next Wednesday as to whether the housing will have to be rebid or present specifications can be modified to meet DCA guidelines.

Farwell Construction Co. of Newton submitted the low bid, $2.8 million, followed by MacLeod Construction of Lowell, which bid $2.9 million.

The projects to be constructed are 10 duplex houses at Beaconwood Rd.; 50 units for the elderly and four for families on Thurston Rd.; and four family units on California St.

Quinn criticized the DCA guidelines as "too vague" and said every time the authority had asked DCA a question about cost, it got a different answer.

Newton Man Chairs Platform Committee

Gordon A. Martin, Jr., a 39-year-old attorney from Newton, has been unanimously elected chairman of the Democratic Platform Committee to succeed former Senator Mario Umana, who resigned upon his appointment as a judge of the Boston Municipal Court.

Martin, who served as a trial attorney in the Civil Rights Division of the Justice Department during the Kennedy Administration and later was first assistant U.S. attorney here and a special assistant to Senator Edward M. Kennedy, is a graduate of Roxbury Latin, Harvard and New York University Law School. He was formerly associate professor of Law at Northeastern and is now a partner in the Boston law firm Martin, Morse & Wylie.

A recognized authority in the fields of human rights and drug law, Martin served as commissioner of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination from 1969 to 1972 and was the first chairman of Boston's Coordinating Council on Drug Abuse. His articles have appeared in a variety of national publications. From 1970 until January 1973, Martin was state chairman of the Americans for Democratic Action.

He has been a leader in the Middlesex County reform movement and has also been active in Newton affairs as vice-chairman of the Democratic City Committee from 1968 to 1972 and President of the Sacred Heart Interracial Council. Martin is now vice-chairman of the Ward 7 Democratic Committee.

He lives at 31 Grant Avenue, Newton Centre, with his wife, Stephanie, and four children, Constance, 13, Clare, 10, Peter, 5, and Andrea, 2.

The Democratic Platform Committee was continued in existence by the 1972 Democratic State Convention to work for the implementation of the platform adopted at the convention. Fourteen bills were filed by the Committee for the present legislative session and additional hearings and meetings are being scheduled for this fall throughout the state as the Committee plans its 1974 legislative program. The Committee is believed to be the first instance in the country of a major political party keeping its platform committee alive to work for the platform's enactment.

Jackson Homestead Plans Historical Open House Sun.

Business, industry, and the professions as they were in early Newton will feature the OPEN HOUSE exhibitions at the Jackson Homestead, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 14, from 2-5 p.m.

The fourth of the Centennial Year exhibitions of the city-owned museum at 527 Washington St. in Newton is expected to attract wide interest. There is no charge for admission or for tours of the exhibits shown in the old stately mansion which is now officially listed on the National Register of Historical Sites.

For the event one room of the Homestead is being converted to an early day country store with its typical counters, wares, and notices — everything from shoe-buttons to butter and eggs, according to the announcement. An old U.S. Post Office will add to the authenticity of the scene. Enlarged facsimiles of old posters and advertisements of Newton Merchants of bygone days will be shown.

Sure to amuse visitors is the posted notice of the Country Store of 1854, prescribing rules for employees, and advising, "Men employees are given one evening a week for courting purposes, and two if they go to prayer meetings regularly."

The unusual exhibits have been prepared by Mrs. Orin E. Skinner, assisted by Mrs. John D. Fox. The forthcoming Open House marks the completion of 19 years of volunteer service by Mrs. Skinner who has been developing the material for the exhibits at the Homestead.

Members of the Auburndale Women's Club and the Newtonville Woman's Club are serving as hostesses for the event.

Floral decorations are being made by members of the Newton Centre Garden Club, among them, Mrs. Henry S. Cummings, President; Mrs. Philip A. Ingwerson, Mrs. Otis E. Stephenson, Mrs. J. Ralph Stuart, Mrs. A. Gilman Sawyer, and Miss Esther Winslow.

Fall plants being exhibited are provided by the Newton Highlands Garden Club of which Mrs. Robert H. Searway is President.

Judge Reverses Vale Decision

A Planning Board decision against Robert Cohen, owner of Webster Vale, was reversed this week by Judge Paul Rutledge of Middlesex Superior Court.

The court said the Planning Board had no authority to impose conditions on Cohen's proposed sewerage plan for the land in order to prevent water from flowing into the valley.

Also, the court ruled, the Planning Board was in error in not approving the three plans for sewerage submitted by Cohen after they had all been approved by the city's Health Department. The Planning Board approved only one.

The court decision leaves Cohen able to construct five houses on the Ridge, four duplex houses on the Vale side of Madoc St., and two duplex houses on the other side of Madoc St.

Meanwhile, talks will resume shortly between the city administration and Cohen on acquisition by the city of at least some of the Vale.

Appraisals of the land have been completed and City Planner Charles Thomas and Mayor Theodore Mann have been negotiating with Cohen in the past few weeks.

Cohen said Tuesday that the discussion is making "significant progress," and that he believes the "end result will be pleasing to everybody."

Friends of the Vale, a citizen group interested in saving the ecologically unique and valuable piece of land, recently presented the Mayor with a petition for city acquisition signed by 4,500 persons.

Friends of the Vale has also collected $3,000 toward the purchase price.

REDEVELOPMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Opportunity usually follows hard on the heels of change. And we expect that several important opportunities will arise in the very near future following a change in the Newton Redevelopment Authority.

A new member will soon be appointed to the authority. The person appointed will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mario DiCarlo.

A new member will mean internal change in the authority itself. And it could also mean external change affecting more of Newton.

And with the change come the following opportunities:

Now would be a good time to review the entire Lower Falls plan from its original concept to the present. The plan has been kicking around for some eight years, and during that time thinking has changed in many areas that apply to urban redevelopment.

More consideration should be given to the often-forgotten south side of Washington Street, which is also included in the plan.

Newton has an outstanding new city planner and a larger, energetic Planning Department staff. Surely these people can contribute much new and expert planning, especially with respect to the protection and use of the riverbanks.

The authority should now, instead of hoping that federal funds for housing will magically reappear, consider other sources, such as the Massachusetts Housing Fianance Agency.

Now as at no time before, the Redevelopment Authority can actively pursue the good will of the neighborhood.

And now as at no time before, the way has been cleared for the mayor, through his new appointment, to achieve a majority of the Authority that will be truly responsive to the community and the city.

Judge and Defendant

The judicial career of Dorchester District Court Judge Jerome Troy came full circle this week with his appearance before the Executive Council in Boston.

Just about 10 years ago the same council reviewed the qualifications of Troy and found him a worthy appointee to the bench. The future looked bright for the man whose name was submitted for approval by the then Governor John Volpe.

But this week Troy returned to the Executive Council under far different circumstances. The same body that gave its imprimatur long ago also has the power to remove him. Troy's appearance appears the last stop in a landslide loss of judicial integrity.

If one can imagine any one binding emotion that touched the thousands of defendants who appeared before Troy over the years it is that of hope. Each and every defendant hoped that somehow the crisis that brought him before the bench would pass. That life who somehow return to normal. Of course it never did. It never could.

Troy's hearing before the council bespeaks his last hope and this time he is the defendant. And life for the judge will never, ever be the same.

Governor Sargent minced no words when he opened the council's deliberations. "The people of this state have the right to know that only men of the highest integrity will be allowed to sit in judgement of others," Sargent said. "Only a swift and clear decision by this council will convince the people that misconduct on the bench will not be tolerated . . ."

The governor's words follows his own petition two weeks ago begging the council to remove Troy. And before that the highest court in the state reviewed the facts and disbarred Troy for improper conduct. Both houses of legislature also had their say, and, without the usual quibbling, voted for Troy's removal. Even the Bar Association spoke out against Troy.

The council has been asked for a swift discharge of its responsibility. No matter when their action comes it will not erase the shadow that Judge Troy has left forever on judicial conduct in Massachusetts.

Thumbnail Thoughts

Daylight Saving Time will surely catch on nationally when the clocks are set so far ahead that Friday becomes Saturday.

—o—

Thumbscrews may be out-dated but, over Watergate, the news media keeps alive the ability to put the pressure on Mr. Nixon.

—o—

Even more controversial than squabbles over Blue Laws would be the situation if all Massachusetts laws were strictly enforced.

—o—

In one respect, Governor Sargent is very influential. When he asks someone to pose with him for a picture, virtually nobody refuses.

DEFUSING EXPERT

Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

(Mr. Colbert's column reflects the columnist's own opinion and not necessarily that of Transcript Newspapers, Inc.)

Earlier Primary Would Help Democratic Governor Nominee

Political experts generally express the belief that a plan to move next year's primary ahead from September to June would help the Democratic nominee in his fight with Republican Francis W. Sargent.

As they reason it, Attorney General Robert H. Quinn and former State Representative Michael Dukakis of Brookline will be involved in a political blood-letting in the primary.

An advance of the primary from September to June would give the winner of the Democratic gubernatorial primary more than twice as much time to bind the wounds within his party and to raise the money to finance his final election campaign.

Governor Sargent and Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight both probably will be unopposed for Republican renomination. There are periodic reports that the business community and the conservative Republicans may back a candidate against Sarge in the GOP primary, but Mr. Sargent is unbeatable in a primary and in the end that ideal undoubtedly will be abandoned as impractical.

It will be interesting to see how many contests break out for places on the Republican State Ticket. Governor Sargent is planning to hold an unofficial Republican State Convention in June, or earlier if the primary is scheduled in June, and to invoke party discipline to uphold the convention endorsements.

To some extent Governor Sargent may want to dictate the makeup of the Republican State ticket so that it will have ethnic and geographical balance. But some Republican candidates who are turned down by the convention may insist on exercising their right to carry their fights on into the primary.

Aside from the nominations for Governor and Lieutenant Governor, which will go to Sargent and Dwight respectively, the most coveted place on the Republican State ticket will be as the GOP candidate for Attorney General since Robert Quinn is leaving that office to seek promotion to the Governorship.

A battle already is shaping up between State Senator John Quinlan of Norwood and Ron Burton, a black and a former star running back for the Patriots, for the Republican nomination for Secretary of State.

Governor Sargent will be able to use the nominations for State Treasurer and State Auditor to balance the GOP ticket since the Republican candidates for those two offices face certain defeat but are rewarded with state jobs after the election.

Nixon Not Likely To Turn To Bay State If Veep Needed

A television newscaster, apparently dreaming political dreams, speculated the other night that President Nixon might turn to Massachusetts to make his choice for a new Vice President in the event that Spiro Agnew resigns or is removed from that office.

This writer belongs to the school of observers who believe Agnew will not resign from the Vice Presidency while he is under investigation in Baltimore for allegedly accepting kickbacks when he was Governor of Maryland. We can't see what he would gain by such an action or how it could be construed as anything but an admission of guilt.

Legal experts also inform us that there may be some doubt whether Agnew can be removed from the Vice Presidency for something he is accused of doing before he assumed that office.

But if the Vice Presidency should become vacant, we doubt very much that President Nixon would come to Massachusetts to pick his nominee for the No. 2 position in the federal government.

Of the four, Richardson is probably the only one who might be offered the job and conceivably might accept it.

But Richardson is a potential candidate for President in 1976, and Democratic leaders in Congress have quietly served notice they will not confirm a Vice Presidential nominee who might seek the Presidency three years from now. Richardson definitely is in that category.

So while the Senate three times has approved the appointment of Richardson to high federal posts—Secretary of HEW, Secretary of Defense and Attorney General—Democratic leaders in the body say they would not confirm his nomination for Vice President.

Neither Governor Sargent nor Senator Brooke occupies a place on the list of people with whom President Nixon would like to be washed up on a desert island. Neither is likely to be offered the Vice Presidency, and, in all fairness, neither would be likely to accept it in the highly improbable event he were offered it.

Former Senator Saltonstall retired from public life a little less than seven years ago, and the chances of his coming out of retirement to become Vice President are so remote as to be non-existent.

Much as we would like to be fanciful in predicting that President Nixon will look to Massachusetts—the one state he failed to carry last November—for a new Vice President if he should need one, common sense tells us he would select someone such as Senator Barry Goldwater.

The one slim Vice Presidential possibility in Massachusetts is John A. Volpe, former Governor and now the U.S. Ambassador to Italy. He was Nixon's second choice for the Vice Presidency in 1968. Spiro Agnew for some reason was his first choice.

New York Anti-Drug Laws Send Heroin Pedlars Here

Law-enforcement officials report that New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller's stern crackdown on illegal traffic in drugs, with stiff new laws which went into effect Sept. 1, appears to be producing effective results, with a sharp drop in arrests for the illegal sale of narcotics.

But they warn that as the supply of hard drugs dries up in New York State, it may increase in Massachusetts and especially in Greater Boston.

That would seem to be a telling answer to those left-wing bleeding hearts on Beacon Hill who want to soften the anti-drug laws, not stiffen them.

Rocky advocated the sterner laws when just about every other approach to the drug problem in New York failed.

The new law makes prison sentences mandatory in most cases involving the sale of hard drugs. Sentences which must be served before paroles can be granted range from one to 15 years.

Persons possessing any amount of heroin must be sentenced to at least a year in prison. A second offense brings a term of four and a half years. Sellers of heroin face a minimum of a year in prison and the possibility of six years. Big sellers go to prison for at least 15 years.

So the drug pedlars have curtailed their operations, are now very cautious about being arrested on a drug-selling charge, and many of them, who have been flouting the law in New York, are either going out of business or moving elsewhere.

That should tell Massachusetts law-makers something.

Are We Living In A Democracy Or In A Monarchy With A King?

Scholars of the law and of government are intrigued by the history-making battle over the tapes which could answer the question of who is lying and who is telling the truth in the Watergate mess. They point out that students will be studying the present-day events and controversies a hundred years from now.

But a lot of little people, who don't understand exactly what Article 2 of the U. S. Constitution means when it says: "The executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America," are beginning to wonder whether they are living in a democarcy or a monarchy.

To many of them it isn't completely clear whether the man they elected as their President last November is the servant of the people or the master of the people.

No Roman emperor and no Oriental potentate ever commanded so much opulence or so many trappings of office as does President Richard M. Nixon in what we have supposed to be a democracy.

To cite just one thing, he commands a fleet of 27 airplanes valued at more than $80 million, with four more planes costing between $5 and $8 million on order.

As another example, the President's press secretary recently confirmed that $285,000 in public funds were being spent to rearrange the cabin space aboard the brand-new Air Force One, the interior of which, as originally designed and finished, already had cost close to $2 million.

It was reported that Mrs. Nixon had complained that her compartment was being used as a passageway to get to the President's compartment.

President Nixon has assembled enough land while serving in the White House to qualify as a feudal baron, and huge amounts of public funds have been spent to make improvements on it

No emperor, however arrogant and powerful, ever traveled at greater expense to his people than did Richard Nixon on his journeys between Washington and San Clemente and Camp David on which he usually was accompanied by an entourage of about 200 persons.

One distinguished observer recently expressed the conviction that President Nixon is out of touch with the American people. That probably just isn't so. No one out of touch with the people could have made the brilliant campaign Mr. Nixon conducted last autumn in which he carried 49 of the 50 states. He certainly sensed the mood of the people much more accurately than did George McGovern. But he does not seem to be sensing it as clearly now.

If the Watergate scandal helps to restore the United States to the status of a democracy, it will have been worthwhile.

North High Dedicated

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Sunday was taxpayers' day at the new Newton North High School.

Sunday was also the day for the satisfaction of curiosity, the day when everyone who has stopped and marveled at the great red edifice on Lowell Avenue, got a chance to go inside and poke around.

And it's quite a site.

Completely Black

I think Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink and the members of the School Committee experienced a certain amount of vindication at the dedication ceremonies Sunday. I think visitors to the high school came away with the feeling that their money had not been wasted after all.

I'll say one thing for the new high school; it's got great acoustics in the auditorium. With the talent in evidence in the concert band and choirs, I wouldn't have minded if the whole dedication had been just one big concert.

Nevertheless, "remarks" were delivered by school and city officials. Words of praise poured forth. In this case, I think it can also be pointed out that Eliot Cohen, president of the Newton Board of Aldermen, was the best speaker.

He may be one of the only men in Newton who gets up and says: "I'll be brief . . ." and is.

Meanwhile, the staff of the "Newtonite" concocted its own student guide to the high school which features the following wry observations:

Buses: "Don't worry yet about bus passes. For at least a week (and probably two months) all bus rides are free."

Cafeteria: "Everything is new and beautiful except, you guessed it, the food."

Commons Rooms: "If you're mourning the old buildings, the commons rooms should be comforting with those same old slit vinyl chairs."

Gym: "You could land a 747 there, play a game of football, or invite the Western Hemisphere for tea."

That "Newtonite" is an okay paper.

Mondale Seen Likely Nominee If Ted Kennedy Again Says No

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey declared the other day that he will not be a candidate for President in 1976 and that his man for the Presidency is his fellow Senator from Minnesota, Walter F. (Fritz) Mondale.

While Mondale is 46 years old and Humphrey is 62 and Mondale as a 21-year-old youth supported Humphrey in his first run for the Senate, Mondale is the senior Senator from Minnesota and HHH is the junior Senator.

That is because Humphrey interrupted his service as Senator to win election as Vice President, and Mondale was named to succeed him in the Senate. Mondale subsequently won reelection in 1966 and 1972.

Even Mondale's most enthusiastic supporters, who point out that he is bright, articulate, highly popular and has a solid record as a liberal Senator, concede that he has one big problem named Edward M. Kennedy.

If Senator Ted Kennedy wants the nomination for President in 1976, it will be his for the taking. Indeed, Democratic leaders will wait upon him and urge him to accept it. And Ted may have to decide whether he wants to be President.

FAA Regional Director Comments On Editorial

To the Editor:

Once again the time has come for us in the Federal Aviation Administration to state publicly facts concerning the Norwood Airport and federal actions which affect development there.

We stated the facts surrounding the draft airport master plan in an open letter to the Town of Norwood on March 28, 1973. Although we don't perceive the implications of the Editorial on September 19, 1973, titled "Airports and Indians" as being primarily or properly directed toward us federal "Great White Fathers," we fear that by being included in the group that your readers may not share our perception.

To imply that federal aviation interests (the FAA) have indulged in a conspiracy of secrecy — digging a "credibility gap" — is a misdirected allegation.

It has been as a result of the federal process which requires publicly coordinating the local and state initiated planning efforts that many facts about the airport have recently come to public attention. This issue of secrecy, which is a moot one at best, should not cloud the real question at hand for the citizens of Norwood.

The airport at Norwood is a fact in being. It has been the property of Norwood since 1942, when by vote of Town Meeting, an agreement was made for the construction of an airport at federal expense, to be operated by the town.

Through a series of additional federal grants requested by the town and through other locally-initiated projects, the airport has been expanded and improved to its present state.

The airport has been recognized as part of the National System of Airports for many years and as such the development needs of the airports, responding to long-term trends of the growth of aviation, have been made public through dissemination of the National Airport Plan and the present-day National Airport System Plan. The federally supported Airport Master Plan initiated by the Town of Norwood, through its Airport Commission and the Massachusetts State Airport System Plan, initiated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, have been attempts to further define the development requirements and anticipated role of the airport in responding to the aviation demand of the future — should Norwood decide to respond to this demand.

The construction of the FAA tower has been an open action; the need to provide the benefits or orderly, controlled aircraft movements for safety and noise abatement is clear. As early as 1967, the eventual need for a tower was recognized and made a part of a grant agreement whereby the town agreed to furnish land for tower construction.

This agreement has been a part of each subsequent grant. The new tower is one of a large scale procurement made by FAA of 64 towers, all alike, each equally capable of being modified to accommodate the needs of individual sites.

These efforts have been the rational attempt to accommodate the economic and transportation demands of a growing community and nation at a living airport. The energy of the public has been directed, by its concern for the comfort and safety of the airport's neighbors, to questioning the need for and motivation for development at the airport. The local politics of decision-making have been attacked. The implication is made that "they" are trying to mask the real purpose for improvements at the airport. This is not so. Norwood is a part of the Boston Metropolitan Area, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the United States of America, with the benefits as well as the problems that accrue in that situation. The facts of economic and transportation demand for aviation are real. The choice of whether to cooperatively and maturely work to solve the problems or present day reality or to give up, close the airport, pay back the federal and state investment, and let some other community worry about it is the choice of the citizens of Norwood. If the choice is the former, we in the FAA will do our part to support mutual efforts to meet the challenge in an open atmosphere of cooperation and trust.

Trustee Vice Chairman

A prominent Newton businessman, Francis J. Sawyer, has been elected vice chairman of the board of trustees of Franklin Pierce College, Rindge, New Hampshire.

Sawyer has been a trustee of the liberal arts college since 1966 and is largely credited as the father of its law school, which opened this week with 100 students as the only Law School in Northern New England.

A graduate of Suffolk Law School, Sawyer has been active in numerous civic and philanthropic ventures. He recently served as general chairman of the Newton Centennial Events Committee. He is past president of the Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts, a trustee of Parker Hill Medical Center, a member of the President's Council of the Art Institute of Boston and has served as a judge of the Ten Outstanding Young Men of Greater Boston program sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Open Letter

Editor, Newton Graphic:

An open response to Mr. Michael S. Keavaney

Yes, I love my kids. Yes, I think I'm all right and yes, I am taking a close look at the candidates in this coming election.

Yes, I see Billy Carmen running again and again; but, no, I do not see Billy Carmen representing all the citizens of Newton.

I see Mr. Carmen as the Union Negotiator for Local 800, a large and powerful special interest group of Newton's city workers.

If Mr. Carmen represented the Union with integrity (as I'm sure he did) he had to get for them as much as he could, in terms of wage increases and other benefits - all paid for by the Newton taxpayer.

I see Billy Carmen the "shrewd businessman" running his campaign over $500 in the red two whole months before the election. I wonder if he would run the City in the red also. I see Billy Carmen paying $13,000 out of his own pocket for the Office of Mayor. When I look closely at the candidates running in this current election, I see Ted Mann as Mayor.

Attention 'Ghosts'

Editor, Newton Graphic:

In early Oct., 1974 the 2D Cavalry Association is going to hold a reunion at Provincetown on Cape Cod.

A group is trying to acquire sufficient membership to have a Massachusetts Chapter. As the Association was chartered in 1899 there are several chapters in the Mid-West and Mid-East.

Membership is made up of men who have served with the 2D Cavalry Regiment.

The regiment was activated in 1836 as a horse cavalry. The 2D Dragoons has progressed through many minor actions and wars. At present as the 2D Armd Cav. Regt. it maintains surveillance of a large segment of the East German and Czechoslovakian Border. During World War II it was nicknamed the Ghost of Patton's Third Army.

Men who have served with the regiment during, after or between action can be members of the Association. For more information any former member of the 42nd or 2nd Cavalry please drop me a line at the following address, or phone 391-3759.

Resigns-

rented to other contractors by Ace Rental Co.

While DiCarlo himself is a part owner of DiCarlo Bros., he has no direct ownership in Ace Rental, according to the Law Department.

Another incident, unrelated to the Redevelopment Authority, may have served as the trigger for DiCarlo's resignation, which Mayor Mann said he has often requested since becoming mayor.

Permission to build the Towers at Chestnut Hill, a condominium complex of which DiCarlo is part owner, recently was found to have expired two years ago. Several aldermen indicated their reluctance to vote an extension of permissive use as long as DiCarlo remained a member of the Redevelopment Authority.

Speculation is already rife about the new appointee to the authority, with Sheila Farnese, president of the Auburndale Community Association and longtime observer of city affairs, and Anton Pruckner, the "Mayor of Newton Corner," prominent among the names.

A spokesman for the mayor said the appointment will probably not be decided until next week or later.

The reappointment of the governor's appointee to the authority, Lawrence Sullivan, is also up in the air. Lower Falls citizens have submitted a petition to the governor asking that Sullivan not be reappointed.

The governor's office said Tuesday that a decision may be forthcoming next week.

Dwight Replies On Furloughs

Editor, Newton Graphic:

It is ironic that Mr. Brad Pearson of Self Development Group, Inc., has taken me to task for suspending the furlough program for inmates serving life sentences for first-degree murder in Massachusetts (Graphic, Sept. 20).

It is ironic because Mr. Pearson and I are on the same side of the issue.

The furlough program has been valuable to correction officials in carrying out their primary task: preparing men and women in prison for reentry into society. The program has been particularly successful among first-degree lifers. At MCI Norfolk, for instance, 35 of the 44 first-degree lifers were furloughed a total of 126 times before the program was suspended two weeks ago.

Not one failed to return. Not one violated any furlough restrictions.

It has been our position from the outset that since first-degree lifers are eligible for commutation, they should therefore be eligible for furlough on the ground that they have the potential for reintegration into the community.

Attorney General Quinn disagrees however; and until the issue can be resolved in a court of law, we feel bound by his opinion. When I announced the suspension, I made it quite clear that the administration is prepared to advocate continuation of the program for first-degree lifers in a court test.

It is not my position that a furlough is the inalienable right of every inmate in every institution. I recognize that some are not ready to accept the responsibilities associated with an unsupervised absence from prison.

Indeed, some may never be ready. But neither do I believe that one category of inmate should, by definition, be excluded.

The men adversely affected by the attorney general's opinion have already demonstrated the worth of the furlough program. I am hopeful that the privilege can be restroed soon.

Thanks Firefighters

(Editor's note; Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins Jr. received the following letter and sent it to the Graphic.)

Dear Chief Perkins:

About 10 days ago, some of your men answered an emergency call to our home to help revive my mother, Mrs. Beatrice Jacobs. I would like to take this opportunity not only to thank them for their successful efforts in her behalf, but also to commend them and you as their chief on their efficiency, courtesy and concern.

Newton is indeed fortunate to have gentlemen such as these guarding the welfare of its citizens.

Thank you.

DiCarlo Explains-

"I have also become convinced that a good deal of confusion has been created in the minds of many Newton citizens who for some reason, which I cannot explain, seem to see a relationship between my membership on the Authority and my business interests. There is not and never has been any relationship or conflict between my business interests and my membership on the Authority.

Hopefully, my resignation will make this clear and both the Authority and I will be able to pursue our respective interests in an atmosphere that is not beclouded by irrelevancies.

"I express through you to the citizens of Newton my appreciation for having the opportunity to serve on the Authority in the Lower Falls and other parts of the City will result in a revitalization of the noble objectives that the Authority set out to accomplish."

AUTO FACTS

By JOHN NAJARIAN

Make your car's engine look brand new if you want to keep it in good running shape. Remove the air cleaner, wrap the carburetor, distributor, coil and alternator in plastic bags. Secure these with rubber bands. Spray the engine with engine degreaser. Allow this to emulsify for a few minutes; then hose the engine clean with water. Heavy dirt may need a second treatment.

NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191 is in business to insure that your local service station or garage is able to purchase quality parts to keep your car in running shape. If however, your are a do-it-yourselfer we can also serve you. We carry the complete Delco line. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8-7 Sat. 8-5.

HELPFUL HINT: Make sure you know the entrances and exits on high speed highways before your start; a moment's hesitation can casue an accident.

Mayoral Financial Disclosures

Newton's three mayoral candidates have continued their practice of the past few months and made financial disclosure of their campaign contributors and expenditures for the period Aug. 24 to Sept. 25.

Of the three candidates, only William Carmen submitted his figures on the official forms used for post-election disclosures.

According to Ms. Carole Cohen, program director for Common Cause, the official forms were to be used as agreed upon by all three candidates.

Last month, all three candidates submitted their figures without listing the street addresses of contributors as called for on the official forms.

This time, however, both Carmen, using the specified forms, and incumbent Mayor Theodore D. Mann included the street addresses of their contributors.

The third candidate, Elliott Berry, listed only two individual contributors, Mr. and Mrs. H. Berry, but only listed their address as Detroit.

Berry received $50 from them and raised another $24 from a fund raising party to bring his total contributions for the month to $74.

In contrast, Mayor Mann received, through his contributors, a total of $5,656, while he spent $4,940.61.

Carmen, on the other hand, received $1849 from contributors and spent $5038.63.

He and his wife made up the difference with a $5000 personal loan to the campaign as they have done in previous months.

Towers Asks For Fairness-

This is not characteristic of fly-by-night developers," Lovell commented.

During all these negotiations, Lovell said in response to what he called a "key question" from Alderman David Cohen "No, the signers did not have any zoning document. There were no assurances that building could proceed without further approval."

Alderman Harry Crosby said, "The enormity of this problem boggles my mind. Why was the permissive use not extended?"

"That is the question that excites us all," Lovell replied. "I haven't found the answer. They probably thought no extension was necessary."

Alderman Joseph McDonnell pointed out that changes in landscaping and parking facilities occasioned by a reduction in the number of units originally planned would in any event constitute a substantial plan change, requiring approval of the Board of Aldermen.

Land Use Chairman Alan Barkin agreed that the Towers will have to come before the board for a site-plan approval.

The question of the Towers' involvement in low–income housing was especially pertinent, since a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance was heard in public, right after the Towers hearing.

The amendment would require developers to set aside a certain number of apartment units for lease to the Housing Authority for its leased-housing program.

The proposed amendment also requires builders to offer condominiums for sale to the Housing Authority.

Atty. Connolly told the committee that in the Towers' opinion the "10 per cent rule" would not apply, and it "would be totally unfeasible."

"This is not to say that we are not willing to participate actively in seeking low-moderate income housing. Prior to this meeting we have been working on alternative proposals," Connolly said.

We have been talking to the Newton Community Development Foundation about their property on Hamlet Street. We could purchase it from NCDF and develop up to 20 two-family units," Connolly continued.

"Or we might do the site work and they could develop on their own," he added.

Among the proponents of the Towers project was former alderman Adelaide Ball, who said, "We've heard about the needs of the less affluent. The affluent also need some place to go. There's very little available for them."

Speaking in opposition to extending the permissive use were Mark White, aldermanic candidate, who first brought the expiration to public attention, and Judith Beram, representing the Newton Committee for Fair Housing and Equal Rights, who said her committee opposes the use of the land for the rich.

Ms. Brram urged the Land Use Committee to deny the request for extension of permissive use and "address itself to the real housing needs of the city."

A show of hands among the 150-plus citizens attending the hearing showed about 70 in favor, 40 opposed.

Another show of hands was requested to indicate neighborhood feeling about development of the NCDF adjoining land for low-moderate income housing. Response was about 40 in favor, 12 opposed.

The Land Use Committee has scheduled a working meeting for Oct. 18 at 7:45 p.m.

Preliminaries-

"Revaluation," he said, "means everybody pays their own fair share."

Mann also pointed out that he too has been working on corrective legislation and said some of his emphasis has been on making sure that all other Massachusetts cities and towns comply with the 100 per cent valuation law which is another step in everybody paying their fair share.

Mann also is behind the idea of revaluing and then sponsoring any "corrective" legislation needed to help homeowners in Newton that might be threatened by it.

Candidates in Ward 3 are incumbent Richard J. Bullwinkle, Paul K. Daley, Robert J. Keefe and Cynthia Lacey. Voters will select two.

Ward 4 aldermanic candidates are incumbent Richard J. McGrath, Leonard Frisoli and Alvin Huberman. Voters will also choose two in this race.

Candidates for alderman-at-large in Ward 7 are incumbent Jason Sacks, Mark White, Dominic Taglienti, Henri Pelletier, Alice Wilson and Melvin Norris.

This is the city-wide race and all voters will select four candidates for the ward's two alderman-at-large seats.

In Ward 3, it is expected that the incumbent will be renominated. One challenger, Cynthia Lacey, has reportedly dropped out of the race, but her name will still be on the ballot.

Daley has also reportedly been campaigning vigorously for the ward alderman post and perhaps will secure the other nomination. Keefe has been less visible.

Ward 4 observers see the race boiling down to a contest between McGrath and Frisoli. Frisoli is considered to be, in some circles, a popular candidate. Huberman, though, is also well-known.

In Ward 7, Mark White put himself in the public eye with his discovery of the expired permissive use for the construction of the Towers in Chestnut Hill. His visibility could well help him get a nomination.

Mrs. Wilson, too, is well-known in the Newton Centre area because of her association with the Holden's Taxi Co. Much of the thrust of her campaign has been aimed at traffic problems, particularly in the Newton Corner area.

Pelletier is running on the Elliott Berry slate.

Norris, an attorney, has served on the Newton Crime Prevention Committee and was a member of the Building Code Revision Committee.

Taglienti is the brother of Victor Taglienti, assistant building commissioner in Newton.

Sacks, the incumbent, has served two terms on the Board of Aldermen.

In addition to narrowing the field in ward races, the preliminary has the added possibilities of giving a mayoral candidate a psychological edge for November.

In fact, this may be the most interesting thing about the preliminary.

If Wards 3 and 4 produce the expected strong Democratic vote, Carmen could get an edge in the totals and a subconscious edge with the rest of Newton's 50,000 voters.

If despite the strong Democratic vote, Mann comes out on top, Carmen's fight can only be uphill for the remaining four weeks of campaigning.

All registered voters in Newton have been sent a card indicating where they are to vote, due to changes in ward and precinct lines. Polling places are the same as in previous elections.

Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Faces-

Mrs. Eccles appeared in court on Monday morning with another son, Edward, and listened as Judge Kilburn set the bail and trial date for her eldest son.

The mortally wounded youth was a student at Rindge Technical High School in Cambridge.

Funeral services were held for him on Thursday, Oct. 4, at 1 p.m. in St. Augustine's African Orthodox Church in Cambridge. Interment was in Cambridge Cemetery.

Tay-Sachs Screening Scheduled

The Tay-Sachs Prevention Program has received a check representing the proceeds of a statewide Tag Day.

Tay-Sachs Foundation of New England President Karen Zeiger made the presentation to Dr. Allen C. Crocker of the Children's Hospital Medical Center and Dr. Edwin H. Kolodny of the Eunice Kennedy Shriver Center for Mental Retardation, Inc., at the Walter E. Fernald State School, co-directors of the Tay-Sachs Prevention Program, at a foundation meeting recently at Temple Emmanuel in Newton.

At that meeting, community leaders made plans for the first Massachusetts community screening program to identify carriers of the trait for Tay-Sachs disease. The screening will be held Nov. 4 at the Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center. A second screening is planned for early December at the Marblehead Jewish Community Center.

Tay-Sachs disease is an inherited fatal metabolic disorder affecting mainly children of Ashkenazi (Eastern European) Jewish background. Carriers can be identified by a simple blood test. If two carriers of the trait marry, there is one chance in four that their children will be afflicted with the disease. Their pregnancies can be monitored to determine whether the fetus is affected and to enable carrier couples to produce only normal children.

The screening program is being prepared in cooperation with Beth Israel Hospital.

Teachers Unite For Slow Pupils

The Association of Teachers of Low Achievers in Mathematics (ATLAM) will hold its first 1973-74 meeting. on Saturday, Oct. 13, at 9:30 a.m. at the new Newton North High School.

The meeting will consist of a presentation by Eleanor Lind of a program developed in Walpole for the reluctant learner. Open forum discussions on various topics concerning the low achiever will also be held.

The purpose of ATLAM is to find ways to assist teachers in order to more effectively teach the low achiever in mathematics. The group wants to bring together teachers of low achievers in mathematics so that methods, programs, ideas, and possible solutions to difficulties can be shared.

The following people agreed last spring to serve the association for one year: Herb Chasen, Minuteman Voc. Tec. School, president; Marie Petranic, Brookline H.S. vice-president; Eleanor Lind, Walpole Public Schools, secretary; Richard Mackler, Newton North H. S., treasurer.

ATLAM plans to ask members to submit new ideas and descriptions of progams and materials for the low achiever. These will be organized, published, and sent to each member.

The group also plans in the future to visit schools to see math labs and materials. They are going to work on the problem of finding certain minimum math requirements for tomorrow's citizen. They plan to ask representatives from industry and the business world to help find workshops to disseminate information and materials for the low achiever. ATLAM will have a subcommittee search for existing effective programs for the low achiever.

Doctors Publish Book

Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Chiefs of Medicine and Cardiology are co-authors of a book, "Medical Management of Primary Hypertension" just published by Little Brown and Company.

Based on a series of articles prepared for the "New England Journal of Medicine" by Lot B. Page, M.D., chief of medicine and James J. Sidd, M.D., chief of cardiology, the volume is one of the Journal's Medical Progress Series. It is cited as "truly invaluable to all physicians who treat patients with hypertension or cardiovascular disease."

Accumulating evidence shows that elevated blood pressure in both men and women carries a risk for various forms of cardiovascular disease and that risks are reduced by lowering blood pressure.

As a medical progress report, the Page-Sidd book critically reviews the evidence and summarizes current objectives in the treatment of primary hypertension as well as reporting comprehensively on each of the drugs commercially available for this purpose.

As well, new information has been added on beta-adrenergic blocking agents and on the use of combined drug therapy as it relates to the value of physiologic determination in primary hypertension and to the management of hypertensive emergencies.

Dr. Page, professor of medicine at Tufts University School of Medicine, was appointed chief of medicine at Newton-Wellesley Hospital in 1966. Prior to that he had been chief of the Hypertension Study Group and Clinic at Massachusetts General Hospital.

In Newton-Wellesley's hypertension laboratory, he has been carrying on with a research project started here. Supported by the National Institutes of Health, one of its important developments has been a test which determines with great accuracy, the amount and presence of substances produced by the kidneys.

These substances have a profound effect upon blood pressure, the activity of the adrenal glands and the ability of the body to retain salt.

Still another research project has taken Dr. Page on four two-month trips to the Solomon Islands as a member of the Harvard-Peabody Museum expeditions. As the expedition's cardiovascular expert, Dr. Page particularly studied blood pressure trends in primitive pagan societies and as reported in the March, 1973, "Newton-Wellesley Quarterly," evidence collected strongly points to the use of salt by acculturated societies as a cause of the higher blood pressure common to them.

Dr. Sidd, an associate professor at Tufts School of Medicine, was named Newton-Wellesley's chief of cardiology in 1967. He had previously been chief assistant of cardiology at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. He has authored a dozen or so papers related to his field.

Both physicians are graduates of Harvard Medical School. Dr. Page, now a resident of Lincoln, served his internship and residency at Massachusetts General Hospital, while Dr. Sidd, who lives in Wellesley, served his at Harvard's Thorndike Service at Boston City Hospital.

Newton To Host Job Fair

Newton's second annual Job Fair will be held at City Hall on Saturday, Oct. 20, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Mayor Theodore Mann has announced.

Alfred E. DiBenedetti, personel director for the city, will manage the event.

DiBeneditti said this week that already a number of companies and organizations have offered confirmation of numerous and varied job openings in the professional technical and clerical areas.

Information pertaining to the availability and channels of approach for civil service employment may also be obtained through Job Fair facilities.

In addition, the Job Fair will provide any interested citizen the opportunity to confer with representatives of the city's Veterans' asssistance Officer, the Office of Human Resources, and the Office of Citizens' Assistance.

DiBenedetti cordially invites anyone presently unemployment or comtemplating employment change to attend the Job Fair, which will serve to assist in easing the unemployment problem in Newton while simultaneously providing circumstances for extensive and unique employment opportunities.

Reelected

Vincent P. McCarthy of Newton has been reelected clerk of the Robert F. Kennedy Action Corps at its fourth annual meeting. McCarthy is an attorney.

Mrs. Berman Receives Grant

The Society of the Sigma XI announced today through the chairman of its committee on awards, Dr. Harold G. Cassidy, a grant-in-aid of research award to Mrs. Judith R. Berman of Boston University and Newton.

This award has been made to Mrs. Berman to assist her in her study of "The performance of good readers and reading disabled children in learning a musical soound-symbol system: A task analysis and remedial relevance."

Dr. Cassidy, in making this announcement, stated "Sigma XI each year makes a number of grants to promising scientists at critical points in their research careers. We recognize that many needs are relatively too small for the large foundations to consider, yet to the scientist himself the need may be critical. It is to meet these needs that our research fund in maintained."

Founded in 1886, the Society of the Sigma XI now has 183 chapters and more than 242 clubs in the major colleges and universities in the United States and Canada. Sigma XI, with an active membership of 110,000 scientiests, sponsors eighteen national lectureships, publishes "American Scientist," and in the academic year 1972-73 made awards in support of research totaling $77,043.

Art Work Recovered

Newton police made five arrests Monday evening after several original paintings in the lobby of the Academy Cinema proved more alluring to the local suspects than the feature film.

Responding to a call from the theater manager, Calvin Martini of Wollaston, about 9:30 p.m., a police cruiser arrived in time to witness two vehicles, one laden with the missing paintings, pull away from the theater.

The police gave chase and despite an attempted blockade by the second vehicle, managed to stop both suspected automobiles at the corner of Lincoln and Bowdoin Streets, according to the arresting officer.

Officer Harry Travers immediately made five arrests and confiscated the coyeted art works. All suspects were charged with larceny over $100 and one was additionally charged with assault and battery on a police officer, the investigative report revealed.

An inventory of the confiscated paintings indicated their value at approximately $1000.

Among those retrieved were ' Watching the Storm," by James Mickleson, valued at $250; and "The Fall," by John Chicuti, estimated to be worth $350.

Take Action Against F.A. Day Contractor

The Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination has initiated action against the contractor of the two-year-old Day Junior High School, it was reported at a recent meeting of the Community Relations Commission.

According to John Robinson, MCAD public relations officer, the MCAD voted in August to act on the complaint of the Employment Committee of the CRC on the hiring practices of James J. Welch & Co.

The Community Relations employment committee presented documents to the MCAD in August, 1972, related to the Welch's hiring of minority workers.

Norman Welch, president of the Welch firm, said this week that he had not been informed of any action being undertaken by the MCAD.

"It is inconceivable to me," he said, "that this could happen after so much time."

Welch said he and the Community Relations Commission had met once during the construction of the school to discuss the number of minority employees, which the CRC felt should have been larger.

He told the commission then that he had tried to find more minority employees, Welch said. "This was the first job we had done in such a minority-conscious community."

A mayor's directive of 1969, incorporated into the contract, called for proof of non-discrimination in employment.)

"We were not informed of violations," Welch said, "and there was no holdback in payment for the contract. There were minorities employed on the school."

William Ramsey, present chairman of the Community Relations Commission and then chairman of its employment committee, said this week that the action cannot now result in any payment for damages to the city.

"The Welch company was deficient and delinquent in its attempts to hire minority employees. All we can expect now is to bring this fact to the attention of the state," Ramsey said.

AN INITIATIVE PETITION

Pursuant to Article XLVIII of the Amendments to the Constitution of the Commonwealth

FOR AN INITIATIVE PETITION FOR AN ACT FURTHER REGULATING THE SUPPORT OF SCHOOLS BY AUTHORIZING A TWO-THIRDS VOTE OF A MUNICIPAL LEGISLATIVE BODY TO REDUCE A SCHOOL BUDGET.

SUMMARY

The act would allow a city council, board of aldermen, town meeting or other municipal legislative body to delete or reduce any item in a budget which had previously been submitted for the support of the public schools in a city or town. Such action by a municipal legislative body would require the approval of at least a two-thirds vote of those present and voting at a town meeting, or a two-thirds vote of the entire membership of a city council or board of aldermen. In a city with a bicameral type of government, the power to so act would lie with the board of aldermen.

School Autonomy Challenge Takes A Different Approach

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Should a municipal legislative body be empowered to delete or reduce items in a school budget of a city or town?

This question has been debated in the legislature over the years, always with a negative outcome.

Now the "Ten Men of Massachusetts" have taken another approach, to change existing law via initiative petition and referendum.

The "Ten Men" expect that their proposed legislation will be the overriding issue in the 1974 state election.

At a meeting last week to launch the initiative-petition drive, chairman of the Ten Men John W. Agnew, explained his organization's position.

"We believe that expensive education is not necessarily good education and that good education is not necessarily expensive," Agnew said.

"We have viewed with dismay the mounting percentage of each municipal budget, that goes, without taxpayer control, into the school budget. For many years roughly 20 per cent of local budgets went to schools; today the norm is over 50 per cent," Agnew said.

The Ten Men do not intend to convert town meetings and city councils into "instant School Committees," Agnew said. "We know that the autonomy conferred on school committees years ago was the only way known to keep politics out of the faculty, the administration and the classroom."

"But when we screened out politics, we also screened out local control," Agnew said.

Former mayor of Attleboro Thomas A. Piggott, executive director of the Ten Men, outlined the initiative-petition procedure, in which the group is trying to collect 86,000 valid signatures by the middle of November for submission to the legislature in January.

If the measure fails in the legislature, another 10,000 signatures will be collected, which will put the question on the ballot in 1974.

The issue, Piggott said, is whether fiscal autonomy should prevail, or whether the people should decide that "X number of dollars should be spent on schooling."

"We are moving school spending from the legislative arena to the people arena," Piggott continued.

But the legislative arena will be watched, Piggott said, to see whether "an educational hierarchy exists on Beacon Hill."

The Ten Men also plan to reevaluate the recently published statewide reading scores to see "whether we are getting our money's worth," Piggott said.

Mayor Walter J. Kelliher of Malden and James L. Sullivan, city manager of Lowell, both members of the Ten Men, spoke at the meeting. Kelliher felt that a legislative maneuver last year in the State House which killed proposed legislation limiting the fiscal autonomy of school committees was a misreading of the will of the people.

Every public body should be accountable," Sullivan said.

"It is not reasonable to expect the school committees to spend funds that are not acceptable to the Community. The public should be involved in decisions that affect their everyday lives," Sullivan said.

School budgets will not be reduced automatically, Sullivan explained, but school committees must be prepared to justify items in their budgets.

The petition and referendum has been endorsed by the executive board of the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns and by the Association of Town Finance Committees.

The Ten Men are in the process of setting up coordinators in 241 cities and towns for the collection of petitions.

Camp Fire Girls Resume Program

On Sept. 12, over 12,000 girls and adults in the Greater Boston area launched a new phase of the Camp Fire Girls program.

The 63-year old national youth organization has released contemporary and action-oriented materials for Camp Fire Blue Birds (ages six - eight) and Camp Fire Adventurers (ages nine- eleven).

The Camp Fire Program for the '70's is completely new. Every major program book has been completely rewritten so that materials are faithful to traditional Camp Fire values, reflect the needs and interests of young people of the '70's and help to prepare young people to deal competently and creatively with their futures.

Plans for program revisions began three years ago, after consultation with leaders in education, youth work and human relations, Blue Bird and Adventure leaders, Discovery and Horizon Club members. They recommended an explicit restatement of Camp Fire's traditional focus: to help young people learn what they need to know to become competent, caring and fulfilled adults.

The Camp Fire Program for the '70's deals with contemporary concerns like ecology, drugs and family relations but the program for the '70's is also a program for the future. It encourages self-development and self-awareness, builds skills in leadership, planning and decision-making, encourages the development of positive attitudes toward self and others and fosters a sense of community responsibility.

Newton Library Joins State Borrowing Plan

At a recent meeting with Mayor Theodore Mann, City Librarian Virginia A. Tashjian informed him that the Newton Free Library has joined the ranks of Massachusetts libraries which now enjoy a reciprocal borrowing system with neighboring libraries.

Committed to honor one another's library cards, these "free access" libraries lend materials to neighboring borrowers in good standing. Thus, a Newton resident visiting in Medford, or Needham or Watertown, for example, may borrow books from those community libraries and return them in Newton; similar privileges are extended by the Newton Free Library.

Reciprocal borrowing, only one part of a three-part program to provide Newton citizens with the best in library service, combines with a national network of Inter-Library Loan now standardized by the national Library of Congress.

A recent exchange of information involved the University of Texas Library which provided labor information on Eugene Debs to a Newton resident working on a research paper!

Another local request necessitated the loan of a rare book on canvas embroidery from The Free Library of Philadelphia.

Still another Newtonian needed birth records which were borrowed on microfilm from the Canadian National Archives in Ottawa.

On the state level, the Newton Library is part of the Eastern Regional Library System extending north from Cape Ann south to Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard and west as far as Worcester. The Boston Public Library acts as headquarters for the Region.

Daily exchange of information and materials via delivery truck is now available to Newton citizens from any of the almost 200 libraries in the region-while state-wide access continues through the Inter-Library Loan plan.

The goal of libraries is service to the citizen!

The Newton Free Library is proud to join its fellow libraries in the library networks featuring Eastrn Regional Service, Reciprocal Borrowing and Inter-Library Loan with the ultimate goal of satisfying the local citizen!

Service Center Seeking Volunteers

With the onset of the academic year the pre-school programs run by the Newton Community Service Centers offer opportunities for individuals from the community to help with these activities.

There is a need for individuals to volunteer their time and energies in a variety of ways within these programs. The Nursery School, Newton Headstart, and Newton Day Care Center each can use volunteers to assist with the children in the classrooms.

Headstart is a federally subsidized child development program made available to preschool youngsters from families within the poverty level of income. It functions at the First Unitarian Society in West Newton with the Newton Community Service Centers serving as administering agency and Communities United as applicant agency.

The Nursery School which also operates out of the First Unitarian Society, offers three to five year olds their first introduction to a socialization-education experience.

The Day Care Center, located at the United Presbyterian Church in Newton Corner, provides child care services for both full and half-days to area parents.

For additional information on these programs and volunteer opportunities, contact the centers at 969-5906.

A new Norton coated abrasive product offering up to 250 percent increased productivity over conventional products was given the award in the annual IR-100 competition sponsored by Industrial Research, Inc.

The award, announced at the Museum of Science and Industry, Chicago, was presented jointly to Norton's Abrasive Materials and Coated Abrasive Divisions. It is Norton's thirteenth award in eleven years of IR-100 competition.

Called NorZon TM, the new abrasive belt's cutting ability is derived from a patented zirconia alumina alloy characterized by extreme sharpness, hardness and durability.

Unlike conventional abrasives which eventually wear down and dull in use, zirconia alumina grain is self-sharpening, caused by its ability to continually fracture during use, exposing new sharp points to the workpiece.

This enables a high rate of cut when other belts would have dulled and glazed over. The abrasive is designed for use in virtually all metalworking and many woodworking applications.

NorZon abrasive products were developed by a company team of senior research engineers headed by Robert A. Rowse, director of research and furnace plants, Abrasive Materials Division, Worcester, and Charles Seiler, director of research, Coated Abrasive Division, Troy, N. Y.

NorZon was chosen as an award recipient on the basis of its "technical importance, uniqueness and usefulness" by 25 internationally known scientists and engineers who comprise the editorial advisory board of Industrial Research magazine.

Norton is a multinational industrial manufacturer with 66 plant locations in 21 countries. It is the world's largest producer of abrasives and also produces various diversified products.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation ... crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship ... and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

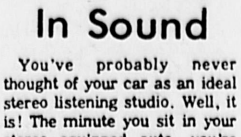
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

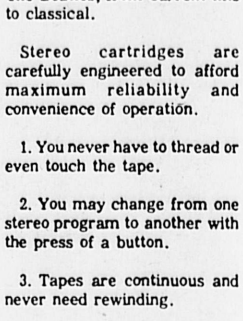
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Drivers under 25 years of age hold 18.7 per cent of the driver licenses in the country, according to The Travelers Insurance Companies, but were involved in 29.5 per cent of 1972's highway fatalities.

There were 55,700 traffic deaths in 1972 and more than 4,850,000 injuries. This is up from 54,000 deaths and 4,700,000 injuries recorded last year.

GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA

Gina's Camera Captures Italy

By RUTH LENSON

Her skin is sunbaked and wrinkled. Her toothless mouth is slack. The old woman sits on her doorstep peeling potatoes. Children play in a pan of water on the sun-dappled cobblestones of a back street in Florence. Full-skirted girls and their partners dance a tarantella near the remains of an old Greek Temple in Sicily.

These are some of the magnificent photographs in "ITALIA MIA," a photographic essay on Italy edited, captioned and photographed by actress Gina Lollobrigida.

Questions were flying across the luncheon table at Loch Ober's restaurant where Gina met with the press on a publicity tour before appearing at Jordan Marsh's book department to autograph copies of her new book.

After nearly three years (and 20,000 photos) Gina declares that though it was all a labor of love and frustration, she deserves a "big" rest and that she never would have begun the project had she realized how arduous the undertaking would be.

"I did not make my own prints," she explained, "and no matter how many prints you have developed you will never have two equal. Sometimes I have to wait for 30 prints to have one good one, and every time I waited it would be terrible . . . like playing roulette. But," she added quickly, "in my apartment in Rome I will now have three rooms to do the developing process myself, and that will be good."

She was not easily accepted as a photographer and at first people were skeptical, thinking she wasn't serious. She beams as she says that when professional photographers saw her book they changed their attitude; even the critics "were astonished."

When asked about her favorite photo, Gina was hesitant, and said, "I think my favorite is the first picture in the book. It was really quite difficult because I wanted something unusual and I didn't want other photographers to hear about it and snap it themselves. I wanted a family portrait of my city—the town where I was born and raised—I wanted all the people of Subiaco which is near Rome. And I got it. The mayor, the priest who heard my first communion—everybody.

"You know," she added, "Subiaco is known for many things. The first book of history was printed there and the town is famous for its frescoes. Painters would come from all over Europe to use the women as models because of their beauty and lovely skin."

No longer a young starlet with an hourglass figure, Gina, now in her forties, has flawless, creamy Subiaco skin, enormous dark brown eyes which are heavily fringed with false eyelashes. There is a certain sadness about her and a smile is slow in coming. When asked if she is a happy woman, her retort bites.

"Happy? What is happening? No, I am never happy. The minute I have something, I want something else. To be satisfied is to mean that I do not have desires. If I have nothing to desire, I would be miserable."

On a lighter note, she talks about her name and the "other" Gina Lollobrigida.

"I was in the hospital following a car accident and five professors took care of me. They told me of the excitement I had created for them. It seems that word got around the hospital that Gina Lollobrigida was in the hospital in the x-ray room. The doctors took to the stairs in a rush to see me and when they burst into the x-ray room, there, on the table, was a naked 70 yr. old lady. They asked her name and she told them, 'Gina Lollobrigida'."

Educated for three years in a fine arts school, Gina still finds time to paint, sculpt and design all her clothes. In her soon to be released film, "King, Queen and Knave," 40 dresses were needed in a hurry. She consented to wear them from her personal wardrobe, but not before being assured of screen credit for their design.

Son Milko, now 16, helped Gina in the preparation of her book. "He was very interested and I made him work on the layout. It was very good for him and it was also good for me to listen to his remarks."

A handsome young man, with dark brown eyes and black hair, Milko accompanied Gina on a recent trip to Moscow when she was asked to be a judge at the Moscow Film Festival.

"Milko said he wanted to know what Communism was, and I told him he would see it first hand. While we were there I would view the movies I was judging until midnight then I would have a little food sent up to my room and go to bed. Milko asked me if he could go down to the nightclub and I said yes, feeling that he should have

Driver's Ed. Starts Here

By CYNTHIA BLACK

It may well be every woman's secret desire to know enough about cars to be able to take care of them; or at least enough to know what someone else may be doing to them at great cost to us.

Well, if books bore you, or if you don't have the time to take a course in the subject, there is another way to learn.

Call it the Pat Buckley Method if you so choose, because a mechanical education was the reason Pat Buckley asked for, and got, a job at the Washington Street Exxon Station in Dedham.

Pat, 19, a Dedham resident, has been at the station for exactly one month. And among the hundreds of people who have stopped there for gas during that time, not a one, she says, has failed to comment on her presense.

She gets a lot of teasing about Women's Lib while she's filling 'em up and washing the windshields, but she's taking it all very calmly.

"It gives people something to talk about while they're waiting," she explains.

Prior to her employment at the gas station, she worked in a bank for six months, decided she'd rather have a different job, and got this one. She was warned, she said, about ruining her hands and about having to endure the heat and the cold while working. She was warned too about the long day she would have to put in—7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

It didn't stop her.

Make no mistake about it, she doesn't just pump gas. They've already taught her to service a car and change tires.

Pat Buckley

"Just wait 'til everyone wants their snow tires put on," she commented.

She hasn't done a tune-up yet, but she's learning that too.

Station manager Gary Lapham's comment on her was that she's a good conscientious, thorough worker, "and when she doesn't know, she asks."

When she goes, she'll have satisfied her original goal. She'll be able to take care of her own car.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

The kids are back in school and you're back at the kitchen range. Good grades in school are important and it's an established fact that a well-balanced diet every day does contribute to keeping your family healthy.

A meeting of nutritionists and school teachers revealed that all too often Mother is asleep when a child slips out of the house without eating breakfast, sometimes munching a candy bar on his way to school.

Good grades begin with good nutrition and a poorly nourished child cannot perform as well mentally or physically when he is hungry or ill fed. Vitamins, body-building proteins and minerals are important to learning.

Just what is a balanced diet? It means eating foods from each of the "Basic 4 Food Groups" every day. Bread-Cereal Group, Milk Group, Vegetable-Fruit Group and Meat Group.

Research has also proven that the way foods are teamed makes an important difference in the way the body absorbs their nutritional content.

Many times you will get a nutritional bonus by pairing certain foods. For example, some proteins are used effectively by the body when they are consumed with others—cereal with milk, or bread as a sandwich with meat, fish, poultry or cheese fillings.

BREADS AND CEREALS: (Rich in certain B vitamins and iron) Enriched bread offers more nutrition than unenriched. Read the labels on cereal boxes—you will notice that many are fortified with vitamins at little or no extra cost. For best rewards in nutrition and good eating, bake your own bread and prepare delicious crunchy granola cereal.

MILK GROUP: Besides milk for drinking, this includes cheese, ice cream, yogurt, all inexpensive sources of calcium and certain B vitamins.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS: There are dark green and bright yellow vegetables for Vitamin A, and citrus fruits, tomatoes, cabbage, cantaloupe, and strawberries for Vitamin C. Don't scorn lower grades of canned fruits and vegetables—though they may lack eye appeal (broken pieces) they remain high in nutrition.

MEAT OR MEAT SUBSTITUTES: This includes meat, beef or pork liver, poultry, dry peas or beans, peanut butter, eggs, cheese and fish.

What do the food terms "enriched" and "fortified" mean? They describe nutritional improvements according to standards set by the Federal government, Enriched is the term chosen to describe the addition of three B-vitamins—thiamine, niacin and riboflavin—and the mineral, iron, to white flour, bread, macaroni products, corn meal and rice.

The mineral, calcium, also has been added to enriched self-rising flour and corn meal. Restored is defined as the total replacement of certain nutrients which have been lost in refining or processing of a food. Fortified indicates the addition of one or more nutrients normally not present in that food.

If your main dish is low in protein, plan to make up for this by adding cheese or hard-cooked egg to the salad or choosing a dessert made with milk.

THREE CHEERS AND HOORAY for the many homemakers who carefully dole out food dollars to buy enough calories for pep and energy and sufficient nutrients for growth and maintenance of good health—all within the limitations of what the family likes to eat and inflationary prices. It isn't easy!

TOASTY NUT GRANOLA

6 cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¾ cup wheat germ
½ cup flaked or shredded coconut
one-third cup sesame seed
1 cup chopped nutmeats
½ cup vegetable oil
One-third cup honey
2 teaspoons pure vanilla

Heat oats in an ungreased 13x9-inch baking pan in a preheated 350 degree oven for 10 minutes. Combine oats, brown sugar, wheat germ, coconut, sesame seeds and nutmeats. Add oil, honey and vanilla and mix until dry ingredients are well coated. Divide oats mixture into two equal parts. Bake half of the oats mixture in ungreased 13x9-inch baking pan in 350 degree oven, for 20-25 minutes, stirring often to brown evenly. Cool. Stir until crumbly; repeat for remining half of oats mixture. Serve as a cereal with milk or cream. Store in a tightly covered container in the refrigerator. Yield: 10 cups granola.

Add 1 medium onion, sliced and green pepper cored, deseeded and chopped, and celery and cook, stirring, until vegetables are limp. Add the browned meat, bouillon cubes dissolved in hot water and wine. Cover and simmer for 2½ to 3 hours or until meat is tender. Cook separately, about 30 minutes before serving time, whole carrots, potatoes and small onions. Add to stew just before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Spread about ½ cup of mixture on bottom half of each bun; cover with top bun half. Wrap in aluminum foil; heat in oven or on grill for 20 minutes. Fold back foil; insert tomato slice in each sandwich and serve immediately. Yields 8 sandwiches.

Big Family Sometimes An Asset

What are your family's financial assets? Most people don't know about or forget what may be their biggest dollar asset, according to the Insurance Information Institute. How would you answer?

Obviously, you'd mention your savings. Realistically, the family economics say, you are supposed to have savings of about half your annual salary For the average family, that would be about $5,000.

Then you would mention life insurance. You may have an individual life insurance policy, you might also have group life coverage where you work. You probably have auto and home insurance and hospital and medical coverage.

Do you own your own home or an equity in it? You'd put that high on the list, along with any investments in stocks or property.

What else do you have? What about that other very important financial asset, the workmen's compensation insurance coverage where you work. Your boss pays for it, but it could mean thousands, hundreds of thousands or as much as a million dollars to you. It is one of your most important assets.

Do you know what workmen's compensation does for you? It varies, state by state, but, essentially, it provides financial protection for you and your family if you are injured or killed on the job. It could mean as much as a million dollars for some injured workers in some states. This would be for a very serious injury such as lifetime care for a quadraplegic.

How does workmen's compensation operate? First, it is hospital and medical insurance. In 4 states there are no limits on the amount. No deductibles, no contributions from the injured employe; you get hospital and medical care for as long as you need it. For life, if necessary

Second, if you are killed on the job, it provides a death benefit to your survivors. This, too, varies by state, and most of the states are gradually upping the amounts.

Third, what do you do for a paycheck if you are injured and can't work? Workmen's compensation provides a wage benefit. The weekly benefit is usually a percentage of your weekly wage, subject to a limit. These limits are generally too low, according to the National Commission on State Workmen's Compension Laws, but many the state legislatures are gradually boosting these amounts. Still, your workmen's compensation coverage provides a basic, tax-free weekly wage in all states. In 1972, workers throughout the country collected about two billion dollars just in workmen's compensation wage benefits.

Fourth, workmen's compensation is designed to help injured people get well and back on the job. Rehabilitation of injured employes is a primary goal of the state workmen's compensation administrators and the insurance companies providing the coverage. Many new and imaginative methods are now being employed, and an important value of a moderate state regulated system, the National Commission said, is that it is closer to the injured people and can be more responsive to their needs.

Almost all the state workmen compensations systems need some improvement, according to the National Commission, and legislators, employers, labor, and the insurance industry are working to modernize the various state systems, the I.I.I. says. Some favor switching to a federal system, but the National Commission urged that the states be given a chance to upgrade to meet new needs so that the special values of a good state system, close to the people, would not be lost.

Fifth, if you contract any occupational disease in 43 of the states, you will receive workmen's compensation benefits, although the benefits vary widely among the states. In the other seven states there is limited occupational disease coverage.

So, when you are listing your assets, don't forget your workmen's compensation coverage just because you don't pay the bill. It could be the biggest dollar asset you have.

Workshop Deals With Violence

gh school students throughout the state are invited to participate in a workshop, 'Democratic Alternatives to Political Violence," Monday, October 8, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Suffolk University Auditorium, 41 Temple St., Boston.

The Most Reverend S. M. Metzger, Bishop of El Paso, Texas, will be the keynote speaker at the symposium. Best known for his activities on behalf of labor and most recently on the Farah boycott issue, the Bishop was awarded the St. Joseph Worker Award in 1972 by the Texas AFL-CIO.

The workshop, sponsored by the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Boston, Massachusetts Department of Education, Massachusetts Teacher's Association and the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will include opportunities for leadership growth, group consensus decisions, question and answer periods and informal rap sessions with the Bishop.

A native of Fredericksburg, Texas, Bishop Metzger was ordained in 1926, was a professor at St. John's Seminary in San Antonio and received his Doctor of Laws degree from San Antonio's St Edward's University. In 1965 he was named assistant to the Papal Throne.

Students interested in participating in the workshop should contact Richard Rand at the National Conference of Christians and Jews, 523-7510.

Diet Seminar October 16

A new Diet Seminar is forming in the Newton Area on Tuesday mornings, starting October 16.

Diet Seminars are a research-based division of The Diet Workshop, Inc. The group is limited to 12 people, oriented for those who prefer the small group and require an individually tailored diet.

An example of a grandmother who no longer looks like a grandmother after losing 50 pounds is Mrs. Pam Swail, 1105 Walnut Street, Newton Highlands. She works at the John Hancock building. Among the fringe benefits she enjoys is having people tell her she doesn't look as though she were ever fat.

Many participants come to Diet Seminars for a fresh start, and once they are back in control they are able to transfer to a regular Diet Workshop class if they desire. More information about these classes may be had by contacting Mrs. Edith Berman, Director of Research for The Diet Workshop, 430 Centre st., Newton. Telephone 969-8850.

Drinan Announces Business Conference

Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton, in conjunction with the Chambers of Commerce of the Fourth Congressional District, announced today that he will sponsor a Business Opportunities Conference in Federal Procurement and Foreign Trade Oct. 19, at Regis College in Weston. The co-sponsors include the Chambers of Commerce of Fitchburg, Gardner, Leominster, Newton-Needham, South Middlesex, and Waltham.

Drinan stated, "I am holding this conference to encourage small businesses to compete in the important markets found through federal procurement and foreign trade. Too many small firms lose their chance to gain a fair share of the sales opportunities available in these markets because they lack the expertise and sources of information necessary to compete effectively."

The conference will bring local businessmen together with representatives of over 20 federal agencies. Participants will have the opportunity to meet informally with procurement specialists to analyze their capabilities as government suppliers. In addition, seminars and speakers will discuss the special needs of the Fourth Congressional District and explore opportunities in foreign trade.

Drinan commented that "the Fourth Congressional District incorporates diverse business needs. It has been a prime concern of my work in Congress to develop and strengthen the economy of my district. Toward that goal, I have worked, both in Washington and in the district, to make the federal government more responsive to our economic needs."

"During the past several weeks, I have met with various Chambers of Commerce and businessmen's groups to discuss such issues as the railroad transportation problem, the energy crisis, and the need for a unified approach to the development of the New England economy. In the Congress, I carefully follow bills, such as the Trade Reform Act, which would serve to strengthen the competitive position of American businessmen in foreign commerce. It is my hope that the conference will further these efforts."

Further information on participation is available from local Chambers of Commerce and Congressman Drinan's office at 400 Totten Pond Road, Waltham (phone 890-9455).

Rotary's 50th Coming Up

Fifty years of service will culminate in an anniversary dinner Nov. 20 for the Newton Rotary Club.

The club was originally sponsored by the Boston Rotary Club and the chairman of its membership committee met with a group of interested Newton business and professional men who formed the first board of directors on May 4, 1923.

They were assisted in this first organizational meeting by a newcomer to Newton, Clyde Ryan, now a past president and one of the organizers of the Council Bluffs, Iowa, Rotary.

Other meetings led to the first Charter Night, Nov. 20, 1923, at the Woodland Golf Club. It was attended by charter members and their Rotary-Anns. Over the years, the Newton Rotary has itself sponsored the now active clubs in Needham, Concord, Chestnut Hill, Brookline and Wellesley.

The 10th annual Charter Night in 1933 was held at the Brae Burn Burn Country Club. By that time, the club had grown to 56 members.

Now, the club has 90 members.

The 50th anniversary celebration will be held at the Marriott.

Like Magic, He's An Actor

cinema updated

by Marjory Adams

Expertise in pick-pocketing is not customarily advised as a means of getting a job in the movies. On the other hand the possession of manual adroitness and a skill with magic tricks has aided more than one young man to make his way on the vaudeville and night club circuits and thus achieve a handhold into movies and television.

Tony Giorgio, tall, dark as a Sicilian, clever conversationalist, friend of some of the best known people in Hollywood, looks like an ex-football player. Somehow you'd never take him for an actor.

But he is both actor and former circus magician. In his very early teens he also learned the pickpocket trade from a group of highly proficient followers of this art who attached themselves to the small circus where he was earning $18 a week and chow served in the cook-tent.

His "magic" was learned when he sold newspapers outside Proctor's Thearte in Schenectady, N.Y., and, being a personable youth was given access to the theatre dressing rooms to sell his wares. He was fascinated by magic, the magicians helped while away the hours between shows by teaching him their tricks.

When he tried to get a job in vaudeville, and haunted the New York agents, he was turned away as having had no stage experience.

A small circus was his salvation. Outside the circus tents was a sign advertising a magician but when young Tony looked for him he was told that the magician had eloped the week before with the sword swallower's wife. Maybe it was just a gag. But Tony showed what he could do with a pack of cards and he was in business. His father gave him some good advise about circus people and his blessing. After all, it was depression time in the United States, and Tony's $18 looked like a fortune to the older Giorgio who worked hard for WPA pay of $12 a week.

So the young man who was already 5 feet 11 inches tall and appeared the 18 years he pretended to be did his magic tricks and felt satisfied.

"I used to see a group of the same faces looking up at me in every town we appeared," said Georgio, which seemed very peculiar to him. So he asked his fellow entertainers.

"They told me the group were regular pickpockets who followed the show, and, to escape being chased away, paid a percentage of their daily take to the management. It was a customary procedure with small circuses of the period. I don't think the big circuses allowed the practice."

"Being still a boy I was fascinated. I became friendly with the group. And they taught me the low-down and the argot."

"You pick a pocket-you're a dip who dips. Your hand is a duke. The master dip is a Cannon. And the detectives who follow pickpockets especially are the cannon squad."

"In a group of pickpockets, the steer locates the victim and the pocket which he keeps his wallet. The stall distracts the victim by bumping into him, or, if a girl, walking by in a suggestively sexy fashion, thus allowing the cannon to dip into the mark's pocket easily."

"A group of pickpockets with a cannon, a steer and stalls is known as a wire mob. The wallet is a poke. The pockets, as indicated by the steer, are prat kicks, or rear trousers pocket; patch kicks (side jacket) and britch, (side trouser) pockets."

Mr. Georgio carries his own money in his britch kick, and it is not in a wallet but in plain bills. He doesn't carry very much, however.

"The pit is the inside jacket pocket and it is the hardest to locate and usually the most lucrative. If you take a wallet you skin the poke-taking money and credit charge out and disposing of the poke in the nearest public receptacle. A pappy is an older person whose pocket doesen't look worth picking, a Mr. Bates is a highly desirable victim."

All this information helped give Tony movie jobs later in life although he never picked a pocket himself for gain. He was too afraid of his father's precepts.

How did Tony get into films? It was his skill with his hands which had cameramen photographing inserts of those clever manipulators when the stars themselves, like Henry Fonda, Jacques Bergerac, Karl Malden, Peter Graves and many more, were unable to flip cards, pick a pocket, do a magic trick.

It was Tony, who happened to be a friend of producer Bruce Geller, who was called in as technical adviser and actor (he's in the cannon squad) when "Harry In Your Pocket" was made. It is a story about a wire mob headed by Cannon, James Coburn, with Walter Pidgeon as the steerer, and Michael Sarrazin and Trish Van Devere as the stalls.

"I taught them all the rules of the game," says Tony affably. Walter Pidgeon learned so well that during a rehearsal at an airport his scene called for him to take a wallet from a deaf mute— a real one — Pidgeon signalled he had the poke."

"But the deaf mute shook his head no. He hadn't realized his wallet was gone although he had been expecting it. Michael Sarrazin practiced by victimizing the crew. He was so good that we had to unlearn him some of the tricks as in most of the picture he is supposed to be too awkward to be a real cannon. I managed a last day of shooting hit on Coburn. That was at the request of Bruce Geller."

Some day a book will be written about Giorgio. His adventures in the Army Medical Corps for three years, his night club and vaudeville years, his career as a technical director on such films as "Big Hand for a Little Lady," and "Dream of Kings,' are fascinating to hear He complained to his agent recently that directors won't give him acting roles except as a gangster.

"Have your hair restyled," advised the agent.

"So I had my hair restyled and they still gave me only opportunities to play gangster roles," he confessed.

But like the characters played by Pidgeon and Coburn in the film, he thinks pick-pocketing is too uncertain these days to take up as a profitable profession.

"The credit card has ruined the field," says he. "Not enough money in the poke. And while you can turn credit cards over to fences, you don't get enough money for them. That's why there are fewer pros to be found in the pickpocket game. And the older men are not willing to teach the younger ones."

Actually Tony doesn't need to worry about continuing his career as an actor and technical adviser. But he's a gangster again in "Magnum Force" with Clint Eastwood, which will be released at Christmas, and while he doesn't know for sure, it is a probability that he'll be defying the law in Paramount's proposed "Chinatown."

There's no social message in "Harry In Your Pocket," says he, except to watch your money. Geller made it as a study of people, for entertainment only. The film cost around $1,500,000 and in the old days would have been far more expensive.

"Modern cameras make it possible for the company to move anywhere and that very costly process of re-creating sets has been done away with. Geller logged thousands of miles trying to find the right locations, and in Seattle Wash.; Victoria, British Columbia, and Salt Lake City he discovered the perfect setting

There was no need to build huge studio sets as they used to do. I've even heard from Pidgeon that when he starred in "White Cliffs of Dover," the English drama, everything was made in Hollywood."

CINEMA CAPSULE

THE STONE KILLERS is a bloody, wild, wholly unconvincing picture version of a book titled "A Complete State of Death." It is also the first American produced film by Dino DeLaurentis, and most of the time it's more like a Mafia shindig than a believable tale of a hard-boiled detective out to uncover mysterious gang killing. Director Michael Winner isn't going to short change his audiences and there are some terrific car chases of the kind which have grown so popular; a search from a helicopter by Charles Bronson for an escaping killer, a double cross or so to keep the unneeded characters biting the dust at a rapid rate, and a conclusion which certainly doesn't tie up the many loose ends despite its gory triumph.

Martin Balsam has the part of an underworld leader who wants to avenge his family's dishonor of many years before, in this picture set in Los Angeles and New York. There are no romantic angles in the film.

In "Captains and the Kings," the new novel by Taylor Caldwell, the story of an American dynasty is told as only Taylor Caldwell could do it.

This book is an example of Miss Caldwell at her best—a novel full of rich description and the keenest character perception.

Never has Miss Caldwell been so strong, so careful, so painstaking as in this story of Joseph Francis Xavier Armagh, a young Irish immigrant who arrived in America faced with the crushing responsibility of caring for his orphaned young brother and newborn sister in a hostile land that spat on the Irish and tried to grind them into the dust.

Joseph Armagh was not one to be ground into the dirt. With fierce tenacity the young boy survived, coldly calculating how to make his fortune, and not wasting time appealing to a God which, for him, did not exist. Patiently Joseph awaited the opportunity which would afford him the chance to gain money—and power.

Once he took the chance, there was no turning back—even if he wanted to.

Years went by—years in which Joseph ruthlessly seized every advantage to increase his fortune, to bring him to the level of the wealthiest men in the world. And to Joseph, money was power.

Joseph had power but still one incident in his career gnawed at his insides. A curse had been laid on him and his family during his long struggle to arrive at the top. Although he knew it was nonsense, the uneasiness still festered within the deepest corners of his mind.

Many years after that day when the young immigrant had landed in America, Joseph Armagh reviewed his long and full life.

The price he had paid for his success was devastating. His brother and sister had deserted him after he had dedicated his life to them. There was his loveless marriage to the daughter of the only woman he ever loved but could not have. A son died in the war, and there was the tragedy his beloved daughter's insanity

All that was left to im was his son, Rory, whom he had sworn to make the fi Catholic President of the United States—in a world where the "Captains and the Kings" live in the last dark hour before a new dawn.

What does your cigarette have to say for itself?

If it's Kent, it says a lot.

"Taste."
A mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

"Filter."

"Quality."
Kent is probably the most quality-tested cigarette made. (Over 200 quality checks in the manufacturing end, alone.)

"Tobacco."
We go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find the milder, lower-leaf tobaccos for Kent.

"Freshness."
We pack Kent at the optimum freshness level and then overwrap the pack with a special cellophane that keeps it fresh.

"Mild, smooth taste. Micronite filter. Kent. America's quality cigarette. King Size or Deluxe 100's."

Information Please

By Ruth Lawson

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

I received a marvelous recipe for a rich carrot cake from our new neighbor next door, Mrs. Phillip Barboni. The recipe was given to Maureen's mother years ago and has become a family favorite.

MAUREEN'S HARVEST CAKE

1 can crushed pineapple (15¼ oz.) drained; reserve juice
2 cups sugar
1½ cups cooking oil
2 teaspoons vanilla
3 eggs
3 cups sifted all purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups finely grated carrots
1½ cups chopped walnuts

Drain pineapple juice and set aside. Combine and beat well: sugar, oil and vanilla. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift together dry ingredients; then add alternately with pineapple juice. Fold in by hand, grated carrots, chopped nuts and drained pineapple. Pour batter into a greased and lightly floured 10-inch tube pan and bake in a 350 degree oven for 1 hour and 10 minutes. Cool. Frost with the following:

CREAM CHEESE FROSTING

1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese
1 stick margarine
¾ to 1 box confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine all ingredients and beat until smooth. NOTE: This cake should be refrigerated. Can stay for weeks, well wrapped, in the refrigerator.

Question: We were visiting in Georgia this summer, and we tasted apple pie that had the unusual ingredient, peanut butter, in it. Both my husband and I have searched my recipe books and cannot find an apple pie that calls for peanut butter. Perhaps you can help me.

Mrs. J.H., Walpole

Answer: A recipe from the Apple Kitchen might be just what you're looking for! This recipe calls for apple pie filling (not apple slices) and crunch-style peanut butter. Served warm with vanilla ice cream, mmm'-mmm'mmm.

APPLE PEANUT BUTTER CRUMB PIE

1 can (21 oz.) apple pie filling
1 8-inch lightly baked pie shell
1 tablespoon lemon juice
4 tablespoons crunch-type peanut butter
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ cup flour
One-third cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel

Spoon apple pie filling into pie shell. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Cut peanut butter and butter into mixture of flour, brown sugar, spices and lemon peel. Spread over surface of pie. Bake at 400 degrees for about 20 minutes, until topping is bubbling hot.

NOTE: We welcome cookbooks published by service organizations. It is our pleasure to publicize them in this column.

Sending in her cookbook, "PARTY POTPOURRI", Emily LaMont writes: "The book is organized into menus for just about any type of party you could imagine and is geared to just about any type of cook you could imagine! It also contains poetry, wine suggestions, and for the most part includes recipes geared to today's inflationary prices." For your copy, please send $3.50 plus 20 cents for mailing charges (ALL proceeds go to the Newton Guidance Clinic)—checks made out to: Newton Mental Health Association and mailed to: Mrs. J. Thomas LaMont, 48 Holden Road, West Newton, Mass. 02165.

Nancy Korman's
SPICY CHICKEN LIVERS

1 pound chicken livers
Seasoned flour
2 green peppers, chopped
4-5 med. tomatoes, peeled seeded and coarsely chopped (or 1 can drained tomatoes chopped)
pinch garlic and onion powder
2 diced onions
Butter for sauteing
¼ cup sugar
¼ pound small mushrooms (or one 4-oz. can)
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 cup wine (white or rose)
Salt and pepper to taste

Pat livers dry and dredge in flour; brown in butter and set aside. Then add onions to pan and saute until golden. Add mushrooms, green pepper and saute until soft. Add chicken livers, tomatoes, sugar, soy sauce, garlic and onion powder, salt, pepper and wine. Cook over moderate heat until sauce thickens. Serve with scrambled eggs, rice, or for a different twist, spaghetti. Serves 4.

Mrs. Isadore Yablon's
MALAYAN FISH

1 bunch green onions, chopped
2 pounds fillet of sole
One-third cup soy sauce
1 tablespoon fresh grated ginger or ½ teaspoon powdered ginger
1 clove garlic, chopped
½ cup peanut oil
½ cup dry sherry

Place onion and garlic in baking dish suitable for serving at the table. Place fillets on top. Combine oil, soy sauce and sherry. Pour over fillets. Sprinkle with ginger and broil 3-inches from flame for about 20 minutes, or until the fish flakes. Serve with a chilled sauterne or chablis. Serves 6-8 as a first course.

Moakley Wants Aid For Veterans

Congressman Joe Moakley reports that recent action in Congress gives him hope that "America's neglect of its veterans is near an end."

The Massachusetts Democrat has frequently complained about the inadequacy of many programs for veterans and has been particularly critical of the Administration's failure to seek updating of benefits and programs until the need became urgent.

In forecasting a brighter picture for veterans, Moakley pointed to the Veteran's Health Care Expansion Act of 1973 as a promising sign. This new law contains two sections which Moakley had urged the Veterans' Affairs Committee to include in the bill.

One provision enables disabled veterans to receive VA reimbursement for emergency care received in a non-VA hospital. "In the past," Moakley explained, "veterans whose disability required emergency care could either endanger their health, or even their lives, by delaying treatment traveling to a VA facility or absorb the expense at a time when they probably could least afford it.

Another Moakley-backed provision will provide care at VA hospitals for the wives and certain dependents of a totally disabled veteran or a veteran who died of a service connected disability.

Moakley announced that he is seeking action on his most pressing legislation. One bill would establish a program of mortgage cancellation life insurance for disabled veterans. Another would remove the time limit on the use of the GI Bill's educational benefits. One other Moakley bill would allow a veteran's widow who remarried after 60 to receive widow's benefits.

The Congressman expressed particular interest in seeking passage of a bill he introduced to permanently prevent Social Security increases from causing reduction of V.A. benefits. Moakley also pointed out that he maintains five district offices which assist veterans who require information or help in obtaining any benefits to which they are entitled.

Maynard Blanks South

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

The Lions suffered their second straight loss Saturday by the score of 3-0. Their opponent Maynard High School got all the points they needed on a 31 yard field goal by Steve Aulenback early in the fourth period.

For the second straight week the offense failed to score a point. Last week the Lions were shut out by Weston 27-0. The inept Lion offense only mustered two first downs the whole game. Quarterback Jeff Lawson, halfbacks Peter Nathanson and Kevin Hoban along with Peter Maples at fullback were constantly stopped by the tough Maynard defense.

On the other hand the Lion's defense was spectacular. In the third quarter Maynard had first and goal from the three yard line but the tough Lion's defense refused to be scored upon. Jim Stanford was nailed four straight times trying to crack the gutsy Lion defense. Greg Moan and Walter Fatini led the ferocious goal line stand. Unfortunately, the great Lion's defense failed to ignite the offense.

The Maynard field goal was set up by a 24 yard pass from Joe Eanuzzo to Jay Gramolini. Gramolini was finally tackled on the six yard line. Then from the six, quarterback Eanuzzo was dumped back at the 14 yard line by Bob Taglienti. On second and third downs two running plays got no yardage. On fourth down Steve Aulenback just barely made the field goal that won the game.

There was no question that Maynard completely outplayed Newton South. The Maynard offense moved the ball well all afternoon and should have scored more points. Dennis Anastasia recovered a fumble on the Lions 10 yd. line to halt one drive. Two other drives were halted deep in line territory. One drive was stopped at the three yard line and another at the ten yard line. Maynard's big offensive gun was Jim Stanford. Jim reeled off runs of thirty yards, 20 yards, and 12 yards. The Lions stopped him when they had to as he failed to score on golden opportunities. He did score one thouchdown but that was nullified by a holding penalty.

GOOD DEFENSE

Coach George Winkler said after the game, "We played a helluva game defensively, but we just had no offense."

There were some members on the Lions who really played some good games. Everyone in the line played well and that includes, Haskell Kingston, Matt Sabetti, Walt Fatini, Scott Groper, Greg Moan, Bob Taglienti, Dennis Anastasia and Aaron Moynahan. Matt Sabetti played a fine game filling in for the injured Hal Bennett. Defensive backs Tony Lombordo and Arthur Murphy also had fine games. Scott Groper once again punted well for the Lions.

RINDGE NEXT

Next week the Lions are away against Rindge Tech. You can bet that the offense will be trying awfully hard to finally score. It was pretty discouraging to see the defense play so well only to have the offense get shut out.

It's too bad there's no Ned Moan or Howie Haimes around this year to spark the offense. I'm afraid we're in for a mighty long season ahead. And the very famous cry of "wait until next year," will probably be heard from a lot of the South rooters.

NAA Lions Roar To 4th In Row

The N.A.A. Lions won their fourth straight Suburban League game at the expense of the Wayland Chargers by a score of 34-6 last Friday evening at Wayland.

The victory sets up the crucial clash next Sunday between the Lions and the Sudbury Warriors at Newton Highlands. Both teams are undefeated, and the winner should cop the Suburban League crown.

The game had a bizarre beginning when the Wayland kick-off was accidentally squibbed ten yards and recovered by Wayland.

Two plays later the Lions' Paul Butters recovered a Wayland fumble. Three plays later, league leading scorer Rich Proia was breaking a 38 yard T.D. run behind the blocks of Dave Marcus, Joe Donoghue and Barry Gale. The T.D. run was Proia's ninth in league competition. Proia also rushed the conversion which gave the N.A.A. and 8-0 first period lead.

From this point on the Lions seemed to "let down" as Wayland picked up momentum and actually controlled the ball in the second period.

It seemed as though the "Big Blue" defense of the N.A.A. was depending upon its consecutive shutout string to preserve the 8-0 lead and the game.

However, on the first play from scrimmage in the second half, Wayland's Tim O'Shea came through the line untouched and sprinted 50 yards to pay dirt without one Lion coming near him.

It was at this point the N.A.A. realized they were in a ball game. The P.A.T. attempt was stopped by a host of Newton tacklers.

FLEMING SPRINTS

On the ensuing kick off, Steve Fleming had trouble finding the handle on a bouncing football but finally scooped it at his own 10 yd. line, retreated to his five, then hit the left side line for a beautiful 75 yard touch-down run on the 80 yd. field. In addition to some excellent cuts by Fleming, there were also some excellent blocks thrown by the kick return unit. The conversion attempt failed.

Newton's kick off appeared to be heading out of bounds when a hustling Jack Forti dove on the ball for a Newton recovery. Two plays later it looked like Proia was going to take the ball on a patented Lion sweep when he stopped and pegged a 55 yd. scoring strike to Steve Fleming camped all alone on the 10.

Proia then rushed the conversion and in a matter of minutes the Lions had gone from an 8-6 lead to a 22-6 lead.

Not to be forgotten was the Lion defense which shut down the Wayland offense for the next series and the evening as well.

It was after the next series that Wayland was forced to punt. This time Proia fielded it at his own 25 and hit a wall of blockers on the left side line and went 55 yards for touchdown number 10. Aside from the blocking, Rich made several excellent moves on the run and broke at least four tackles enroute.

In the fourth period quarter back Brian Kinsella drilled a perfect strike to Steve Fleming who was running a quick slant from the flanker position. The ball was perfectly thrown between two defenders who were attempting double coverage on Steve who out ran everyone for a 65 yd. score.

Tackle Joe Donoghue drew raves from the Wayland coaching staff for his play Friday night. Joe had a fine evening despite being double teamed. Joe also had two individual sacks on the Wayland quarterback attempting to pass. Defensive tackle Mike Hernandez also had a good game along with defense half backer Paul Butters and Jim Quinn. Quinn continues to make the big unassisted tackle in the open field. Little Jim has made at least three this season that have possibly saved touchdowns. Center John Kane did a fine job blocking a much bigger middle guard, and guards Andy Toyias, Jim Schmidlein and Doug Builen did a fine job checking the Wayland blitzers.

Waltham is the only common opponent these two teams have had and the Lions shut them out by a 22-0 score. Sudbury 36 Waltham 12.

South Harriers Start Slow

By RANDY GRODMAN

Due to a lack of conditioning, assorted injuries, and some bad luck, the Newton South Harriers have been slowing down rapidly. Prior to the race against Bedford and Wayland, the team had a 2-1 record; however, on Tuesday, September 25, Newton South lost to both Bedford and Wayland, while running on their 2.6 mile course at Mount Ida College.

In a sport in which the low score wins, South lost to Bedford by a score of 34-27, and to Wayland 32-21.

Although the team lost, there were three outstanding runners for Newton South. They were sophomore Dennis Bauke, junior Jeff Karol, and senior Bob Lein. Dennis Bauke ran exceptionally well, and completed the course in 14 minutes and 30 seconds. This is the third fastest time for a sophomore in Newton South history.

With the help of senior Mike Shockett, a new team member, South will attempt to redeem themselves against Bedford on Wednesday, October 3.

On Friday, September 28, Newton South traveled to Weston to compete with the two powerhouses of the league, Acton and Weston.

South was virtually wiped off the 2.8 mile course, losing to Weston by a score of 33-24, and to Acton 40 -21.

Mike Shockett, participating in his first varsity cross-country race, placed first for Newton South, and eighth overall. Other members that placed were Jeff Karol, placing 9th; Bob Lein, 11th; Bryon Ress, 24th; and David Robinson, 25th. Also competing for South were sophomore Dennis Bauke and senior Ara Shishmanian.

If Newton South has hopes of improving its 2-5 record, they will have to get back into the swing of things.

Play For Bentley

WALTHAM — Ron Burman and Don Proia, both products of the Newton School system, have taken their athletic talents to Bentley College where they are members of the varsity soccer squad.

Burman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Burman of 156 Dedham St., Newton, is a graduate of Newton High School. Proia, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Proia of 9 Morgan Place, graduated from Newton South High School.

Both boys are freshmen and both are presently reserves who have the raw talent and determination that will help them in striving for starting berths as their college career progresses.

Burman, an all-league goalie for Newton last year, is praised by German-born coach Detlev Suderow for his amazing lateral movement.

At 5-3, 150 pounds, Proia is just a little poke of a kid, but his determination, guts and scrappiness are sure to earn him more and more playing time as a forward for the Falcon soccer team.

Eagles Rise In South

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

The Eagles addled the Aggies' brains, And nevermind any of that "the South shall rise again" stuff. Boston College might be going places this year if its 32-24 victory over Texas A&M last Saturday means something.

Superior speed, a home crowd of 36,317 and an imposing reputation didn't help Texas A&M survive an invasion from the East spearheaded by halfback Mike Esposito and quarterback Gary Marangi.

That twosome sparked the Eagles to a 15-point fourth quarter and a comeback from a 21-17 third period deficit.

Jaunty junior Espo sprinted for touchdowns of 36 and three yards and piled up 101 yards on the ground, his second effort over the century mark in three games this fall. He has 336 in the three contests.

Marangi hit 12 of his 18 passes for 94 yards including a key nine-yard touchdown pass to Dave Zumbach.

Texas led until there was only 2:08 left and considering Boston College's history of defeats in the South, the smart money was not following the Eagles.

But Esposito went to work and tallied both of his touchdowns to give BC first a 25-24 lead and then the winning margin.

It's still not too clear how BC managed it. Texas A&M won the first down battle, 20-17. The Aggies outgained the Eagles, 407-282. And Texas piled up a 226-67 margin in return yardage.

The Eagle defense doesn't look too good on the strength of those numbers, but reading further it's clear it made the big play when needed.

BC recovered three A&M fumbles out of six and intercepted a Mike Jay pass at a crucial time. Those miscues were hard to make up for.

Jay did throw for 158 yards, but was limited to six for 15 in percentage.

Unheralded Keith Barnette continues to impress despite running in Esposito's shadow. He notched BC's first TD and totaled 81 yards rushing.

After belting Temple, besting Texas A&M, and dropping a squeaker to Tulane, BC is 2-1 amd ready to take on the Navy.

The Midshipman are not, and have not been the same Navy of Roger Staubach fame for a decade, and while they are improving, they should be no match for the Eagles. What BC must fight is a let-down after two very rugged opponents away from home.

This is the fans' second opportunity to get a look at the boys in the flesh. And now that they know it is the genuine item they may turn out in massive numbers.

Navy has spent the last two weeks getting beaten up by Penn State and Michigan. Penn State handled the Midshipmen easily, but although the Wolverines managed a 14-0 win they suffered from the letdown BC must avoid.

Navy will bring a talented back named Cleveland Cooper to town and if he can run the way he has he could mean trouble.

An upset after two good games would be a tragedy, but it is not something which should happen. If I made an odds card I'd make the Eagles seven-point favorites.

Children's "Deadly Manor" A Fright

It's back! bigger! better! newer! scarier than ever!

Yes, it's back—but only for 11 days— the Children's Museum's famous "Haunted House" in Jamaica Plain lives again!

Remember that spooky, kooky structure that scared the yikes out of you last year? Well, this year it's been recreated with all-new, all-frightening attractions that are bigger, better, scarier than ever.

This year the eerie edifice, aptly titled "Deadly Manor," is featuring such spine-tingling delights as:

A front hall that will "send you," really "send you" with its suits of armor, storybook characters, wax figures and wonderfully "horrible" surroundings.

A spider room—and please be careful or you'll get caught in its web of intrigue and outrigue.

A devils' domain—a witches' cave—an "inner sanctum"—hear the door creak—do you suppose Raymond your host has arrived?

An upside-down room, whoops, when you get straightened out from that experience you're headed for a "birthday party" unlike any you ever attended.

And as you travel through this maze of horrors look out for the gorilla's lounge—and the garbage monster—and for devil's sake, don't get caught in the sorcerer's workshop or locked in the dungeon.

Do you see now what we mean when we say it's bigger, better, newer, scarier than ever! And of course "Deadly Manor" contains 13 rooms!

Thursday, Oct. 18 through Sunday, October 28.

On school days the manor will be open from 2:30 to 7:30 p.m.

On weekends it will be from 9:30 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. Don't forget that Monday, October 22, is a holiday, so the manor will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. on that day.

And lest you think "Deadly Manor" might frighten rather than delight your children, may we stress the attractions are done in the best of taste and talent. In fact they're designed to put your kids "in good spirits."

Admission to the malevolent mansion is 50 cents for adults and children. Please note that no one under six years of age is encouraged to attend.

Adequate parking facilities are available but those of you who can do so should come by MBTA. You an reach the Children's Museum by taking the Arborway car from Park Street or the Centre-Eliot bus from Dudley Station.

"Deadly Manor" is a house adjacent to the Children s Museum in Jamaica Plain that prior to its "Resurrection" was just another house. Now it's been converted to the scariest structure this side of Transylvania.

Last year more than 55,000 parents and children traipsed through the old mansion that contains every type of goblin delight. As a result, the project earned $36,000 profit from admissions and the sale of more than one ton of popcorn, 1,100 dozen doughnuts, 600 gallons of cider and 35 bushels of apples.

Proceeds from the project—matched by a $30,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts—went to the Museum's Community Services Program. This is the highly successful endeavor that takes the talents and resources of the Museum to inner city children.

This year the challenge grant from the same foundation has been increased to $45,000. To meet this challenge "Deadly Manor" hopes to attract a new audience of 70,000—all anxious to be scared out of their wi

This year's sponsors inclu R. H. Stearns, Wheel College, WBZ-TV, Gille Corporation, the Mayor's Of of Cultural Affairs, F.A.O Schwarz, the Footlight Club, Za-Rex Concentra Fruit Drinks, Lechmere Sales, Lord and Taylor, Emerson College, Zayre Department Stores and Southborough Players.

"Deadly Manor" is sponsored by the Children's Museum Aid, a group of Greater Boston women who have dedicated themselves to supporting the Children's Museum. Mrs. James F. Cleary is Aid president and Mrs. Ralph S. Henry is "Deadly Manor" chairman.

And here's good news. Thi year there will be a pre-sale of tickets. They can be bought—from Oct. 11 through Oct. 17 from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.—at the Children's Museum ticket booth or at Filene's Boston store. Or send a mail order with stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Children's Museum, Jamaicaway, Boston, Mass. 02130.

But regardless of how you buy your tickets—before or during the event—come to the Children's Museum's "Deadly Manor." Come by car, by bike, by "T" or broom. But come—from Oct. 18 through Oct. 28.

Come and we'll grant your every "witch" . .

some fun. A few days later, people said to me that my son was very successful with the ladies. I liked this, thinking he was with a little girl his own age.

"But, when we were about to leave, he said he was going to the night club to say goodbye to his friend. I went down later and got quite a shock—there he was with a blonde (the Marilyn Monroe type) at least 26 years old, an almost naked well-developed blonde. I couldn't stand it—this is a girl who could compete with me. I went over to him and I said, "Milko, go up to bed!"

Questioned about being called a "sex symbol," Gina shrugged and answered, "Who cares what they call me or what they think. I'm me. Natural. I can't play a star and pretend. I hate people who are stiff and presumptuous. Let me tell you what I mean.

"I was in California shopping in I. Magnin's for dungarees. They wanted $30 for them and I thought that was an awful lot of money and said so to the saleswoman. She whispered to me that she knew a place where I could get them for $3. So, you should have seen us . . . I waited in my limousine outside the store and when the lady was through for the day, she directed my chauffeur to drive to a wonderful store where used dungarees (washed) were sold. There was a big room where we all tried on the pants and had lots of fun. I bought several pairs and then spent $60 on little pretty patches. I'll wear the pants when I'm at home, relaxing.

Gina is proud of a children's film she made, "Pinocchio," which won first prize at the Cannes Film Festival. "I played the part of a fairy because I like children and I wanted to be famous to them too. Now children point to me and say that I can perform miracles. It's funny . . . men think o f me as a sex symbol and children think of me as an angel."

Brockton Wins Rematch In Super Bowl

Moffie Fires Newton High School quarterback Cal Moffie tosses pass which went right into arms of Tiger end Ed Haratunian for competion. Tigers didn't have many good moments on offense as Brockton won 35-7. (Jim Easton Photo)

BY BOB LOW

The rematch of last year's Super Bowl contenders, turned out to be no contest as a powerful Brockton team rolled over Newton, 35-7.

A near capacity crowd filled Brockton's Marciano Stadium and saw Boxer quarterbacks Pete Columbo and Brian Altimus pick the Newton secondary apart for over 200 yards in the air, and four touchdown passes. Meanwhile Newton's offense was being stiffled by Brockton's defense, which had recorded a shutout in their first game.

Brockton stopped the Tigers on their first possession, and then marched downfield for a touchdown. The scoring play was a 39 yard pass from Columbo to star end Ken McAfee. MacAfee caught the ball over the middle, broke toward the sideline, and raced untouched into the endzone. Columbo booted the extra point to make it 7-0 Brockton.

The Tigers failed to move after receiving the kick-off, netting just three yards, and were forced to turn the ball over. Brockton took over at midfield, but on first down a out was smelled out perfectly by Newton's defensive line, and they forced a fumble which Artie Murphy recovered on Brockton's 44 yard line. A Moffie run gave the Tigers a first pitch-out was smelled out perfectly by Newton's defensive line, and they forced a fumble which Artie Murphy recovered on Brockton's 44 yard line. A Moffie run gave the Tigers a first down on the 33, but they got no further, and down on the 33, but they got no further, and had to punt.

Aided by a penalty that wiped out a 13 yard gain, Newton held the Boxers. However they were held in return and Brockton got the ball back on their 38, following a 17 yard punt return by Mike Delaney. From there Columbo engineered a four play, 62 yard touchdown drive.

A draw play netted 14 yards and then a long sideline pass, that Joe Rondina appeared to have intercepted, was caught by Peter Franciosi to put Brockton on the Newton 11. Two plays later, Columbo hit Bill Burchard in the end-zone for six points. The P.A.T. was good and the half ended with Brockton up, 14-0.

On the second half kick-off, the Tigers almost got the break they needed to get back into the contest. Bill Seaward's short, high boot was allowed to roll freely by Brockton linemen unwilling to handle the ball. But Brockton recovered the loose ball on their 28 and started moving back upfield. Content to just control the ball and use time, the Boxers ran the ball twelve straight times before giving the ball up on downs on Newton's six.

MACAFEE SCORES

After a first down play was stopped, the Tigers attempted a quick kick, which sailed out of bounds on the 30. Three plays later Columbo and MacAfee connected once more, this time for a 20 yard touchdown pass. The point after was good, and put Brockton on top 21-0 with 2:22 left in the third quarter.

Newton took over again on the 30, but were stymied by Jim Gaynor who intercepted a Moffie pass and ran down to Newton's 11. Columbo twice overthrew Franciosi, who was wide open, and Newton got the ball back at the 17 yard line.

Two big penalties halted the Tigers and they gave the ball up once more. Kevin O'Dowd got Newton the ball back with an interception, but Ralph Ruggiero intercepted for Brockton. Getting the ball on Newton's 32, the Boxers marched in on five plays for another score, with Fullback Tony Hruzd scoring from four yards out.

Only a three yard touchdown pass from Robert Kinsella to John Connolly, with 18 seconds left, prevented a shutout. Bill Seaward's extra point made the final score; Brockton 35, Newton 7.

The Tigers' next game will be at home against Weymouth North on Monday October 8, as they try to get back on the winning track.

South Soccermen Split Pair

The Newton South Soccer Team played its second match of the season on Tuesday, September 25. On a perfect day for soccer, South struggled against powerful Lincoln-Sudbury, but couldn't quite overcome the opponents strength. Although both teams played well, Lincoln-Sudbury gained momentum early, when Lee Nelson scored on a penalty kick half way into the first period. South's goalie, Jimmy Sheroff, almost made the save.

At 1:10 in the third period, Lincoln-Sudbury's Lee Nelson scored again, this time on a testing shot from twenty yards out.

Towards the end of the third period, South began to apply the pressure. Good passing and hustling paid off, as Jon Firger passed to left wing Roger Gordon, who scored.

During the fourth quarter South continued to pressure Lincoln-Sudbury, but was unable to net a score. The final score of the game turned out to be: Lincoln Sudbury 2, Newton South 1.

There were two players who excelled in the contest. One is Mike Lafferty, a junior at Newton South, and the other is Matty Caras, who plays for Lincoln-Sudbury. Coincidentally, Matty is the son of Newton South coach Ophair Caras.

Blank Bedford 5-0

On Saturday, September 29, Newton Soutn played Bedford at home. Going into the game with an 0-2 record, South was determined to win.

In what proved to be an offensive game for Newton South, senior Ed Lafferty scored South's second goal from well outside the penalty area at 14:17.

Halfway through the second period, senior Aris Bidianos broke through the defense and found the lower right hand corner. This made the score 3-0, and gave South a good lead going into the second half.

At 8:50 in the third quarter, Roger Gordon blasted a shot into the right corner, after receiving a pass from Aris Bidianos.

On his second goal of the game, at 12:05 in the third quarter, Aris Bidianos controlled a through pass from senior Larry Benders, and placed it in the right corner. This gave South a 5-0 lead, and from then on they concentrated on defense. The defense proved to be strong, and goalie Jon Bamel earned his shutout by making 5 saves.

In what was truly a great team effort, South boosted their record to 1-2. Outstanding performances in the Bedford match were put in by Aris Bidianos, Ed Lafferty, and Jimmy Young.

Bright Future

Newton South is looking forward to its next league game, which will be played at Weston. The South team has hopes of finishing the season without losing another game, thereby making the State Tournament. Whether or not they can do it remains to be seen.

On the same day that the Varsity squad lost to Lincoln-Sudbury, the Newton South Junior Varsity was crushed by an offensive Lincoln-Sudbury line 5-0.

Within the first two minutes of play, Lincoln-Sudbury had already taken a 2-0 lead. From then on all seemed helpless. Lincoln-Sudbury scored one goal in each of the next three quarters. South was awarded one penalty shot, but failed to take advantage of it.

On Saturday, September 29, the Newton South Junior Varsity travelled to Bedford. The entire forward line did an excellent job for South, and scored three goals. Meanwhile, the defense also played well, and held the opponents scoreless.

South's Junior Varsity record now stands at 2-1, and hopefully it will be bettered on October 2 when they play a home match against Weston.

Tiger Soccer Team Improves

By BOB LOW

Shaking off the inconsistency that had plagued it in its first five games, the Newton High Soccer Team increased their record to 4-1-2 with a tie and a win.

The Tigers started the week by battling to a 2-2 deadlock with Medford. Newton took a two goal lead on second period goals by Rudi Viscomi and Jon Eagle. But in the third period, Medford rallied for two goals of their own, one accidently put in by Newton's Bill Bertrand. Medford had a chance to win the game in the third period on a penalty kick, but goalie Mark Wasserman made a spectacular diving save and preserved the tie.

Coach Michael Buzzi said of the game, "Newton High really controlled the game, although Medford has a very good team." He added "we played an excellent game except for a big mistake that cost us a goal." Newton outshot Medford, 26-14.

The Tigers next played Waltham and soundly beat them, 4-0. Newton scored once in each period; Rudi Viscomi getting goals in the first and third quarters, Ronnie Brown scoring in the second, and Peter Kovar in the fourth. Phil Rosenblatt and Doug Giron had assists in the game.

Ricky Olin, subbing in goal, saved the shutout on a stop of a hard shot from close range in the final minutes. Newton's total dominance in the game was exhibited by the shots-on-goal statistics, which credited the Tigers with a 22-2 edge.

Coach Buzzi cited Viscomi, Halfback Steve Blauer, and Fullbacks Bertrand and Frank Bodengraven for their individual efforts. Overall he said the team was getting stronger, but that it is still weak in calling for the ball, and that the wings aren't being used enough.

The win and tie put Newton in a second place tie with Somerville, with both teams trailing Brockton. The first round of the season ends today at home against Rindge, and the Tigers enter the second half looking forward to their rematches against Brockton, Somerville, and Medford.

If the Tigers keep on improving, one can look forward to seeing the capture one of the two available play-off spots and vying for the state crown.

Cadets on graduation are qualified for license as third mates and third assistant engineers in the U.S. Merchant Marine, and may qualify for commission in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

The new $11 million campus development provides a multi-purpose gymnasium with olympic sized swimming pool, a 100,000 volume air-conditioned library and a four-dormitory unit and dining hall complex which will accommodate 600 students next September, and 800 in September, 1974.

There is a comprehensive varsity and intramural sports program. Eight full varsity sports include football, baseball, basketball, soccer, lacrosse, wrestling, cross country and hockey. Nine intramural sports include football, hockey, bowling, swimming, volley ball, tennis, softball, rifle and pistol, and sailing.

In addition, the academy is conducting a complete program of continuing education as a community service for part-time commuting students and adults during the evening and in summer programs.

GROUSE AND WOODCOCK HUNTING BEGINS OCT. 10

Grouse and woodcock become legal game in Massachusetts Oct. 10. The season for the rest of the upland species—pheasant, quail, rabbit, hare, squirrel—begins Oct. 20.

All districts report that the grouse population appears to be on an upswing. Woodcock seem to be as plentiful, or perhaps more so, than last year.

BIG ANIMALS IN THE NEWS

Big animals have made the headlines recently The first was a bull moose that mysteriously materialized in the city limits of Methuen. The second was another bull moose that made his opening debut in Athol and moved his act to a thickly-settled section of Ware.

While the second moose found his way out of suburbia and into Quabbin Reservation, the first animal had to be tranquilized and moved to Franklin Park Zoo by M.S.P.C.A. officials. The moose died several days later, possibly from a disease it had previously contracted in the wild. Moose wander into Massachusetts quite frequently (in 1966 we had five).

Finally, in Clarksburg a sow bear and her three cubs were treed and kept at bay by a large crowd of people wielding spotlights, rifles and shotguns. Some individuals reportedly squirted the animals with fire hoses. After police had scattered the mob the bears found their way back into the woods.

The last bear incident in Massachusetts occurred this past summer in Huntington. A crowd had gathered around another sow and her three cubs. Suddenly a station wagon roared up; a man leapt out, grabbed a cub, dove back into the car and drove away. The kidnapper was apprehended by Natural Resources officers and State Police; he has since been convicted.

Fish and Game Director James M. Shepard urges the public to "let wild animals be." Human interference — even if it is an act as seemingly innocent as observing at close quarters—endangers both humans and the animals themselves.

FISH AND GAME BOARD MEMBER WINS AWARD

Fish and Game Board member Kenneth F. Burns of Shrewsbury has been given the 1972 James P. Lyon Memorial Award for his contribution to competitive rowing and his "unselfish interest in helping those associated with intercollegiate and high school athletics." Burns was presented the award at the Eastern College Athletic Conference held Sept. 19 at the New York Statler Hilton.

Burns has been responsible for incorporating rowing programs in the athletic curricula of worcester-area high schools and colleges—among them: Shrewbury High, St. John's Prep School, Clark University, Holy Cross. Worcester State College, Worcester Polytech.

Burns formulated the New England Interscholastic Championships on Lake Quinsigamond, Worcester. In addition to judging national and international rowing events he has served in administrative and judging positions at two Olympic events in 1932 and 1952.

Burns developed his interest in rowing by participating in the sport himself. He won several New England championships for single skulls and in 1925 set a double-skull world record with Fred Hais for a 1.5-mile course. The record stands today.

The James P. Lyon Memorial Award was established at the 1962 Eastern College Conference in continuing respect for the memory of Mr. Lyon who was widely known for his interest, persistence and efficiency in sports officiating.

MASS. BOOSTS TURKEY FLOCK BY 20

Twenty wild trukeys have joined the flock at Beartown State Forest, Great Barrington. The birds—five adult hens, six immature hens, three immature toms and six poults of undetermined sex—were obtained through the courtesy of the New York Division of Fish and Wildlife in a continuing effort to improve the Massachusetts flock with 100 percent wild stock.

In 1972, four hens and three toms were released in the Beartown State Forest; in late February, 1973, five adult and four immature toms were added to the flock. One adult hen was released last April.

The birds have been well marked with color wing tags. Turkey project leader Jim Cardoza would appreciate any information on sightings such as tag color, tag number (if possible), number of birds, where, when (and any other information that would be of interest). Cardoza can be reached by mail at Fish and Game Field Headquarters, Westboro, Mass. 01581.

Political Highlights

That might be the last attempt to thrust the Presidential nomination upon him. No one can look into the future and foretell what it will bring. But time could pass Ted by if again in 1976 he declines to accept his party's nomination for President.

The flaw in the picture from the standpoint of Ted's advisers is that his senatorial term expires in 1976 and if he should stand for the Presidency that year and be defeated, he would be out of action — out of public life.

On the other hand, if Ted is elected the next President and serves two terms in the White House, he will be retiring from public life at the close of 1984 at the age of 52. Maybe that consideration might cause him to stand aside and allow Fritz Mondale to have the Presidential nomination next year. Fritz who?

Governor Francis W. Sargent State's Champion Fund-Raiser

Members of the Boston School Committee have come under fire because of fund-raising testimonials held in their behalf, and Chairman Paul R. Tierney of the Hub's school board has advanced the rather sensible suggestion that the members be paid for the meetings they attend in order to eliminate the need of conducting testimonials for them.

Pressuring hard-working school principals and teachers, who receive only modest salaries, to buy $25 tickets for a School Committee member, who needs some money, is wrong and is not to be condoned under any circumstances.

But the School Committee members in Boston and in other communities across Massachusetts are pikers and small-timers when it comes to raising money.

The champion fund-raiser among the present-day politicians in Massachusetts and probably of all time in the Bay State is Governor Francis W. Sargent.

John F. Kennedy, James M. Curley, Paul A. Dever, Christian A. Herter, Edward M. Kennedy, Robert F. Kennedy, John A. Volpe, Endicott Peabody and Foster Furcolo. None of them was a match for Francis Sargent when it came to raising money. We would estimate that by the time the results of next year's state election are written into the record books, Sarge will have raised well over $1 million—if he hasn't done so already.

That is not to imply that Governor Sargent is lining his own pockets or that he is pulling in money for his own personal purposes. He is not doing any such thing. He is building up a political campaign chest so that when he stands for relection next year he will have the money to do things to promote his candidacy that his opponent will be financially unable to do.

There is nothing wrong in that. It is an accepted way of financing political campaigns. Politicians have been doing it since George Washington's time.

People, who are interested in politics only at election time or when a scandal erupts, have resisted suggestions that political campaigns be financed through public taxes. They are opposed to having even $1 added to their tax bills to pay for a Presidential campaign.

Yet, they expect candidates seeking their votes to appear on television and do other things which will assist a viewer, listener or reader in evaluating their qualifications and merit—things which cost money.

State House observers estimate that Governor Sargent has taken in about $412,000 from testimonials and direct contributions since winning election to the Governorship a little less than three years ago.

If there has been any arm-twisting in the process of raising that tidy sum, it has not produced any audible complaints. Sarge's committee is planning four more $100-a-plate dinners to honor the Governor and swell his campaign fund to even more healthy proportions.

This will enable Sarge to get off to a running start in his drive for reelection next year while his Democratic adversary presumably will be drained financially by a costly primary fight and will be obliged to start all over again raising money for the final election campaign after winning the primary.

Governor Sargent, of course, is not the only top-level official who raises campaign funds from testimonials. Senator Edward W. Brooke was honored two years ago at a birthday dinner which produced $250,000 for his campaign. Brooke's supporters proudly cited the dinner as evidence of his popularity and the esteem in which Brooke was held by Republicans and Democrats alike.

The Kennedy brothers sought and received campaign contributions, but mostly they dug down into their own pockets or turned to members of their families for the money they needed to finance their campaigns. Other politicians, of course, are unable to do that.

Political observers make a distinction between aides to a Governor "putting the arm" on highly paid lobbyists and well-to-do businessmen and a school administrator sending out $25 testimonial tickets to a principal to sell in his school. But the principles in the two cases are not all that different except that the Governor's aides are invariably raising money to assure a well-oiled campaign which will keep their man in office.

Public officials don't go out of office as welathy as most people imagine.

James M. Curley was virtually penniless after serving 16 years as Mayor, two as Governor, several as Congressman. He had lived up to his income, and when he left the office of Mayor at the start of 1950 he had only very small savings to fall back on. Within a short time, Curley had to sell his home on the Jamaicaway and move to a more modest and less expensive dwelling.

When John B. Hynes served as interim Mayor of Boston while Curley was in prison during the summer and fall of 1947, Hynes told the writer he had lost money while he was Mayor. He had been obliged to spend more than the difference between his pay as Mayor and City Clerk.

John F. Collins, now a professor at M.I.T., and a consultant on urban problems, probably could not afford to return to political life. Foster Furcolo was almost broke when he walked down the State House steps after serving four years as Governor of Massachusetts, two as State Treasurer and several as Congressman.

Most politicians not only spend all the campaign contributions they receive but often go into debt in a campaign.

Russian-Chinese Relations Worsen; War Is Real Threat

Massachusetts members of Congress, who are briefed periodically on international problems and world conditions, report that relations have worsened in recent weeks between Soviet Russia and Red China and that the possibility of war between the two giant Communist nations is very real.

A Soviet-backed Mongolian newspaper recently accused Chinese troops with violations of the Mongolian border, claiming that Chinese forces had deliberately penetrated from nine to 12 miles inside Mongolian territory.

International observers are skeptical of the Soviet charges and speculate as to why they were made. They point out that the Soviet Union has a clear advantage over China in both nuclear and conventional forces and add that it would not be in China's interests to provoke the Russians with violations of a border that is clearly marked and recognized by both sides.

Experts on such matters say it seems clear that the Soviet leaders consider it to be in their interests to create tensions along the Mongolian frontier.

They have suggested that one of the Soviet motives may be to force the Chinese to divert troops from Soviet border areas, where their main strength is concentrated, to bolster the forces on the Mongolian front.

Other observers say the Soviet bosses may merely hope to force the Chinese into devoting a greater proportion of their national budget to defending their northern frontier in order to tie up resources and delay the day when China will attain economic parity with the Soviet Union.

AT A LUNCHEON MEETING recently at the home of Mrs. Herbert Segal of Newton, arrangements were completed for two performances of the Boston Ballet Company, performing the musical revue, "Dance through the Years," featuring Agnes de Mille's "Rodeo." The revue will be given on Nov. 25 at John Hancock Hall, with performances at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. and will benefit the Women's Auxiliary of the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged in Roslindale. At the luncheon, shown above from left to right, are Mrs. Lawrence, Mrs. Paul D. Dichter, Mrs. Herbert Segal and Mrs. A. I. Lerner. Ticket reservations may be made by calling 325-8000, ext. 427 or 442.

Norfolk County Trust Company Introduces New Way To Borrow

Money management is the theme and the basic premise behind the new Customer Option Loan developed by Norfolk County Trust Company. A spokesman for the bank indicated that with the introduction of the Customer Option Loan, Norfolk County Trust will make available to customers auto loans, home improvement loans, and personal loans computed on a simple interest basis spiced with interesting options.

By permitting customers to take a Payment Holiday and choose months when it is to their advantage not to pay, the bank is encouraging customers to plan carefully for unusual months and periods (such as vacations) that play havoc with family budgets. In addition, a flexible payment date allows the customer to select a different date each month to pay if desired.

Under the Customer Option Loan, borrowers are also entitled to a preferred rate when they elect to have their loan payment automatically deducted from their checking account. And at the end of each month, the bank issues each customer a statement spelling out all the details.

More and more, the public is learning to manage money affairs skillfully, and Norfolk County Trust Company, by providing these new customer options and loan statements, is encouraging the public to do so.

Bike Trips By Boston "Y"

The U.S. biking boom has been equalled only by the splurge on the tennis court. More and more people are seen pedalling their way through rush hour traffic, past closed gas stations and no parking signs.

The 10-speed two wheeler has at last gained popularity over the banana seat "chopper-cycle". From Grandma to grammar school, Boston has taken to the hills in 7th gear.

Ponkapoag Outdoor Center of the Greater Boston YMCA has taken to that road as well. October weekends will find family and student groups pedalling their way along an overnight bike experience.

Ten-speeds are a challenge to the traditional cyclist. By the time the correct gear is found, you can be on your way backward down the hill. Hopefully the two trip leaders will have helpful hints for even the most un-mechanically inclined.

For those with sore seats, pillows will be provided for that evening's campfire and guitar sing. And, they say the second day is never as uncomfortable as the first spent on a skinny bike seat. The round trip is only 60 miles if you're looking for a fun weekend trip. Families and students are urged to contact Ponkapoag Outdoor Center (696-4466) in Canton for more information.

Planetarium Offers "Worlds Of Wonder"

From gigantic Jupiter to scorched Mercury, the planets of our solar system are the subject of a new Planetarium program, "Worlds of Wonder," at Boston's Museum of Science.

The program, which opened this week, presents the most recent information about four planets, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and Mercury, gleaned from space probes, radio astronomy, spectroscopy, and other modern scientific methods.

The internationally known planetary astronomer, Carl Sagan, of Cornell University, introduces the program. It is narrated by Norman Ruby of WBOS.

The most dramatic description concerns Venus. That cloud-encircled planet is believed to resemble the traditional view of Hell. Noxious and corrosive gases swirl through a thick, reddish atmosphere. The odor of sulfur is pervasive. It is an unbearable 900 degrees Fahrenheit, and the atmospheric pressure is crushing, almost one ton per square inch.

Although Venus is hostile to human exploration, information about it can be obtained from space probes, which fly by, orbit or land on the planet. This country's Mariner 10 will probe both Venus and Mercury later this fall.

While Venus is the closest planet to Earth, Mercury is the closest to the sun. A small planet 3,000 miles in diameter, Mercury is a scorched, burnt-out world that is alternately roasted and frozen. A night is 12 weeks long.

Conditions are scarcely better on Mars where the daytime temperature rarely rises above 70 degrees Fahrenheit and the night plummets to 150 degrees below zero. Violent dust storms, sometimes lasting for months, frequently sweep over the desert.

The Hayden Planetarium calls Jupiter the star that failed. It thought that when it broke away from the cloud of dust and gas that became the sun, it did not contain enough material to cause nuclear reactions to begin and turn it into a hot new star itself. Instead, Jupiter became a giant world that is neither truly star nor planet.

It is covered with thick, poisonous clouds which extend thousands of miles toward a core that is probably still shrinking and heating.

In presenting "Worlds of Wonder," the Planetarium simulates the views of the planets as recorded by space probes and shows such phenomena as the Martian dust storms and the colorful cloud bands surrounding Jupiter.

Camera Tips

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hardly anyone travels without a camera these days. For pictures can help refresh memories of pleasant moments and places for years to come.

And, what with those simple aim-and-shoot cameras, you don't have to be a professional to record your travel experiences on film.

There are tricks of the trade, however. So here are some tips for fall and winter vacationists from Eastman Kodak experts:

Autumn's great, glorious globs of color are made for photography, but to do justice to their beauty, the photographer must look at them with a discerning eye.

In the winter, when color has been bleached from the scenery, interesting compositions and unusual angles of revealing closeups can help photographers capture the spirit of the snow-filled outdoors.

In lieu of color variety, they play games with sunlight and glistening snow. In autumn, on the other hand, the subtler techniques of winter photography can easily be lost in the understandable desire to capture the wealth of colors.

The stark winter scene demands the photographer compose his picture carefully before he shoots. A second look at what fall has to offer—in addition to the intense reds, oranges, yellows—can give you better pictures, too.

Leading Line

A leading line might be a prominent tree, branch, fence, road or even a ski track. It should lead the eye to the center of interest in the scene. Rakes, bound to be in use during the fall months, can offer built-in leading lines that will help you feature your favorite leaf-raker.

Chiaroscuro, the arrangement of light and dark areas, puts shadows and highlights to work —creating new shapes and adding dimension to pictures. try photographing a glowing campfire at dusk, using the existing light it sheds for a dramatic portrait of the fire-tender.

(You can shoot by firelight as well as sunlight if using Koadk pocket Instamatic cameras which make time exposures automatically.)

Smoke and mist can add mystery, a veil of illusion to city and country scenes. Both also offer a way to cover up unnecessarily "busy" backgrounds that might detract from the center of interest in your picture. Choosing a different angle or moving in closer are other methods of simplifying a cluttered or complicated background.

To which I add: "Whether your camera is new or old, shoot a roll or two of film in advance of your departure on a trip to make sure it is in proper operating condition. If you're going abroad, check on the availability of the film you will be using. Prices generally are higher outside the United States, but some countries restrict the amount of film that may be brought in.

And remember to register your foreign-made camera and equipment with U. S. customs before leaving the country. If you don't, you might have to pay duty unless you can prove it was not purchased during your latest travel overseas.

ROCK "STAR"

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "A Star is Born," the film classic that featured Judy Garland, will be remade by Warner Bros, with a contemporary rock and roll setting.

The Family Connection

By CLAIRE TAYLOR
Coordinator

October is volunteer month a The Family Connection. The number of people who are offering their time for the skil bank increases daily. So do the various kinds of needs which people call into the office. As the requests from West Roxbury, Hyde Park, and Roslindale become more numerous and more specific, it becomes clear that a Fish type organization, totally separate from The Family's Connection's skill resource file, is very much needed.

FISH is a volunteer program already in existence in many area communities. It can offer such services as transportation, short-term homemaking service, reading to the blind, and any other assistance easily provided on a short-term basis. FISH can be started by civic organizations, church groups, or interested individuals who band together. It requires a commitment of time from the volunteers, a steering committee to handle the initial organization and public relations involved, and small donations from the community to maintain the cost of an answering service.

People who participate in FISH find it a rewarding and valuable way of spending one day a month. Many friendships are formed through the program and a general spirit of cooperation and neighborliness in the community is fostered. In addition, scores of people usually homebound and troubled with the problem of getting assistance for those common "emergencies," are aided.

Any civic organization, club, church group or interested individual can call The Family Connection 323-0300 for further information about how to start this worthwhile venture.

Remember The Family Connection is waiting to match community needs with community resources. Families and children who are looking for answers about human services, or are having problems of any kind can call the office or come by 4262 Washington street, Roslindale.

Watch for next week's column about a new day care nursery opening soon in Roslindale.

Ecology Talk

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Corporations that talk ecology but lobby against pollution control are inviting "social retribution," according to a University of California business administration professor.

Prof. Dow Votaw said business leaders who fail to exercise real social responsibility may eventually lose their leadership roles in society and see the fall of their own organizations.

Votaw said a real crisis of confidence already exists, citing the termination of the supersonic transport program.

"Majorities in Congress and large numbers of people simply did not trust the managers of technology to be responsible to society and to stop the program if the problems of noise and pollution were not solved," he said.

Beth Avodah Prepares For Yom Kippur

The highest of all Jewish Holy Days is Yom Kippur, the day that Jews all over the world ask forgiveness for their transgressions . . . and all the sins and evils of the past year.

In every synagogue this Friday evening, Oct. 5, the stirring Kol Nidre will be chanted, and on Oct. 6, the Jewish people will fast for one day as they pray for forgiveness and pardon every transgression and wrong done to their person, property, and honor. It is a solemnly beautiful day of worship, and woven into the service is a memorial for those who have died and need be remembered.

At Temple Beth Avodah, the service Friday will be introduced by Werner Gans playing Ernest Bloch's "Kol Nidre" on the cello, accompanied by the temple organist, Helen Gordon. Worship service will follow.

Frederick Shapiro, cantorial soloist, will chant the "Kol Nidre." Rabbi Robert Miller has chosen as the topic for his sermon this Yom Kippur sabbath, "Judaism Through the Eyes of a Stranger."

At 10:30 Saturday morning, services will recommence. In the Library Chapel, Richard Blacker will, with the help of the young people from the Youth Group, conduct services for the youngsters. In the Sanctuary, Rabbi Robert Miller will lead the congregation in prayer on this day of atonement. The text of his sermon will be "See What You Made Me Do." Memorial services will begin at 4 p.m. until sundown. Appropriate selections from the holocaust literature will be read.

The congregation will break their fast as a family in the Temple. Somehow, the little Temple, surrounded by tall trees, just beginning to change color, seems so remote from the world. It is even more remarkable in this wooded setting to realize that millions of people are reciting the age old prayers and chants at the same time . . . together. It is the time to pray, forgive, and remember, on this, the Holy Day of Yom Kippur.

Techniques

Dr. Lester S. Dewis, a member of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital staff, recently presented a demonstration on the latest techniques for bronchial drainage at a one-day respiratory seminar in Woburn. Participants included Mrs. Toni Tasker (standing) and Maureen McGlauflin, playing a "patient." The program was sponsored by the Middlesex-Cambridge Lung Association.

Sacred Heart Hosts Speaker

Richard L. Dodds, executive director of Oxfam-America, will speak to students of the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart as well as to interested members of the Newton community, Tuesday, Oct. 9, at 1:40 p.m., in the Science Auditorium of Newton College.

Dodds, who recently returned from a four-week tour of West Africa, will discuss the six-year African drought and relief and development programs which Oxfam is operating there.

Oxfam-America with headquarters newly located at 474 Centre street, Newton Corner, is the newest member of 30-year-old Oxfam, which originated in England during World War II.

Dodds' appearance is the Country Day School's first public program of the year and will be one of a series of free events focusing on current areas of social concern for students, as well as other citizens of Newton. The public is invited to attend.

Temple Brotherhood Hosts Candidates

On Sunday, Oct. 14, at th 1 p.m. the Brotherhood of Temple Emmanuel, 385 Ward st., Newton, will present candidates for the office of Mayor of Newton as the principal speakers at the first of its monthly breakfasts.

In deference to the schedules of the speakers, and to make it easier for the wives of members to attend, the meeting will take the form of lunch, in place of the usual earlier breakfast.

Theodore D. Mann, currently serving as Mayor of Newton, is seeking re-election to that office. He also has served as an alderman for eight years was Chairman of the Franchising and Licensing Committee and was a member of many other important committees.

He has served in the Massachusetts Legislature as a member of the House of Representatives for seven years, where he was a member of the Insurance Committee, the Military Affairs Committee, and served on many special commissions.

William Carmen has previously sought election to the office of Mayor Newton, and has served as an alderman for six years, during which time he was chairman of the Drug Abuse Committee and was a number of many other important committees.

He was Chairman of the Newton Housing Authority for seven years. Mr. Carmen has also been chairman of the Newton United Fund, President of the Newton Mental Health Association, and has served in many activities of community service.

Both candidates will speak, and then the floor will be open to questions from the members. Victor Mitchell will act as moderator.

As part of the same program, the incoming officers and directors, led by Brotherhood President Dr. Louis Kassler, will be installed into their Brotherhood offices by Samuel Chiel, Rabbi of Temple Emanuel.

The Nat Levin Award will be presented to the Brotherhood member who most distinguished himself for meritorious service during the preceding year; Dr. Kassler will present the award.

Jewish Council Offers Democracy Seminar

High school students throughout the state are invited to participate in a workshop, "Democratic Alternatives to Political Violence," Monday, Oct. 8, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Suffolk University Auditorium, 41 Temple st., Boston.

The Most Reverand S. M. Metzger, Bishop of El Paso, Texas, will be the keynote speaker at the symposium. Best known for his activities on behalf of labor and most recently on the Farah boycott issue, the Bishop was awarded the St. Joseph Worker Award in 1972 by the Texas AFL-CIO.

The workshop, sponsored by the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Boston, Massachusetts Department of Education, Massachusetts Teacher's Association and the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will include opportunities for leadership growth, group consensus decisions, question and answer periods and informal rap sessions with the Bishop.

A native of Fredericksburg, Texas, Bishop Metzger was ordained in 1926, was a professor at St. John's Seminary in San Antonio and received his Doctor of Laws degree from San Antonio's St. Edward's University. In 1965 he was named Assistant to the Papal Throne.

Hospital Dedicates Library

Newton-Wellesley Hospital's newly expanded and redecorated library was formally dedicated as the Paul Talbot Babson Memorial Library following the fall meeting of the hospital's board of trustees last week.

Babson was a trustee of the hospital from 1939 until his death in 1972. He had served as first and second vice president of the board, as member of the board of governors, many terms as chairman of the investment committee, and had been a generous benefactor of the hospital. Gifts from his family and friends have designed the library as a memorial to him.

Gifts from Babson's family and friends have designated the library as a memorial to him as recognized on a memorial plaque which was unveiled in a brief ceremony in the library following the fall meeting of the trustees.

Both Mrs. Babson and her son, Donald P. Babson, are trustees of the hospital. Mrs. Babson served on the board ex-officio as president of the Hospital Aid Association from 1953 to 1955. She has continued to serve the board since her election in 1955. Donald P Babson joined the board in 1966.

The new memorial library is designed to serve the entire hospital. Its books and journals cover not only medicine, nursing and hospital administration but also current information of importance to ever hospital department. In addition, there is a sizeable collection which provides bibliotherapy service for patients and recreational reading for hospital employees.

The recent expansion has doubled the space available for reading and study. In addition to the Dr. George L. West Library of medical books, there is an attractive new reading room which was planned especially for nursing students and hospital personnel.

With a total hospital student population counting interns, residents, medical students from Tufts University, and students in the hospital's schools of radiologic and medical technology, as well as affiliates from other institutions — the new library will be heavily used.

Cohen Donates Library

Dedication Ceremonies were held on Sunday, Sept. 30, in honor of naming the Library in the Headquarters Building, Soldiers' Home in Chelsea, as "The Sheldon Cohen Family Residents' Library," with over 100 persons in attendance.

Through the generosity of Sheldon Cohen of Wayne Road, Newton, a Harvard Square, Cambridge, book vendor, the library recently received a gift of more than four thousand new books.

The Soldiers' Home Library, which was recently totally renovated, now one of the most complete libraries in State institutions, offers the latest in fiction and non-fiction reading. Daily and weekly newspapers, including foreign language, religious and special publications are also available, along with paper backs, magazines, periodicals and reference materials.

The library boasts a broad collection of large print books, including Cohen's latest gift of a large print edition of the New York Times, a weekly publication.

The library also operates a bookmobile service for hospital patients and residents, which includes "talking books" for the visually and physically handicapped.

Following the dedication ceremonies a reception was held in the Headquarters Dining Room where Cohen's family greeted their many friends, state officials and well wishers at the Soldiers' Home.

Most recently she has taught at Bates College and provided consultation and workshop leadership for numerous organizations in the Boston area.

"All three individuals bring to the agency a variety of experiences which should enhance programming and the continued effort of the organization to provide an outstanding quality of staff services," stated Bibbo.

Quote Of The Week

Highways and gasoline can both be enhanced by their more judicious use. That means encouraging experiments in mass transit, subsidizing free bus service, for instance, or expansion of existing lines to previously unlikely places.

NO GUARANTEE

Q. Having always had difficulty with the "men" in my life, I am wondering if there is a guarantee of compatibility with a man born under the same Sign as me? I was born on August 5, 1936 between 2 and 4 p.m. in Boston, Mass. The gentleman was born in Madrid, Spain, on July 26, 1936, no time of birth is available.

M. S.

A. People born under the same Sun Signs may and then again may not, be compatible but such is no "guarantee" in either case. There are various kinds of compatibility, mental, emotional, sexual, etc., and these can be judged by a comparison of both complete charts only. To calculate same the exact time of the day of birth is absolutely essential.

Your 2 to 4 p.m. time is too indefinite to determine your Ascendent and he has no time of day of birth. Since on his date of birth the Moon moved from Libra to Scorpio during the day, its position is also uncertain.

Your own planetary aspects indicate one who is apt to be quite romantic with a desire for adventure. In love and romance you are likely to do as you please whether others approve or otherwise.

Customs, tradition and conventions are not likely to be considered in your relationships with "men" in your life since you have independent ideas and theories about such. You crave love and attention and may have attracted exciting but only temporary and somewhat erratic love affairs probably since early in your adult life.

All this notwithstanding you will continue to maintain hope of a worthwhile and compatible relationship which should justify and eventually materialize with the "right man."

Is There Normalcy In D. C.?

Virginia Payette says:

There's something strangely reassuring going on in Washington that just might mean things are getting back to normal; government folks are beginning to act like real people.

For one thing, they're disagreeing with each other. Out in the open. And no heads have rolled — even after their differences made the front pages.

President Nixon says he has hay fever. Gets it every year about this time, on Setpember 5, to be exact, and doesn't get rid of it until October 1. It makes his eyes puff up, he says.

Nonsense, insists his doctor. Mr. Nixon says the same thing every year, and every year he tells him his self-diagnosis is wrong. He's given up arguing with him about it.

Whether the President has the sneezles and wheezles isn't as important (except to him, of course) as the fact that he shares a human failing with the rest of us: our doctors don't always agree with us either.

Even more encouraging was the squabble between a White House adviser and the Secretary of the Treasury. When Melvin Laird shot up his trial balloon on a tax increase, George Shultz shot it down all the way from Tokyo.

"Laird can keep his cotton-picking hands off economic policy," he growled. "He always sounds off when I'm out of town."

Honesty like this is rare in government. We may suspect that bureaucrats get in each other's way now and then, but darned few of them ever admit it. And if they do, it's with a false smile and a babble of diplomatic double-talk. No other Washington biggie has ever publicly warned a colleague to keep his cotton-picking hands off his territory.

Now the chief economist of the Federal Power Commission says too much talk by the Administration is making the natural-gas shortage worse.

These may be little things, but in times like this we have to cling to whatever small crumbs of hope that fall our way. And the fact that men in White House circles have human reactions is, somehow, hopeful.

It wasn't always this way. Remeber what happened to Walter Hickel when he publicly urged the President to come down from his ivory tower and talk to people? He was on his way back to Alaska before he knew what hit him.

John Connally backed into the same buzz saw. Early in the Watergate mess he advised the President to hop on the tube and tell the people everything he knew about it. That was the last advice Big John ever got to offer.

It's just possible that Mr. Nixon is beginning to think Connally had the right idea. If he'd made an honest declaration when the scandal first exploded, instead of hiding out for months, he might not have the Supreme Court breathing down his neck now.

Maybe we need more of this in Washington. Maybe if a few other members of the Administration felt free enough to come out and say what they really think, Americans would feel less "alienated" from their government.

It's that "openness" Mr. Nixon talked about in his early days in office (and promptly forgot about for the next few years). All we've had since then are a lot of pretty speeches and more "phases" than we can keep track of.

The result is that many voters suspect the big brains in Washington are frantically flapping every which way for gimmicks to bring prices down . . . get enough oil for the winter . . . and lower that 10 per cent interest rate.

Maybe if they'd come right out and admit they're stumped for the moment anyway — more people would believe them when they do hit upon a workable solution.

And that's the cotton-pickin' truth.

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Crabmeat and sole are both extremely low in calories — about 400 a pound — compared with beef, which may be 1,500 to 2,000 or more. Put them together, however, and somehow the calories escalate to dizzying heights! The average restaurant-style crabmeat stuffed fish dish is generally a too-generous 500 calories or more, including several hundred additional calories in the form of a sauce or topping.

That's because the crabmeat filling is often more "filler" than crabmeat! And the sauce is a cholesterol-watcher's nightmare of butterfat.

Our Slim Gourmet Stuffed Sole, on the other hand, is extragenerous with crabmeat, but despite its rich taste and elegant appearance our dish is a calorie-shy 185 per serving, including the delicately flavored French Wine and Cheese Sauce we use as the final fillip.

You'll like this simple sauce for any fish dish. Don't worry about the wine calories — they evaporate in the cooking. If you prefer not to use wine, simply leave it out and increase the milk to two cups.

CRABMEAT-STUFFED SOLE

2 pounds frozen sole fillets

FILLING:

4-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces
3 tablespoons finely minced onion
1 can (7½ ounces) crabmeat, drained
4 tablespoons cracker crumbs or breadcrumbs
1 tablespoon dried parsley flakes
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
paprika

WINE SAUCE:

2 tablespoons arrowroot or cornstarch
1½ cups skim milk
5 tablespoons dry white wine
½ teaspoon salt
2 ounces (½ cup) shredded processed Swiss cheese

Separate defrosted fillets carefully; cut into eight pieces.

Drain the mushrooms and chop fine, combine with the onion, crabmeat, crumbs, parsley, salt and pepper. Spread mixture evenly over fish fillets and roll up. Secure each roll with a toothpick. Arrange the fillets in a shallow, two-quart casserole or baking dish.

Combine wine sauce ingredients in a small saucepan. Cook and stir over moderate heat until sauce simmers and thickens. Pour sauce over fish fillets.

Sprinkle with paprika and bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes, until fish flakes easily. Serves eight — 185 calories each.

I Told The Other Man

NEW YORK. – Jack Post, the eminent Washington business management consultant, is a man who has to deal with insurance people quite a bit. And, for our benefit, he's snagged some gems from their files.

He calls his collection "Grins Gleaned from the Groans in Letters to an Insurance Claim Department" and here are some Samples:

"Coming home I drove into the wrong yard and collided with a tree I don't have."

"The other man altered his mind so I had to run over him."

"I thought the side window was down, but it was up, as I found out when I put my hand through it."

"I blew my horn, but it was not working, as it was stolen."

"A truck backed through my windshield into my wife's face."

"I told the other idiot what he was, and went on."

"The other car collided with mine without giving warning of its intentions."

"I misjudged a lady crossing the street."

"I knocked over a man. He admitted it was his fault as he had been run over before."

"Cow wandered into my car. Found out it was half-witted."

"She suddenly saw me, lost her head, and we met."

Now, happily, in this connection, I have a report from the Health Insurance Institute which says that elementary school children "have some strange notions about insurance."

As proof, the Institute submits some of the comments from the students of Ben Stewart, fourth-grade teacher, at the Maddox Elementary School in St. Louis:

"Ideas about good ways to insure things has advanced to the point where it is no longer understandable."

"Will private business ever get to the point where they don't need insurance? The chances are 999 out of 100.

"Lack of worry is one of the main by-products of insurance."

"Boo! I did not mean to scare you so bad, but that is how I feel when I think about trying to get along without insurance."

"The way to figure out how much insurance each person needs is only to wonder at, not to understand."

"I looked up the number of insurance companies there are twice, but I forgot it three times."

Mr. Stewart says that every year he asks each new student to write a letter to a member of the profession or business in which he is interested. Here are some things the kids wrote to insurance executives:

"I want to work in an insurance company like you do. I have decided you are my ninth favorite person in the universe."

"Can you tell me if an insurance policy will pay all your medical bills? I said yes and Donald said no and I said yes and he said no and I said yes and so on. Can you tell us for sure? Well, thanks anyway."

"I have always wanted to try selling insurance, but not very much."

"Axually, selling insurance to people is very interesting if you happen to be interested in it."

Terrified Teaching Assistant

by Amy Vanderbilt

"Dear Miss Vanderbilt: I am only 20 and this fall will become a teaching assistant at an inner-city school. I am terrified that I won't be able to manage the kids. Am I up against the impossible? - J.M., St. Louis, Mo."

There are plenty of young people who can behave in an authoritative way and many older ones who can fall apart in a situation such as you are likely to face. Just remember that fear communicates itself.

You will be dealing with young, unruly children, many of whom have not been subjected to discipline at home. Keep in mind that some are reachable and teachable, that if you are calm and confident—and firm—you will be offering them a chance to learn.

A teacher during the summer session noticed that a boy had written a note and that it was being passed from student to student. She read lips and, watching carefully, she saw a student silently read the note, "At 18 minutes until two, let's all cough." At 20 minutes before the hour, the teacher said, "Let's all take a break Let's all cough!" Needless to say, the class was astounded. At 18 minutes before two, they were quiet, attentive—and mystified.

I remember speaking before a large college audience in Kansas. Suddenly a bee flew into the auditorium. Several boys created a great commotion trying to shoo it out and, of course, the attention of the entire audience was distracted.

I watched this for a second or so and then I said, "All right, let's get the bee out of here and then I'll go on." The bee—and the boys—co-operated and I did go on.

Authority is something you will acquire as you teach. Temper it with humor and understanding, and think of every child in your classroom as an individual, capable of being reached in some way.

BIRTHDAY CARDS

"Dear Miss Vanderbilt: When is it considered proper for a steady girlfriend to sign her name to the card presented to the parents of the son? They are not officially engaged and marriage is not in the immediate future. They are in their 20s. I refer to cards given, not mailed, on such days as birthdays, anniversaries, Father's Day, Mother's Day and so on.

"I feel it is incorrect, but times have changed in so many respects that I would like your viewpoint in the matter. —Mrs. R.F., Swampscott, Mass."

Evidently these young people consider themselves as a couple and that is why they are both signing cards for such occasions. I can see why you don't like it, as you feel that the gift or card should come from your son alone.

I think it unwise for you to make a fuss about it. The girl may well become your daughter-in-law. If not, your son will probably find himself with some other girl with whom he will have a similar feeling of closeness.

FRIEND'S GUEST

"Dear Miss Vanderbilt: When a friend in the neighborhood has a house guest for a week or so, is it the obligation of the hostess' friends to offer some entertainment for that guest? There is a situation like that now, and I feel that the hostess is strongly hinting that her friends should entertain for her house guest. Is it an obligation?—Mrs. N.F., Garden City, N.Y."

It isn't an obligation, but it is a nice thing to do if you feel like doing it. Don't feel that you must entertain in kind or that you must include all of the other people who have already met this guest.

I sometimes wish that the afternoon tea hour was still popular—this would be a perfect way to do a gracious bit of entertaining for such a person.

You might ask the hostess and her guest (and the hostess' husband) for dessert and coffee or for cocktails. Perhaps if the guest is staying quite some time, the hostess might be delighted to get the guest off her hands for a brief time. You might ask the guest to an afternoon movie or drive her around to see some of the local sights.

(Miss Amy Vanderbilt welcomes your letters and strives to answer all those of general interest in her column. Send your questions and comments to Miss Vanderbilt in care of this paper.

Reagan In 1976?

By Marquis Childs

The Reagan phenomenon is the perfect example of what has happened to American politics. California's governor, Ronnie boy to his ardent admirers, combines big money and mastery of television with a success that few can rival.

His multimillion-dollar backers believe that with their money and his skill he will go on to be the next President of the United States. Currently seeking support for his amendment to the state constitution that would put a ceiling on taxes, after this issue is decided by the voters in November he will hit the road around the country speaking to Republican audiences, which he knows how to charm.

Looking ahead to 1976 Henry Salvatore and his other principals see only one rival. The big Texan, John B. Connally, is the challenger they respect. Asked to appear at a recent Republican rally in San Diego, Connally drew a rousing response with the kind of straight-form-the shoulder, tough-talking speech he has been making everywhere.

Should Connally be named Vice-President following the resignation of Spiro Agnew, widely reported as a possibility or even a probability, the former Democrat would have a formidable advantage for the nomination.

While conceding this, the Reagan backers are reluctant to believe that their fellow Californian, Richard Nixon, would do this to them.

Reagan's operation is carefully geared to the repeated private polls taken by his financial backers. His stand against what he calls welfare chiseling and for a tax ceiling is attuned to the polls reflecting a taxpayers' revolt.

One slight problem stands in the way of Reagan's onward and upward march. That is the pressure being put on him to run for a third term as governor next year. The argument is that he alone can insure continuing Republican control of the most-populous state.

Running again he will also shut out the five who are now pushing toward the primary next June, with the likelihood of the bruising contest damaging to the party and to Reagan's prospects in 1976.

The Governor has said he will not seek another term. The theory is that he wants to hang loose in pursuit of the larger goal. Also he is said to be bored by the demands of the office, even though much of the responsibility rests with an efficient staff.

One of the gubernatorial candidates, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, blasted what he said was an attempt of a few wealthy men to decide on a winner and eliminate the rivals.

This was a reference to a reported smoke-filled motel room in which some of the biggest money backers agreed on Casper Weinberger, currently in Washington as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. But the Weinberger boomlet seems to have blown up on the launching pad, as his standing in the polls stays near ground zero.

Whether Reagan's arm can be twisted for another term is an open question. A lot depends on the outcome of the constitutional amendment to set a fixed tax limit which would also, it is charged, be a fixed spending limit. Powerful groups in public service, teachers and others, are campaigning hard to defeat the initiative that will be on the November ballot.

Reagan demagogues the economy issue with glib skill. He drew loud applause from a luncheon audience of conservative Republican women when he proposed an amendment to the United States Constitution requiring any member of Congress introducing a spending bill to offer a revenue measure to cover it.

"It's so simple," said the governor, "that I don't understand why it wasn't put into the Constitution 180 years ago."

This would astonish the Founding Fathers who showed in creating the Constitution their far-reaching knowledge of the powers of government and the division of responsibility between executive and legislature.

But then a great many things about politics U.S.A. 1973 would astonish the founders, and not least the Reagan syndrome of money and television. Reagan's ability, his crowd skill, is undeniable.

Yet that a former actor who has held only one public office should be a serious contender for the Presidency is marvel enough.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

Randy and Scott have acquired a large but motley collection of little cars and trucks in their ten and eight years of existence, respectively. Yesterday they had all their little cars out at once, driving them around in a metropolis of blocks.

"All those cars in your city must make a lot of air pollution," I commented, thinking of all the trouble big cities have been having trying to clean up the pollution caused by over-reliance on the auto.

"Nope," said Randy. "Our cars are a new kind of car. They stop pollution. All the pollution goes in the front of the car. It hits a big gear which is attached to a lot of little gears and makes the wheels go around."

"You mean your cars use pollution as a fuel?"

"Yes. It cleans everything up. And the cars run super fast."

"I think I'll buy one," I said.

"There's only one problem," Randy admitted. "If the cars get the city so clean that there's no more pollution, all the cars stop."

"Maybe that wouldn't be so bad," I laughed. "We can all take up bike riding instead."

"I have a better idea," said Scott. (Brothers always have a better idea.) "Let's have most of the cars regular cars, which run on gas and make pollution. But all the police cars will run on pollution. They'll go faster than anyone else and the police will always catch all the robbers."

"The ambulances and fire engines have to go fast, too," added Randy. "They can run on pollution."

For a few minutes sirens howled through the house as the super fast emergency vehicles zoomed around the block city.

Soccer Talk

By PAUL ELDRIDGE, JR.

The soccer scene has been quiet lately, what with the pro-leagues having completed their season. Right now, amateur leagues throughout the country are starting their 73-74 season. Locally, the Mass. Soccer Assoc. opened last week with 20 games. The Boston District League will start in a couple of weeks

Boston Inter, the M.S.A. Champions, have a new home field this year. They are playing out at Brandeis University in Waltham. This is certainly an improvement over Franklin Field.

A new field is not the only thing that is new with Boston Inter. Sal Atria is their new coach, and Sal Guline has been named co-manager along with Fr. Hal Furblur. Rumor has it that Boston Inter is going after players from the North American Soccer League. Any truth to this fellows?

NOTES FROM THE EUROPEAN FRONT

Johann Cruyff, the mos famous player in Holland has been sold to F.C. Barcelona in Spain. His transfer fee was slightly over 1.1 million dollars.

The bookmakers in England had made Leeds United a pre-season favorite at 4-1 odds to win the English League. At this writing, Leeds has yet to lose a game and have only one tie. Looks like a good bet.

Brendan, my European contact, tells me that George Best is back in training with Manchester United and will be playing his first game, in over a year, within the next few weeks. George showed on his first two practice sessions that he hasn't lost anything in his year of retirement. He showed up late both times.

Here is something for our local schools to think about. A soccer coaching course is being held Thursday nights at the Hoover High School in San Diego, California. The course consists of a 50-minute lecture (Laws of Game, Team Management, Principles of Play, etc.), and 90-minutes of practice (dribbling, heading, shooting, goalkeeping, ball control, etc.) Teaching the course is George Logan, San Diego State University's Soccer Coach. The course is sponsored by the local Adult High School Program. As Mel Allen would say, "How about that!"

So that you will know where you can watch a soccer game this Sunday, here is the schedule for October 7. All games start at 2 p.m.

Division 1
S. A. Italica at E. Boston "A"
Sulmona at Worcester Scans
S. J. Hellenic at Sons of Italy "A"
M.I.T. at Lowell Blues

Division 2
Peabody C.L.C. at Topsfield Jets

Hudson Benfica at Somerville C.C.I.
Portuguese Americans at Armens
Worcester Olympia at Polish Eagles

Division 3
Colombian Club at Fairlense
Honduras at Everett Cosmos
Camb. Port. Sports at Roslindale
St. Catherines at Weymouth Warriors
Boston United at Melrose Juventos

Division 4

Remember When It Was An Instant Ugly To Wear Glasses?

By MARK JONES

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Greta Garbo skulked down Hollywood streets wearing some of the first "shades in the '30s. But the Air Force did as much, or more, than film stars to popularize sunglasses among millions of Americans.

What the GI did for the T-shirt industry after World War II, the Air Force has done for the booming sunglass industry. And opticians and optometrists these days find they have a wild new cash crop: Funglasses.

The season's fashion fad at most resorts this year were a wardrobe of aviator sunglasses —tinted in heroic shades of mauve, apricot or purple.

From one decade to the next, after the war, the military tinted teardrop spectacles were adopted by different social stratas, from Fidel Castro to feminist Gloria Steinem

Gen. Douglas MacArthur wore them when he returned to the Philippines. Later, in the '50s, outlaw cycle gangs—a la Brando—adopted them. In the '60s rock musicians—a la Dylan —fancied them and today you fund Air Force-type glasses on the political trail—on Hubert Humphrey—and on the tennis court—on Billie Jean King.

A renaissance in wireframe tinted spectacles began three or four years ago in the slick colored pages of the New York fashion periodicals and the younger set have responded by buying nonprescription specs tinted for their rainbow of moods and images.

Which has put dollar signs in the eyes of the popular eyeglass designers.

One of the city's better known eyeglass artisans is optician Jack Schulsinger, 41, a Vienna-born craftsman who apprenticed on window glass during World War II when material was nonexistant, but who now sets trends with gold, cooper, silver and gems among the Hollywood and campus set.

First Impression

"Glasses make an important first impression, but strangely men and women usually have only one pair when they own several pair of trousers, shoes and dresses."

Schulsinger, who's designed spectacles here and in South America for two decades, fashions many of his latest designs with elaborate blueprints then photographs clients for a custom fit.

His fee: Roughly $60-$80 for most variatios of the aviator frame, compared with a $2-$10 tag for drugstore sunglasses.

At his Optical Fashion Center, Schulsinger does a brisk trade with UCLA students and caters also to the film, television and music industry, often fielding calls from actors and directors needing odd, last-minute orders to complete a scene.

One of the opticians best celebrity clients is Steve McQueen, who keeps Schulsinger and his two young partners busy with orders for Air Force-type goggles for he and his new wife, Ali MacGraw.

On the other hand, rock musician Neil Diamond orders apricot-and-chocolate tinted sunglasses and dishes them out to close friends as gifts. They run about $75 a pair.

One fashion-conscious businessman strode into Schulsinger's shop, said he wanted a pair of custom wire-frames in gold and diamond chips spelling out his initials on the side The price tag: $2,500.

Glasses are the new way to proclaim identify; they're a kind of disguise and the purchase of a new pair is an event carefully planned. Schulsinger has a few tips:

If the wearer has a long, somewhat narrow face, he or she might look best with a round, or oval frame that doesn't elongate the face any further.

On the other hand, he says, those with round or oval features should avoid a similar shape in glasses. "It only accentuates their cheeks," he said, adding that rectangle frames might be better looking.

Schulsinger is a harsh critic when it comes to bespectacled politicians and statesmen seen on television interviews.

"Some of them wear the craziest most ill-fitting glasses," he said. "For example, Henry Kissinger wears horn-rim glasses too small for his face. I'd like to see him in a pair of wire frames.

"It would make a world of difference for him."

Barbara Walters Pays The Price For Fame

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Barbara Walters, as a member of the "Today" show, has the most interesting and exhausting job of any woman in television.

She meets the world's most fascinating people day in and day out, and pays for it by rolling out of bed at 4:30 every morning.

Separated from husband, Lee Guber, who owns a chain of theaters-in-the-round, Barbara shares her eight-room apartment in the heart of Manhattan with daughter, Jacqueline, 5, a nursemaid and a housekeeper.

Barbara needs all the help she can get. After arising she fixes herself a light breakfast of cereal and coffee and dresses quickly for the five-minute walk to Rockefeller Center where the NBC show originates.

She arrives at the studio at 5:30 a.m. to run through the commercials and major pieces of news of the day and checks up on unexpected interviews for the unrehearsed two-hour show. Thereafter she goes through the grind of hairdressing and makeup. She is ready to go on the air at 7 a.m.

Barbara frets that her wardrobe is repetitious because the clothes are her own. But she is more comfortable in her own things and dresses as unspectacularly as possible to avoid distracting viewers from her guests and her own facial reactions.

"I'm well dressed," Barbara says, "but I'm no fashion leader."

When the show goes off the air at 9 a.m. Barbara immediately prepares for her other daily show, "Not For Women Only," which she tapes at 10:15 twice a week—squeezing all five shows into the two work sessions. Happily the studio is also in Rockefeller Center.

Captain Kangaroo Fan

Barbara then dashes home to arrive by 2 o'clock in the afternoon to spend some time with little Jacqueline who would rather watch "Captain Kangaroo" than her mother's shows.

The apartment is furnished colorfully with a combination of contemporary and traditional furniture. Many of the old pieces are from her parents' apartment, things she swore she would never have in her own home. Now she loves them.

One example is an antique gilded mirror in the dining room. And she treasures her father's collection of curious and ancient clocks. The whole apartment is awash with books, also a hobby of her father's, and a result of hundreds of books sent her by authors who appear on "Today."

When Barbara first joined the show she continued to live what she considered a normal life, going out to dinner and attending parties. It meant getting only three or four hours sleep.

Now she gets to bed at 9:30 as often as possible. But she still goes out three or four nights a week, retiring about midnight.

Barbara says she knows how to cook but does very little in the kitchen because, "I can't pretend to be all things. I don't believe those stories of the working mother who cooks and keeps house without feeling guilty."

On weekends Barbara takes Jacqueline bicycling in Central Park or to the playground or zoo. She is not athletically inclined and has no hobbies except reading.

"It's the most interesting job possible," Barbara concludes. "But no matter what anyone says, you never get used to the hours."

Bridge Player

She Trains To Forget Things

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — There are some who have to train themselves to remember and then there is Rixi Markus, one of the world's great bridge players, who has to train herself to forget.

A woman who can recall 150 deals hand by hand and who needs to be given only the first cards to recite many of the hands in a championship does not, as she says, want to "overburden" her mind.

One day recently the Mrs. Markus her opponents never get to see in competition, a gracious old world hostess radiating easy charm and friendly warmth, took time off from a crowded schedule of tournaments and authorship to discuss her new book, "Common-Sense Bridge" (Random House). She had passed a sleepless night with a toothache but no one would have guessed it.

The new book carries forward Mrs. Markus' belief that tournament or money bridge is a game where the prizes tend to go to those whose play is bold and aggressive and imbued with "killer instinct." "Handle your partner with great care," she says, "be polite to your opponent but show no mercy."

This bold philosophy does not seem to square with the pleasant lady who was a 13-year-old prewar bridge prodigy in Vienna, and she likes to tell about another woman player who, after an informal chat over cocktails, exclaimed: "Your're so nice—away from the bridge tables, I mean."

"A lot of people say things like that," she said, not at all displeased. "When they say they like me socially but are inclined to hate me in competition I always reply that I don't want to be liked at the bridge table. I'm most anxious to make friends in the bridge world but I am more interested in being respected and feared during play. Frankly it gives me a great advantage."

Out of Rut

Mrs. Markus considers "Common-Sense Bridge" a "different" kind of bridge book and one that gets closest to imparting the kind of play that took her to European and world championships. It is aimed at the middle grade player, "the millions who have played for years, have reached a certain standard and gotten stuck. This will help them out of the rut. The average player longs to be a Master. Not everyone can make it but this will help."

Over giant asparagus spears and the first fresh Scottish salmon of the season she was asked what steps she would suggest for improving the play of the ordinary bridge enthusiast.

"Play with players who are better than you are," she said. "Watch the play at first class tables. Play for stakes so high that it will hurt you to lose. If you cannot afford to lose you will watch your step and learn to discipline yourself. Make a special effort not to take risks at the start of play. A game is easier if you start with a few successful boards.

"Learn to count cards. Counting must become automatic. You hold five spades, four hearts, three diamonds and one club; therefore the other players must have the missing eight spades, nine hearts, 10 diamonds and 12 clubs. Listen to the bidding and you will already have some information about the cards held by the other three players. Then one player will become declarer, and his partner's hand will go down after the opening lead.

"Now you can see 13 or 14 more cards so you have only to discover the other 25 or 26. After each subsequent trick two of these cards will be accounted for. If you concentrate on counting and accounting for all these cards—even the small ones—you will be very close to becoming a champion."

Mrs. Markus' photographic memory would be a help and so would the run of luck which she says, thankfully, has been with her a very long time. In addition a knowledge of psychology is helpful. Her proficiency in this field is such that it has been suggested she hypnotizes her opponents.

"I don't really," she said, "but that kind of reputation can be very helpful."

Christmas Cards

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you're looking for a personal and unique Christmas card for relatives and close friends, turn to old family portraits.

Even if the photo of great granddad or grandmother has been damaged and defaced over the years, it can be used in a new photo greeting now available at your local professional photography studio.

You should allow about 10 weeks to have the cards made, mailed and in the hands of your friends. First, select the photo that has the most charm and portrays the family ancestor who'll mean the most to your relatives and friends. You may not wish to send a photo of great-grandmother to everyone on your list, but it might be appreciated by those who've heard about her or are related.

Photo restoration work takes time. Allow from four to five weeks for the restoration. Hardly any photo can be too damaged to use—photographers have been known to restore photos that are cracked, torn or otherwise damaged.

These custom-designed, slim-line cards have the photo on top and a printed message with room for your signature on the bottom. Or, you may prefer the more traditional and elegant Kodak Holiday Love greeting folders with "windows" into which the photo is slipped.

Allow about three weeks for the Christmas cards to be produced, especially if you've chosen the custom Kodak Special Holiday style. Then plan to mail no later than Dec. 1 if you want to beat the postal rush.

Restored photos are only one of several possibilities for a personal Christmas greeting card. If you make arrangements now, you'll still have time to have a new, color portrait taken by your local photographer to be used in holiday greetings this year. Again, allow four to five weeks to make the appointment and have the finished photos printed. Or, if you've had a portrait taken recently, your photographer can make the cards from the negative he has on file.

Zanzibar

DAR ES SALAAM (UPI) — Zanzibar, fabled island of cloves and more lately Africa's Cuba, is emerging from one of its most painful periods in history.

A bloody coup in 1964 overthrew the centuries-old Arab oligarchy only to substitute an even more intimidating regime which condoned imprisonment without trial, torture and murder, suppression of dissent and enforced marriages.

The new ruler, Sheikh Karume, a former sailor, died as violently as he had lived—gunned down in April, 1972, as he played cards with friends.

His successors have loyally parroted the same revolutionary Cuban-style slogans but, under the more pragmatic leadership of Aboud Jumbe, they have moderated some of his excesses.

Jumbe, a former teacher trained at Uganda's once prestigous Makerere University, has improved ties with the mainland, released political prisoners, allowed the importation of long-denied foreign goods, eased the island's chronic food shortage and made life generally easier for Zanzibar's 350,000 population.

Which is not to say the island has become a democracy overnight.

Signs Of Progress

Tight-fitting dresses, see-through blouses, tight or bell-bottomed trousers, makeup, long hair and wigs are all banned on penalty of life sentences for repeated offenders.

Inspections are mounted regularly to ensure citizens conform to the ruling revolutionary council's dictates.

In February, three girls of Iranian origin fled the island in a tiny boat after being forced in 1970 to marry leading members of the revolutionary council.

Swan Island

By
BYRON B. BALFOUR

GREAT SWAN ISLAND, Swan Islands (UPI) — Great Swan Island, which gets its name because it is bigger than Little Swan Island, is less than two miles long, is not near anything, has no natural resources and is visited twice a month by a supply plane from Grand Cayman.

But the two-island group, 400 miles southwest of Cuba, has been so important it has been subject to years of litigation over its ownership, a dispute which was finally solved last fall when the U.S. government conceded a claim by Honduras to possession.

The islands, with a combined area of three square miles and a population of less than 50, house a U.S. National Weather Service station, manned by six Americans. When Honduras took possession, it had to agree to let the weather station remain.

The United States resisted the Honduras claim during the early 1960s, because the U.S. government had put the tiny outpost, used in the early 17th century as a base by a pirate named John Swan, to another use.

CIA Monitoring

The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) set up a listening and broadcasting station to monitor Cuba in 1960, one year after Fidel Castro took power, and operated there until after the Bay of Pigs invasion in April, 1961.

Before the U.S. government could agree to turn the two little islands over to Honduras, which had first put forth its claim in the 1920s, it had to clear its title against Smith's claim.

Smith argued that the two islands had been turned over to the Swan Islands Commercial Co., which is family owned, several years ago by another American, who had taken possession of the islands in 1893.

The U.S. government dated its own claim from 1856, and a U.S. federal court finally ruled in 1970 in favor of the government claim.

During the years when the Swan islands Commercial Co. operated on the islands, it leased portions to several U.S. interests, including the United Fruit Co., Tropical Fruit and a group calling itself Tropical Radio. All are gone now.

The Lowdown On New Books

All the latest books will be discussed by Virginia A. Tashjian, librarian of Newton, when she gives a Book Review program Tuesday morning, Oct. 16, at the Newton Highlands Congregational Church, Newton Highlands, under the auspices of Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Coffee will be served at 10 a.m. and Mrs. Tashjian will speak at 10:30 a.m.

A graduate of Simmons College (B.S. and M.L.S.), she has been associated with the Newton Free Library since 1943, has been visiting lecturer at Harvard, Boston College, and other local colleges, and is presently assistant professor at Bridgewater and Framingham State Colleges. In addition she has spoken before many organizations.

Mrs. Tashjian is a writer herself, having produced four books, with another scheduled for publication in the spring of 1974. Her interests are varied — symphony and opera, theatre, and gardening; and she has traveled extensively in Europe, Mexico, Canada, and the United States.

Proceeds from her lecture will go to the Scholarship Fund of Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter, DAR. Money from this fund is used for students at Hillside School for Boys, Marlborough, one of the schools partially supported by the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. The school, located on a farm, is also a home for students, boys whose parents are unable to care for them because of the death of a father or mother, divorce, or separation. Excellent training in all aspects of farming and handicrafts, as well as a good academic program, make Hillside an outstanding educational institution.

In charge of arrangements for Mrs. Tashjian's program are Mrs. Joseph P. Maloney, regent of Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter, and Mrs. William A. Hurley, vice regent of the chapter. Mrs. Leslie W. Irwin and Mrs. David Hamblen, III, are hostesses for the coffee hour.

Tickets may be obtained from any member of the chapter, or may be purchased at the door.

Membership in the American Association of Retired Persons is open to anyone 55 or over. New members always welcome. At the annual meeting, the following officers were elected for the coming year:

Service Center Offers Arts And Crafts For All

The Newton Community Service Centers have announced its fall Creative Arts Program under the direction of Mrs. Judy Kelleher. There will be classes for adults as well as pre-school and elementary aged children.

The parents and tots classes — a combination of creative art, music, and movement for children aged two to five, will be held on Monday or Thursday morning and Thursday afternoon. Instructors will be Bea Lewis, Pegg Wolman and Dori Wientrub.

A nursery arts class, with experiences similar to parents and tots but without the parent, for children aged three to five, will be held on Monday afternoon with Joan Witt as instructor.

Kindergarten discoveries classes will be on Tuesday afternoon. This is a refreshing one and one-half hour program from 1:30 to 3 p.m. for kindergarteners that combines creative art with the aid of stories, films and games for an exciting way for kids to learn. Instructors will be Joanne Holland and Peggy Wolman.

Painting with acrylics, for children eight years and up will be held on Tuesday afternoon with Marcia Antrobus as instructor.

The adult media workshop will be held on Tuesday mornings from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Guest artists and craftsmen will explore, demonstrate and assist others in areas of silk screening, mosaics, mono printing, basic design and weaving. No previous experience is required. Instructors will be Bea Lewis, Allysia Pazain, Ann Stowell and Eleanor Rubin.

The elementary workshop will be held on Thursday afternoons for one and one-half hours for kids who love art and want lots of time to work. In the workshop the child can work at his own pace and choose the materials that appeal to him. (e.g. woodworking, painting, clay, weaving, etc.) The children may work in groups or alone as they desire. Enroll early. Classes fill fast, with Joanne Holland as instructor.

All classes will be held at the Community Center building, 429 Cherry St., West Newton. All classes are ten sessions and begin the week of Oct. 15. For more information, call 969-5906 or come in and register.

Newest Venture Spells Women Helping Women

A group of primarily Newton women have banded together to help themselves and other women develop their potential by assessing their own collective resoources and needs.

Named the Women's Cooperative, the group is dedicated to the proposition that all women are created equal and it values the involvement of all members both new and old.

One of the group's goals is to validate the individual woman's efforts to grow and change through such activities as support groups and task forces.

"We feel," stated Fern Marx, a member of the cooperative, "that one of our primary purposes is to help women overcome their isolation from other women and their alienation from society."

The cooperative is presently involved in searching for a center in order to establish a place where women can feel comfortable, joining with other women in developing programs to meet their specific needs.

At its fall meeting earlier in the month, the cooperative gave a great deal of attention to the subjects of isolation, child care needs, alternative counseling, powerlessness and a reevaluation of women's roles.

The cooperative members also discussed the need for a permanent site to house its counseling serivces child care facilities, free library, drop-in-center, and job resource service. Anyone with information or interested in helping find a site may contact Linda Beasley at 332-2932.

At a later meeting this month, the cooperative continued its discussion of a need for child care facilities in Newton, and have requested the services of any interested women who may contact Linda Beasley at 332-2932.

At a later meeting this month, the cooperative continued its discussion of a need for child care facilities in Newton, and have requested the services of any interested women who may contact Marsha Freed at 965-3987.

"Here Are Women" will be presented by the Women's Cooperative on Oct. 10 at 8 p.m. in the Newton Centre First Baptist Church. Donation is $1.

Everyone is invited to attend this program of women's songs performed by Joan Minkoff, Sara Benson, and Carol Johnson. Folk music will also be performed by Karen Kormar.

Feminist books and records will also be on sale.

Noted Feminist Artist Exhibited In Wellesley

The Wellesley College Museum will hold a major exhibition of paintings by Lilly Martin Spencer (1822-1902), Sept. 28 through Nov. 25 in the Main gallery of the Wellesley College Museum in the Jewett Arts Center.

The exhibition, initiated by the National Collection of Fine Arts in Washington, D.C., bring together for the first time much of the work of this successful artist who, more than any other American artist of her time, depicted the domestic life of the Victorian age from a woman's perspective.

Ironically, she supported her entire family—a husband and eight surviving children—through her work while her husband assumed many of the duties of the household and care of their children.

A determined painter who refused professional training, Lilly Martin Spencer produced exuberant and vivid pictures of Victorian domestic life. Many of her works became the basis for lithographs sold widely in the United States and Europe. These are also represented in the exhibition along with her most important paintings and drawings.

The exhibition represents a serious attempt to examine the career of a successful woman artist who is unknown to most people today and to look at her accomplishments in the context of her culture.

The exhibit of her work was shown first at the National Collection of Fine Arts and the only other showing in the country will be at the Wellesley College Museum.

Gallery hours for the exhibition are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday; 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday; and 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. A catalogue on Lilly Martin Spencer will be available at the exhibition.

Ward 8 Hands Mann Preliminary

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Incumbent Mayor Theodore Mann got off to an impressive head start Tuesday in his race against three-time candidate William Carmen for the mayoralty of Newton.

In the first preliminary election ever held in Newton, Mann got 6,937 votes, 54 per cent of the total of 12,817.

Carmen's 5,493 votes were 43 per cent of the total.

Elliott Berry, the third candidate, received 339 votes.

In the only alderman-at-large preliminary contest, the four top vote-getters citywide for the two posts in Ward 7 were incumbent Jason Sacks, 4,649 votes; Mark White, 3,447; Melvin Norris, 3,430; and Dominic Taglienti, 2,690. Alice Wilson, with 2,563, and Henri Pelletier, with 1,872, are out of contention.

The two incumbent ward aldermen under siege both came through victors in the preliminary. In Ward 3, Richard Bullwinkle received more than twice as many votes as Paul Daley, whom he will face in the Nov. 6 regular election.

Richard McGrath, Ward 4 alderman, will run against Leonard Frisoli, Jr., in November. McGrath far outdistanced his two opponents in the preliminary.

Carmen's strength lay in north-side Wards 1, 2, and 3, with Ward 1 giving him his only significant margin. There Carmen received a plurality of almost 600 votes.

In Wards 2 and 3 Carmen's plurality was less than 100 votes in each.

As in the last mayoral election, also pitting Mann and Carmen against each other, Mann received an overwhelming vote in his home ward, Ward 8 (Oak Hill), which this time gave him a plurality of more than 1,100 votes.

A Carmen aide, joking with Alderman Alan Barkin, the mayor's brother-in-law, at City Hall as the results came in, said, "If we could have put Ward 8 over in Needham, we'd have won the election."

Barkin retorted, "How about putting Ward 1 in Watertown?"

At a gathering of family and supporters at the Sidney Hill Country Club after the results were known, Mayor Mann decried the injection of partisanship into the preliminary, calling it a "violation of the charter," which ruled Newton's elections to be on a non-partisan basis.

Mann said he felt that playing up the two parties had confused many people, who then thought they had to be registered in one party or the other to be able to vote.

The mayor called the preliminary "a people's election."

"This administration represents all parties," Mann said.

"The other side had all the political powerhouses from outside," Mann said, "while we ran a strictly local campaign."

In the next few weeks Mann said he and his supporters will intensify their efforts to gain Newton's first four-year mayoral term, but will continue "to give city business first priority."

At Carmen's house, where wellwishers, workers, and family were gathered to hear the results, the mood was dejected but not despairing.

Carmen, who appeared weary, promised to work twice as hard during the next month, saying, "It's obvious we have a lot of work to do in Ward 8."

Sparkling October sunshine apparently brought out more voters than the 15 to 20 per cent previously

Bushes Cleared At Eliot Station

"Selective clearing" along the 82-foot-wide right-of-way has diminished the country feeling somewhat.

According to senior project manager Al Pacelli, trees and bushes are being cleared totally only from 25 feet each way from the center of the tracks, and only when absolutely necessary is vegetation being removed in the outer 16-foot strips.

Clearing is necessary to keep tree branches away from the overhead power lines and to allow space beside the tracks for a drainage ditch to carry water away from the roadbed.

The MBTA has altered its previously announced plan of fencing along the entire right-of-way and now intends to fence only where there is a safety hazard.

Homeowners will have the option of leaving their own fences or having the MBTA erect a fence, when existing fence lines are correct.

MBTA engineers have found several instances of encroachment on MBTA land from abutting property. In one case a tool shed has been found to be almost 12 feet over on MBTA property.

Pacelli is notifying the MBTA legal department of all such encroachment.

Developer Sues Board

By CYNTHIA BLACK

An unofficial aldermanic policy of requiring apartment developers to set aside units for the Newton Housing Authority is going to be challenged in court.

Weston Realty Trust, developers of 54 units of garden apartments at 2326 Commonwealth Ave., Auburndale, filed suit Tuesday asking for a court ruling on the policy.

A condition that the developer must hire a private rubbish collector for the new apartments will also be challenged in the suit.

The Board of Aldermen voted in September to give Weston Realty Trust permission to build garden apartments on the site, provided developer Michael Iodice set aside three two-bedroom and two one-bedroom units for use as subsidized housing by the Housing Authority.

Attorneys for the developer contend that the policy is a "confiscatory taking of property without due process of law."

Iodice's attorneys, in the suit against the city, contend that the policy violates the United States and Massachusetts constitutions and also alleges violations of the state Zoning Enabling Act.

The suit was filed in Middlesex Superior Court.

On private rubbish collection, the developer stated that "because this is not a general requirement for other owners either of residential buildings or apartment houses in Newton, we are asking the court to determine if it is discriminatory to impose this condition on us."

The aldermanic Land Use Committee, first to receive and deliberate developer petitions, has tended toward requiring private collections in the last year.

According to committee chairman Ald. Alan Barkin, the policy of setting aside apartment units to the Newton Housing Authority dates back to 1969 when the city was selling city-owned land to a developer and made this a condition of the sale.

Barkin said the Housing Authority has gotten a negligible number of apartments from the policy.

The Board of Aldermen is also currently considering making its unofficial policy official by amending the city zoning ordinances to stipulate that a portion of all new apartment construction be provided to the Newton Housing Authority. A public hearing on the matter was held Oct. 1.

Since the unofficial policy has been in effect, several disgruntled developers have suggested they might institute a court challenge of the rule.

Iodice is the first to follow through.

City Solicitor Howard Levine said Wednesday that Newton will file a reply to the suit and will contest it in court.

Waste Committee Picks Consultant

Camp Dresser & McKee were chosen unanimously by the Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal District Committee last week as consultants for the district.

Working against a deadline stated in the two-city agreement as Dec. 31, 1973, for completion of a comprehensive study of the regional needs and appropriate methods for solid-waste disposal, the firm will present detailed plans this week on how to accomplish its work.

"The "request for proposal" drawn up by the committee was divided into required and optional tasks, the former to include recommendations for 1½ year and 5 year processing (volume reduction) and disposal methods.

Optional tasks included a review of both cities' collection operations and a study of the possibilities of other cities and towns joining with Newton and Waltham in an expanded disposal region.

Cost estimates will be provided on required recommendations, and any recommendation is to be based on compliance by Dec. 31, 1974.

The report of the district committee is to be submitted to the mayors of each city by Jan. 31, 1974, who must submit it to the legislative bodies of the cities by Feb. 28.

By May 1, the cities must have given final approval if the Newton-Waltham district is to become operational.

District Director Philip Pattison and member Edward Delaney, Waltham's director of public works, often during the meeting referred to the study to be supplied by the consultant as one that should take several months, casting doubt on whether the district will be able to meet its deadline.

The Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal District was established in July under a $112,500 grant from the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The purpose of the district is to determine whether a joint disposal district is feasible, and if it is, what is the best method of disposal.

Community Schools Open Doors To Neighborhood Togetherness

The Newton Community Schools Program will commence its second year of operation next week and interested citizens are urged to contact their neighborhood school for the all important registration dates.

The program is conducted in at least 20 of Newton's elementary schools, and although partially financed by the school committee, it is managed separately on a strictly volunteer basis.

The Angier School, for example, offers to all citizens within its area of jurisdiction an eight week term with a variety of courses, workshops, and informal drop-in centers.

The voluntary committee which has devised this fall's schedule and offerings for the Angier School neighborhood include William Meyer, coordinator; Phyllis Wishnie, treasurer, and committee staffers Nadine Krasnow, Bernice Selib, Patsy Cibella, Martha Akagi and Dr. Kuna Abroms.

Together, the committee has come up with a full week's schedule including a puppetry workshop, a needlepoint and stitchery course, a yoga course, and a series of lessons on indoor gardening.

The puppetry workshop will be held on Wednesday afternoons from 1:30 to 3:30 and is open to all age groups. The instructors, Adrian Lowenthal and Martha Akagi, have taught the course in many schools and community centers.

The needlepoint, yoga, and indoor gardening courses will also be offered on Tuesdays from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. as will a "Mixed Media for Pre-Schoolers" class.

The latter is designed to introduce youngsters, age two through five, to the various art and craft media through projects, stories, music and play groups. Mothers are also invited to join in the classes.

On Wednesdays at 9 a.m. the Angier School will conduct the "Waban Pre-School Drop-In Center." The center is a cooperative venture where mothers and their children can spend meaningful time with other mothers and children. Grandparents are also invited to come to the drop-in center.

On Wednesday evenings from 7 to 9 residents of the Angier School district will have an opportunity to take part in family recreation nights, folk dancing, beginner's bridge, a course on sharpening verbal skills and another on "Understanding Common Illnesses."

Perhaps the most interesting course offered at Angier on Thusdays from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. is one entitled "Bachelor Survival."

The course is principally geared to high school seniors and will attempt to introduce them to the intricacies of apartment renting, food shopping, cooking, managing money and operating on a "shoestring." All ages are however, invited to participate.

A teenage drop-in center is also open on Thursday evenings and is coordinated by Joanne Fisher, a former group leader,

SCHOOLS — (See Page 11)

Administrators Stay In Stearns

Against the recommendation of Public Buildings Commissioner Emil Larson, the School Committee voted last week 4-3 to continue the school administration in the old Stearns School until the renovation of the new headquarters is complete.

Larson reported a cost of $9,000 for conversion of one furnace in Stearns plus about $2,000 more for fuel oil for the 1973-74 heating season.

The firing of the old coal-burning furnaces at Stearns has been prohibited by the state, but Larson has had them fired.

He said last week at a joint meeting of the aldermanic Education Committee and the School Committee that he has told "the people in Boston" the problem will be resolved by Nov. 15.

Conversion of one of the two furnaces, which date from 1907, can be done by Nov. 1, Larson said, and will be much cheaper and faster than rental of temporary heating equipment.

The heat will be sufficient except for extremely cold days, he said.

School Committee members Franklin Frazier, Alvin Mandell, and Manuel Beckwith voted to move immediately to the new headquarters in the old F.A. Day Junior High School. Dorothy Reichard, Eleanor Rosenblum, Richard Douglas, and Herbert Regal were opposed.

Several members felt that to move now to the Day headquarters would mean having to move twice, once now and once when renovation is complete, and would add to the cost of the renovation.

The expense of renovation was very much on everybody's mind.

School Superintendent Aaron Fink reported that the architect's estimate for the necessary work came to $609,000, more than the $500,000 absolute limit imposed by the Board of Alderman but assured those present that the architect

Suggest Neighborhood Meetings On Recreation Improvement Plans

Feeling that the Recreation Commission capital improvements program for the next five years "may not be in touch with what the people want," the City Planning Committee will request that the commission hold a meeting with all interested groups in each ward before submitting any future requests for funding of programs.

Chairman of the aldermanic City Planning Committee David Jackson, made the suggestion at the committee's last meeting, after hearing criticism of Recreation Commission priorities from several members.

Alderman Edward Uehlein commented," A few who attend these meetings are trying to say what the people in the wards want."

"I can tell you what the people in Ward 5 around Angier School want more than anything–lights for the tennis courts," Uehlein, who is Ward 5 alderman, said.

Alderman Edward Richmond complained that too much emphasis is being given "the major sports," football and baseball, and not enough to tennis, and Alderman Harry Crosby questioned the whole process leading up to Recreation Commission recommendations for capital improvements.

In line with discussion about expansion and improvement of Crystal Lake swimming facilities, Helen Heyn of the Conservation Commission reported that she had been approached by an abutter to the city-owned portion of the lakefront to find out how to go about offering first option to the city for purchase.

The committee resolved to ask the City Solicitor to investigate the possibility of obtaining first option to buy both private properties near the bathhouse and beach.

Acquisition of these properties would give to the city ownership of a large segment of lakefront, joining the Crystal Lake bathhouse area with the small park on Lake avenue.

In other action the City Planning Committee voted 5-0 to accept the Conservation Commission $2 million land-acquisition plan for inclusion in the capital improvement program, and to discuss the Recreation Commission plan further.

Also approved, 4-0, was the addition of $300,000 per year to the capital improvement program for the acquisition of land aside from conservation land.

A resolution will be prepared for the Board of Aldermen in favor of the use of the money to acquire at least 10 acres of land annually.

All recommendations of the City Planning Committee concerning the capital improvements program must be approved by the Board of Aldermen.

Pines Applauds Consumer Law

Representative Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) a long time consumer advocate, praised the Consumer Council on its adoption this week of new regulations on unit pricing.

In her comments in support of the new regulations issued under chapter 885 of the Acts of 1970, entitled "The Massachusetts Unit Pricing Law," Rep. Pines stated: "These new regulations are of tremendous importance to the consumer. Givin our inflationary economy and the sky rocketing costs of food and groceries, it is greatly to the consumers benefit to employ unit pricing I whole heartedly present unit price labels are difficult to find and almost impossible to read. Requiring retailers to use a standard eye catching color, and clear, unbroken numerals rather than the presently employed astericks and broken numberals will assist consumers to take full advantage of unit pricing. Including unit prices in advertising, especially in newspaper ads, will enable the shopper to "comparison shop" even before going to the supermarket. As one who has personally experienced utter frustration in trying to utilize unit pricing Iwhole heartedly support the new regulations."

Some of the more substantive changes in the regulations were cited by Representative Pines.

The new regulations will require retailers to: 1. Print the price per measure in clearly legible uninterrupted figures.

Broken figures such as those composed of astericks, dashes or dots are prohibited. 2. Use one of three shades of bright orange pre-approved by the Consumers' Council as the background for the unit price. 3. Include the unit price of each item advertised, including television and radio ads as well as newspaper or other printed or written advertisements. 4. Unit price each category of commondities only in the unit of measure designated by the Council. 5. Obtain approval of the label from the Council. 6. Add frozen foods, dairy products, seasoning and spices, powdered mixes, starches and bleaches, and other items to those packaged commondities which are presently regulated.

Pursuant to the statute, public hearings were held prior to the issuance of these regulations by the Consumers' Council on Sept. 13 at which time all interested parties had the opportunity to file written comments and testify at the hearing.

Representative Pines stated: "The Massachusetts Unit Pricing Law was the first of its kind in the United States and is presently the basis for a number of other states' "truth - in - pricing" statutes. I believe that these new regulations will greatly benefit the consumer and thereby make this law more effective."

Newton In Study

Newton will participate in a Metropolitan Area Planning Council study to povide a metrofire communications program for Greater Boston, Mayor Theodore D. Mann has announced.

The study, funded by a $200,000 grant to the MAPC from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, will serve as a model for the development of a prototype inter-community fire communication system which could be implemented nationwide.

MAPC staff members and the project consultant, Urban Systems Research and Engineering, Inc., have initiated project procedures with Newton Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr. The subregional program, involving a total of 12 communities, is scheduled to extend through June 1974.

The Metropolitan Area Planning Council is the official regional planning agency for the 101 communities of Greater Boston.

Promoting Bicycle Racks

Private groups and business in Newton are being urged to establish bicycle racks and lockers on their property for the convenience of their members and employees and the general bicycle-riding public.

A resolution passed by the Board of Aldermen in June encourages all private groups, including churches and temples, civic and improvement associations, businesses, and others to provide bicycle facilities in recognition of the growing use of the bicycle as a serious form of transportation.

The resolution also pointed out that noise, air pollution, traffic and parking congestion, and consumption of petroleum resources are decreased by the use of bicycles instead of cars.

The resolution was offered by Alderman Edward Richmond.

TNT Seeks Volunteers

T-N-T means Teenagers Need Tutors at Day Jr. High, Newtonville, where the adult volunteer tutor program kicks off its sixth year on Tuesday, Oct. 16.

Day Principal Ed Martin and reading teacher Barbara G. Michaels, leader of the volunteer program, invite Newton area adults to join other volunteers who have found fulfillment, and in some cases, new careers, through the program.

Group workshops as well as individually planned sessions are scheduled to give new tutors a framework in which to organize their own abilities. Resources of Day Jr. High will also be explored at the workshops. Emphasis will be on doing at the sessions, which begin on Tuesday, Oct. 15, from 11 am. to 12:30 p.m.

During the course of the workshops the tutors will be matched with individual students who need help with reading and math. Tutors and students together may read, take field trips, do puzzles, cook or bake, type, or simply do homework.

Tutors over the past four years, who have enabled scores of Day Jr. High students to improve their work, have included able high-school students, businessmen, mothers, and graduate students of all ages.

Volunteers who want to explore tutor - workshop possibilities should telephone the school (244-3670) and leave their names during school hours for Ms. Barbara Michaels.

Testing Finds Children With Possible Lead Poison Effects

Nine out of 142 Newton children tested in the first of a series of community-wide lead screening programs had sufficiently high lead levels to need retest.

This is almost 7 percent of children aged one to six screened in Newton Upper Falls on Sept. 25 at the Emerson School.

When retest is indicated, parents are contacted promptly by Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Child Care Service to bring their child there for retest. This is a double check.

There is a 10 percent chance that the machinery processing the test registered a false positive. On the other hand, if the retest matches the initial finding, steps must be taken—treatment if the level is that high; an effort to find out where the child is getting the paint and to keep him from it; and retesting every three months to be sure the level does not continue to go up.

The second community screening is scheduled for the Angier School, 1697 Beacon st., Waban, on Tuesday, Oct. 16 from 9 a.m. to noon.

R.S.V.P. volunteers will be calling all Waban parents of children in the designated aged one to six who is not contacted, should call R.S.V.P. at 969-5906 to arrange for the free testing.

Technicians from Newton-Wellesley Hospital's pathology laboratories perform the simple finger prick test. The innovative city-wide testing is a joint project of the Hospital's Comprehensive Child Care Service, the Newton Community Service Center's R.S.V.P. program and the Newton Health Department. Blood samples are processed free of charge in the state's lead poisoning detection laboratory.

Screening sessions are now scheduled for every two weeks, with Oct. 30 set as the date for Newton Highlands. Following the Newton screening, the program will move to Wellesley for a community-wide screening of children aged one to six there.

Buses Tour Open Spaces

Each trip will take about two hours and will take place during the height of the fall foliage season when the river will be the most beautiful.

A few of the stops will include the remainder of the Norumbega land, approximately 14 acres remaining after construction of the Marriott Motor Hotel and the MDC Riverside Recreation Land from which one can view the Gilligan parcel on the opposite bank.

Also viewed will be the Williams Street site currently being studied by the Newton Conservation Commission under a Ford Foundation grant and the novitiate land in Newton Highlands.

Newton Landscape Artist Teaches Basic Course

Members of the general public who would like to enter the landscaping industry, or who would like to learn the basic principles of landscape design and construction can make a positive start in this direction commencing Oct. 15, when architect Tim Coppola, a Newton resident, will begin teaching a course in "The Principles of Landscape, Design and Construction."

This course will be held Monday evenings for six weeks in Koon Auditorium of the Suburban Experiment Station of the University of Massachusetts in Waltham.

While the course is intended primarily for people in the Industry, the Associated Landscape Contractors of Massachusetts who are sponsoring the school, believe it is important to the objective of keeping America beautiful for future generations to make it possible for new persons to find out if they are qualified to come into the field.

Hence a limited number of such students will be accepted in Tim Coppola's course, which will teach students good landscape design, how to go about solving design problems, the principles of design, the basic design elements and design principles for residential, commercial and park landscaping.

Coppola, who resides at 1280 Commonwealth Ave. in Newton with his family, is a member of the city of Newton's Beautification Commission. He is also associated with Sasaki, Dawson, DeMay Associates, Watertown, one of the world's largest architectural organizations.

Armed Men Net Drug Haul

Newton Police are continuing to investigate the armed robbery of an Auburndale pharmacy in which three men made off with $70 in cash and an undetermined amount of narcotics.

The trio two holding revolvers and the third a knife, forced the pharmacist-owner and a clerk at Keyes Pharmacy, 349 Auburn St., Auburndale, to lie on the floor about 8 p.m. on Monday, investigating officers revealed.

They then proceeded to empty the cash drawer and fill a brown paper bag with cocaine, dilaudid, morphine and codeine, police said.

Originally fleeing on foot, police theorized the three men then entered an automobile and sped off in the direction of Commonwealth Avenue.

The pharmacist and clerk both described the men as young, with long hair and wearing blue denim jackets, a police spokesman said.

Auburndale Residents Discuss Traffic Lights

Alderman David Jackson will speak on changes in traffic lights at the intersection of Lexington St. and Commonwealth Ave., Auburndale, at a meeting of the Auburndale Community Association, Oct. 17, 7:30 p.m. at the Auburndale branch library.

Judicial Equality?

Who is more dangerous, a man who points a gun at a store clerk and threatens to blow his head off if the cash register isn't opened, or a man who manages a movie theater showing films of questionable social and legal merit?

Apparently, at least if last week's Superior Court ruling is an indicator, the manager of the theater is the man from which society has the most to fear.

Last week, in Boston, the manager of a theater was sentenced to 2½ years in Walpole for showing the film, "The Devil in Miss Jones." In addition, the corporation for which the gentleman works was fined $10,000.

Where is the equality?

Granted many people feel obscenity is a real danger to our society, but we are just as aware of other situations where people who have either committed violent crimes against other people, or who have threatened such action, have not been handled by the courts in the same manner.

Ask any veteran police officer in Norwood, Dedham, Newton, or any local community and the story will be the same. In each officer's background is a situation where life and death were at the mercy of a man holding a weapon. It could have been a woman with a knife, a father with a shotgun, or a young man in a drug store who, while in the midst of an armed robbery, is interrupted by a policeman responding to a silent alarm.

All of the incidents mentioned above have happened with a disturbing regularity and often the incidents, because they have become rather common place, and accepted, have not received the publicity which would normally call the public's attention to such happenings.

But most alarming has been the response of the courts to these incidents. Probation, a form of mild wrist slap has been more often the rule than the exception. Suspended sentences, a short term in the house of correction, or an equally short term in the prison has left law enforcement personnel questioning their value in a society which seems to accept death and threats of death as common place.

So it is with that background that the 2½ year prison term given to the manager of the Boston theater is considered. How can there be any comparison? What has happened to a value system which places a higher premium on the alleged offenses against our society through the voluntary viewing of a film considered by some to be obscene and by others acceptable?

How can a man who until he was arrested was operating a private business within the confines of the law suddenly find himself in prison for 2½ years? How can a policeman continue to perform his job when the man who pointed a shotgun at his chest is still walking the streets.

There is something wrong here and equality before the law may have taken another beating from a court in Boston.

Newspaper Week

Because Oct. 7 - 13 is proclaimed as Newspaper Week throughout the publishing industry there is the strong temptation to write a pat-on-the-back editorial about this medium as an authoritative source for news and information of local affairs.

Editors can compose glib sounding paragraphs about the diggings that blew the recent Watergate cover or wire tapping scandals of a few years back. This, they explain, is the business of which we are an intimate part. But isn't the excellent digging and professional reporting the kind of newspaper work that the public should expect from the only commercial enterprises in the nation that enjoy specific protection and encouragement under the Constitution?

We think the public's right includes good newspapering. It is something that should be taken for granted. Let someone else blow the horn on that note.

We want to take prominent part in this Newspaper Week by giving due recognition to the boys and girls throughout the wide circulation area of Transcript Newspapers who make this paper accessible and dependable for you the readers.

There is a lot said — many times too much too often — about youngsters who are too lazy or could care less about doing their fair share as part of a family. In some households this means getting a small job and earning enough for those thousand and one "must" items that just about every youngster would like to have at one time or another.

But no one can tell that lazy story to us. We wouldn't believe it even if they tried.

Last month Transcript Newspapers announced that it will soon begin publishing The Daily Transcript, a new daily newspaper for Dedham, Needham, Norwood and Westwood. Since that time the circulation department of this company has received hundreds of calls from 12 to 14 year old boys and girls who want to join the carrier force of the Daily Transcript which will be published beginning November 5th.

Without these enthusiastic young independent businessmen there would be no new newspaper. Is it any wonder then that we credit these youngsters? Their enthusiasm as a group equals that of any other faction that is a driving force in the birth of the new newspaper. Lazy? Don't tell that to our switchboard or circulation director.

It behoves all us — the writers and the readers — to make special note of many of the unsung heroes that make it all possible, the carriers at the bottom of the management ladder on whose willingness, service and business sense rests the entire newspaper industry.

By LEN BATEMEN

Sometime after the turn of the 21st Century, my wife and I will become the sole owners of what is now a brand new home in a small town some 20 miles southwest of Boston.

Actually the 30-year wait, complete with principal, interest and property taxes, will not be half as bad as the one day it took Tuesday to pass papers on our little piece of the American Dream.

To begin with, I killed a chicken.

While hustling to the attorney's office in downtown Boston, I inadvertently ran over our new neighborhood's chief alarm clock.

Now, originally coming from the asphalt jungle of a rather large and congested city, you would think I could be forgiven just this once. After all the only poultry I ever ran into was at Colonel Sanders.

How was I supposed to know that errant birds of the edible variety are commonplace on the country lanes of our rural communities? Now in addition to a first mortgage payment, I have to live in dread of vigilante farmers complete with white sheets and burning feathers.

But that was only the beginning.

Upon our arrival at the bank office, we were told we would have to wait for the grand entrance of our broker. Not having seen the individual since greasing his palm with a down payment, I knew immediately we should have brought enough food to withstand a siege equal to that of Leningrad.

I was right of course. After 45 minutes, it was decided by the banking powers that be to proceed without the missing link, and it was then my poor wife and I became poorer.

A not of warning to any erstwhile home buyers, never believe your broker when he tells you how much money it will take to close on a mortgage.

Now I know why ours never showed up at the bank. I might just form my own white sheet gang and burn paper promises on his front lawn.

My wife is poor, of course, not because she married me, or because of the money we left in a Boston bank, but because she developed a bad virus two hours before the big chicken hunt.

She was literally on the verge of passing out while passing papers and cannot remember just exactly what she signed.

Neither can I.

Several years ago, while on an Army firing range, I developed a bad habit. Whenever it was my turn to pull that trigger I always closed my eyes.

For some strange reason, that habit of many years ago appeared again while the lawyer pushed papers in front of me.

Speaking of triggers, you will not believe what happened next.

Upon exiting the bank on Washington street, one of several score of policemen milling about informed us that a sniper was perched on the very same level of the parking garage where yours truly had parked the family chariot.

"You don't have to worry about a thing," stated the man in blue, but I knew better.

The Chicken Man gets you wherever you are.

My wife knows that too. After getting her home and tucked into her sickbed, she opened one eye and said, "Where are the insurance policies?"

That was right after she asked, "When do we have to go to the bank to pass papers?"

Polls Indicate Gov. Sargent Has Lost Substantial Support

Recent polls and surveys have indicated that Governor Francis W. Sargent has lost a substantial amount of public support this year and would be defeated by either Boston Mayor Kevin H. White or Attorney General Robert H. Quinn if an election were held today.

Former Brookline Representative Michael Dukakis did not appear as strong as either White or Quinn on the poll returns and would not have defeated Governor Sargent at the time the surveys were made.

However, the last poll was taken before the recent state action stalling for a third time the proposed $266 million Park Plaza development, and it is believed the Governor's political stock has suffered another drop as a result of that strange decision by his acting Commissioner of Community Affairs.

The main factor responsible for Governor Sargent's loss of popularity at the time the straw vote was compiled was the chaos which developed at Walpole State Prison while John O. Boone was serving as State Correction Commissioner, with the murders, riots and wanton destruction of property turning off the voters.

The polls have solidified the intention of Attorney General Quinn to seek the Democratic nomination for Governor and have given him a telling argument for his primary battle with ex-Representative Dukakis, namely that he would have a better chance of defeating Sargent than would Dukakis.

Governor Sargent may be able to rebuild some of his political fences and regain some of his lost popularity and prestige in the year between now and the election in which he will stand for another term. But his position does not appear to be nearly as good today as it was six or eight months ago.

Proposed Law Would Protect Home-Based Insurance Jobs

A bill designed to create a better business climate and increase jobs in Massachusetts is under discussion on Beacon Hill. As has too often been the case with such measures, it will come under attack from some quarters because it would aid home-based life insurance companies with their severe tax problems.

One might well assume that a bill which was sponsored before the House Ways and Means Committee by Democratic House Speaker David M. Bartley, by Republican Deputy Governor William I. Cowin and by the home-based life insurance industry would have clear sailing. Unfortunately, that does not appear to be the case.

Incredible as it may seem, the life insurance companies chartered in Massachusetts are taxed three times as much by the state as those based in Connecticut and four times higher than those in most other states.

This has meant that the 17 companies based here must compete at a disadvantage with the 225-non-Massachusetts companies doing business in the Bay State. It also places a handicap on the Massachusetts companies competing with 1800 life insurance companies in the other 49 states.

The 17 Massachusetts-based companies have been edged out in the bidding for many new large group contracts. Taxes were the difference that caused a firm here to lose out to a New Jersey company in the bidding for the insurance on the state lottery.

Most group contracts with large manufacturers are subject to annual renewal. Portions of that business have been lost to companies outside the state. Each time this happens it means fewer jobs for Massachusetts residents. The number of persons employed by the home-based companies has dropped from 23,000 to 22,000. The decline in employment opportunities almost certainly will continue if the tax bill is not enacted.

Speaker Bartley, Deputy Governor Cowin, other state officials and representatives on the insurance industry worked out the bill to relieve the plight of the home-based insurance companies.

The home-based insurance companies are big taxpayers to the state and the local communities and large employers. For example, projections for the next seven years estimate that between now and 1980 these 17 firms will pay the state $140 million in taxes, the cities and towns $160 million in property taxes and will have poured $1.1 billion in salaries and wages into the Bay State economy.

Those estimates are based on the assumption that the tax reform bill will be adopted and signed into law and that the Massachusetts-based life insurance companies will be able to compete on even terms with out-of-state companies doing business in Massachusetts.

Paradoxically, if the insurance companies do not obtain the tax relief from the burden they presently are carrying, they probably would suffer a continuing loss of business which would result in smaller payments both in taxes and wages.

Strangely, some law-makers don't see the obvious need for revisions of the statutes to allow the home-based insurance companies to stand on an equal tax footing with their competitors.

But 22,000 persons, most of them "little people," now employed by the 17 Massachusetts companies are asking that their jobs be protected by the Legislature from an unfair tax law which has been working against them.

They believe strongly that the bill sponsored by Speaker Bartley and Deputy Governor Cowin should be approved by the Legislature and signed into law by Governor Sargent.

As a matter of logic and fairness, they seems to be right. It would be ridiculous for the state to continue discriminating against life insurance companies which are based in our own Commonwealth.

Quinn Places Public Duties Above Campaign For Governor

One thing which may be said for Robert H. Quinn is that he is not allowing his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor to interfere with his effectiveness as the state's Attorney General.

This may place Quinn at a momentary disadvantage in his fight with former Brookline State Representative Michael S. Dukakis, but it probably will help him from a long-range standpoint as the rank and file of voters come to realize that he is an extremely solid candidate and an excellent Attorney General.

Because of his role as the elected lawyer for the people of Massachusetts, Quinn will not formally announce his candidacy for Governor until early next year although he will follow the example of Dukakis and open a campaign headquarters in downtown Boston before he is officially a candidate.

Dukakis has had a campaign headquarters in the basement of 18 Tremont street, near the Government Centre, since July 1 and at that time reportedly began paying fat salaries to campaign aides despite his non-candidacy.

His top supporters, incidentally, disclose that Dukakis believes it will be necessary for him to raise $1 million in order to achieve election to the $40,000-a-year position as Governor of Massachusetts. That should lift a few eyebrows at Common Cause. But the Dukakis adherents say it's a modest figure.

How much of that amount Dukakis intends to spend on his primary campaign is not clear. Many sound political pundits are doubtful he will get as far as the final election to spend any money on it.

Hunt's 35-Year Sentence Clearly Unconstitutional

Judge John J. Sirica called in five Watergate burglars and informed them he did not intend to give them a maximum sentences — after a national magazine had published an article declaring that the 35-year sentence being served by E. Howard Hunt was clearly unconstitutional and violates the Eighth Amendment which prohibits "cruel and unusual punishment."

The magazine observed that a man caught breaking into Tiffany's at midnight and stuffing his sack with valuables might receive about six months if he were a first offender and otherwise had a good record.

Hunt is now a pathetic case who has received "cruel and unusual punishment." His wife was killed in a Chicago plane crash while carrying Watergate money. His children have been virtual orphans while he has been in prison.

Not only has he suffered a stroke and his health has declined while in prison, but he has not been given proper portection while he has been incarcerated, and he has been attacked and robbed by other inmates.

The fact that Hunt had a long and honorable record of service to the United States as an OSS and CIA operative apparently was given no consideration by Judge Sirica. During his imprisonment he has been humiliated and has been shuttled from one cell to another and one hearing to another, usually in manacles.

Beware Public Utility Law

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Our legislature is at the point of enacting a public utility law that contains features which will make proper regulation of the public utility companies impossible.

I refer to House bill H-7380, sponsored by Representative Aleixo of Taunton. This bill is a substitute for bill H-6529 by the Government Regulations Committee, Representative Ambler of Weymouth, chairman, and the latter bill contains in part bills H-59 and H-3472 providing funds collected from the utility companies to cover costs of interventions by respectively the Consumers' Council and the Attorney General in rate and other cases before the Department of Public Utilities.

In a letter of September 20, 1973, to the President of the Senate and to the Speaker of the House I protested against the enactment of either bill H-6529 or its substitute, bill H-7380, saying that "these bills are entirely too favorable to the utility companies and are grossly unfair to the people."

The bills provide that the utility companies shall pay the costs of interventions by the Consumers' Council and by the Attorney General's office in cases before the D.P.U., provided, however, that the (combined) assessment upon the utility by the Consumers Council and the Attorney General's office "shall not exceed the amount actually expended by each such industry or company in preparation and presentation of its case and any proceedings relative thereto."

Regulation and control of the utilities is the legal duty of the Public Utility Commission. It is usually a costly process, and, historically, the utility companies have consistently opposed it, but in no state more successfully than in Massachusetts. We see that the quoted bills enable the utility companies to hobble the regulatory process before the commission by merely controlling their own expenses, forcing the commission to rule in their favor under duress.

Another bad feature of the bills is that they do not provide for the most important and most costly part of the regulation of the public utility companies, namely the constant control and legal verification of their rate bases, notwithstanding the fact that the controlled base rate is the very basis on which the people granted them the monopoly.

To quote the Supreme Judicial Court: "...the base rate is the amount of investment on which the company is entitled to an opportunity to earn a fair and reasonable return." It is the prudently invested original cost of the plant less depreciation and obsolescence. The checking of the rate base requires the analysis of the books by auditors and the inventory and appraisal and determination of the depreciation and obsolescence of every used and useful item of the plant by highly qualified engineers. If the book figures are correct the accounts for depreciation and obsolescence show what the consumers have repaid to the company through the monthly bills. When the original cost of an item has been fully paid by the consumers the company is not entitled to receive further payments for that item even if it is still in useful operation.

Where there is poor control of utility companies, the experience of investigators has frequently been to find utility company book values to be greatly in excess of the true value of the inventory. Upon this knowledge the enraged populace in the state of New York at the height of the great depression forced the enactment of the now famous N.Y. Public Service Law. The resulting valuation and revaluation of all utility companies in the state produced a reduction of the book values of the utilities amounting to many hundred million dollars, and nearly 300 million dollars in the first decade, 1930-1940.

What has the P. U. Commission in Massachusetts done to come to the truth in the utility rate cases in the last 40 years?

My testimony in the Edison Co. and telephone company rate cases, D.P.U. 17273 and 17441 respectively, where I charged that the Commission never ordered a valuation of these companies, has remainded unchallenged.

When I saw that the new law, Ch. 1093 of the acts of 1971, sponsored by Rep. Ambler and others, had the effect of hobbling the commission, preventing appraisals and proper investigations of the utilities, I filed with the kind help of Senator Irving Fishman a substitute bill, S-481. This bill is actually the N. Y. Public Service Law, only slightly amended by me to fit it into the legal framework of Massachusetts. It has been in successful operation in the state of New York for almost 40 years, and every feature of it has been tested in courts. The adoption of this law will be highly beneficial to the consumers, and will not be a load on the taxpayers. The bill is held in committee, temporarily blocked by the above-mentioned bills, but should now be enacted.

A Citizen Request For Candidate Carmen

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I have one request to make of candidate Carmen. Please don't clutter my mailbox with childish literature. I mean the kind which says I should vote for him because he is a Democrat.

I have labored longer than Mr. Carmen to help make the Democratic party an organization which could serve the American people as an instrument to elect men and women who were able, ethical and progressive. I take it that Mr. Carmen would have me vote for George Wallace because he is also a Democrat, or is it only Carmen the Democrat?

If a voter helps to elect Democratic presidents and congressmen, does he become less a Democrat if he votes for a Republican state auditor, treasurer, secretary of state, district attorney or county commissioner? Which phase of party policy touches the service of state auditor or clerk of court? Where is the party platform which requires me to vote for a Democrat for mayor?

Unlike most vocal supporters of our mayoralty candidates, I have never met or spoken with either Mr. Carmen or Mayor Mann. I am in no way involved in the campaign as such. I am annoyed to be made aware that a candidate would attempt to attract our votes in a non-partisan municipal election because he is a Moose, Mason, Veteran, Democrat or Republican. That is an old-hat cheap political ploy.

The further attempt to detract from the real issues of the campaign by injecting the matter of campaign financing is also insulting. Both the Mayor and Mr. Carmen have been in a position to raise all the money required to conduct a campaign. I would not accuse either man of surrounding himself with Watergate characters. The theory that the appointment of a person to municipal office after making a campaign contribution will give us a wheeler and dealer is unacceptable to me. If I contribute no money to a campaign am I incorruptible and, if so, what happened to non-contributors like Dean, Halderman and the others?

It is time for ambitious men like Mr. Carmen to realize that most Newton residents do not spend their time clipping bond coupons. They are home owners who labor to pay the mortgage and taxes. They are worried about the escalating cost of their children's college education. The last thing they want is a mayor who can devise new ways to spend our tax dollars.

Finally, neither Mayor Mann nor Mr. Carmen can avoid tax increases in the future. A portion of every municipal tax rate is the result of the enactment of legislative programs at the State House. Most economists predict inflation will continue and that is bound to affect our tax rate. We cannot avoid a higher tax bill on many homes after the reappraisal of property values. The Massachusetts Supreme Court has decreed that all property must be assessed at 100 per cent and neither Mr. Mann nor Mr. Carmen can change that. The truth is that economy, consistent with the needs of our residents, is the only practical means of putting the lid on taxes. We can't afford new programs.

Illegal Acts

Editor, Newton Graphic

We deplore the renewed outbreak of hostilities in the Middle East.

It is particularly repugnant that the attack commenced against Israel on its most solemn day of religious observance of prayer and fasting for peace.

Without defensible borders Israel's population centers would now be under attack. Without meaningful negotiations between antagonists there can be no real movement toward lasting peace.

We call upon our fellow Americans to join us in condemning the immoral and illegal acts of the governments of Egypt and Syria who chose to initiate war at the very time that moves toward peace negotiations were commencing.

Same Old Parents

Editor, Newton Graphic:

We may have a new high school, but we have the same old parents with bad driving manners around the high school—or maybe it is the same old bad manners in new parents.

I used to have to wait mornings behind a car that would stop catercorner at Otis and Walnut streets, stopping the line of traffic on Walnut while two or three young things got out of the back seat—on the road side.

Now the scene shifts to Lowell Avenue. This morning, some parent stopped right in the line of traffic on Lowell at Calvin Road to disgorge one, two, three young passengers, oblivious to the long line of traffic behind, people trying to pass, etc.

No pretense was made of pulling up to a curb or turning into a back road and going around the block.

This reminds me of a conversation I had recently with a woman who, in the busy 7:45 a.m. traffic on Washington Street, Newtonville, double-parked right in front of the Post Office, swung her wide door into the third, and only remaining lane, and stuck her leg out.

We are sensitive about this place, having sustained damage to our car from a door flung open while we were in line for a light, so we stopped to remonstrate with her.

She said: "Couldn't you wait a minute while I get out?"

I telephoned her later to ask why she thought traffic should stop on Washington Street while she, double-parked illegally, got out into the traffic lane. Her observations—"I have done it for years. Everybody does it. There are so many discourteous drivers in Massachusetts."

"The architect apparently wanted to get our sympathy to get up to $609,000. His cost on mechanical work is high because he wanted to replace radiation. Larson had somebody else investigate, and new radiators are not necessary," Shuman said.

"has got to get a bid within $500,000."

"The public should understand," Douglas said, "that $380,000 goes for heating, ventilation, and mechanical work. Add $30,000 for the elevator we didn't know we had to have. That leaves us about $1.85 a foot for the rest of the renovation."

The elevator, for handicapped persons, is required by state law whenever a public building is renovated or built.)

Design Review Committee chairman Sidney Shuman minimized the problems of staying within the $500,000 limit.

Eliot Station

Reconstruction of the MBTA tracks between the Highlands station and Riverside terminal, a 2.6-mile segment, has been underway since Sept. 8 and is due to be completed by Dec. 28.

When the 3.2 miles of track between the Highlands station and Reservoir station are rebuilt next year, trolley service will be on a single track on six staggered segments, and no bus service will be needed.

From Reservoir to Fenway stations service will be along existing tracks on Beacon Street while reconstruction is being carried out.

The new roadbed will be equipped with continuous-welded track in anticipation of the new larger and quieter cars due to go into service in 1975-76.

Mofenson's Child Abuse Bill Passes Committee

A bill to provide mandatory reporting of all cases of suspected child abuse has been given a favorable report by the legislature's Judiciary Committee.

The measure introduced by Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) is a comprehensive proposal designed to broaden the definition of abuse and neglect, increase from four to 13 the number of professionals required to report suspected abuse, offer social services to abusers, and expand a judge's discretion in disposition of cases relating to the care and custody of the child.

One other major feature establishes a central registry for collecting statistical data as it relates to child abuse incidence.

Existing law requires that physicians, medical interns, examiners, social workers and school officials report suspected cases of abuse.

What is proposed in Rep. Mofenson's bill is to extend that mandate to dentists, nurses, public or private school teachers, guidance or family counselors, probation officers, and policemen.

There is also a provision allowing any other person to report. In all cases the reporter would be immune from libel or slander charges.

The husband-wife confidential privilege would be waived in cases of child abuse, thus allowing one party to testify against the other.

While the definition of abuse and neglect is in general terms, it specifies "abuse inflicted by sexual assault, neglect including malnutrition and children determined to be physically dependent on an addictive drug at birth."

"The deplorable incidence rate of such treatment to children is beyond description," Mofenson said, "but what is needed is a system that would allow us to explore and determine the facts of abuse or neglect, assess and evaluate the damage to children, initiate appropriate social services to ease the present situation, and use the available juvenile court system to decide what course of action would be best for the child's welfare."

The central registry created in this bill would serve two main functions: to gather information on the rate of occurrence of child abuse and its surrounding circumstances, thus permitting statistical profiles to be compiled and an assessment of that data, and to identify possible trends or repeated abuse cases in order to prevent future cases of child abuse.

Rep. Mofenson noted, "The central registry has been successful in other states and is an innovative approach in Massachusetts."

"As with any compilation of sensitive information we must foreclose the possibility that the confidentiality and privacy of that data might be violated," he continued.

"Accordingly, the safeguards included in this bill are designed to protect the individuals on whom information is kept," Mofenson concluded.

Drinan Leads Rail Crisis Discussion

A total of 18 members of Congress today joined Congressman Robert F. Drinan in taking the floor of the House of Representatives to discuss the Northeast rail crisis.

The Special Order on the Northeast rail crisis, initiated by Congressman Drinan and organized with the cooperation of the New England Congressional Caucus, was designed, in Drinan's words, "to emphasize the importance of Northeast rail service to the entire nation, and to focus attention on the urgent need for legislation to restructure the Northeast railroads into self-sustaining entities.

"The Northeast rail crisis is not a partisan issue," Drinan said, "nor is it a regional issue."

"It is a national problem, one that must be approached in a constructive spirit of compromise by all of the parties concerned," he added.

Congressman Drinan was joined by Congressman Brock Adams (D.-Wash.) and Dick Shoup (R.-Mont.), the principal authors of legislation to save the Northeast railroads that is now being considered by the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

Drinan stated that immediate Congressional action was required to avert a possible shut-down of service on the part of the six bankrupt railroads.

"Termnation or severe limitation of rail service would increase inflationary pressures throughout the nation, at a time when the cost-of-living soars virtually uncontrolled," Drinan said.

"Use of alternate transportation modes, particularly trucking, would aggravate air pollution, further clog highways, and increase use of gasoline and other petroleum products at a time when fuel resources are already stretched too thin."

Congressman Drinan continued, "Termination of rail service must be avoided. In its place we must work for an orderly restructuring of the Northeast railroads. These railroads should be given a chance to again become self-sustaining."

"No one wants to involve the government in the business of running the railroads," Congressman Drinan went on to say, "but the evidence is that the many factors that have contributed to the declining fortunes of the Northeast railroads are not going to be reversed without some government assistance."

Congressman Drinan noted a soon-to-be released study of the Boston & Maine Railroad conducted by the Harbridge House firm in Boston, "This study suggests that more than 50,000 jobs and $811 million are dependent on continued B & M service."

"Cessation of B&B service would result, according to the study, in a 1 to 5 percent increase in the prices paid for major consumer commodities," he said.

"Cessation of B&M service services alone," Congressman Drinan continued, "would require an additional one million truck trips to carry freight formerly handled by the B&M."

"This would mean an additional 26.1 million gallons of fuel would be required for the trucks—enough to supply the annual electricity requirements of 40,000 households," he explained.

Congressman Drinan also pointed out the results of studies conducted for him by the South Middlesex Chamber of Commerce and the Montachusett Regional Planning Commission on the impact of rail services in the Fourth Congressional District in Massachusetts.

"The study conducted by the South Middlesex Chamber of Commerce, involving responses from 26 firms in the area, suggests that more than 3500 jobs will be lost if rail service is discontinued.

One-third of the firms responding use rail for 90 percent or more of their freight volume, and nearly 50 percent of the firms use rail for more than half of their freight volume. Cessation of rail service would cause the loss of all jobs at four firms, including 1400 at one plant and 2,000 at another.

"The study conducted by the Montachusett Regional Planning Commission, involving 22 towns served by 14 rail stations in the Montachusett region in Massachusetts, indicates a total carload volume of nearly 10,000," Drinan said, "and more than 1150 jobs in the towns included in this study depend on continued rail service.

"The economy of the entire nation is dependent on the continued operation and successful reorganization of the six bankrupt Northeast railroads," Congressman Drinan said.

"But without substantial and immediate Federal help, the services of these railroads may be severely reduced if not eliminated entirely."

"Congress must act quickly. If every party to the railroad debate recognizes their mutual interest in a healthy Northeast rail system and exhibits a willingness to compromise, I am confident that a workable solution can be found," he concluded.

City Supports Mental Health

During the last fiscal year, Newton contributed $87,083.26 to its mental health association, State Auditor Thaddeus Buczko reported recently.

Buczko also estimated that the state's annual contribution to the association this year would be around $176,510.88. State funds given to the association are used exclusively to pay Department of Mental Health personnel assigned to the association.

A mental health clinic and pre-school nursery for retarded children is operated by the association at Lehman House, 64 Eldredge st., Newton.

In addition to its clinical and nursery facilities, the association provides consultation services for schools and parents and operates a psychiatric patent unit at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Drinan Assails Public Health Discrimination

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass) recently called for "a dramatic increase in the civil rights effort of the Federal Government in eliminating discrimination by health facilities."

Congressman Drinan's remarks came at the conclusion of hearings conducted by the Subcommittee on Civil Rights and Civil Liberties of the House Judiciary Committee on the state of enforcement of the anti-discrimination provisions of federal law.

"Having listened to four days of testimony from all sides, I am distressed at the number of deficiencies in the enforcement program at HEW," observed Congressman Drinan, a member of the Subcommittee. "Today's testimony by Peter Holmes, the director of the Office for Civil Rights at HEW confirmed my view that the congressional mandate of 1964 to end discrimination in federally assisted programs is not being vigorously enforced by the Executive Branch," he said.

"In his statement before our subcommittee this morning, Holmes admitted that his office has not assigned a high enough priority to eliminating discrimination in federally assisted health programs," the Congressman remarked.

"Mr. Holmes further conceded that he is presently unable, for Fiscal Year 1974, to determine how much, if any, additional personnel he needs to enforce the law. Such admissions are disturbing and would shock the victims of discrimination who look to the federal government to guarantee non-discriminatory access to health service," the Congressman stated.

"HEW cannot give us the statistical information showing the racial population of each health facility so that we might intelligently evaluate the oral testimony," Rep. Drinan continued.

"The last survey conducted by HEW occurred in 1969. In 1972 they promosed the Government Accounting Office that a new survey would be undertaken immediately. HEW officials told us today that the survey questionnaire has not yet been distributed. Such delays in basic fact gathering are intolerable," the Congressman added.

Congressman Drinan enumerated four ideas of inadequate performance on the part of Holmes' office: reluctance to seek or reassign additional personnel to the Health and Social Services Division, which is responsible for insuring non-discrimination in health facilites; absence of a strong affirmative action program to eliminate the racially dual system of health care at covered institutions both with respect to patient population and staff personnel;

Also, inability to define present discrimination to take account of current legal standards which direct institutions to adopt corrective measures to remove past patterns of racial exclusion; lack of nation-wide standards to insure that newly constructed facilities will be located so that minorities will have free acess to them.

In concluding, Congressman Drinan observed that "if the federal government does not speak loud and clear, with a firm and united voice, to those officials charged with the administration of the nation's health services, the denial to our minority citizens of quality health care will continue."

Lasell, Neighbors Meet Again

By DANIEL BARKIN

The neighbors sat down with representatives of Lasell Junior College last week in a meeting free from the tension that marked a prior encounter.

Conspicuous in his absence was Joseph Skinner, a member of the board of trustees, who was responsible for the fireworks that marred the previous meeting.

Airing her grievances stemming from a recent Lasell mixer, Mrs. Shiela Farnese related a description of misconduct on the part of certain men present at the dance.

Attemps to secure police action proved partially fruitless, according to Mrs. Farnese, because the policemen refused to disembark from their vehicles for fear of inciting a riot when arriving upon the "scene of the crime." (A police spokesman denied Mrs. Farnese's allegations, claiming that the policemen defused the situation from their vehicle.)

Mrs. Gail Denzler, another Lasell area resident, corroborated Mrs. Farnese's account, citing that one male visitor was seen hurling an empty six-pack of beer on an adjacent lawn. According to Mrs. Denzler, she returned the six-pack to the individual with an admonishment about such behavior.

A third neighbor, Eugene Galton, expressed his fear that any neighbor taking initiative action in summoning police aid in similar incidents would be inviting retaliation from the wrongdoers.

As he put it, "By the time the cops got there, he'd be done with me."

Lasell President Kenneth Greene questioned Galton's reasoning, informing him that the anonymith of the offended neighbors would be preserved.

Green added that each morning he surveys police reports from the previous evening, and noted that most neighbors were not reticent about calling the police in to handle disturbances. Dean Pifer noted five security police patrol the campus, in any event, to prevent incidents disturbing to the abutters.

Alderman Richard McGrath (Ward 4), also present at the meeting, informed the committee that most, if not all, of the disturbances in recent months derived from a small, roving juvenile gang attracted to Lasalle "like bees to honey."

McGrath expressed his confidence in the efforts of the Newton Police to control the situation, adding that the only remaining course of action would be to "arrest them," citing lack of parental supervision as an important factor.

In reference to the proposed Student Union tentatively located on Maple Street, the neighbors expressed their concern that the disturbances such as those that do occur at mixers would increase in frequency and duration.

McGrath echoed their sentiments adding that a buffer zone for the Student Union would be essential to preserving community harmony.

Recreation Notes

Halloween Parties Planned

An orientation meeting for Recreation Department sponsored Halloween parties was held at the Recreation Department recently, according to Mrs. Robert Toher of the Recreation Department staff.

Attending the meeting to plan the parties scheduled for eight schools under the joint sponsorship of the schools and Recreation Department were Senior Recreation Supervisor James E. Murphy, Recreation Leader Ralph Hamilton, Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry, Mrs. Toher, and Sargent Gerald Marchand of the Newton Police Department.

Lieutenant Joseph Fitzsimmons of the Newton Fire Department supplied materials to be distributed to the participating schools.

Also attending were these chairmen and co-chairmen of the following schools: Carr School, Louis J. Martin, Jr. and Anthony Gentile, Countryside; Mrs. Milton Tessel and Principal Merton Tefft, Hamilton; Joan LeBlanc, Hyde; Charles E. Aries, Lincoln-Eliot; Theresa O'Halloran, Memorial; Marion Grennon and Carly-Ann Feldman, Peirce; Francis Levine and Carol Amatangel and the Youth Center at Warren Junior High, Rick Williams and Phil Churchill.

Something new is in the works at the Williams School. Beginning Thursday, Nov. 4, and continuing from 7 - 10 p.m. Thursdays through Decmeber, Barbara Valinsky will conduct classes in Interpretive Dancing. For further information, call the Recreation Department.

Still another new program is being offered third, fourth, fifth and sixth grade children and their parents at the Davis School in West Newton.

Begun Wednesday, Oct. 3, and continuing Oct. 10, 17, 24 and Nov. 7, fathers and sons will be able to play Floor Hockey. Third and fourth grades will play from 7 to 8 p.m. and fifth and sixth grades will play from 8 to 9 p.m. Mothers and daughters will have their own nights beginning on Nov. 14 continuing Nov. 28, Dec. 5, 12, and 19. This program will include gymnastics and hockey.

Hours are 7 to 8 p.m. for third and fourth graders and 8 to 9 p.m. for fifth and sixth graders. Parents who have children in both groups are asked to choose one session.

Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle asks that women and girls over 16 who are interested in playing basketball attend a meeting at the Recreation office on Thursday, Oct. 25 at 7 p.m.

Those who plan to attend should call the Recreation Department and leave their name, address and specify if they are interested as a team or individual. Fran says they are still looking for teams to play in the League from November through January.

Fran also reminds women that the Toneastics Classes offered by the Newton Recreation Department are being held Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9:30 to 10:30 at the Newton Center Playground Field House on Tyler Terrace.

Barbara Valinsky conducts the classes which run for six weeks. Fran says that women may attend classes on Tuesdays or Thursdays or both. For further information, call the department at 969-3171.

League Schedules Elections Seminar

The coming Newton city elections will be the focus for discussion in a seminar on local government offered by the League of Women Voters of Newton.

This is the second in a "Know Your Newton" series to be scheduled throughout the year. Two sessions will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 17; one at 9:15 a.m. and one at 8 p.m. Both will be held at the First Baptist Church, Beacon and Centre Streets, Newton Centre. Babysitting services will be available at the morning meeting. The public is invited to attend either session.

Background information on the issues raised by candidates and the public during the current campaign will be given by League members who have served as observers at City Hall and as members of local study committees.

There will also be a discussion of the functions and responsibilities of the offices to be filled, a sample voting machine, and opportunity for questions.

The League of Women Voters is a non-partisan organization and therefore the relative merits of the candidates will not be discussed. The League does take a position on many local issues, however, and these positions will be explained. The program is designed to provide a basis for the Candidates' Nights which follow on October 18 (School Committee) and November 1 (Mayor and Aldermen). For further information call Mrs. David Dwelley (332-4543).

Government Survey Will Continue Here

What does it cost a family or an individual to live these days? To buy food, clothing, housing, transportation, medical care, schooling, and the services Americans use?

A sample of households in this area, part of some 17,000 households across the nation, are furnishing this information about living costs to the Federal Government. They are taking part in the Consumer Expenditure Survey being conducted by the Bureau of the Census, an agency of the U. S. Department of Commerce's Social and Economic Statistics Administration.

Mrs. Mildred Barry, supervisor of the survey area office in Boston, says that interviewers will begin calling on the survey households early in October for the fourth time this year. Fourth quarter calls will continue through December.

The Census Bureau is acting as data collection agent for the U. S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). Results of the survey will show what changes have taken place in consumer purchasing since the last survey was taken in 1960-61 and thus enable BLS to create an up-to-date "market basket" of goods and services which will reflect today's buying habit. Price changes for items in the market basket are measured monthly by BLS and are reflected in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) each month.

Another group of households here, among 19,000 nationwide, is taking part in a survey of daily expenditures, which is part of the overall program. This is called the Diary Survey and will provide information about the small, everyday purchases—food, cleaning aids, personal care items—that people cannot recall accurately even for a short time. Each Diary Survey household is asked to keep a daily record of expenses during two consecutive 7-day periods. Census interviews personally drop off and pick up record keeping forms for each period.

Official interviewers carry red, white, and blue identification badges with their signature and photo. They have sworn to the Census Bureau's oath of confidentiality and are subject under the law to serve penalties for violation of the oath.

March For Disadvantaged Youth Planned For Sunday

Early indications that the biggest walk ever held for a charity anywhere,show a tremendous response by young women as well as men, who will join with the Army National Guard to MARCH for disadvantaged youth through Horizons for Youth. Members of the 26th (Yankee) Infantry Division, Massachusetts Army National Guard, on a volunteer basis, will leave 53 Armories across the state on Sunday, Oct. 14th, to MARCH 25 miles in their local communities to benefit impoverished boys and girls.

A breakdown of volunteer walkers up-to-date, shows 27 per cent are young women, an unusually high proportion for similar walks for charities. Lloyd B. Waring, president of Horizons For Youth, stated, "The 'Women's Lib Movement' has brought about a lot of changes and maybe by the time the registration for the MARCH closes, it could reach a 50-50 proportion."

Waring went on to commend the enlisted men and officers of the 26th (Yankee Infantry Division, Massachusetts Army National Guard) who on a volunteer basis, will walk along with interested citizens from all walks of life to help boys and girls in need.

All those interested in helping disadvantaged boys and girls, should get full information and Walking Kits at all Friendly Ice Cream Shops in Massachusetts or by calling or visiting Boston Armory, 70 Victory Road, Dorchester, 436-8480.

Pine Manor President Submits Resignation

Dr. Ferry, who joined Pine Manor as its third president in July, 1956, said, "In this, my eighteenth year as chief administrative officer, I feel my job is nearly done, and wish to let a new president take over my responsibilities next summer."

The ranking senior president of all independent and public two-year colleges in Massachusetts, Dr. Ferry's tenure at Pine Manor is also one of the longest among New England's two-and four-year women's institutions.

The most significant achievement of the Ferry administration was the acquisition of the 79-acre Dane estate in Chestnut Hill and the subsequent move there in 1964 from Wellesley, where Pine Manor had been the post-secondary division of the Dana Hall Schools since 1911.

Extensive renovation of the Main House and other existing buildings on the new campus, and the addition of many academic and residential buildings have brought Pine Manor's physical plant assets to a current value of more than $11,000,000.

Other notable advances under Dr. Ferry's leadership were the establishment in 1959 of the associate degree rather than the previous award of a diploma, and a steady increase in enrollment from 225 students in 1956 to more than 500 in the current academic year.

In accepting his request for retirement, Gerald W.Blakeley, Jr., chairman of the board, stated on behalf of the trustees that the countless contributions made by Dr. Ferry were of immeasurable value and said, "Present and former trustees, and his many other Pine Manor friends and associates, are grateful for his vision, practicality, and persistence, the hallmarks of a truly innovative educator."

A native of Williamstown, Mass., Dr. Ferry attended Deerfield Academy and graduated from Hamilton College in 1935. He earned an Ed.M. degree at Harvard, and was awarded a Doctor of Laws degree by Hamilton in 1968.

After serving in various administrative offices at Rhode Island School of Design from 1939 to 1951, and then as dean of Bradford Junior College for five years, he accepted the presidency of Pine Manor.

He is presently a trustee of the Brimmer and May School and a member of the Long Range Planning Committee of the National Council of Independent Junior Colleges.

In June, Dr. and Mrs. Ferry will move permanently to Orleans, Mass., where they have owned a home for several years.

Symposium

Suffolk Dedicates Station For Newton Professor

Friedman, of West Newton, died in April. He had spearheaded the drive to acquire the 40-acre Cobscook Bay site and was instrumental in its development.

More than 300 persons, including many Suffolk students, and representatives from 10 other New England colleges, heard Suffolk President Thomas A. Fulham pay tribute to Friedman as "the founder and moving force in the university's interest in marine biology."

Cobscook Bay, located in the famed Bay of Fundy region in Washington County, is one of the nation's last frontiers of marine and land resources. It has tidal fluctuations of 24 feet, greatest in the United States, outside of Alaska.

TRAVEL TRAILS
by Julian Roberts
The cruise business has never been better and the boom is being fueled by American passengers, spending lots of American dollars . . . But the ships they spend them on fly Greek, Italian, British, German, Dutch, Swedish and Norwegian flags... High labor and operating costs have made it impossible to run a passenger ship at a profit under the American flag . . . Air travel seems to be moving in the direction of mass transportation, with the likelihood that in the future airborne frills will be fewer, but airfares, much much, cheaper . . . The trend in cruising is just the opposite . . . Luxury is what passengers seem to want, with cost a secondary consideration.

Although the vote was light early in the day, by 8 p.m. when the polls closed more than 25 per cent of Newton's 51,483 registered voters had made their choices.

Most polling places Tuesday afternoon were unusually inactive. At Spaulding School in Oak Hill and Mason-Rice School in Newton Centre only two campaign workers and no voters were in evidence. At Newton North High School only one tired worker was on duty, leaning against a flagpole.

One exception was at Davis School in West Newton, where a half-dozen or more workers for Alderman Richard Bullwinkle paced back and forth or chatted while they waited for the occasional voter.

About 4:30 in the afternoon, both Carmen headquarters on Washington Street and Mann headquarters, which had moved for the day to the Sidney Hill Country Club, were somewhat subdued, although telephoning to get the voters out was going on busily on both places.

The evening proved not to be as long as some observers had anticipated. The final results were announced at City Hall beginning about 8:30 and were all complete before 11 p.m.

Newton Is To Observe National Headstart Week

Mrs. Clarence Nichols, Newton Headstart Teacher-Director, has announced that the local program will join in with the National Observance of Headstart Week to begin on Monday, Oct. 14, and run through Oct. 20.

The Newton school year program was formed in 1967 under WEMBROC, the funding agency for Newton, Waltham, Arlington, Watertown, and Brookline. Locally, an advisory committee was established to oversee the Newton program and the Newton Community Service Centers administered the operation on a daily basis.

Currently, the advisory committee is headed by Mrs. William Hollman and meets each second Wednesday of the month at the First Unitarian Society in West Newton, site of the program. Membership in the advisory committee includes: nine parents, four board members of the Newton Community Services Centers, Inc., four members from the community, and a host agency representative.

The program is currently funded through Communities United, the applicant agency located at the Rebecca Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St. in Newton, while the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. continues as the local administrative agency.

Newton's program serves 30 children Monday through Friday of each week during the school year. Youngsters are selected based upon need and financial criteria established by the federal government.

Generally, the services for children are varied. Educational, medical, and social aspects are all included in the wide range of activity.

In recognition of the National Observance of Headstart Week, Mrs. Nichols has extended an open invitation to the community to visit the Newton Headstart Program. If interested, please contact the Centers at 527-6689.

Also, the program is making available a number of volunteer opportunities for individuals to assist with the daily operation of the activity.

Help is needed in the classroom for field trips and a variety of other areas.

Cheese Expert At Bloomingdale's

A recognized authority on cheeses of the world, he will treat the audience to a cheese tasting of international favorites.

His appearance is the sixth in the fall series of special events at the new store. Tickets for the event may be obtained in the manager's office. The store opens at 9:30 a.m. and coffee will be served prior to Gumport's talk.

interested in dealing creatively with the environment.

On Thursday afternoons from 1:30 to 3:30 Marc Alterio, a physical education teacher at Angier, offers a variety of sports and games for school children in grades one through three.

The program will begin at the Angier Community School on Oct. 16 and continue until Dec. 13. The deadline for registration is Oct. 11, and there is a small tuition charge of $5 for each course.

Preference will first be given to residents of the Angier School District and there are a limited amount of scholarships available.

Tuition should accompany the registrations form which may be obtained at the school office or at several neighborhood stores.

In addition to a course entitled "Family Fun" scheduled for Fridays from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., the Hyde School also offers a unique counseling service to residents of the school's district.

The counseling center is located in the school's office and will be open on Fridays from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. There is no fee involved and anyone may use the service.

"All of us occasionally have a problem which we would like to talk about with a professional," stated the Hyde Community School Coordinator Lois Alexander.

"This is the perfect opportunity for anyone with a problem and everything is of course confidential," added the program's coordinator.

On Tuesdays from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., during the fall term, the Horace Mann Community School will offer courses on stained glass, macrame, embroidery, crochet and knitting.

On the same evening from 7 p.m. to 7:45 p.m. senior citizens in the Horace Mann district will have an opportunity to work off those extra pounds in a course designed especially for them.

A professional instructor, Mrs. Barbara Valinsky, will give senior citizens custom exercises designed to improve circulation, and strengthen legs, back, arms and feet.

The program has been endorsed by the Newton Recreation Department. Senior citizens are advised, however, to check with their personal physicians before enrolling in the course.

An exercise course for adults will follow the senior citizen's course at 7:45 p.m. and will continue until 8:30 p.m.

The instructor recommends that enrollees in each class wear sneakers and comfortable slacks shorts, or leotards. Bare feet are acceptable.

The Horace Mann Community School also offers and arts and crafts class for the elderly on Fridays from noon to 1 p.m. Instructor Marie White will introduce a varied program consisting of mosaics, copper enameling and pottery.

The volunteer coordinator for the Horace Mann Community school program is Mrs. Geraldine Muccini and she may be reached by calling 969-5932.

Classes at the Horace Mann are free but will be restricted this year to adults. According to Mrs. Muccini, a separate afternoon program for children is currently being established.

Like the Angier, Hyde and Horace Mann Schools, almost every other elementary school in Newton has a similar program and residents may obtain information by calling the nearest school office.

Plan Benefit Night

The Lesley College Clumni Association will present a scholarship benefit evening of mixed entertainment on Saturday, Oct. 13.

The program will begin at 8 p.m., in the Welch Auditorium on the college campus, with a champagne reception and tours of the "urban academic village" new campus.

"The Proposition," a highly-successful, Cambridge-based improvisational review with music, games, and stories, will follow. Coffee and dessert and a raffle drawing will conclude the potpourri of activities.

Admission to the benefit is $6.00 per person. Tax deductible checks payable to the Lesley College Alumni Scholarship Fund should be mailed to the Alumni Office, Lesley College, 29 Everett St., Cambridge. Reservations must be prepaid by Oct. 5.

Co-chairwoman of the benefit evening is Mrs. Barbara Schilling, 159 Carlton Road, Waban. Mrs. Schilling served as president of the Lesley College Alumni Association Board for two years and is now an Ex-Officio Member of the Board.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

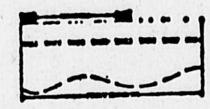
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

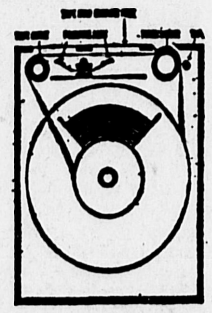
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Lassen Peak in California is the only active volcano in the continguous United States.

Mrs. G. S., West Roxbury writes: For the past month or so I've been having difficulty finding chocolate bits in the super market, therefore I put together a very nice recipe using butterscotch-flavored morsels. The children just love them and I hope you put them into your column. (Thank you!)

BUTTERSCOTCH COCONUT DROPS

½ cup butter
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups all purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 pkg. (6 oz. or 1 cup) butterscotch flavored morsels
½ cup chopped nuts
1-½ cups flaked coconut

Combine butter and both sugars, beating until creamy. Beat in eggs one at a time. Beat in vanilla and continue beating until very light. Resift flour with baking soda and salt. Blend flour into beaten mixture gradually. Add butterscotch morsels and chopped nuts. Mix well. Chill dough. Empty flaked coconut into a bowl. Drop chilled cookie dough by rounded teaspoons into the coconut. Roll to coat. Form into balls. Place balls on ungreased cookie sheet, leaving space for spreading between them Bake in a 375 degree oven 10-12 minutes. Makes 4-½ doz. cookies.

We received a lovely letter from Mrs. K. B., Norwood, who shares with us three jelly recipes she prepares in the fall for Christmas gift giving. Thank you, Mrs. B. for your recipes and suggestion!

1 cup Burgundy wine
½ bottle liquid fruit pectin

First prepare the juice. Thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 1-½ pounds grapes. Add ¼ cup water; bring to a boil and simmer, covered, for 10 minutes. Place in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. Measure 2 cups into a large saucepan. Then make the jelly. Thoroughly mix suagr and wine into juice in saucepan. Place over high heat and bring just to a boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. At once, stir in fruit pectin; skim off foam with metal spoon and pour quickly into hot sterilized glasses. Cover at once with ⅛-inch hot paraffin. Yield: about 5 cups

APRICOT MUSCATEL JELLY

3-½ cups (1-½ pound) sugar
1 cup muscatel wine
1 cup apricot nectar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ bottle liquid fruit pectin

Measure all ingredients, except fruit pectin, into top of double boiler; mix well. Place over rapidly boiling water and stir until sugar is dissolved; about 2 minutes. Remove from heat. At once, stir in fruit pectin and mix well. Skim off foam if necessary. Pour quickly into glasses. Cover at once with ⅛ inch hot paraffin. Makes about 4 cups.

Question: I would be very grateful if you would print a recipe for a potato kugel-(potato pudding). I was recently told that the pudding is best when the eggs are separated–that it makes for a lighter pudding. Thanks! — Mrs. G., Newton

Question: I hope you can help me. My bridge group meeting usually begins with a very light lunch and it will be my turn next. I would like a mold-type main dish–one that I can prepare in advance. Thank you. — Mrs. M., Needham

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

October is probably the most beautiful month of the year. A time of flaming leaves, crisp bright days, the first fire in the fireplace and the crunch, tang and flavor of freshly picked apples.

No other fruit or vegetable in the world has such a tender legendary figure associated with it as the American apple. Traveling throughout the Ohio Valley country, Jonathan Chapman, better known as Johnny Appleseed, spread miles and miles of farmland with apples. Actually a missionary of the Swedenborgian faith, he lived frugally, never owned a home, dressed in whatever he could find and often went barefoot in summer and winter.

During his endless travels, Johnny Appleseed planted and tended seedling apple tree nurseries, and distributed seeds and trees to the early frontier settlers, providing them and Indians with fresh, delicious apples. His life and work have been commemorated in a park and memorial at Fort Wayne, Indiana.

McIntosh, Delicious, Cortland, Golden Delicious and Baldwin are favorites of New Englanders. However, if you've never bitten into a ruby red Macoun apple you're missing a rare taste treat. Richly flavored, aromatic, white-fleshed, this apple has a flavor all its own. Excellent eaten out of hand, Macouns may also be used in cooking.

If you're on a reducing diet and have an "all in" feeling by late morning or around 3:30 p.m., an apple gives the necessary energy to carry on until lunch or dinner without adding weight (75 calories per average size fruit) or upsetting digestion.

Dentists say the best time to eat an apple is after meals and just before going to bed because there is scientific proof that raw apple "brushes" the teeth, cleanses the mouth of 96.7 oral bacteria and exercises the teeth and gums.

Tropical Apple Slaw

Recipes have a way of coming and going–some become popular and then sink into obscurity. Not so America's favorite, apple pie. We've new as well as old versions of this all time No. 1 dessert, and if your family favors baked apples treat them to some new interesting variations.

Though we urge the enjoyment of apples, we don't suggest you try to equal the record of a hungry Pennsylvania barber, some 25 years ago, who chomped away at 366 apples in 125 minutes. Amazingly enough his only ill effects were acute indigestion and jaw muscles that ached for days afterwards.

BAKED APPLE IDEAS

CRANBERRY APPLES: Fill cored apples with chopped fresh cranberries and sugar; place in baking dish and cover bottom of pan with cold water. Cover dish, place in 375 degree oven and bake 40-60 minutes until fruit is tender.

MAPLE BAKE: Core and bake apples (see above); during the last 20 minutes of baking, baste apples with maple syrup. Baste several more times while apples are cooling.

APPLES AND OATMEAL: Core large cavities in apples; pare and cook in a syrup made by boiling 1 cup sugar and 1½ cups water for 5 minutes. When soft, remove apples and fill cavities with hot cooked oatmeal. Serve with cream.

Arrange thin apple slices in pan, heaping slightly in center. Sprinkle evenly with remaining sugar mixture. Scatter grated lemon peel over apples. Dot with margarine. Adjust top crust; trim edges, flute. Cut slits in center to allow steam to escape. Bake at 425 degrees 40-45 minutes or until pastry is deep golden brown. Serve as is with cheese or vanilla ice cream.

TROPICAL APPLE SLAW

3 cups crisp shredded cabbage
1 can (9 oz.) pineapple tidbits, drained
2 cups diced, unpared red apples

Gloria Vanderbilt

Gentle Gentlewoman

By RUTH LENSON

Tall, slender, jet black hair skinned back, wearing a long brown cape over a brown jersey St. Laurent dress, Gloria Vanderbilt swept into Jordan Marsh's director's room for a press conference prior to her appearance as guest speaker in an exciting new "Apartment Age" exhibit in the Boston store.

Her voice is gentle. With a hint of emotion, she speaks about the inspiration behind her imaginative art style of flowers, gingham, calico and other sweet rememberings of childhood.

"I have always had a very clear idea in mind of what I wanted to paint and why. I suppose you could say it's my small way of protesting violence. I wanted to do something that was cozy, warm, full of love. . .something people could relate to. . .art that would bring love into their homes. When I sold a painting only one home had it–this way with my designs on fabrics many, many people everywhere can enjoy them.

"I was with another company first and it was an unhappy experience. However, the minute I began working with the Bloomcraft people, putting the collection together, they knew what I wanted and they went ahead and did it. .beautifully.

"It's been a wonderful experience," she said. "I meet people I don't know and they feel they know me through the work I've done, and I love that!"

Already an accomplished artist with 14 one-woman shows, Miss Vanderbilt is now very much into lithography as well as a technique she invented involving the application of ink over crayon.

"I'm really enjoying the lithography," she smiled, "but it is hard work. . .you have to work directly into the stone and every line must be just right. You work quickly and it flows from the heart."

In color, line and design, she is delightfully original; perhaps because she has never had formal training. As she put it, "Maybe, if I'd gone to college I wouldn't have had to work so hard, and it wouldn't have taken so long, but eventually, if you keep at it, one gets there."

Recently moved from a home to an apartment in New York City, Gloria admits to a need for "paring everything down to the bare essentials". A long standing love affair with New York determined the move to a glass-walled apartment overlooking the Hudson River.

"We have three bedrooms, for my husband and myself, our two young sons and their nurse. We also have sleep sofas for the times when my 2 older sons, who are away at school, come home. My studio is on another floor in the same building—this way when I want to paint at night I don't have to go out on the street.

With art exhibitions slated for New Orleans and Philadelphia, plus her lithography, fabric designs, as well as a book on home furnishings to be published next year, Gloria explains that her work schedule is steady but not slavish.

"I do try to work part of every day, but there are also long periods when I don't work at all. But then, when you're not actually painting, you're seeing and storing up ideas and then when that moment comes, you get back to painting and "do it"."

An upcoming line of brand new designs for Martex, on towels, pillows, sheets and "all that sort of thing" is still hush-hush, but she hints that the collection will be mainly small prints, old fashioned nosegays and lots of nostalgia.

"Big, bold splashy prints are jarring when you get them home. With visual equilibrium in mind, my prints are small. I'm not doing any gingham or patchwork. . the spirit of designing is new and refreshing, inspired by turn of the century prints that can be put in a completely modern room of chrome and glass. The fabric's main background color is bone instead of white. .much more flattering for the skin. . a sort of pearly overall tone that is really nice."

Gloria Vanderbilt's designs for Bloomcraft contain: pillows, spreads, curtains and show curtains in happy-happy prints. For example: red, yellow and purple tulips on a background of tiny pink flowers and ivy. . .a bed rest in bright pink gingham, edged in pink ruffles and lace. . .zinnias blooming on a yellow-edged pillow. . .a sun-bonneted little miss with parasol in hand profiled in a flower garden. . .an elegant screen covered in a striped fabric of tiny flowers and hearts.

"In one way or another, we all start our lives with the search for identity. As children we look to those close to us for clues. . .the finding of our best selves. I believe that best self is the creative part of us. I also believe that it is in all of us.

"I believe this because one has only to look at each and every child every day to see how creative, how unique and individual in his own way, each child is. The sad thing is that at some point, for whatever reasons, this sense of wonder gets cut off in many of us. We stop looking and therefore stop seeing and when we stop seeing, we close ourselves off from that creative life that existed in us as children. We conform to other people's opinions.

Look into yourself. Because without exception each and every one of us has the creative drive, the reaching out, the searching, the looking that it takes to become an artist. In speaking of the artist, I am thinking of it as it applies to all areas of life. Anything well done, whether it is baking a cake, doing a good painting, or achieving success in business, comes about because we have, whether we know it or not, had the sense of survival and the instinct to leave that door open. . .so that our creative energy can move. .circulate freely from the inside to the outside, and can make our lives, and therefore the lives of those around us, in some way, more.

Local Wedding Consultant Begins Package Program

Today, Anthony Massimino, local wedding consultant since 1958 and originator of the one-step wedding package program now featured by many function halls, hotels and restaurants, announced the establishment of his own unique wedding day package at his South Shore Country Gentleman's estate... Pantooset Farms.

Featured in Massimino's package at Pantooset Farms in Hanover will be either horse and carriage rides, sleigh rides or North River boat rides, depending on the occasion. Formal pictures can be taken by the three waterfalls or the paddle boat pond.

Summertime weddings will be created on the boathouse under a festive tent whereas winter time functions will be featured in the rustic log cabin type lodge.

All wedding menus will be individually different as the occasion, people, weather and budget permit, after your wedding plans have been discussed with Mr. Massimino.

For example; your wedding day arrives. It is a hot sunny day in June. Your guests arrive at the gate at Pantooset Farms. Upon identification, the gateman opens the gate and directs them to a parking area. They are now directed to a picnic area under the pines by the scenic and historic North River.

There they find kegs of cold beer, champagne and punch readily available to complement the selected cheeses and crackers.

Meanwhile, the Bridal Part is having formals taken by a swing under a weeping willow. The Bridal Part arrives at the pincic area by horse and carriage and form a receiving line. The guests proceed to the tent at the boat house and take their seats in the cool river breeze at the individual flower pot fruit cups.

ANTHONY MASSIMINO

The Bridal Party is introduced, the best man proposes a Toast and so it goes at Massimino's in Hanover.

The first wedding reception to take place at the Pantooset Farm Country Club in the Rustic Lodge will be that of a Roslindale girl on February 2, 1974. And since the completion of the boat house this past week, several reservations for summer weddings have already been accepted. It is not too early to make your 1974 plans with Mr. Massimino now.

Mr. Massimino's mother Anna and brother Mario have operated the family-owned Massimino's Restaurant on Hyde Park Avenue, since 1932. Tony, as he is known to his friends, has appeared on radio and TV as a wedding consultant and has written a monthly wedding column originally featured in the Transcript Publications, "From Miss to Mrs."

Mr. Massimino will continue to cater and coordinate weddings in the Parkway District.

Rock Music Scene

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International

Every now and then it's kind of hard to tell, but in 1973, Johnny Winter is still alive and well.

His story to date might be subtitled, "How a skinny, long-haired albino from Beaumont, Tex., moved from great, down-and-dirty blues to great, up-and-jumping rock 'n' roll in five hard years."

You can get a fine summary of the plot on two recent albums.

The first is "Austin, Texas" (UA-LA139-F.), a reissue from United Artists. Recorded in 1968, "Austin" captures Johnny at the peak of his development as a blues guitarist, a time just before he emerged as one of the few full-blown stars of the waning '60s.

The second is Johnny's newest, "Still Alive and Well" (Columbia KC-32188), a superb rock album that shows just how many changes have gone down for him (and all of us) in those five years.

Has Musical Parents

Johnny Winter was born Feb. 23, 1944, in Beaumont, a port on the Gulf of Mexico, just an easy hitch from the Delta blues country of Louisiana. The son of musical parents (father plays sax and banjo, mother played piano) Johnny and younger brother Edgar formed their first bands while still in high school.

In 1968—just before he was discovered by the pop music "in crowd"—he did a little recording. The "Austin" album is a result of one of those sessions, taped at a place called the Vulcan Gas Company in the Texas capital. It is, in many respects, a superior collection to Johnny's first Columbia album, "Johnny Winter"-simpler and more basic.

But hair-splitting comparisons aside, "Austin" stands on its own as a nearly perfect record of the sophisticated and innovative simplicity that was Johnny Winter's music in 1968. Like the Columbia album, "Austin" concentrates on blues standards—tunes by Muddy Waters, Howlin' Wolf, Sonny Boy Williamson—raw, mean blues, stripped down and itching for a fight.

Johnny Winter's music in 1973 is still muscular and raunchy, but a lot happened to him in those five years and the changes show.

First in Two Years

The title track of "Still Alive and Well," of course, refers to the fact that it is Johnny's first album in two years. During that time he spent a lot of time flat on his back, cleaning drugs out of his veins; there was more than one rumor that he wouldn't make it.

Plan Dinner Dance

Dinner Dance November 10

The Kidney T. Dialysis association has nounced plans for their fourth annual dinner dance on Saturday, November 10, at the Somerset hotel, Boston.

Dr. and Mrs. Richard Faber, Newton Centre, and Mr. and Mrs. David Dangel, Newton, are assisting in preparation of the event.

The association is probably one of the country's most unique medically related organizations. It originated at Boston's Peter Bent Brigham hospital in the 1960's when several patients, some kidney transplants, and others living on the artificial kidney machine, formed a group for mutual aid purposes. The organization now boasts over 600 members and publishes its own news letter.

Dr. and Mrs. Richard Farber, serve as editor and associate editor of the KTDA newsletter, the "Renel-Gram." Dr. Farber has been a home-dialysis kidney patient since June, 1968. He serves as a math professor at Boston College and is active as a golfer, bowler, and household handyman.

David Dangle received a kidney transplant from a cadaver in June, 1972. Today he golfs regularly and is employed as treasurer of Rapid's furniture company in Boston.

The Kidney Transplant Dialysis association's purpose is to aid renal patients and to acquaint the public with information about kidney related diseases. The organization has raised over $30,000 in funds, of which a sizable portion was spent to build and furnish a patient's recreation room at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

Future funds will be used to assist financilly stricken renal patients.

Dinner-dance tickets and information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Robert Brown at 444-3628 or Mrs. Norman Yanco at 535-5548.

The first residence, Juniper House, located at 14 Newtonville avenue, Newton Corner, will open within the next few weeks to become a permanent home for eight adult retardates.

Childbirth Education In Progress

Expectant parents may still attend the remaining meetings in a five-week course in childbirth education held at Newton-Wellesley Hospital on Thursday evenings 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. The fall course is scheduled to meet October 4, 11, 18, 25, and November 1 in Usen Auditorium at the Hospital, and is open, free of charge, to any interested area residents.

Taught by a Registered Nurse, the course offers lectures on anatomy and physiology of childbirth, labor and delivery, medication and anesthesia, and post-natal infant care. Husbands are encouraged to attend. Families need not be scheduling delivery at Newton-Wellesley in order to participate in the course.

This free series will be repeated in winter and spring, beginning January 3 and May 2, 1974, respectively. Those interested are asked to call the Nursing Office at the Hospital for further information, or simply to come to the next meeting of the fall series on October 11.

As part of its recognition of family-centered childbirth, Newton-Wellesley Hospital also makes available meeting place for two courses that prepare couples for natural childbirth, in which the husband is present for labor and delivery. The five-week Lamaze Childbirth Education Course and the eight-week course given by B.A.C.E. (Boston Association for Childbirth Education) both emphasize techniques that enable mothers to remain awake during labor and delivery and to participate actively in bringing their children into the world.

The B.A.C.E. course also covers post-natal care, with emphasis on breast-feeding and adjustment to changes in family life. Both classes meeting at the Hospital are conducted by a Registered Nurse, and are usually taken during the last trimester of pregnancy. Again, parents need not have their delivery at Newton-Wellesley in order to enroll. There is a fee for these courses.

The upcoming Lamaze class at Newton-Wellesley beginning on October 16, is already filled, but expectant parents may still find places in the group that will begin meeting at Lasell Junior College in Newton on October 17. The next Hospital session will start Tuesday, November 20. Interested parents may call Lamaze at 924-0004, 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. weekdays, for information.

There are still a few openings in the B.A.C.E. class to start at Newton-Wellesley in mid-November. The B.A.C.E. registrar may be reached at 861-0569.

Planning for natural childbirth at the Hospital usually includes the free Hospital Course for Expectant Parents and either the B.A.C.E. or the Lamaze class. Newton-Wellesley's obstetrical nursing staff has been trained in the principles of natural childbirth through the Hospital's inservice education program. The nursing staff itself was instrumental in introducing natural childbirth at the Hospital in 1969, one of the first such programs in the area. As part of its emphasis on family involvement in childbirth, the Hospital also allows fathers of newborns to visit at any time from 7:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. whether or not they have participated in the delivery.

Expectant parents interested in finding out more about the obstetrical services offered at the Hospital should call Newton-Wellesley's Nursing Office for information, 244-2800.

Book Review

"Diet for a Small Planet" By Frances Moore Lappe Ballantine

By CHRIS MONROE

This book reveals the interesting and too-little understood relationship between rising meat costs and protein waste. Too many people (and I was one of them before reading "Diet For A Small Planet") are under the mistaken impressing that cattle and other livestock are fed primarily by allowing them to graze on the open prairies. This is just not so. In fact, the major portion of their diet is made up of protein sources that could be consumed directly by humans.

In the book, Ms. Lappe also explains "protein complimentarity," the art of combining two or more different foods, each of which contains certain amino aicds (the "building blocks" of proteins) in which the other(s) is deficient. Thus, complete protein foods, essential for proper health, are formed.

The explanations become quite complex in parts but the principles are easily understood. Following the explanations is a large section of recipes. My husband and I have tried several and all but one have been unique and delicous —and that one failure was a result of too much garlic, so beware.

An added note for anyone who might become deeply involved with the science of complimenting proteins, and might chart out all the proportions of grains, seeds, beans, and nuts, by tediously figuring them out from each group of recipes (as we did), Ms. Lappe's new book, "Diet For A small Planet," contains this information, along with a whole new selection of recipes.

For anyone who is contemplating a vegetarian diet, or who would like to cut down on his or her meat consumption to reduce cholesterol or to save money, this book provides an excellent background. In these days of steadily rising meat prices, "Diet For A Small Planet" is a timely and worthwhile book.

Sheila McGourty Weds

At a double ring ceremony at St. Bernard Church in Newton, Sheila Kathleen McGourty, the daughter of Mr. James Henry, Jr. and Mrs. Sheila McGourty of West Newton, became the bride of John Alber Chunis, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alber Chunis of Randolph.

The Rev. Thomas Moore performed the ceremony held on Sept. 1 at 11 a.m.

The gown had front lace panels and a bustle ending in a chapel train. A cathedral length veil fell from a three-point crown. She carried a crescent bouquet of orchids and stephanotis.

The maid of honor was the bride's sister, Mary Elizabeth McGourty. The best man was Robert Earley and ushers were James McGourty, the bride's twin brother, C. Patrick McGourty, the bride's brother.

Her husband has a B.S. in nuclear engineering from Lowell Technological Institute and is studying for a master's degree under an assistantship grant.

After a honeymoon to northern Maine they plan to reside in Chelmsford.

New Hope For Stroke Victims

By ELLEN L. SLOTT

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — About 200,000 people die each year from strokes, and for many the one that kills them is not their first.

When two clinical neurologists at Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia considered the figures, they began a study to discover a form of stroke prevention.

No miracle drug, as Dr. Stanley Leonberg said, but find a way of preventive actions patients could take to decrease the risk of a second stroke.

Regular Checkups

About seven years ago, Elliot recalled, they began observing and treating their first stroke patients. They scheduled regular checkups with each of them for an average of five years.

The result was that 61 per cent of patients in an untreated control group at the hospital died, while only 18 per cent of patients under the stroke prevention program died of a second cerebral infraction.

"If we lose the ballgame in the first inning, that's it," Leonberg said. "If the person survives the first, our intention is to keep him from having another."

The doctors' stroke prevention methods, which were exhibited at the 1973 American Medical Association's convention, seem relatively simple.

"In this program," Leonberg said, "we follow the people who had strokes. They might develop diabetes or something that could lead to cerebral infraction. We also bear down on people who are smokers."

The patients, 73 males and 29 females, visited Leonberg or Elliot regularly for checkups following their strokes. Because the program was operated under a grant from the Hartford Foundation, all examinations were free within the five-year period.

Prevention

Elliot, 64, said the prevention method centers around common high risk factors in strokes. They include hypertension, diabetes, heart disease and hyperlipidemia, which is described as an excess of fat in the blood.

Also considered high risk factors are extracranial arterial stenosis, commonly called a clogged artery around the brain, and polycythemia, which is an excess of red corpuscles in the blood.

While those are known factors leading to strokes, Leonberg added that a number of possible factors may not lead directly to strokes, but will increase susceptibility to them.

Nixes Cigarettes

These other factors are emotional stress, cigarette smoking, obesity and hyperuricemia, an excess of uric acid in the blood.

Both doctors told their overweight and cigarette smoking patients to stop their damaging activity. Leonberg claimed that they all had stopped smoking and tried to diet.

"We have no direct evidence that cigarette smoking or obesity causes cerebral infraction, but it does cause heart infarction." Leonberg added that any form of heart disease could lead to stroke.

Doc "Rant and Rave"

"When someone comes in overweight I rant and rave and put them on diets," he said, "but it's hard to get a 60-year-old person at 204 pounds to lose weight. But some do get skinny."

The 46-year-old Leonberg tried continually to get stroke victims to understand the importance of checkups, dieting, not smoking and reducing stress.

He told of a carpenter who suffered a transient ischemic attack, what might be called a mini-stroke, and refused treatment after the initial stroke was over.

A Little Stroke

He had been watching television when he felt a numbness on one side of his body. After lying down for about 30 minutes the numbness cleared up. The carpenter had just undergone a stroke, a small one, but nonetheless a warning.

A small area of his brain lacked oxygen for the half-hour period. Leonberg said that 99 per cent of the deficiency improved, but the man's chances of having another one were good. The next time, Leonberg said, he might have a "big, bad attack."

"Some people are looking for a miracle drug," Elliot said, "but they'll never find one."

Cinema Review: Bang Drum Slowly

BANG THE DRUM SLOWLY is an unpretentious, honestly delineated story of human relationships as told on the baseball diamond, in the locker room, in the bars and inns where the players congregate.

Although it is virile and realistic in its approach to the arcane world of professional athletics, there is a human quality which hits the average film-goer. You don't have to follow the fortunes of the Red Sox to understand it.

Michael Moriarty plays a successful pitcher who refuses to sign for the coming year unless his roommate, a crude, unpopular player who is never destined to be a world-beater on the team, be given a new contract.

There are numerous wisecracks from the players; financial opposition from the front office. The secret is that his protege, Bruce Pearson, cannot live much longer.

A simple story, but under the eloquent direction of John Hancock the film is turned into a compassionate, often hilarious tale of life and its companionate condition of death. Also outstanding is Vincent Gardenia as Dutch Schenil, the club's manager. Gruff, sarcastic, over-rising as a boss, Gardenia gets the best out of every brusque line as written by the gifted Mark Harris.

WOMEN IN OFFICE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Figures compiled by the Texas Women's Political Caucus show that women hold 6.4 per cent of the elective offices in the state. Of the 18,309 elected officials, 1,174 are women.

PRISON AGE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The 1973 median age of inmates in California state prisons is 30.4 years, with 21.9 per cent under 25 years of age. Ten years ago the median age was 32, with only 18.4 under 25.

TEXAS RANGERS

WACO, Tex. (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says there will always be a need for the famed Texas Rangers law enforcement agency.

"They are needed now more than ever before," he said. "As long as there are some who would take the lives and property of others, there is a need for the best law enforcement agency possible. The Texas Rangers have proved throughout their history that they are the best."

Paula Prentiss And Richard Benjamin Don't Talk Like The Film Stars They Are

cinema updated

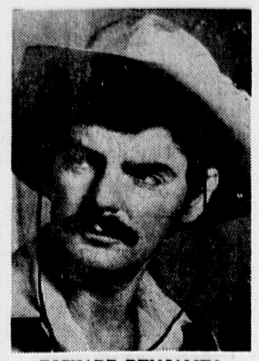
by Marjory Adams

PAULA PRENTISS



RICHARD BENJAMIN

They didn't look-or-talk-like film stars. Paula Prentiss and Richard Benjamin were just a nice young couple, having late breakfast with a friend in their Ritz-Carlton suite and going into giggles regarding their earlier romantic and professional experience.

Paula didn't wear a smidgen of make-up because this was not a scheduled newspaper interview — "I just wanted to see you," was her charming excuse for breaking into what could be called a personal appearance chore on the part of her neatly attired husband. As for Benjamin, he was ready for TV, radio, and mass luncheon, which Paula passed up, letting the MGM press agent take over.

Benjamin was in Boston because his film, "Westworld" was due. It is considered one of the most exciting new cinema ventures of the year, in that it was written and directed by the new genius, Michael Crichton, and because Benjamin, a relatively new star in the Hollywood firmament, shares honors with Yul Brynner, who is now reaching the eminence of being considered a top money veteran.

An unusual combination, except that both men have played varied roles calling for versatility of characterization.

Later in the day Benjamin was to say once more that he'd like to change his screen image (such as the one he played in "Portnoy's Complaint") and he admitted he liked much better the sophistication of what he did in his recent "The Last of Sheila."

Dick began a love affair with the public when he appeared in "Goodbye Columbus" with Ali McGraw. Then came "The Diary of a Mad Housewife," "The Steagle" and "Marriage of a Young Stockbroker." O course he has been in the theatre and on TV.

In fact he was with Myrna Loy on the Colonial stage in 1964 in "Barefoot in the Park." He had last been on the Broadway stage in "Star Spangled Girl" in 1967, if you forget, as he prefers to do, the illfated 1971 "Little Black Book."

Paula says she knew she had a winner in the profession when they were both studying drama at Northwestern University. "But he didn't pay any attention to me," said the girl who was soon to be one of MGM's favorite stock stars.

"I used to try every trick I knew, but all he cared about was the theatre and his part in it. I finally came up with an idea. I suggested to him that our class put on "The Disenchanted" — you remember it's about Scott Fitzgerald and his wife, Zelda — and I captured the role of Zelda. He directed. I asked his advice on everything and told him how much I admired him as a director.

But it wasn't until the night of the very successful opening of "The Disenchanted" that I got up my courage. As he walked me home I told him I was really in love with him. I don't remember what he said at all. I was in a daze."

She then gave the Evanston address where they finished the romantic conversation. Dick grinned. He couldn't have said where but he did know what he said. And that Paula, not accustomed to liquor, had celebrated at the opening night party with copious glasses of champagne.

But it was not the handsome Benjamin who was first rushed into important places in the glamorous world they yearned to become part of.

Paula was given a seven-year contract with MGM and became very popular with the public in undistinguished yet successful and entertaining films like "Follow the Boys" and "Where the Boys Are."

That was in the early '60's. Because whe was ill Paula had only five years under MGM contract, but she says now, "It's amusing. When people mention my husband they refer to one particular film he has made. When they mention me they think of me as a 'Hollywood star' who has played in every type of role, but who is more a familiar face than a special personality."

And even with Benjamin now far better known than she is, Paula is still making pictures and is in Dino DeLaurentiis' new production, "Crazy Joe."

When MGM took Paula abroad to make her first film there, she had to work hard and use what influence she had in the studio to get her husband, so far a nonentity in the theatre, into the cast. He was assigned to play an admiral's aide.

With it went a very tiny salary, but the contract called for weekly expenses of $500. "One week's work was all i got — they wrote out the role," mourned Dick. "But my contract still paid $500 a week expenses and I made the most of it seeing Europe."

"My wife got phone calls, invitations, dinner dates, all kinds of attention," said Benjamin. "Nobody ever called for anything."

"But how different when I went with you when you made "The Last of Sheila" on the Riviera," broke in Paula. "Nobody ever bothered to call, or recognize I existed. After all, there were plenty of alluring women in the cast like Raquel Welch, Joan Hackett and Dyan Cannon. But it was a tables-turned episode."

It seemed about time to ask Benjamin about "Westworld" which has an off-beat story of an astounding pleasure resort on a much more sophisticated level than Disneyland. Yul Brynner plays a robot, of all things, but a robot who can fight and kill.

Benjamin looked up to Brynner as a very knowledgible actor, who certainly knew his way around guns and other death dealing weapons. All Dick had ever done was acquire realism with a spear or a bow and arrow in his early theatrical days.

Yul walked over to Dick. "I'm going to teach you how to use a gun," he said. "You've got to look good doing it." And so he rehearsed Benjamin until he really appeared a professional.

"So many actors would have been delighted to see some other actor awkward and inefficient," said Benjamin. "They enjoy showing up the rest of the cast. But not Yul."

Regarding Michael Crichton, Benjamin has reached the place where he can afford to turn down roles he is apprehensive about. And here was a director who had never directed before.

"But when I talked with him first I realized that this man is in touch with himself. He is calm. I could trust his judgement."

When Benjamin was told to be afraid — that's when Brynner is gunning him down — Crichton advised, "Be afraid. But don't be anxious. Make the audience know you are a man who can be afraid, but that you can be trusted to handle the situation."

Dick is in his early 30's as is Paula. Of the two the husband has had the harder time getting ahead. He has more than once worked in kitchens to get his meals. At Northwestern he was a kitchen worker in a dormitory holding 500 girls. His special job was to cook them breakfast.

Fixing Things, Also A Women's Job

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Homeowner or apartment dweller, woman alone or married to a handyman husband, there are some basic mechanical skills any woman should master.

"Woman's liberation may have given her freedom, but it hasn't equipped her to fix a running toilet," says William D. Sally of Baird & Warner, Inc.

Sally is vice president and general manager of Baird & Warner's property management division, responsible for the management of thousands of apartments in the Chicago area.

He says his experience with women tenants living alone—whether unmarried, divorced or widowed—convinces him any woman should have at least a basic knowledge of household mechanics. Even the gal with a handy, and willing, husband or boyfriend, will find that household crises don't always occur when he's around to solve them.

"Not that there's anything innate about a woman's inability to cope with simple household mechanics," says Sally. "It's just that most women haven't learned to make simple repairs, and many are afraid to tackle a job as uncomplicated as replacing a broken light bulb."

(To handle that problem: turn off the light switch, then use a pair of pliers with insulated handles to remove the base of the bulb from the socket.)

Simple Tools

Sally urges the would be handywoman to get herself a set of simple tools—even if hubby has a well equipped workshop, it's better to have your own. A minimum includes hammer, screwdriver and pliers. Ask a friendly hardware dealer to help you choose. A sturdy ladder or stepstool is another must; no makeshift telephone book on a chair arrangement. There are other things you will want to add as you go along.

He suggests every woman:

—Learn where the circuit breaker or fuse box is and how to restore an interrupted circuit. In new apartments, the circuit breaker is located in a closet; in older buildings the fuse box probably will be in the hallway or basement. In private homes, they are located in basement or utility room or closet.

An overload on the electrical system will trip the circuit breaker or blow a fuse. First, disconnect some appliances or turn out some lights. Then push the circuit breaker button to restore service, or replace the fuse—it's as simple as replacing a light bulb. Just be sure to have replacement fuses of the proper amperage on hand. Never use too large a fuse. If the system goes again, call for professional help.

Investigate Innards

—Investigate the innards of the toilet tank. Sometimes all it takes to stop a running toilet is to jiggle the handle.

"If the toilet continues to run," Sally explains, "lift off the top of the tank and see if the rubber valve is stuck. This valve looks like a sawed-off rubber ball, and fits over a hole in the bottom of the tank. It may get stuck in lifted position, permitting water to continue flowing out of the tank. If you poke around with your finger, that may be enough to let the ball fall into place."

—Buy and use a "plumber's helper." This is a toilet plunger —a big rubber suction cup on the end of a handle about three feet long. "Every home should have one," Sally sais. "If a toilet bowl gets stopped up, put the plunger in the bowl and work it up and down quickly a few times. The combination of suction and pressure usually will be enough to dislodge whatever is causing the stoppage."

If a toilet is running over, the first thing to do is turn off the water supplying the tank. Usually there's a valve underneath the tank. If there isn't, find out where the water shutoff is.

Proper Usage

—Learn to use appliances properly. Strange as it may seem, Sally says, many women don't know how to use even the ordinary kitchen equipment. Reading instructions is the first order—even for something as simple as a refrigerator. Different makes and models have minor differences. If instructions are missing, write to the manufacturer, including model number.

—Keep sink drains free of grease, fat and hair. The best way to cope with stopped-up drains is to avoid them in the first place. As much as possible avoid disposing of grease or fat in the sink. When doing dishes, Sally says, "run a stream of hot water into the sink to keep any grease and fat fluid and permit it to be washed out of the trap."

Tub and shower drains usually are clogged by hair. Use a strainer basket to catch most of this—and to avoid loss of rings, bobby pins, etc. Regular use of drain cleaner will keep drains clean, Sally says, but be sure to read and follow directions carefully. Most drain cleaners are extremely caustic and dangerous chemicals. Do not use them around children or pets.

You might want to add to your kit a plumber's snake which can be worked down clogged drains to clear obstructions.

From these fundamentals, many a woman may want to go on to other fix-it jobs, tightening loose handles and switchplates, hanging pictures, replacing an electric cord plug.

Sally suggests, however, that the proverbial dripping faucet be left for someone with experience. It shouldn't be tackled at any rate unless you can shut off water to the fixture. Most newer sinks have shut-off valves on the pipe. "Even then," he says, "know what your're doing or you're apt to wind up with a minor flood."

Former Transcript Employee To Receive Honorary Degree

Recipient of one of three honorary degrees to be bestowed by Stonehill College, Easton, in connection with the dedication of the college's $1.3 million College Center Friday evening is Malcolm Y. MacKinnon, a Massachusetts labor leader and member of the State Board of Higher Education.

The dedication and Presidential Dinner on Friday night are part of a two-day celebration of the college's 25th anniversary. On Oct. 12, 1948 Stonehill College was formally dedicated.

MacKinnon, now a resident of Millis, but formerly of Westwood and Dedham, is being honored for his role in higher education and leadership in the organized labor movement, is a veteran of 30 years in the printing trade. He is currently president and business agent of the Boston Typographical Union No. 13. Before being elected president six years ago, he was the union's vice president and assistant business agent for four years.

Besides his work on the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education, MacKinnon has been active in the field of labor education. He has been a lecturer on labor relations at Harvard University and Boston College and has held a seat on the advisory council of the school of industrial relations for the Archdiocese of Boston.

Former chairman of the Millis Town Personnel Board, the union leader has sat on the Master Tax Plan Commission of Massachusetts.

Before becoming an official of the Typographical Union, MacKinnon was a linotype operator at The Transcript in Dedham for many years.

Soccer Talk

By PAUL ELDRIDGE, JR.

Babson College is not what you would call a "Soccer Power House." But, it is seeking its sixth straight winning season this Fall. The 1972 team had the best season yet for Babson soccer, with a 13-2-2 record. It also had three New England records for defensive play (least goals allowed by a team in one season, six in 17 games, most shutouts by a team in one season — 10; and most shutouts by a goalie, Shane Kennedy — 10.)

This year is more or less a rebuilding year for Babson. Three starters, including 1970 All-New England fullback Bill Rogers, were lost through graduation.

Goalie Shane Kennedy has decided not to return to school and last year's leading scorer, Kim Hansen, has decided not to play soccer this season. But don't feel too sorry for Coach Bob Hartwell, he does have six returning starters and another seven returning lettermen. Hartwell, by the way, was named 1972 New England College Division Soccer Coach of the year by the New England Intercollegiate Soccer League.

"We have a veteran team with five senior starters," said Hartwell. "Based on last year's performance we will be expecting a great deal from Captain Jim Maguire of Quincy, sophomore Jim Powers of Needham, juniors Mark Barry from Braintree, and Dale Hollingsworth of Westport, Conn."

Hartwell expects two transfer students to help the team's offensive punch. Bob Hartley of Braintree and John Anderson from Chatham, N. J., should give Babson added depth on the forward line.

The team's best freshman prospect, according to Hartwell, is goalie Dennis Donahue of Wellesley. He performed well during pre-season and will be counted on heavily.

Bob Hartwell's philosophy on coaching is this, "I don't get paid to win; I get paid to teach. And the players don't just play to win; they play to learn. Sure, we try to win and win more than we lose. But college sports are, or should be, teaching and learning more than winning and losing. Values count more than records. It's the values I try to get across." A lot of coaches along with the alumni should have the same philosophy.

Hartwell attended the University of Connecticut and was All-New England selection in his junior and senior years. In 1967, he was appointed varsity soccer and swimming coach and Director of Physical Education at Babson. His six year record for soccer is 47-25-9.

In the past five years, Babson has produced four All-New England players and three were named to the New England Intercollegiate Soccer League College Division All-Star Team.

Kathleen O'Connor Is National Merit Scholar

A letter of commendation honoring her for her high performance on the 1972 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT-NMSQT) has been awarded to Kathleen O'Connor of 35 Chiswick Road, Brighton, a student at Mount Alvernia High School, Newton.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) has named 38,000 commended students throughout the United States. These students are among the upper two percent of those who are expected to graduate from high school in 1974.

Edward C. Smith, president of NMSC, said: "The high standing of commended students in the Merit Program competition shows that they have great promise for continued success in college.

"Although commended students advance no further in the Merit Scholarship competition, their attainment in this nationwide program deserves public recognition," he stated.

"The commended students should be encouraged to make every effort to continue their education and both these students and our nation will benefit from their continuing educational and personal development," he added.

To increase their scholarship opportunities commended students' names are reported to the colleges they named as their first and second choices when they took the PSAT-NMSQT in October, 1972.

Welcome

Middlesex College Offers Nurses' Refresher Course

Middlesex Community College's Division of Community Service is about to offer a six-week "Refresher Course For Nurses," according to an announcement by resident James E. Houlihan, Jr., of the college.

The 92-hour program, developed under the direction of Associate Dean for Program Development and Community Service Frederic B. Viaux, is designed for registered nurses licensed in the United States who are presently inactive or on limited activity.

Modern concepts of Adult Medical - Surgical Nursing will be explored with emphasis in pathophysiology and medication. # Gubernatorial Candidate Speaks To Local Dentists

Former Representative Michael S. Dukakis will speak about "New Directions in Health Care" at a meeting of the Charles River Dental Society on Tuesday, Oct. 16, at 6:30 at the Woodland Country Club in Newton.

Dukakis, who had announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor on Oct. 1, has been one of the state's leading advocates of better health care for all citizens. He has pointed out the deficiencies of the existing health care delivery system, which he says, is increasingly unable to provide basic primary health care to those who need it.

He has favored the establishment of a series of regional health centers which would operate on a prepaid basis, with patients paying a monthly fee for membership rather than paying medical bills as they arise. Such a plan would eliminate the possiblity that a family could be financially decimated by a major accident or illness.

Dukakis himself is a member of the Harvard Community Health Plan, which provides prepaid medical care.

Dukakis has been a prominent public figure in Massachusetts since 1962, when he was first elected to the House of Representatives from Brookline. His work to streamline state government and improve the services it provides to consumers has won him widespread respect across the Commonwealth. In 1967, a poll of his legislative colleagues showed that they considered him to be the most outstanding legislator of the year.

In his quest for statewide office in 1974, Dukakis has put special emphasis on several issues, including the establishment of a new system to select and remove judges.

He also stressed the issues of crime and public security; better public transportation in all parts of the state, including assistance to local bus operations; and an economic and job development program for Massachusetts which would emphasize economic development in older urban areas of higher unemployment.

Dukakis is a native of Brookline and a graduate of Brookline High School, Swarthmore College and Harvard Law School. He is married to the former Katherine Dickson, daughter of Boston Pops Associate Conductor Harry Ellis Dickson. They are the parents of three children and live in Brookline.

The father of five children, he is well known in Newton civic circles and is a member of the Board of Directors of the People's Federal Savings & Loan Association in Brighton Centre.

What does your cigarette have to say for itself?

If it's Kent, it says a lot.

"Taste." A mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

"Quality." Kent is probably the most quality-tested cigarette made. (Over 200 quality checks in the manufacturing end, alone.)

"Tobacco." We go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find the milder, lower-leaf tobaccos for Kent.

"Freshness." We pack Kent at the optimum freshness level and then overwrap the pack with a special cellophane that keeps it fresh.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Kings: 16 mg. "tar," 1.1 mg. nicotine; 100's: 19 mg. "tar," 1.2 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette, FTC Report Sept. '73.

Nature's Ways

How well I recall seeing a snowy egret in the small marsh across Route 3A from the Hingham police station about 25 years ago. I jumped from the car, zeroed in the 7X50 binoculars, and stared in wonder and half-belief. In fact, my surprise was such that I had disregarded a bit of mechanics of automobiling that no longer exists. In those days one could accidentally lock the driver's door and in my panic I achieved the status of lockout. In less than an hour of fiddling with hunting knife and coat hanger, I succeeded in re-entering the car.

I mention the incident because Wayne Petersen of Abington was amazed a few nights ago when he counted 776 snowy egrets standing in the shallows of the north impoundment at the Parker River National Wildlife Refuge. But not so amazed that he would have locked himself out of his car, even if that were possible.

Petersen, of course, had a forewarning that something of that magnitude was likely to be encountered at the refuge on Plum Island. A week earlier, Paul Donahue of Winchester counted 270 snowies at the impoundment and then, five days later, counted 573.

Perhaps the snowy egret counts to be appreciated should be compared to E.H. Forbush's report on the bird 50 years ago: "Distribution in New England—Accidental visitor in Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut; now practically extirpated."

Or, with the late Ludlow Griscom's report of 20 years ago listing the snowy as "now a regular summer visitor in small numbers." Griscom noted that three snowy egrets had been collected in Massachusetts between 1862 and 1897 and only six were reported between 1926 and 1947.

In roaming around New England this summer, I have noted an occasional great egret and a few snowy egrets along the coast from Maine through Connecticut. Indeed, snowy egrets now breed in New England in small numbers.

The egrets overrunning Plum Island, however, did not for the most part spend the summer in New England. They are birds from the south, many from the deep south. Now that egrets no longer linger on the verge of extinction, the more normal population of the south does what it did in colonial days. After the breeding season, the birds fan out to the north and exploit the aquatic life in northern pools. It gives them a much broader base of food support.

Egrets are not the only herons that seem to have done well in the last decade. From many parts of New England, but especially from along the coast, there have been many reports in late summer of such birds as Louisiana herons, little blue herons, and the closely-related glossy ibises.

Newton High Bombards Weymouth North 36-6

BY ROBERT LOW

Rebounding from an embarrassing 35-7 defeat suffered at the hands of Brockton, Newton High's football taam walloped Weymouth North, 36-6 at Dickinson Field this Monday. The Tigers' running attack consistently penetrated the Weymouth defense while Newton's defense forced Weymouth's offense into six turnovers.

Newton fumbled on their first possession, to give Weymouth North the ball on Newton's 33. However, on the next play Weymouth North also bobbled the ball and Newton recovered on their 38.

SPORTS

Frank Wall - Sports Editor

From there the Tigers marched 62 yards in eleven plays for a touchdown. The drive was capped on a nine yard pass from Cal Moffie to Gerry Keleher who was standing wide open on the two. Keleher caught the pass and ran in for the score. Bill Seaward's point after was good, and the quarter ended with Newton up, 7-0.

In the second period, the Tigers put the game out of reach. Newton's strategy of hitting short, high kickoffs paid off, as Weymouth North failed to handle Seward's boot, and Newton got possession on the 43 yard line. But a holding penalty and a fifteen yard loss, forced Newton into a third down and 41 situation, on which they tried a quick kick, that netted 49 yards.

Tigers Roll Up 29-0 Halftime Edge

From there Newton marched in on seven running plays for another touchdown. Gerry Kelliher accounted for 47 yards in the drive, and finished it off by scoring on a great six yard run. The Tigers then made a two point conversion, when holder Pete Berquist decided to run with the ball following a high snap from center, and raced in for a score.

After holding Weymouth North once again, Newton got the ball in good field position on Weymouth's 44. Three plays later they capitalized on the opportunity on a freakish 33 yard touchdown pass. Cal Moffie's long pass bounced right out of the arms of one Newton receiver, and into the arms of John Connelly who happened to be standing a few yards behind. Bill Seward's extra point try was good, and made the score 22-0.

The Tiger defense set up another score, as Art Murphy recovered a fumble just inside Weymouth North's 25. Gerry Keleher scored his third touchdown five plays later, on a five yard run. Seaward's kick put Newton ahead 29-0 at the half.

Weymouth North Breaks Shutout

Newton mishandled the second half kickoff, to hand Weymouth North their best scoring chance of the game. Weymouth recovered the ball on Newton's 22, and drove in for a score on an eleven yard touchdown pass from Keefe to Liset. The try for two points failed when Keefe was stacked up inches shy of the goalline.

Weymouth North tried another squib kick, but the Tigers held onto this one, on their 29. Moffie and Bob Kinsella then combined to lead the team 71 yards in eight plays, aided by two major penalties against Weymouth North. Kinsella's pass to Ed Hartunian, who caught the ball inches off the ground, capped the drive. The kick by Seaward was good, and Newton led 36-6.

Fourth Quarter Scoreless

There was no further scoring in the fourth quarter as the Tigers forced three turnovers, and kept the play on Weymouth North's side of the field. The Tigers had a couple of scoring chances, but an interception by Bean and penalties helped kill their drives. The game ended with Newton in possession and threatening again. The final score was a convincing. 36-6.

It was a tremendous effort by the Tigers who seemed able to do nothing right just one week earlier. Gerry Keleher had a great game with over 100 yds. rushing and three touchdowns, while the defense stymied the Weymouth North offense consistently.

The win increased Newton's record to 2-1 overall. They are away this week, but then return home to play Arlingtin on October 20.

N.A.A. Lions Roll On

Well, the game was expected to be a real prize and that is exactly what it was. If you were there, you witness a real donnybrook that would be indicative of two undefeated teams battling for first place in the Suburban League of Pop Warner Football.

Yes, the Lions defeated the Sudbury Warriors by a score of 20-6. But, if you are a real die-hard Lion fan, you may have thought that Sudbury would blow the N.A.A.ers' off the map after watching the first period.

The composure and poise ingredients that must be a part of any team emulating champions certainly was visible as the Lions overcame all odds and went on to hand Sudbury their first defeat this season.

Sudbury kicked off and the N.A.A. Lions return unit had trouble handling the ball and eventually covered it at the nine. Two plays later the Lions fumbled away the ball on their own 12. Enter please the ghighly regarded defensive unit which in Act I held the Warriors including a big 4th and two at the four. However, the offensive unit appeared to be "over up" and tight, and fumbled again on the 13.

Aided by an off side penalty, Sudburys Mike Sheridan blasted over from the one. The score did not come easy however, as it took the Warriors 5 plays to go 12 yards.

The ensuing kick off was again difficult to handle and the Lions were forced to put the ball into play from the 18. Three plays later fumblitis struck, this time at the 25. On an attempted quick-count play Sudbury had apparently scored, but had the play nullified for illegal procedure.

The Lion defense stiffened and forced Sudbury to pass deep. Newton's Rich Proia intercepted the ball at the 16 and raced it back to the 24. This type of field position was too good to be true . . . Yes, it was, a clipping infraction was detected at the 16 and instead of a first and 10 at the 24, it was first and 10 at the eight.

Quarterback, Brian Kinsella attempted to throw a first down bomb to Steve Fleming, but an oncoming lineman blocked the pass straight into the air and nearly intercepted. It was at this time, with things being gloomiest, and momentum with Sudbury that the Lions settled down. Rich Proia swept end for 10 yards to launch a 92 yard, 14 play scoring drive. A feature play in the drive was a Proia to Fleming pass which covered 20 yards. Fleming made a good play coming back for the ball. The Lions continued on the ground in the second period moving to Sudbury's 21 where it appeared a 4th and 9 situation might halt the drive.

But, Brian Kinsella dropped to pass and then handed off to Steve Fleming on the old "Statue" play and Steve streaked to the three where he bowled over a would-be tackler for the score. Paul Butters threw the big block in the backfield enabling Fleming to skirt the end. Both Fleming and end Shawn Daley were shaken up on the play and were removed from the game.

The Lion defense however was really coming and giving up yardage grudgingly. Sudburys gamble on a 4th and 1 at the Newton 42 was unsuccessful as Rover back Rich Proia and end Jack Forti fired into the back field for the stop.

It appeared as tho the momentum was beginning to change in favor of the N.A.A., but time was running out in the half. Faced with a long passing situation via a 15 yard penalty, halfback Rich Proia threw a strike to end Shawn Daley who slipped behind the defenders, but Shawn was hampered by a slight leg injury and was eventually hauled down from behind. The play covered 42 yards, but left only 2 seconds in the half, time enough for an unsuccessful desperation pass. The score at half was 6-6 and it was still anyones game.

In the second half, the Lions kicked off and the defense immediately stopped the Warriors. On a key 4th and 1 at mid-field, tackle Mike Hernandez broke through to nail the Warriors ball carrier. However, on the first play, the Lions relinquished the ball for the 4th time via the fumble route.

Again the Warriors were unable to move and eventually punted to the Lions. From their own 37, they started to drive featured by the quick sneak by quarterback Brian Kinsella and some fine slashing timely running by fullback Barry Gale. However the Lions were assessed penalties in the vicinity of the Sudbury 20 nullifying the scoring threat.

The Warriors did manage to move the ball out to the 40 where another 4th and 1 confrontation took place. Again Mike Hernandez broke through with help from Barry Gale and middleguard Pete Boisvert.

On the Lions first play, halfback Steve Fleming broke 45 yards for a score, only to have it brought bsck for a clip, but the Lions did manage to notch the go ahead score on this drive.

PROIA SCORES

The Warriors were pressed to pass and Rich Proia picked off his second pass of the day and returned it 41 yards for an apparant score, but a pass interference call gave Sudbury a first down at the 41.

On an attempted throw back, defensive end Glenn Errickson stepped between the intended receiver for an interception. The Lions ran out the clock to preserve the victory.

A key to the ground assault was good balance in the backfield. Proia had 90 yards in 17 carries; Fleming had 62 yards in 10 carries; fullback Barry Gale had 28 yards in 6 carries; and Quarterback Brian Kinsella had 22 yards in 5 carries. Both Gale and Kinsella carried in short yardage situations. Gale also had a great day blocking for Fleming and Proia.

DEFENSE SHINES

The defensive unit which responded so well to pressure included ends Jack Forti and Glenn Errickson, tackles Joe Donahue and Mike Hernandez who had the best game this season, middleguards Pete Boisvert, Dave Mosca and Andy Toyias. Linebackers Fleming, Gale and 12 year old Rich Fuller who did an excellent job for his first start at that position. Roverback Rich Proia had an excellent day, as did the versatile Paul Butters, Jim Quinn and Shawn Daley.

This is the first time ever (5 years) the N.A.A. Lions have been in undisputed possession of first place. Next week the Lions and Tigers travel to Wellesley High School to play a non-league affair with the Tornadoes.

RESULTS

N.A.A. Lions 20, Sudbury 6.
Brookline 6, Newton Pats 0.
Concord 20, Waltham 14.

South Runners Are Ready

By RANDY GRODMAN

The Newton South Cross Country Team has spent the past week getting in shape. They had their only meet this week on Wednesday, October 3, against Bedford and Lincoln-Sudbury.

Running in the rain on Bedford's 2.7 mile course, South managed to beat Lincoln-Sudbury 26-30, but dropped to Bedford by the score of 32-26.

Bedford had a 3-5 record going into the meet, and a weak Lincoln-Sudbury team has been defeated eight times, and remains winless Newton South's record now stands at a mediocre 3-6.

Finishing for South in the overall race were seniors Mike Shockett, placing second; Bob Lein, fifth; and capatin Byron Ress placed sixth. Sophomore Dennis Bauke and senior David Robinson were also among the scoring five Newton South runners.

Senior Ara Shishmanian also ran for the varsity. Junior Chris Capeless is still injured, and junior Jeff Karol couldn't attend the meet due to academic obligations.

Tiger Booters Win Pair

By ROBERT LOW

Displaying excellent ball control and defense, Newton High's soccer team racked up two wins as they finished the first half of their schedule. Both wins came on shutouts, giving the Tigers three consecutive whitewashes, and vaulted Newton to the top of the Suburban League standings.

The booters were faced with a crucial contest at home against Somerville on October 2, and responded by destroying the visitors, 6-0. Co-captains Rudi Viscomi (four goals), and goalie Mark Wasserman, who "played one of the best games of his career" according to Coach Mike Buzzi, led the effort.

Viscomi scored Newton's first three goals, the first coming as he tapped in a shot from close range. Later in the first period, he gained control of the ball about 30 feet in front, whirled, and kicked a bullet that found the far corner of the Somerville net.

He made the score 3-0 in the second period, when he scored on a clean breakaway that was set up by good hustling by Tom Burke. Joe Moussalli tallied later in the quarter to make it 4-0 at the half.

The second half featured some spectacular goaltending by Wasserman and two more Newton goals. On three separate occasions in the third quarter, Wasserman was forced to make diving stops. Meanwhile, Vicomi scored again, this time heading in a fine pass from Phil Rosenblatt.

Ricky Olin took over in goal and preserved the shutout in the final period. Stu Brightman scored his first goal of the season, by banging home a penalty kick to make the final, Newton 6, Somerville 0.

A pleased Coach Buzzi commented "we were sky high for them. It was a total team effort."

After the big win over Somerville, the Tigers had trouble getting up for Rindge on October 4, but still managed to score a 2-0 victory.

Rudi Viscomi scored very early in the first period, and Tom Burke, set up on a good pass from Doug Giron, scored late in the second to give Newton a 2-0 lead.

For the booters, it was their third straight win, all by shutouts. Coach Buzzi was "very pleased" by the week's play and said "we're starting to get to that point I said we would. We're getting stronger each day, and living up to my expectations."

The J.V. meanwhile, rolled up their ninth straight win without a loss, by defeating Newton South, 2-1.

So playing better than ever, and perched atop the Suburban League, the Newton High Soccer Team enters the second half of the season confident of being able to gain a playoff position.

South Gridders Sink Rindge 8-6

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

The Lions bounced back after taking two embarrassing shut out defeats to decision Rindge Tech. by a score of 8-6. The game was played on Friday, October 5th at Russell Field in Cambridge.

The Lion's opponents, the Rindge Tech. Warriors were lucky to have made it that close. Newton South completely outplayed Rindge on both offense and defense by a considerable margin.

The Lions first score came when early in the first period a high snap to punter, Wayne Collins sailed over his head enabling South to recover on the Rindge 24 yard line. On second and ten from the 24, halfback Peter Nathanson took a handoff from quarterback, Jeff Lawson and galloped to the 12 yard line. From there it was all Walter Fatini. After two runs carried big Walt to the one yard line, he finally banged it over for the first Lion touchdown of the year. Bob Lipson's extra point was blocked.

There was no more scoring for either team until early in the fourth period. This time a bad snap rocketed over Collins head into the end zone giving south a safety. With about four minutes left everyone felt assured of a South victory. Rindge had the ball on their own 30 yard line when senior halfback Roger Reddick burst up the middle for 70 yards and a Rindge touchdown. Quarterback Collins was dumped by Rick Taranto trying to convert a two point conversion.

With an 8-6 lead and about three minutes left the 15 or so faithful Lion's fans figured the game was definitely in the bag. Again it was not to be the case. With the clock showing about a minute left to play Scott Groper punted for the Lions. His punt got caught in the wind and was shanked short to the right.

Quarterback Collins took over on his own 25 yard line. On first down he completed a pass over the middle which Joe Carvelli took at the 50 yard line before Kevin Hoban caught up to him to bring him down on the 10 yard line. On first down Collins dropped back again and fired into the end zone right into Kevin Hoban's hands to ice the victory for South. It was the second interception for Hoban of the game.

WINKLER PLEASED

Coach Winkler said after the game, "I'm very pleased to win; I think our team is ready to play some good football. I'm also pleased that the offense moved the ball today. Even though, I'm a little disappointed we didn't score two or three touchdowns." Three times the Lions couldn't score from inside the 15 yard line. On one drive the offense were stopped on downs at the Rindge 3 yard line. Other times the Lions fell just short. Coach Winkler summed it up the best when he used the familiar phrase, "Football is a game of inches."

DEFENSE GLITTERS

The defense again was superb. Outside of the 70 yard run by Roger Reddick, the Rindge offense was contained all afternoon. Linebackers Aaron Moynahan and Greg Moan played tremendous football throughout the game. Line Coach Aredis Kojoyian says that Moynahan and Moan are the best linebackers Newton South has ever had. In the defensive line strong performances were handed in by Dennis Anastasia who recovered a big fumble, Rick Taranto, Bob Taglienti, Matt Sabetti, Haskell Kingston and Peter Maples. The three South defensive backs Kevin Hoban, Tony Lombardo and Art Murphy also played strong games.

The most encouraging thing to watch was the offensive line. In the past two games the offensive line wasn't opening up too many holes at all. Against Rindge it was a different story. The offensive line was opening up holes for Kevin Hoban, Peter Nathanson and Walter Fatini all afternoon.

TWO STARS

The two big stars for the Lions were Kevin Hoban and Walter Fatini. Kevin did everything; he returned punts; he made a game saving tackle; he ran the ball well and most important were his two interceptions. You just can't ask anything more from a person. Walter Fatini who is nicknamed "Shaboo" by his teammates ran like a mack truck all afternoon. He was the main reason why the Lions offense moved so well. Walter was sorely missed in the first two games the Lions played. Big number 40 was breaking tackles with ease all afternoon.

BIG LIFT

This game was a tremendous lift for the Lions. They needed this win very badly and they fought hard to get it. It should start the Lions on the upswing for the rest of the season. It should also give the players a great amount of confidence.

Next Saturday at Newton High the Lions entertain Concord Carlisle. I predict this one to be another tough defensive battle with the Lions winning by six points and evening their record at 2-2. The Lions have received terrible support from their fans so come out and cheer them on!

SCORING

Rindge Tech 0 0 0 6 - 6

Newton South 6 0 0 2 - 8

Newton South - Fatini, 1 run, kick failed.

Newton South - two point safety, (out of the end zone)

Rindge Tech - Reddick 70 run, conversion failed

Xaverian Belts Williams

By PAUL BROOKS

With Rick Curran rushing for 86 yards and Paul Sweeney scoring two touchdowns, the Xaverian Hawks downed Archbishop Williams, 28-14. Paul Murphy also chipped in with 75 yards rushing and a touchdown. Paul Converse completed two out of three passes, one of them being a seven yard toss to end John Dunn, to round out the scoring for Xaverian. As for Williams, Bill Cameran scored from 20 yards out on a sweep, and Paul Morrissey passed to Steve Finnegan for the Bishops scores.

The offense for both sides took awhile to get going, as the defense starred until late in the first period, when Xaverian started their first scoring drive of the game.

After each team had it for two sets of downs, and had failed in scoring, Xaverian got it at their own 41. Paul Converse was at quarterback, and the Hawks marched 59 yards in 10 plays.

Rick Curran got the handoff on first down, and bulled his way to the 46 of Xaverian, a five yard gain. After no gain on second down, Paul Murphy found some daylight and bolted to the 36 of Williams, an 18 yard gain, and a first down for the Hawks. Rick Curran gave Xaverian another first down as he burst 16 yards to the 20. Murphy moved the Hawks closer to the goal line on the next two plays, as he brought it to the 13. On third down from the thirteen, Paul Sweeney brought it to the ten, inches away from a first down. Paul Converse pulled the quarterback sneak, and got down to the nine for a first down. After Murphy took it to the seven, Converse found John Dunn open in the end zone for a touchdown and a 6-0 lead. Kevin Coughlin added the extra point, and the Hawks led 7-0.

Xaverian kicked and on the return, Brian Bagley brought it eleven yards from his own thirty to the 41 of Xaverian. After an incomplete pass on first down, Bill Cameron trucked it nine yards to the fifty, where it was third and one. Brian Bagley took the handoff, and tried to go to the outside, but he was met by the Xaverian defense of Brian Hurley and John Dunn. They were forced to punt, and Xaverian had the ball on their own 34. But they didn't go anyplace either, as the Williams defense held them to four yards. Williams got the ball back, and here was their chance to do it. A carbon copy, of the previous set of downs, as Williams had it, third and one. They say lightning never strikes twice. But it did here as the Hawks held the Bishops and they were forced to punt.

SWEENEY SCORES

This time the Hawks did it, as they took the ball on the Xaverian 43, and went 57 yards in 11 plays. Paul Murphy got the call on first down, and brought it to the 47, a four yard gain. After an incomplete pass, Murphy, again took it, and went through the middle for a ten yard gain and a first down. Rick Curran brought it to the 40 for a three yard gain, and Murphy rambled to the 35, where it was third down and two yards to go. Curran got the first down as he bulled his way to the 29. After Murphy brought it eight yards to the 21, Curran got another first down, as he bolted to the 17. Paul Converse, the quarterback, decided to take the ball himself on first and ten, and picked himself up six yards to the eleven. With a first down within reach, guess who got the call? Rick Curran did, and he nearly scored, as he was thrown out of bounds at the one. Paul Sweeney got the first of his two touchdowns, as he ran through the front line of Williams, and into the end zone for a 13-0 lead. Kevin Coughlin booted it through the uprights, and the Hawks were in command, 14-0.

It stood that way, as the final minute ticked off for the end of the first half.

SECOND HALF

The Hawks kicked to start off the second half, and, as usual, held the Bishops. Williams was forced to punt and Paul Murphy took the punt at the Xaverian 30, and moved it to the 37 for a seven yard gain. This particular drive covered 63 yards in 18 plays, as Paul Converse was calling the plays well, outsmarting Williams.

Rick Curran received the handoff on first down, and bolted to the Xaverian 43, a six yard gain. Paul Sweeney gave Xaverian their eighth first down of the game, as he ate up five yards to the Xaverian 48. Paul Murphy ran the next two plays, covering eleven yards, giving Xaverian, yet, another first down. After a four yard gain, Curran bulled his way thirteen yards to the Williams 24 as the Hawks were making big progress. Converse couldn't find an open receiver on first down, so he ran it to the 18 for a six yard gain. After Sweeney brought it to the fifteen, Curran got the first down, by bulling his way to the nine. On first and goal to go, Paul Converse brought it to the six. Paul Sweeney managed to get it to the four, and Curran took it to the two. Paul Murphy rammed into and through the Williams front line, and went in with Xaverian's third score. On the snap for the extra point, the ball went to kicker Kevin Coughlin instead of holder Russ O'Brien, and Kev went to the outside, scoring on the conversion, and making the score 22-0.

Xaverian kicked once again, but Williams' drive was halted, and on fourth down, a pass by Williams was knocked down, so the Hawks had it on the Williams 46.

ANOTHER SCORE

Paul Sweeney got the call on first down, and took off for a twelve yard gain to the 34. Chris Fay was brought in, and trucked it to the 29, a five yard gain. Brian McMorrow ran the next five plays, eventually bringing it down to the two. "McMorrow ran very hard today", was head coach Frank DeFelice's opinion on the running back from Dedham. Paul Sweeney received the handoff on third and goal and went into the end zone for his second touchdown, and upping the score to 28-0. The kick failed, and the score remained.

Williams made fast time on their first scoring drive of the day, as they received the kickoff and went 63 yards in three plays. An average of 21 yards per play.

Recreation Commission Will Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Newton Recreation Commission will be held Monday (Oct. 15) at the Recreation Department offices at 70 Crescent St. in Auburndale at 7:45 p.m. The public is welcome.

To be discussed by the commission at this meeting will be a petition against lighting at the Newton Highlands playground, reconsideration of lighted municipal areas for teenage areas, use of indoor tennis courts at NSHS, a matter of transfer of Recreation land to the School Department for the Davis addition and a bicycle path report.

Unbeaten Memorial Hosts Durfee Saturday At 1:30

The 1973 Catholic Memorial football team will battle Durfee High School of Fall River this Saturday, October 13th, in a home contest at 1:30 p.m. This will be the second of only three home contests for the Memorial gridders this season.

The Knights boast an unblemished 3-0 record, and have displayed an awesome rushing attack under Head Coach-Athletic Director Jim O'Connor. O'Connor, who has molded many Memorial championships over the years, again is blessed this year with some fine football talent.

Leading the talented Memorial backfield, is All Conference halfback Dave Singleton, who leads all Memorial rushers with 292 total yards rushing in the three outings this season.

Goodman And Moore Lead Newton South Soccermen

By RANDY GRODMAN

Led by captains Billy Goodman and Andy Moore, the Newton South Soccer Team has been totally ineffective. What looked at first to be an all-league team now looks like a team struggling for a 6-6 record.

Noone can be more disappointed than the players themselves, for they were expecting to make the State Meets. The team has gotten together on several occasions to discuss strategy, and the general feeling has been that there are too many individuals, and not enough of a team effort. A lack of hustling, passing, and communication appear to be the major problems. Many changes will have to take place if the team is to break their current slump.

On Tuesday, October 2, South travelled to Weston to take on a strong and well-coordinated team. Weston's record stood at 1-2 prior to the match, but that didn't seem to bother the home team.

Weston scored first at 3:46 in the first period on a good passing play. South's goalie, John Bamel, almost made the save.

At 9:07 in the same period, South's Mike Lafferty evened the score on an unnassisted shot which was tipped in by a Weston fullback.

During the second and third periods, the defense of both squads proved to be effective, and neither team could net a score.

Finally, at the end of the third period, Weston scored what proved to be the winning goal. This happened on a mix-up in front of the Newton South goal after a corner kick.

Although South lost the game by a score of 2-1, there were two team members who played exceptionally for South. Mike Lafferty and Andy Moore have continually demonstrated remarkable skill.

Thursday, October 4, turned out to be a good day for Newton South. Playing at Acton on a beautiful day, South scored three goals, and allowed only one.

South was awarded a panalty kick at 5:23 in the second period, and Aris Bidianos made the score 2-0.

SOUTH SCORES

At 3:51 in the fourth period, Acton's Yon Kapstad, a highly skilled European, took a shot which hit the post to the left of South's goalie, Jimmy Sheroff. Unfortunately, Sheroff couldn't regain position, and the rebound was tipped in.

South did an excellent job defensively, for they held Acton's Yon Kapstad scoreless. Yon had fourteen goals in the first three league games.

On Friday, October 5, South hosted a determined Wayland team, and lost, 1-0.

Wayland scored their goal at 1:49 in the first period, and after that, concentrated on defense. They did an effective job, and South was unable to tie the score.

South's next game will be played at home against Acton on Saturday, October 13.

If the team is going to improve its current 2-4 record, many changes will have to take place.

There are two new editions to the team in managers Jon "Doomer" Sandman and Lou "Chip" Herzog.

J.V. Soccer

Captain Mark Shuster has been unable to spark the Newton South Junior Varsity Soccer Team. After losing its last three games, the team's league record is now 2-3.

South played at home against a 6-0 Weston squad on Tuesday, October 2, and lost 3-1.

Weston scored first in the first period, and scored again in the second quarter.

South used sophomore Lenny Crieser in the goal.

On Thursday, October 4, South played at home against a mighty Newton North. North's record was 8-0 prior to the contest.

Newton North scored first in the first period on a highly disputed call. South's goalie, Len Crieser, made a save, and then had the ball knocked out of his hands. Then a North player appeared to use his hand to gain control of the loose ball, and tthen kicked it in. Neither referee blew the whistle to stop play.

In the third period North scored again, this time on a penalty kick.

During the fourth quarter South attempted to come back. They did so, but only half way! South sophomore Jimmy Goldfarb scored on a head ball during a scramble in front of North's net.

South couldn't find the time to score again, and the final score stood at 2-1.

South does have some good potential, but a lack of offensive pressure seems to be too great a hindrance to overcome.

Eagles Face Miami In National Test Friday

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

The wrong team suffered a letdown. Boston College was warned too guard against a letdown after its southern swing. Navy would be understandably up after returning to its own league after tussles with Michigan and Penn State.

But Boston College showed it was closer to the elite league than anyone expected by chasing the Midshipmen into the sea, 44-7, at Alumni Stadium.

The touted Eagle offense rolled up 40 yards, but the real difference was a defense which was thought questionable until last Saturday night.

The Big D swiped five interceptions and recovered two fumbles, enough to propel BC to a 34-0 halftime lead.

Navy coach George Welsh was discouraged and bewildered after the game. He described the turning point as "When we kicked off." He was right.

Boston College led 20-0 after one period, 34-0 at the half, and 37-0 after three quarters. Navy scored its only touchdown five plays into the fourth period.

The usual offensive figures dominated for BC. Quarterback Gary Marangi scored on a 62-yard run down the left sideline and completed seven of 10 passes for 76 yards, including one touchdown.

Halfback Mike Esposito churned out 74 yards in about three quarters of action, caught four passes, and tallied two touchdowns.

Kicking whiz Fred Steinfort proceeded with his steady march to become Boston College's all-time best booter by the time he's 21 with three field goals of 25, 27, and 52 yards and five extra points.

Keith Barnette and back-up quarterback Jerry Concannon, younger brother of pro Jack Concannon, divided up the other two TD's.

Navy, which got on the scoreboard for the first time in three weeks received its lone marker from star halfback Cleveland Cooper, the junior who topped the 1000-yard mark as a soph last fall. Cooper plunged over from the one and rushed for 79 yards.

A couple of different names also popped up in the BC rushing stats. Flanker Mel Briggs carried the ball five times for 57 yards and former Massachusetts schoolboy phenom Earl Strong carried 10 times for 79 yards.

The Eagle defense is getting better and is even getting less anonymous. Defensive back Ned Guillet is starting to emerge as a fellow with very noticeable sticky fingers. This week he made one interception and recovered a fumble.

Boston College is 3-1 off a very encouraging start. The team the Eagles play next is 2-1. You would think BCwould be favored. I haven't seen any early line, but I don't think they will be.

The opponent in the Orange Bowl this weekend will not be the Miami Dolphins, but the University of Miami, a team which has given teams heart attacks this season.

A pre-season look at the Hurricane schedule would leave most people thinking Athletic Director Ernie McCoy was nuts.

Texas, Oklahoma, Houston, West Virginia, Alabama, and Notre Dame are just a few of the teams on the Hurricane itinerary.

But Miami beat Texas in its opener and last Saturday fell to Oklahoma just 24-20. All of which spells trouble for the troubadors from Chestnut Hill.

Miami in the Orange Bowl. Not an encouraging prospect. So far they've all seemed like big games for the game Eagles, but a win in this one could make them into top 20 material. A New England college football team in the nation's top 20?

Evangelical Baptist Church Celebrates 100th Year Sunday

The Evangelical Baptist Church, 23 Chapel St., Newton, off Rt. 16, will be celebrating the 100th year of the dedication of their building, on Sunday, Oct. 14, through Tuesday, Oct. 16, with "Old Fashioned Days."

The church building was raised under the leadership of the first minister, Rev. Samuel Edgar Lowry, by the people of the Evangelical Church and was dedicated Oct. 16, 1973.

It was later known as the North Congregational Church of Newton. A large Memorial Plaque honoring the memory of Rev. Lowry remains in the Sanctuary to this day.

The church is built of enduring Roxbury pudding stone from a quarry in those days off Beacon Street, Newton Centre, with trimmings of red and black bricks. The black bricks were made by dipping the red ones in tar, and the two young men who did most of that work, never forgot the experience.

On Oct. 16, 1873, the church was dedicated free of debt, and stands today as a monument to the self-sacrificing interest in money and effort of many devouted people in North Village and Newton Corner.

From some of these same givers and others, came funds which made possible a new organ in 1901 and a much needed addition for social and Sunday School rooms in 1904.

The early days were filled with problems seemingly impossible of solution, but to each task as it appeared, there had been men and women of undaunted faith and courage to help in its solution. Some very important people of Newton who have given a great deal of their time and effort in the past include two mayors of Newton; Henry E. Cobb, and more recently, Edwin Otis Childs.

Among other Newton people who worked hard in this Church building are the following: H. D. Bassett, Eben D. Dyer, Charles E. and Mrs. Billings, Misses Abbie and Mary Spear, H.W. Chaffee, Mrs. Barber, James Freeman, William Stafford, H. M. Cooley, J. G. Latta and Mary Pulsifer. There are many others who followed the path of those mentioned.

The story of this church on Chapel St., Newton, presently owned by the Evangelical Baptist Church of Newton, is more than interesting, and for this reason, a three-day remembrance time will be held with various activities.

On Sunday, the 14th, sermons preached by the very first minister, Rev. Samuel Edgar Lowry, will be preached again by Rev. John S. Viall, present pastor. It will be a time of singing the old hymns and there will also be special music for the occasion from the choir and others.

There will be services on Sunday, both morning and evening, with the mornn, worship at 10:30 a.m. and the evening service at 7 p.m. Special guests will be present on the pulpit platform, some city officials.

On Monday evening, the 15th, at 7:30 p.m., a special service will be held, and an "Antique Bible Display" will be included. Those who have old Bibles should bring them for this display.

Tuesday evening, Oct. 16, a real "old fashioned supper" will be served in Fellowship Hall at 6:30 p.m. There will also be an appropriate program and Rev. Dan Rushing of Michigan will bring a brief message. Folks may wear clothing of "olden days" if they wish, and it is rumored that we will see a good many with dress of several generations back, to add to the spirit of this occasion.

The general public is invited to attend these special meetings of the Evangelical Baptist Church and to hear its history and also join with its congregation in making this Centennial something to be long remembered.

Temple Gets Ready For Sukkot

It is the festival of booths (or tabernacles) and also of the gathering-in of the harvest.

Like many Jewish celebrations, it commemorates the emancipation from slavery, and the wanderings of the Jews in the desert. Therefore, the Bible tells the Jew to dwell in booths for seven days each year in rememberance of years of wandering and hardship. It is a double celebration, for besides being grateful that they no longer had to roam the desert, the people offered thanks for the harvest of the crops. Thus it is that Sukkot is the Jewish Thanksgiving: new home and plentiful harvest!

The holiday will be celebrated at Temple Beth Avodah begining at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday evening, Oct. 10, with the consecration of the new students. each of whom will be presented with a miniature Torah.

The consecrants are: Jane Aronson, Mitchell Kingsbury, Karen Moscow, Laura Ann Goldberg, David Kurzman, Amy Shocker, Jeffrey Seifer from the Kindergarten; Jocelyn Gitlin, Jeffrey Pollack, Scott Rossow Terry Sack, Michael Shapiro, Mark Siegel, Lori Wolf, Adam Kurzman, Nicole Dokton, from the first grade; Aaron Epstein, David Katz, Julie Silver, Mitchell Smith, Mark Lampert, Jennifer Wasserman, from grade 2; Jane Braverman, Sherry Michelson, Robert Shocker, Todd Stern, Sheryl Aransky, Matthew Cohen, from grade 3; and from grades 4 and 5, Craig Stern, Sabra Katz, Phillip Michaelson, Gary Fineberg, Robin Silver, Amy Epstein, Donna Lipson, Richard Kent, Jamie Kent, Mark Levy, Bradley Rosenblum, Peter Cooper, Charles Papert, Lisa Buchsbaum, and Jonathan Wasserman.

A Sukkah, which is a small booth, has been constructed by the Temple Beth Avodah Brotherhood in the patio area of the temple. Surrounded on all sides by trees and small plants, it has been decorated with cranberries, apples, pears, pumpkins, grapes. . . all kinds of fruit. . . by the Temple Sisterhood.

After the Sukkot family service, which will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Friday, Oct. 12, Rabbi Robert Miller will lead the congregation into the sukkah for a kiddush.

On the eighth day of Sukkot, and entirely new festival called Shemini Atzeret is celebrated. Prayers for the dead are recited, as is a prayer for rain. And then the gayest of all the holidays, Simhat Troah. . . a holiday dedicated to the Torah is celebrated with song, psalms, and flag waving, and Torah procession. Simchat Torah will be celebrated at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 17, and Shimini Atzeret service will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Thursday, Oct. 18.

The congregants cordially welcome all friends to share the holiday with them at the Little Temple in the Woods. For further information, please call the Temple office, 527-0045.

Life At North High

By PAULA BARRY
Correspondent

The opening of the New Newton North High School this September, marked the end of many long years of negotiations and planning.

On Sept. 30, the School was dedicated at a ceremony at which Mayor Theodore Mann, Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, Principal Richard Mechem and School Committee Chairman Manual Beckwith presided.

In Mr. Fink's address, he commented on how difficult it is to find one's way around the building. It seems that the architect was thinking of an establishment like the Minotaur's labyrinth when he started drawing. Even after five weeks, students must be wary of surprises.

Off the school's main corridor, called "Main Street," there are five staircases leading to classrooms. If you, a male, come down the stairs closest to the Elm Road entrance, you are in for a shock because you will find yourself at the door of a girl's lavatory. The only solution, is to go back up the stairs through a maze-like corridor and down another staircase.

A very similar problem presents itself on the fourth floor where there are huge, divisible workrooms. If there are classes in session, you must retrace your steps and go up another stairway.

On the other side of Main Street, there are also classrooms which can be reached by going through Commons Rooms and by going up House stairways or by going through one of the six Lowell Ave. doors

In this area of classrooms there are little cubby holes for teachers to work in. They are perhaps eight feet by eight feet and not a happy proposition for claustrophobic teachers.

The school has many new additions to make the lives of student and teacher more interesting. Two of the Biology Rooms have been equipped with greenhouses, the Phys. Ed. Department has a pool, an Exhibition Gym and a simulated Outdoor Area and the library has audio visual rooms, conference rooms and a dark room off it.

The Theatre Arts Classes have a "theatre in the round" at their disposal and the auditorium has a catwalk, a control room and costume and art areas. The auditorium stage will be initiated by the all school musical "Funny Girl" which is slated for mid-December.

The greatest advantage of the new facility is that it allows for dispersal. It's very easy to find yourself alone in a corridor during the rush between classes. This must be because of the building because I doubt that the new surroundings have made students more eager to remain in class.

Finast Gets 'Gold Leaf' Award

First National Stores Inc., whose headquarters are at Somerville, Mass., received the Family Circle magazine "Gold Leaf" Recognition Award for outstanding achievements in creating material for better nutrition education.

Robert Young, publisher of Family Circle and Clarence Adamy, chairman of the Food Council of America and president of the National Association of Food Chains, presented the awards at a luncheon held at the Embassy Row Hotel, Washington, D.C. September 25.

Dr. Margaret L. Ross, director of nutrition at First National Stores, accepted the Award for the Company.

The awards program is a project of the magazine in association with the Food Council of America. The four-leafed bronze award is representative of the "Four Basic Foods" emblem created by Family Circle for the Food Council's Nutritional Awareness campaign instituted in 1970.

First National Stores is one of the five companies who volunteered in 1970 to participate with the Federal Food and Drug in a nutritional labeling test. The results of this experiment formed the basis for the newly developed Federal FDA guidelines.

The company designed a unique four leaf clover symbol denoting their four consumer-oriented programs: open date coding, unit pricing, nutritional labeling and ingredient labeling.

The symbol now appears on Finest egg cartons, milk cartons and will be used on private label products that use any, or all, of the information.

Only five food retailers throughout the country received the "Gold Leaf" along with 13 manufacturers and associations.

Publisher Young had this to say: "Our purpose today is to honor companies that have invested time, money and talent in producing outstanding materials to further the cause of good nutrition among the nation's students and consumers."

"But what is really noteworthy is that this effort was undertaken voluntarily. Each of these organizations saw a responsibility to the public they serve - and acted independently to fulfill that responsibility.

"No government coercion, no act of Congress was needed here. Instead, as is so very often the case, it is a shining example of the private section acting in the public good. It was with this very purpose in mind that Family Circle and the food Council instituted the Gold Leaf Awards program."

"It seemed to us, early this year, that too few people were aware of the vast amount of educational material made available by America's food industry - or of the superb quality of that material."

"Or, indeed, of the basic fact that the most prolific and authoritative source of such material is the industry itself. We believe that this recognition program has served to give long overdue credit where it is due."

Bill Increases Pension For Law Officers, Firefighters

The House of Representatives has passed a bill introduced by Congressman Joe Moakley (D-Mass.) which would significantly increase the Federal pensions for law enforcement officers and firefighters. The legislation provides retirement at the age of 50 and would permit earlier retirement to be considered by the Civil Service Commission on the basis of the degree of hazard involved in the employee work.

The measure also allows uncontrollable overtime pay to be included in the base wages for computing pensions benefits.

Moakley praised the House action saying, "We owe a tremendous debt to our law enforcement officers and firefighters. When a man lays his life on the line everyday, it seems only fair that we offer him the opportunity of an early retirement."

The Civil Service Commission had previously informed Moakley's committee that the payroll increase required by the legislation would amount to only one-tenth of a per cent.

"This," Moakley commented, "Is a very modest raise in view of the increasingly hazardous work performed by the firefighters and law enforcement officers covered by this bill."

The House subsequently approved a second Maokley-sponsored measure which provides for the Federal government to assume a greater share of the cost of health benefit programs. The Federal share would rise from 40 per cent to 55 per cent immediately and be increased by 5 per cent each year until it reached 75 per cent in 1977.

Moakley pointed out that many private employers pay the full cost of such programs and said, "The government must remain competitive in its benefits package if we are to continue recruiting a capable civil service."

Both bills had been unanimously reported by the eight-member subcommittee on which Moakley serves. The two bills now await Senate action.

Buy School Supplies With Care, Urges Commission

Not all children like going back to school, but they all love to buy new school supplies. Sharpened pencils, shiny scissors, new paints and brightly colored metal lunch boxes with matching vacuum bottles may bring delight and pride on the first day of school, but they also can bring howls of pain and even serious injury if they are not selected and used with care.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission urges parents and students to start the school year safely. Consumers should watch for the hazards that could be hidden in items that students use everyday.

Scissors, protractors, compasses, pens and pencils, and any other item with sharp edges or points should be carried and stored in an enclosed and protective case.

Paints and paste should come in plastic containers. If only glass bottles are available, they should be carried in a protective case or wrapping.

Lunch boxes should have smooth edges and secure fasteners. Canned treats with pop tops or lids may have dangerously sharp edges, so warn children not to lick the lids. Avoid carrying carbonated drinks, glass items or aerosol cans that could explode.

Parents and children also are warned:

— Shoes with slippery soles increase accidents. Scuff up bottoms of new shoes to give traction. Platforms, wedged and high heels may be the highest of fashion but can be dangerous on stairs and for driving.

— Sports equipment and attire should be selected to fit the size and weight of the child. Proper fit is imperative for safety and should be carefully checked by parents. Mock gear, such as thin plastic helmets, is not intended for actual sports and can even be a hazard. Be sure schools provide adequate protective gear for rough sports.— Bicycles also must be the correct size for the rider. Check the bicycle for reflectors on the front, rear and sides. Be sure to have skid resistant pedals and good brakes. Watch for sharp points and pinch points on bikes and locks. Riders should know traffic rules and keep bikes in good repair. Lock bikes securely when not in use.

— Check electrical systems, cords and plugs on study lamps, typewriters and other electrical study aids. Do not lean or prop lamps against flammable materials such as mattresses, pillows and draperies.

The Consumer Product Safety commission is an independent Federal regulatory agency created by Congress to reduce unreasonable risks of injury associated with consumer products.

DKODD,Mead,$6.95.

The man who faces the greatest dangers in the battle against narcotics is the undercover cop, the volunteer who roams the underworld seeking evidence that will convict the drug dealer.

Besides the ever-present risk of exposure as "the man," the undercover cop on the street operates in a world where desperate junkies prey on other junkies, pushers or anyone suspected of having money or dope.

Det. Anthony Schiano, who describes his adventures as a "UC" on New York City streets in Solo; Self-Portrait of an Undercover Cop, has been mugged repeatedly.

Schiano was mugged because he insisted on working alone and because he walked into buildings known to be full of muggers ready to jump junkies looking for their connections.

Solo, written with New York Daily News reporter Anthony Burton, is a curious tale about a man who in his earlier years was very close to falling on the wrong side of the law. Yet, be not only opted for the police, but once on the job he threw himself into the action with an aggressiveness bordering on the compulsive.

Schiano kept asking for more after being wounded, even after he began to "smell" like a junkie and his fellow officers began to shun him, and even when his appearance and long hours began to take their toll on his family.

Schiano's aggression also led him to adopt the standards of his adversaries. He tells of using an illegal gun to ambush and wound men who had mugged him or who had stood in his way. He dismisses the shootings with the reasoning that all is fair on that level.

Probably the question of what makes a man like Schiano continually seek danger can only be answered by psychologists. Solo takes a stab at it and it is absorbing reading.

Army Engineer Corps To Receive Watershed Award

Of considerable interest especially to the environmental community is the announcement from the Charles River Watershed Association that its 1973 Environmental Protection Award will be presented to the New England Division, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The presentation will be made October 17 at the Association's annual meeting to be held at ther Perkins School for the Blind in Watertown.

In a dramatic break with tradition, the Corps has recommended acquisition of 8,422 acres of wetlands in the middle and upper Charles River watershed to be maintained in their natural condition as permanent flood controls.

If the wetlands are preserved, the Corps believes, structural controls will not be needed to secure the public safety.

According to CRWA's Executive Director, Mrs. Rita Barron, the protection of the wetlands will provide additional social, recreational, and environmental values. In recognition of this outstanding proposal CRWA has selected the New England Division to be the recipient of its first special award.

Colonel Charles J. Osterndorf, Deputy Chief of the New England Division, will accept the award on behalf of the Corps.

The evening program will commence with early refreshments at 7:30 when guests will be invited to tour an extensive exhibit area.

Students from the Dover-Sherborn Regional High School will demonstrate simple water quality testing techniques, and displays will include acquisition plans of private and state agencies, a proposed cultural use of the Watertown Arsenal property, characteristic soils of the watershed, and reproductions of historic maps and documents.

A brief business meeting will be followed by a slide-tape program on the so-called Natural Valley Storage flood control proposal which has been developed especially for the occasion by program chairman John T. Blackwell, CRWA's Vice President. The evening will be highlighted by the award presentation to the Corps.

The Charles River Watershed Association is in its eighth year of citizen concern for the Charles River, with membership representing the 35 cities and towns in the watershed. Its focus is on citizen education and government agency liaison and involvement with all public and private programs relating to the watershed.

CRWA invites all citizens interested in the potential of the Charles River to attend the meeting. For further information please call CRWA at 527-2799.

Strictly For The Birds

Parakeets, canaries and other domesticated cage birds provide companionship and entertainment in exchange for a minimum of common sense care.

Patience and gentleness are the keys to cultivating a sound "feathered freindship." When you take a new bird home for the first time, have its new cage ready in advance, well stocked with food, water and grit and standing in a warm location. Place the bird gently in the cage then quietly slip a light cover over the cage and leave your pet alone for a few hours.

After the bird has had ample time to rest and get adjusted to his new surroundings, slowly remove the cage cover but continue always to be gentle, move slowly and speak softly when near the cage. Birds that are frequently excited, alarmed or teased seldom learn to sing or speak very well.

For parakeets or canaries, get as large a cage as possible — at least 24" by 14" by 20" — to give them room to fly. Packaged seed mixtures for both birds, available at pet stores, provide a complete diet if supplemented with a green, leafy vegetable and with a cuttlebone. Fresh water and grit (which can be sprinkled on the lined bottom tray) should always be available.

Cleanliness is vital to your bird's health. Old seed should be thrown away every other day and dishes, perches, and removable bottom tray should be scrubbed regularly and often. Frequent baths are vital to good grooming and good health. Provide your pet with a shallow dish of warm bath water (about 100 degrees) at least three times a week.

Always keep your bird in a warm spot, protected from colds and drafts. If it seems listless or sick, added warmth and rest periods during the day with the cage covered will sometimes help. If listlessness persists, or if other symptoms such as voice changes or loss of appetite are present, consult a veterinarian immediately. A bird may appear dull and unusually quiet during the annual moulting period when it sheds its old feathers. Your pet needs protection against drafts and colds during this period and can benefit from a vitamin-enriched moulting food as a diet supplement.

Canaries usually learn to sing from older birds. Special canary records can be helpful if your bird doesn't know how to sing. Before a parakeet can be taught to talk, it must be taught to trust. With patience and slow, quiet movements, these birds should readily learn to sit on your finger outside the cage. At this time you can begin repeating one or two words you'd like him to learn, keeping training periods down to 10 or 15 minute periods several times a day. There are many excellent books available that give complete details on this special branch of bird training.

Operating Machine Shop At Museum Of Science

Amid the whir and whine of a number of operating machine tools, Boston's Museum of Science recently opened its new technological exhibit, an operating Machine Tool Shop.

Conceived to familiarize visitors with some devices that play an indispensable part in our modern society, the exhibit is staffed with two skilled operators, Louis Castleman of Revere and Thomas Johnson of Quincy. These men will demonstrate basic precision metal-working processes seven days a week, between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m. Among the machines they will use are the lathe, surface grinder, milling machine, shaper, and a number of small hand tools.

The exhibit was funded by the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association, and the equipment was provided by Boston Machinery, Inc. of Peabody; Kaufman Co., Inc. of Cambridge; W. H. Nichols Co. of Waltham; Brown and Sharpe Co. of North Kingstown, Rhode Island; and Hardinge Brothers, Inc. of Elmira, New York.

Museum President Norman L. Cahners and Director Bradford Washburn point out that these devices are usually hidden in machinery shops where the public cannot see them and how they operate. With the opening of this new exhibit, everyone has an opportunity to learn what these machines can do, how they do it, and why they are so necessary to our lives.

Somerville seventh-graders from Western Junior High School were the first visitors to view the exhibit in operation following the official opening. They were on a group trip to the Museum under the auspices of the School Visits Program, sponsored by the Metropolitan District Commission.

The Machine Tool shop is on the terrace level of the west wing. There is no admission fee above Museum admission.

IN A CAVERN

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark. (UPI) — Blanchard Springs Caverns opened officially to the public last summer under the auspices of the U.S. Forest Service and is Arkansas answer to Carlsbad Caverns.

A $5.3 million project put the caves in shape for public touring. Although Blanchard Springs is not as large as Carlsbad Caverns or Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, many of those who have seen all three say Blanchard Springs offers the most in natural beauty.

Comfort . . . Must For Men's Wear

By WALTER LOGAN

PARIS (UPI) — You might call this a down-with-the-necktie and stick-to-knits piece. Or even an antimen's wear column. It mainly concerns comfort.

A lot of American women have discovered the comfort secret of jet age space travel—they put on a comfortable pants suit and set out. American men are having more trouble—they're still dressing up as if they were off to church, necktie neatly knotted in place.

Flying the Atlantic is a sedentary occupation, and for that matter, so is the Pacific. You sit for seven or eight hours over the Atlantic or 11 or 12 hours or even more over the Pacific, or nap or mosey back to the lavoratories but mostly you just sit.

And while you are sitting you wriggle and twist your clothes out of shape. Or you curl around in your seat and try to sleep and wriggle and twist your clothes out of shape but in a different direction. And if you are wearing a needless necktie you're probably pulling your neck out of shape.

Year after year it is noted that most of the passengers in first class are a lot more relaxed than those in tourist class and maybe it is self assurance to have all that money. But the people up front, as a rule, are a lot more comfortable than those in the back wearing neckties. Their clothes are more relaxing and you might see more blue jeans up front than in the rear.

For a trans-ocean trip the most comfortable outfit in the world is a pair of knitted trousers and a knitted sports shirt open at the throat and, hopefully, equipped with at least two breast pockets. You won't need your jacket while flying and if it is not hung away somewhere it is usually stuffed into one of those overhead racks.

Knitted Jacket

It is better if the jacket also is knitted since it can be stuffed into one of those racks and come out little the worse for looks. A good combination is a blazer suit which can look pretty dressy even when worn with an open neck sports shirt.

If you don't wear a blazer suit a knitted sports jacket and slacks is another good combination—and worn with comfortable old shoes you can kick off and loll around in your socks. (In first class they usually give you a pair of knitted slippers that stretch to fit everyone. Keeps your feet warm, so stick a pair in your flight bag if you are flying tourist or economy.)

A lot of travelers appear to feel that when they arrive in a foreign country heading for a strange hotel they should arrive dressed to the teeth. Forget it. No hotel in its right mind expects arriving trans-Atlantic tourists to look anything except disheveled.

You can freshen up near the end of the journey, of course, but everyone seems to have the same idea at the same time and the queues waiting for the lavatories an hour or so before landing seem endless on most planes, even the big ones with lots of johns.

Almost a must on such flights is a flight bag—preferably an over-the-shoulder one that will hold toilet kits, passports, books, magazines, cigarettes, etc. etc., but will leave your hands free for carrying your bags when the porters disappear and someone else beats you to the little baggage carts.

And if you are nervous about arriving at a strange hotel without a necktie you can stick one of them in your flightbag. But remember when you are out traveling you aren't going to church or to a cocktail party or a wedding and fly comfortable.

New Guidelines For Teenage Marriages

New guidelines have been developed for teenage marriages in the Archdiocese of Boston by a special committee of the Priests' Senate. They were approved by an overwhelming majority of the senators at the June meeting, and Cardinal Medeiros has indicated that he is in agreement with the pastoral tone of the guidelines. However, as of this writing they have not received the official approval of the Cardinal, which comes when he notifies the Senate by letter of his acceptance of their proposals.

The main thrust of the new guidelines requires consultations with a priest at least six months in advance of the wedding, if one or both parties is 18 years or younger. In cases where pregnancy is involved the lower age limit is set at 21. Priests in such cases are charged with resolving any doubts as to the suitability of the teenage couple for the marriage.

(As soon as the guidelines are approved, they will be released by the Archdiocesan News Bureau.)

V. A. Newsletter

Veterans with artificial limbs or other prosthetic devices that might trigger airport electronic screening devices will be given special consideration at airports upon presentation of identification cards issued by the Veterans Administration.

Donald E. Johnson, administrator of Veterans Affairs, requested special FAA consideration for disabled veterans following several incidents of delayed departures caused when airport security devices were tripped by artificial limbs, braces and even imbedded shrapnel.

The problem was stated this way by a business executive in a letter to his Congressman:

"I am a wounded World War II veteran. I have shrapnel in my chest as the result of those wounds. Since the magnetic inspection procedures have been instituted at all airports, I think I have met every sheriff at every airport I have been to. I fly a lot and this has become a great source of embarrassment."

In a letter to FAA, Administrator Johnson pointed out —

". . . we are not requesting that veterans be exempt from your strict security screening processes. Rather, we are requesting that when veterans with identification cards plan air travel, they would notify the carrier in advance of flight time and report at a specified time for processing prior to boarding."

In his concurrence, James Murphy, director of Transportation Safety, pointed out that airport security measures must apply to everyone without exception, adding that special instructions had been given to airline security personnel to take care of the handicapped in a "tactful, effective and considerate manner." Ambulatory patients can be cleared generally with walk-through or hand held detection devices, while those with prosthetic devices or in wheel chairs may require a simple "pat down" consent search.

FAA offered these suggestions to handicapped veterans for further expediting the screening process:

—Call the airline in advance requesting special handling or a private screening, if desired.

—Arrive at the airport early. This will give security personnel sufficient time to make the security screening checks required by law.

—Identify himself. FAA suggests that handicapped veterans use the Veterans Administration's Prosthetic Service Card," VA Form 10-2501 and-or present a letter from the VA or his personal physician that indicates that the individual has shrapnel or surgically implanted metal devices in his body which might trigger the screening detectors.

—Cooperate fully. In many cases, the "pat down" consent search may be the fastest means of clearing a handicapped person and it is suggested for some of the handicapped air travelers.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q—I received treatment for a service connected injury at a Veterans Administration hospital about two years ago. I need treatment again, and wonder if VA will give it to me?

A — Yes, and if as you indicated, you have already established service connection, all you need do is apply for treatment again.

Q — I am buying our home with a 30-year GI loan. Can I pay off the loan in advance?

A — Yes. You may partially or fully pay off your mortgage at any time ahead of schedule — provided, payments are for not less than one monthly payment or $100, whichever is less.

Q — Will the Veterans Administration replace adaptive equipment for a car purchased by a service disabled veteran with a grant from the agency?

A — VA will pay for installation, maintenance, and replacement of adaptive equipment, but the car grant is a one-time benefit.

FIRE HAZARD

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Careless smokers and campers who abandoned their campfires started 460 timber blazes in California's 17 national forests last year.

Tips To Help Shoppers Take Mystery Out Of Melon Buying

By MARILYN BINGEL

If you are one of those shoppers who are intimidated by the prospects of picking out a good melon, cheer up, you are not alone. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, selection of cantaloupe, Persian, casaba, Crenshaw, honey dew or honey ball melons for quality and flavor is difficult for even the most experienced buyer.

Short of cutting the melon, there is no real formula for checking a melon for quality, but there are some signs that will increase the likelihood of choosing a good one.

First of all, it is necessary to understand maturity and ripeness. The fruit is mature when it is ready to be picked but it may not be fully ripe. Ripe means that the fruit is ready to be eaten. Both mature and immature melons will be hard when picked and will eventually soften to a desirable eating condition. The difference for the consumer will be in taste. The immature melon after softening, will not have the sweetness and flavor of a melon picked at maturity and ripened to the ready-to-eat stage.

When buying cantaloupes check the stem end. The stem should be missing, leaving a symmetrical, shallow basin. This indicates that the fruit was mature enough at picking to separate easily from the stem. Other signs of maturity are in the netting and skin color (ground color). Cantaloupes should have a thick coarse and corky netting standing out in bold relief over some part of the surface. Persian melons have finer netting and like honey dew melons are harvested with the stems attached. Rind color for both cantaloupes and Persian melons should be at least yellowish-buff, yellowish gray or pale yellow.

Also look for signs of ripeness, since cantaloupes or Persian melons could be mature, but not ripe. Ripeness is indicated by a yellowish cast to the rind, and a pleasant odor. Also check the blossom end. If the blossom end yields to light thumb pressure, the fruit should be ripe.

Other members of the melon family such as casaba, honey dew and honey ball melons may be found with stem still attached. Since these melons are harvested by cutting from the vine, the condition of the stem end is not an indicator of maturity.

When buying casaba melons look for gold yellow rind color and a slight softening at the blossom end. Casabas have no odor or aroma.

Honey dew and honey ball melons will have a faint pleasant fruit aroma and should have a soft, velvety feel. They should have a yellowish white to creamy rind color and a slight softening at the blossom end.

The Crenshaw melon should have a deep golden yellow rind. Sometimes small areas of the rind are a lighter shade of yellow. The surface and particularly the blossom end should yield slightly to moderate pressure of the thumb; Crenshaws should have a pleasant aroma.

Violence Is Poor Business

Virginia Payette says:

It was a small news item, but it packed a punch: The Brandeis University violence center is going out of business.

The reason? Lack of business.

As far as campus riots are concerned, they say, the worst is over. People are smarter now and don't need any more research on the causes and characteristics of group violence.

There may be disruptions here and there, but they won't spread. The authorities know more about how to move in. . . police have better ways to handle protesters. . . and (shades of union arbitration) folks on both sides are more willing to let a "disinterested" third party help them negotiate for peace.

And so, after seven years of monitoring and analyzing the disruptions that swept through our cities and universities, the violence experts are looking for other work.

Well, I've got just the thing. And the experts might not be a moment too early.

From now on, they can keep a watchful eye on the rest of us. The silent majority (up till now). The fact that we're the last people they expect to go bananas makes us just that much more dangerous. Because when we go, we'll go coast-to-coast, man.

It will probably start in the supermarkets. So far, housewives have expressed their rage over high prices through boycotts. And, now and then, maybe a hair-pulling match at the meat counter over the last chuck roast.

But if Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz doesn't do something pretty quick (and he admits he hasn't the faintest notion of a solution), the ladies may crack. And when they do, the supermarket managers are going to need protection. A frozen leg of lamb is a mighty lethal weapon.

Violence squads had better control the gas stations, too. If you think it frustrates a housewife not to be able to feed her family, consider the explosive potential of her husband, who can't nourish the most cherished of all possessions, his chrome-plated gas guzzler. Talk about a "deprived" class.

And picture a hundred thousand weary Sunday drivers, their back seats swarming with screaming kids, who can't find any gasoline to get them home. You know a better reason to start a riot?

We'd better not leave the banks unguarded, either. Because, at last count, there are thousands of families, down payments clutched in their hands, who can't afford those 10 per cent rates the bankers are tacking on mortgages. We may have to put bank officers behind bars, along with the tellers.

Heating plants will need disinterested arbitrators, too. Remember hammering on the radiator to make the landlord send up more heat? If the oil shortage ices up enough noses, it might be more than radiators that get hammered.

Our leaders aren't exactly contributing any chirpy forecasts to lighten the national mood, etiher. Distracted as they are with their own troubles in the courts, the best they can come up with is a solemn warning that cheap food is gone forever. . . inflation isn't. . . and let's all brace ourselves for gas and oil rationing.

Then they drop the word that they might have to raise taxes again.

Politicians must figure the average Joe is so stupid he'll put up with almost anything, as long as he can gripe over a beer or write letters to the editor. And, judging by the recent shenanigans in Washington, they're right.

But this is shaping up as more than just another "winter of our discontent." And when all those Joes decided to blow, there might not be enough disinterested parties to go around.

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

For the cook with only seconds to spare there's no handier meat than the minute steak. Thin slices of machine-tenderized beef, these jiffy-quick skillet steaks take only a minute or two to prepare. They offer a definite bonus for calorie counters: most are cut from the fat-trimmed "round" of beef, one of the least-fattening parts, and weigh in at a skimpy 612 calories per pound. Beef rib, on the other hand, can be 2,000 calories or more!

Minute steaks are sometimes labeled "skillet steaks," "cube steaks" or "sandwich steaks." But be sure they're cut from beef round. Steaks from a cheaper cut will be fatty and less tender. They should be one-quarter to one-half inch thick and may be cut in individual quarter-pound portions.

You may sprinkle them, if you like, with meat tenderizer and a little water. Because the tenderizer spreads through the meat, the steaks will be ready to cook immediately. They may also be stored in the freezer and cooked without defrosting . . . in which case they'll be "three-or four-minute steaks!"

With a little imagination it's easy to turn minute steaks into a delightful, diet-wise dinner:

MINUTE STEAKS WITH MUSHROOMS

garlic salt and pepper
4-ounce can button or sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons dried onion flakes
4 tablespoons dry sherry wine (or mushroom liquid)

Season steaks. Combine with remaining ingredients in a large nonstick skillet over moderate flame. When liquid evaporates, brown steaks 60 seconds on each side. Stir onions and mushrooms to brown evenly. Makes four servings, 165 calories each.

MINUTE STEAKS PARMIGIANA

Onion or garlic salt
16-ounce can plain tomato sauce (no oil added)
½ teaspoon oregano or Italian seasoning
2 ounces (4 thin slices) part-skim mozzarella cheese

Season steaks. brown 30 seconds each side in a nonstick skillet over high heat. Pour on tomato sauce. Top each steak with mozzarella and oregano. Continue to cook uncovered until tomato sauce bubbles and cheese is melted. Makes four servings, 225 calories each.

MINUTE STEAKS IN BEER

salt and pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
pinch of sage
1 tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons dried onion flakes
1 cup beer

Season steaks. Brown 30 second each side in a nonstick skillet over high heat. Sprinkle steaks with flour on both sides. Add onion flakes and beer. Simmer, uncovered, until the beer evaporates into a thick sauce. Makes four servings, 180 calories each.

Parting Is Such . . .

NEW YORK — All too often when an employee leaves a company, a few of the guys and gals get together, buy him a lunch at the Greasy Spoon, press an $8 gift certificate in his hand and, while he's eating his dried-out hamburger, make mental notes as to what they'll snitch out of his office as soon as they return.

Now, as she goes, quietly loveliness goes,
And takes a light, a magic, from our days.

Yet must we sink in yearning and despair,
Rail at the August heavens in our pain,

And beat the aching chest, and rant, and swear,
And roll the eyes, and laugh wild laughs insane?

My friends, I cannot answer for you—

But all those things, I definitely plan to do!"

Well, I tell you, when William N. Jeffers finished that touching tribute, there wasn't a filled glass in the house. But, with tears trickling, editor Stanly Ferber then told poetically of how Susan's friends had thought of giving her: "Sapphires bright as skies of blue, Diamonds clear as mountaindew, Emeralds of sea-green hue, And maybe a mink and sable, too," but had ended up, quite sensibly, by giving her a bag.

Everyone was in tears. And Susan said maybe she'd tear up her note of resignation and stay with them all forever. And that's how it is with going-away parties at Medical Economics!

Today's Story

by norton mockridge

But that's not the way they do it at Medical Economics magazine in Oradell, N.J. Many M.E. employees have been so impressed by the lavishness of these going-away parties for their colleagues that they hardly can wait for their own day of departure. Visions of cash, expensive gifts, champagne, gourmet lunches, paeans of praise, and Poetry dance in their minds.

Just the other day, honey-blonde Susan Ruttenber, a college graduate who has spent the last six summers delivering mail from office to office at M.E., decided she'd have to leave to pursue her chosen career as an astronaut, or something equally glamorous.

Well, the crowd gathered at the posh Emerson Hotel and toasted Susan in Chivas Regal, Ambassador 25, Haig and Haig Pinch and, here and there, a glass of beer or two. The chicken a la king was the best this side of Ho-Ho-Kus, and the service by Dottie, Irene, Maggie, Elfrieda, Peggy, and several other retired showgirls, was even better than that of the Crazy Horse in Paris.

But, after Susan had been presented with cash and a magnificent traveling bag made of the finest Oradell ostrich leather, the magic moment came. Tall, balding, and dignified editor William N. Jeffers arose and delivered his versified valedictory. It was the most moving moment since Tiny Tim took his ukulele from his plastic shopping bag, played "Tiptoe Through the Tulips," and married Miss Vicki on TV!

Here's what Bill Jeffers sorrowfully intoned:

"How swiftly and bright the summers have Flashed by,
Their beauty blessing each of us anew,
The meadows more riotous neath a Deeper sky
As radiantly among us drifted Sue.
See! Like an angel's, her fair image
Glows!
How soft her smile, how filled with dreams
Her gaze.

Sales Parties In Poor Taste . . .

by Amy Vanderbilt

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I have been invited to a rash of parties the purpose of which is for the guests to purchase food keepers, brush and cleaning supplies, interior decorating items, jewelry and clothing.

At each affair the guest is asked to help the hostess out by making a large order and then booking another such party in her own home. In my opinion, it is rude to invite people into your home for such a commercial purpose. Friendship is strained when the budget is, and few care to make unplanned and unwanted purchases.

How can one respond to invitations of this nature? Is it bad manners to suggest that these parties are in poor taste? — Mrs. M.L., Anaheim, Calif."

The kind of sales parties to which you refer have become a part of the American way of life for millions of women. Approximately 1 million women earn all or part of their incomes in direct selling, possibly half of these by conducting sales parties in the homes of women they recruit to serve as hostesses.

Particularly in small towns and cities, many women depend on these merchandising parties as a way to meet new friends and get ideas for home decoration, beauty care, household management. The hostesses selected are given an easy, inexpensive way to entertain.

Of course not everyone enjoys going to sales parties. There is no reason why you shouldn't refuse such an invitation without embarrassment. Should you go, not realizing what you are getting into, there is no reason you should feel obligated to buy.

It is a business rather than a purely social activity. Sales parties sponsored by nationally recognized companies are a perfectly acceptable form of entertainment for people who enjoy them. If they are not for you, I suggest you decline the invitations to them as politely as you would turn down any other invitation you don't care to accept.

TIPPING

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Several times recently an embarrassing situation has arisen. In nice restaurants, after leaving a tip for the waitress, the manager comes to tell you that you did not leave enough money for a tip. This is after you felt you had left a generous tip in the first place. I thought a tip was for service received and was not compulsory — Mrs. E.L., Long Island, N.Y."

Tipping is not compulsory. If something like this happens you are certainly free to say, "I'm sorry. That's it." and then walk out.

HAWAII BOUND

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I am going on a vacation to Hawaii. What kind of clothes will my husband and I need for two weeks? We will be in Honolulu part of the time, but will go for several days to the Mauna Kea Beach Hotel. Will we need evening clothes there? What is the weather like? — Mrs. S.K., New Haven, Conn."

Hawaii in general is never very hot and never cold.

You and your husband should take informal summer clothes. You will certainly want to buy a muumuu or perhaps more than one. Only touristy-tourists wear them on the street. They are at home clothes and, of course, they are comfortable over a bathing suit.

You can wear them at fashionable hotels at lunch — hotels such as the Royal Hawaiian or the Khala Hilton.

Your husband will certainly want to get an aloha shirt. You will see Hawaiian men wearing them even to work in the summertime. Only two hotels on Waikiki Beach now require jackets—the Royal Hawaiian and Michael's Restaurant in the Colony Surf Hotel.

The Pacific Club doesn't require jackets at lunch, but at night men wear shirts and ties. In the big hotels at night, you see the aloha shirt and other informal wear on men in the summer months.

Although temperatures can go to the 90s, trade winds blow nearly all of the time, making the islands cool and pleasant and virtually insect free.

At Mauna Kea (which means white mountain) you will find that the employees outnumber the guests. It has a $5 million golf course so, if you are golfers, enjoy it. Tennis whites are required on the hotel's courts.

If you are at Mauna Kea on Saturday night there is a Tahitian show at which dress is highly informal. Thursday night is also informal with a luau. Dining is early with the last dining room reservations taken at 9 p.m. the golfers want to get up early.

At the Mauna Kea you wear sports clothes all day, coctail dress is usual in the hotel restaurants at night and I have also seen very pretty muumuus worn by the hotel residents.

However, many women wear the holokuu and the holomuu, which are both more formal than the muumuu, a loose shift, usually fitted or tailored. One of these, the holomuu, can be short or long. The other, the holokuu (more formal), only long.

Fabrics can be quite elaborate. On other than Thursday and Saturday nights, jackets and ties are expected.

Three More Years Of Dissension?

By Marquis Childs

Washington — Remmber that slogan of only 10 months ago, "Four More Years"? Now, in a nightmare reversal of what happened last November, we are to have three more years of dissension and blurred uncertainty over who governs and how.

Those close to the muddied legal process believe Vice-President Spiro Agnew will be in office as his term expires in 1976. If this is proved out, it means that a man subject to indictable offenses of bribery, conspiracy and tax evasion will be one heartbeat away from the Presidency of the United States.

The conjecture of Agnew's staying power, following his refusal to resign from office, is based on the following probabilities. Having wrapped himself in the Constitution by calling on the House of Representatives to investigate the charges against him, he, in effect, is challenging that body to impeach him.

Granting the request, which Speaker Carl Albert summarily rejected, the House would take months to carry out a thorough investigation. It would require a special staff as in the Watergate investigation on the Senate side of the Capitol. Merely assembling the relevant material after a committee and a staff have been named would require weeks. The fierce glare of the hearing under the television lights could go on for many more weeks.

MARATHON ORATORY

All this would be preliminary to consideration by the House of a bill of impeachment. Think of the debate with the prospect that each of the 435 members would have something to say. That marathon of labored oratory could be interminable.

In the opinion of this observer the house is unequal to such a challenge. The leadership is fumbling and unsure. While the Democrats have a majority of 150 seats, this includes Southerners who have been repeatedly rallied to the Republican side. The emotional response to the plight of a man caught in a web of campaign money and public favors will cut across party lines, since too many of the members themselves know what that kind of tangle means.

So with the avenues of impeachment closed, assuming these probabilities, prosecution in the courts goes forward. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has pledged that the allegations against Agnew will be taken before the grand jury in Baltimore. But the Vice-President's attorney will raise the shield of the Constitution and that will be protection, if not in the lower court against the threat of a conviction, certainly on the way to the Supreme Court.

This raises the fantastic outlook of the President — on the issue of the tapes — and the Vice-President both refusing the jurisdiction of the courts. Such a defiance of the orderly processes of a government of divided powers can hardly mean less than a breakdown of the system itself.

WHO'S PUSHING?

Sympathy for Agnew has been undoubtedly generated by what has appeared to be a concerted effort through leaks and insinuations of wrongdoing to force him out of office. The widely held belief is that the President wanted to be rid of him so he could name John Connally in his place. Despite repeated denials from the White House and the Justice Department, this belief has persisted.

While sympathy for his plight is understandable, the Vice-President has done little during the first four years to enlist support for other than the stalwarts in his own party. He spent much of the initial two years in a selective attack on the media — an attack believed to have been inspired by the President. In the kind of assignments abroad that have become routine for the No. 2 man he has handled himself capably enough.

After a press conference when the charges against him first surfaced, Agnew went out to stay with his friend Frank Sinatra in Sinatra's luxury empire in Palm Springs, Calif. In light of Sinatra's dubious reputation on several scores this seems a curious retreat. One of his old friends offered this explanation:

"You have to understand that when Nixon tapped him in 1968 in Miami Beach Spiro had never known the big time and the big money. The little money, yes, but not the big. That explains Sinatra and a lot of other things."

It is the bankruptcy not of an administration nor of a man, but of the system itself. The voice of moral leadership to point a way out of the moral to be heard.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATE

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Student body presidents from two New Mexico colleges have been appointed as non-voting members of the state Board of Educational Finance. They are David Romero of New Mexico Highlands University and Paul Fleisnner of the New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology.

Snakes have an amazing capacity for ingesting food that appears to be too large to enter their bodies. The bones of the skull are independently movable, allowing the skull to expand to accomodate large items.

There are 13 species of the large seabirds or albatrosses, often called gooneys or gooney birds.

The highest point in New Mexico is Wheeler Peak in the northern part of the state. It is 13,161 feet high.

The Green Thumb

BY GEORGE ABRAHAM

Grow Trees From Seeds? This year's crop of seeds on most ornamental trees is quite heavy. Is it possible to start some trees from seed? No reason why you can't. That's how Mother Nature does it each fall. So copy her trick.

First, keep in mind that some tree seeds must be exposed to a cold treatment. That is. they need the winter to break their internal dormancy. If seed is sown outdoors in a mixture of sand and peatmoss, and left there all winter the exposure is just what the seed needs. This treatment is called "Stratification" and it comes with fall sowing.

You can get the same effect by keeping the seed in the refrigerator. A few tree seeds which need the cold treatment include birches, buckeyes, ash, cherries, American Chestnut, Douglas Fir, hemlocks, hornbeam, juniper, mulberries, some oaks, magnolias, some spruces, sweetgum, sycamores, walnuts and many others. If by chance you can't get these tree seeds planted outdoors, or "stratified" overwinter, you can put the seeds in the deep freeze compartment for a week or two before planting them in the spring.

Start gathering your seeds as soon as they are ripe, which is when they start falling off the tree. In case you're wondering about seeds of peach, apple and other fruit trees, remember they rarely produce good fruit. You shouldn't plant them unless you plan on budding or grafting "good" stock to them. If you want to plant walnuts, chestnuts and other nuts now, better use a beer or pop can, open end down. Slit the top of the can and pry the sharp edges upward slightly so that the little seedling can get out but the squirrels can't get in. Be sure to bury the nut, then set the can over it.

Incidentally, most or many acorns can be planted in the class room or kitchen window now, without giving them any particular treatment. This makes a good project for your children.

Green Thumb Clinic: "Is it true you can plant seeds of some annuals now and have them come up early in the spring?"

Yes a few can be sown now. One of the best is bachelor button. Sow them in the ground and they will lie dormant all fall. Then in spring they will come up and make a very husky plant. Once you get them started, you'll have bachelor buttons coming up year after year.

Does Jackson Five Belong In Textbooks?

By GEORGETTE WAGNER

CHICAGO (UPI) — Does The Jackson Five, a black singing group, belong in a school textbook?

A Chicago publishing firm, Let's Save The Children, says it does.

The firm, started in July, 1972, has brought out eight school books with rhymed stories and photographs of well known blacks such as members of The Jackson Five.

"Most black children come to school feeling they are not going to succeed," Helen King, the firm's president, said. "School has become almost a place of punishment.

"If a first grader sees a book on The Jackson Five, he knows them. School's not so horrible. There's an element of trust," she said.

Mrs. King knows what she is talking about. A strikingly elegant black woman, she taught school in Chicago and Michigan, wrote several children's books and is a mother of two.

"It was designed as a social studies text," Mrs. King said, and a teacher's guide explains how to relate the text to lessons in geography, arithmetic, current events and culture.

She pointed to a book on singer Marvin Gaye. When Gaye meets Walter Washington, mayor of Washington, D.C., the guide suggests discussing the function of a mayor, the location Washington, the child's hometown mayor and other black mayors in the country.

Stimulating Interest

"It wasn't designed as a reading series. But it will stimulate an interest in reading," Mrs. King said.

She said the series was also "cultural enrichment," valuable to white as well as black children in much the same way as the German folk tale "Hansel and Gretel."

Forty-two school systems, urban, suburban and rural, ordered the series, Mrs. King said.

She said she wasn't surprised that so many different types of school systems were interested in the series. She was surprised at the lack of response to using words like "cool" and "superbad" from the black language.

"We thought the use of the black language (would make children) trust the books. Maybe it's becoming accepted. Everyone uses 'hip' and 'cool,'" she said.

"We spell everything correctly," Mrs. King added. Speaking as a teacher she observed, "If we teach a kid to recognize 'going' as 'going,' how is he going to read Baudelaire?"

The use of page-size photographs, many of them collages, is also unusual. "Children are used to looking at TV. They're not used to looking at drawings," Mrs. King said "unfortunately."

The firm has 13 more books ready for the press and has begun a high school current affairs newspaper. Several of the new books are geared to black teen-agers, some of whom, Mrs. King said, are very sophisticated but lack reading skills.

"We have to use a language that is simplistic to talk about a sophisticated aspect of life," she said.

"You know, I'm not basically a career woman," she said. "I feel as though I'm part of a mission. Reading is like a social problem. A child who cannot read is a lost person in a society based on academic achievement."

Paul Lynde No Uptight Father

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Paul Lynde laments the fact that he has been miscast as the uptight father in movies and television for a decade when, in truth, he is neither uptight nor a parent.

Lynde is a dedicated bachelor. Devout.

Starring this year in "Temperature's Rising," in addition to being a regular on "The Hollywood Squares," Lynde is not an eligible bachelor. He doesn't even have many dates.

His idea of an enjoyable evening is having a few friends over for dinner—Jonathan Winters and his wife are frequent guests—and cooking himself.

Paul has a full-time houseboy who takes care of the domestic chores and Harry, an 11-year-old dandy dinmont. For a dog, Harry leads a good life except when it comes to navigating three flights of stairs in his master's house.

Lynde is so fond of the pooch he is seriously considering selling his house, in which he's lived for six years, to accommodate Harry.

Paul's home is a New Orleans-type structure with a balcony for almost every room in the house, most of which command inspiring views or the Pacific ocean on one side and the mountains on the other.

Friends wonder why Lynde bought the house in the first place. Before moving in he tore out the interior and paid a fortune to have the place completely renovated.

Paul likes the convenience of the house which is close to the major studios, but far enough up in the hills to give it a feeling of the country.

Beautiful, Utilitarian

Many of the fixtures and most of the furniture are antiques, but the comfortable variety that are as utilitarian as they are beautiful.

Of his house Lynde says: "It's a great bachelor's pad. This place is like therapy for me when I'm upset. I'm always glad to get home."

For a single man Paul has a great deal of help. In addition to the houseboy, who lives in a small apartment above the garage, he hires a woman to clean the house two days a week, a gardener (three days a week) and a swimming pool service man (twice a week).

The pool is therapeutic, too. Paul has a constant weight problem and tries to exercise daily. He also diets religiously.

His one big meal of the day is dinner. He stocks the refrigerator with steaks and greens, usually broiling a steak and tossing a salad for himself when he returns from the studio at 8 o'clock each weekday night.

"Dieting is the biggest bore of my life," Paul says. "I love good food and can't eat it."

On Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays Paul arises at 5 a.m. to report to the studio for filming. Mondays and Tuesdays are easier rehearsal days and he can sleep until 7 or 8 o'clock.

Paul's wardrobe, one of the most impressive on television, is provided by the show. He usually buys an entire season's clothes in two shopping days. The suits and sports jackets and slacks, however, remain the property of the production company. He doesn't even take them home.

Natty on the tube, Paul is casual in person. He owns two neckties which he rarely wears. He prefers sweaters and comfortable slacks. Most of the time he can be found wearing blue jeans and sandals around the house.

"I don't find my life lonely," Lynde said. "I hardly ever go to work without hearing about one of my friends being divorced or separated. Odds are against marriage in this town. Living alone has its hangups, but I appreciate the luxury of being single."

Insurance Aspects Of Car Pools Outlined For Bay State Residents

School days may be the "good old Golden Rule days," but they are also car pool days.

Once again, as schools throughout Massachusetts get into full swing, mothers are banding together in driver groups to transport their kids back to the world of the three R's.

At the same time, the current gasoline shortage and heightened concern over air-pollution have sparked a resurgence of interest in share-the-ride plans among Bay State commuters.

Joining a car pool can be a convenience and a time and money saver — as well as a way of improving the quality of out air, but many people are reluctant to enter such arrangements.

They fear they will expose themselves to a lawsuit which won't be covered by their regular auto insurance.

The Insurance Information Institute advises that, in terms of insurance coverage, car poolers probably have nothing to worry about. However, a few words of caution and explanation are in order.

Insurance on a privately owned, pool-shared vehicle is placed in jeopardy only if the pool is operated for profit. In the situation where everyone in the pool uses his car an equal amount of time there is, of course, no problem.

The problem most often arises when one of the car pool participants does not share in the driving chores and thus pays a regular fee.

To preserve insurance coverage, the Institute points out, any car pool fee should not be more than the fair share of gas, oil and general depreciation on the car. A simpler way for the non-sharing passengers to reimburse the pool members is give a gift sometime during the year to the drivers.

This divorces the concept of "fee" from the privilege of riding in a car pool and leaves the insurance protection intact.

In the case of car pools involving children, the Institute stresses the importance of wearing seat belts not only to protect the children in case of an accident but also to prevent the kind of antics that might distract the driver's attention.

Once a car pool participant is convinced his regular auto insurance is valid, his next concern is the amount of coverage he had.

He should consider bodily injury liability coverage with high limits, according to the Institute, since this is what protects him against claims which others — including his "pool" passengers — can bring against him after an accident.

As an example, says the Institute, limits of $300,000-$500-000 would provide up to $300,000 coverage for one injury in an accident with a $500,000 per accident limit.

Medical payments is another important coverage. If written with limits of $1,000, each person in the car can receive up to $1,000 for medical expenses,

Next time you see someone polluting, point it out.

It's litter in the streets. It's air that smells. It's a river where fish can't breathe.
You know what pollution is.
But not everyone does.
So the next time you see pollution, don't close your eyes to it.
Write a letter. Make a call. Point it out to someone who can do something about it.
People start pollution. People can stop it.

Jazz Greats Appear In High School Series

The Newton North High School Music Department has announced the inauguration of a new concert series, "The Jazz Greats, featuring some of the country's best known artists and groups.

The series is intended to become an annual event. These concerts will replace traditional fund raising activities in the Music Department.

According to Gary Good, coordinator of the series and instrumental music teacher at the school, "The Jazz Greats" series provides an opportunity for us to offer an unusually fine service to the citizens and students of Newton and Greater Boston while earning our necessary funds.

"We are happy to be able to present these groups to the Newton community, and with the force of Jazz in America today, we indeed feel an obligation to make such an opportunity available to our students," he said.

Supersax, featured artists at the opening concert, is a well known West Coast group now beginning to build its reputation in the East.

Following its Oct. 28 concert, the Woody Herman Orchestra will perform Mon., Nov. 26. The third group in the concert series is Maynard Ferguson and his orchestra who will appear Thursday, Jan. 17.

The final two concerts will feature the appearance of Buddy Rich and his orchestra on Monday, Feb. 11, and Count Basie and his orchestra on Thursday, March 7.

All concerts will begin at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Aquinas Jr. College.

Tickets will be sold only as a series for all five concerts. Total cost for the entire group of concerts will be $25. Tickets may be obtained from any band, orchestra, or chorus member, or by writing directly to the Newton North High School Music Department, 360 Lowell Ave., Newtonville, Mass. 02160.

It is hoped that an early sell-out of the series will enable the Music Department to schedule clinics by several of the groups prior to the concerts. For futher information on "The Jazz Greats" series contact the Newton North Music Department at 969-9810, Ext. 348.

Radiologists May Update Training

A two-credit evening "Seminar in Radiology" will be offered at Middlesex Community College this fall, according to a statement by President James E. Houlihan, Jr.

Middlesex offers a full-time assoociate degree program in radiology under the direction of Prof. George Lewis. Additionally, Middlesex has pioneered in establishing an evening program by which registered radiologic technologists, as well as other registered para - medical personnel, can earn an associate degree in the evening.

A logical extension of this program, explained Associate Dean Frederic B. Viaux, is to offer this seminar to help keep active technologists up-to-date in the use of the newest equipment and methods.

The seminar will meet Tuesdays from 6:45 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. for ten evening sessions beginning the week of Oct. 16. For information and registration, call or write Dean Viaux or Mrs. Emily King at the Division of Continuing Education at Middlesex Community College in Bedford, 275-1016 or 275-8910.

NRA Switch Courts Developer Law Suit

The Newton Redevelopment Authority voted in special session this week to rescind its previous designation of a developer for the state-aided, commercial parcel at the corner of Washington street and Route 128 in Lower Falls.

The reversal of its selection of the J.F. White Construction Co. of Newton came after a two and one-half hour joint meeting of the authority, the Lower Falls Improvement Association (NLFIA), and the Lower Falls Project Area Committee (LOPAC).

Both LOPAC and the NLFIA requested the meeting in letters to Cecil Cadwell, authority chairman, who had voiced lengthy misgivings about the propriety of such a move at an authority meeting last week.

Although as he abstained from the original voting last June, Cadwell at the time had voiced a preference for the firm of Spaulding and Slye, the firm selected by the members of LOPAC and the NLFIA.

As he did in the June vote, Cadwell again abstained this week but gave specific reasons to the assembled Lower Falls residents for doing so.

"I do not believe the originaal vote was 'capricious and arbitrary' as charged by the majority of Lower Falls citizens," he said.

"As chairman of this authority," he continued, "I must uphold the vote of the majority even though I disagree with it."

"In addition," Cadwell said, "those who voted in the affirmative are not here tonight to defend their position."

He was referring to the absence of former authority members Robert G. Davidson and Mario DiCarlo, along with incumbent member Lawrence C. Sullivan.

Davidson was replaced on the authority by Mayor Theodore D. Mann after his term expired and in the midst of the community storm created by the selection of the J.F. White Construction Co.

His replacement, Mrs. Margaret Smith, voted for the rescission despite her stated displeasure with the refusal of both LOPAC and NLFIA members to meet with representatives of White to iron out architectural differences of opinion.

DiCarlo recently resigned from the authority under community, aldermanic and mayoral pressure for his part in the original selection, and a successor has not been chosen.

As was later brought out in this week's meeting, Sullivan has not appeared at an authority session for several weeks.

When questioned at the authority's last regular meeting as to Sullivan's whereabouts, Cadwell confessed "that I have no idea as to Sullivan's status as a member of this board."

"He just has not been showing up," Cadwell added.

While continuing a defense of his abstention position, Cadwell told this week's audience he would vote for rescinding "on one condition."

"A lot has been said about unanimity," he said, "but we are basically talking about a difference of opinion over aesthetics of design and a feeling of rejection on the part of Lower Falls' citizens."

Towers On Agenda Again Tonight

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

Meeting for the third time in eight days on the expired permissive use for the Towers condominium complex, the aldermanic Land Use Committee hopes tonight to obtain agreements from the Towers and the Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF) on how to incorporate low-income housing into the project.

The main stumbling blocks to an agreement now seem to be the number of units to be built and the access to the property.

The Towers construction was halted Sept. 4 after aldermanic candidate Mark White brought to the attention of public officials the expiration of the permissive use two years previously.

The flurry of meetings on the extension of permissive use was necessitated by the threat of an Oct. 31 expiration of financing.

Unless the city has extended permission by that date, lawyers for the Towers have said, a $29 million commitment will be lost.

At the time that permissive use had been found to have expired, the Board of Aldermen was wrestling with a proposed ordinance to require developers to lease 10 per cent of new housing units to the Newton Housing Authority for its subsidized housing program.

The public hearings on the extension of the Towers' permissive use and the "10 per cent ordinance" were held Oct. 1.

At the hearing, Christopher Connolly, one of the Towers' lawyers for this matter, brought up the possibility that the Towers might "participate or actively seek low-moderate income housing" in conjunction with the Towers.

Connolly said the Towers had been talking to the Newton Community Development Foundation about a joint venture using NCDF-owned land on Hamlet St. that abuts Towers property.

NCDF is a nonprofit, community - based organization that was started to provide Newton with low- and moderate-income family housing. It failed in its attempt to get 10 scattered sites for some 500 housing units through the Board of Aldermen in 1970 and wound up in the state Housing Appeals

Veteran's Parents Sue Army For Son's Death

A suit for $1,000,000 was filed against the United States this week by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Murtaugh Sr. of 10 Timson Path in Newton Centre.

The plaintiffs allege that their son, Edward Jr., died of an overdose of Methadone while still in the Army. They charged the Army with "negligent failure to treat their son's drug addiction."

Edward Jr. returned from Vietnam in June, 1969, after being wounded by shrapnel. According to the court brief filed by Attorney Lawrence Shibow, he suffered from 'severe mental and emotional depression' after being treated for his wounds. The brief also stated that he had been exposed to heavy illegal

Chamber Honors Adelaide Ball

More than 400 persons from Newton and Needham turned out at the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce annual dinner meeting to honor Newton's own "public citizen."

At the meeting, held at the Newton Marriott Hotel, Donald J. MacMillan, president, presented the Chamber's fifteenth annual achievement award to Miss Adelaide Ball, "for distinguished service in public affairs and in recognition of her outstanding leadership and community service."

Miss Ball served eight terms on the Board of Aldermen before her retirement from the board in 1971, and has been active in community organizations for more than 50 years.

She has been a president of the Newton Boys Club, the Newton Community Council, the Newton Family Service Bureau, Friends of the Jackson Homestead, Newton Federation of Women's Clubs, and the Newton Women's Republican Club.

Other affiliations have included the Girl Scouts, the Newton Mental Health Association and the Social Service Club.

Miss Ball was elected a member of the Newton

Mayoral Candidates Spar In Debate

By LEN BATEMAN
Of The Graphic Staff

Newton's mayoral candidates debated their way through a recent Brotherhood Breakfast at Temple Shalom while the audience, in large part composed of candidates for other municipal offices, listened attentively if partisanly.

Incumbent Mayor Theodore D. Mann and his opponent, William Carmen, appeared together for the first time in this campaign and sparred somewhat gingerly over the issues.

Both appeared relaxed within the confines of the debate format dictated by the Brotherhood and each kept their listeners amused throughout with barbs aimed at each other's business management expertise.

Ward 6 Alderman-at-large Sidney Small, debate moderator, jokingly entered the fray at one point and re-echoed both Mann and Carmen.

"I'd sell my stock in any company either one of you is running," Small said to the delight of the audience and the candidates.

Each of the contenders used the three minute opening statement segment of the debate to outline the stance each would take throughout.

"Communication among the people of Newton has been handled in a way which smacks of public relations instead of human relations for too long," stated Carmen.

"He has," he continued, "instituted programs which only reach the people on a superficial level."

"I have faith that the office of mayor will offer me the best opportunity for helping all the people in Newton," he added.

"Having talked with so many of the people, having learned so much from those trapped in their daily routine, having wept with so many of the troubled, I know that true community comes about with those who really care and act," explained Carmen.

Mayor Mann used his opening statement to defend his record and emphasize the importance of experience in managing a city of Newton's size.

"This debate gives me an excellent opportunity to report on the state of governmental affairs," stated Mann, who added that his years as an alderman and state representative, plus 25 years of business experience, were excellent qualifications.

"I am the only candidate who has ever been mayor and I have learned a great deal of what the people expect," Mann said.

"From the achievements of my first term, I know the city can come together," he continued.

"We do not know North, South, East, or West, but only one Newton," said the Mayor in explaining his administration's attempt to represent not just one group within the city, but all.

Carmen used the rebuttal period to attack Mayor Mann's "fiscal irresponsibility."

"He has manipulated the tax rate for 1973, and has shown he has learned the tricks of big city government," Carmen said.

"The Mayor has stated his greatest qualification is that he is mayor, but his greatest weakness is the glaring inequity of the current tax rate," he continued.

"The decrease in this year's tax rate actually reflects a much larger increase to be expected next year," Carmen stated.

"In fact," continued Carmen, "the $5 reduction for 1973 only decreases last year's hike to $13, still the largest increase for any mayor during his first term."

It was then Mayor Mann's turn to rebut and he immediately countered by stating, "It's remarkable how one can twist the truth."

"You as an alderman in 1971, helped to set the tax rate for 1972, a hike you now call the highest for any first-term mayor," continued Mann.

"Anyone with any amount of fiscal responsibility knows the tax rate is already set when a new mayor takes over on Jan. 1," he added.

"The mayor does not set the tax rate alone, but in conjunction with the Board of Aldermen, the Board of Assessors and all city departments," concluded the present incumbent.

Mayor Mann led off with his closing remarks by stating that "experience is important to the well being of the city."

"We will continue to progress," he explained, so that the city "will not have to begin anew the arduous task of reorganization."

"We have established priorities through a comprehensive planning process, but there are those who would demean our accomplishments," stated Mann.

"It is far simpler to promise than to produce, and we have produced," he concluded.

Carmen countered by stating, "You don't call the immenent shutdown of the city incinerator progress."

"It is not the responsibility of others within the administration of any mayor to come up with ideas but only to carry out the programs, he said.

"Those ideas must come from the people, and the present administration has left much to be desired in the way of working with the community for success," Carmen concluded.

Between their opening and closing statements, Mayor Mann and Carmen had an opportunity to answer questions submitted by members of the audience. Each was also given a minute to rebut the other's answers.

Both candidates upheld the fiscal autonomy of the School Committee, but Carmen added that "the Mayor has the responsibility to show by example the business efficiency needed and currently lacking in the School Department."

Mayor Mann explained that efficiency in the school department can only come about through the establishment of a responsible superstructure devoid of politics.

"We cannot destroy the integrity of the schools' administration by tampering with the School Committee's fiscal autonomy," explained the Mayor.

Both candidates also agreed on the possible impact of the Chestnut Hill Towers on Newton.

"Every major development in the city will be beneficial to the tax rate," stated Carmen.

"We must, however," he continued, "balance any possible income benefits with the social and environmental expenses to be faced."

"The answer to unsound development lies with proper city planning," added Mayor Mann.

"The Towers is symptomatic of a previous lack of that planning, but properly and legally speaking it should be allowed to go through," he concluded.

When asked if he had told the Board of Aldermen an additional $30 million of evaluation would be placed on private property at the end of this year, Mann stated, "I don't recall that remark being made."

The mayor also used the question to reaffirm his belief that the accumulated $2.5 million in the city treasury represented "good management" on his part.

"Of course our excellent snow removal last winter helped," the mayor added humorously in reference to one of the mildest winters on record.

"Anyone with connections like that shouldn't be tampered with," he concluded.

Carmen did not think the mayor answered the question and told the audience he also did not know where the additional $30 million evaluation could possibly be placed.

"The $1 million needed to cover the recent teacher pay hike isn't even reflected in the budget," he stated.

Mayor Mann explained the teacher hike could possibly be covered with the current surplus or through a School Department cost reduction program.

"If not," continued Mann, "we will do what we have to do."

"He will borrow the money if he has to, at the highest rate of interest in the country's history and place that cost on the 1974-1975 tax rate," countered Carmen.

The candidates answered several other questions from the audience, and each continued the stance taken at the outset.

The mayor continually defended his record in such areas as senior citizen participation, recreation, and low cost housing with an occasional swipe at Carmen for his record in those areas as an alderman.

Carmen continually hammered home his belief that not enough was done in any of the mentioned areas of city services during the mayor's first term in office.

Mobilize For Fire Victims

By JAMES R. CARROLL

Residents, town officials, businessmen's groups, and churches are responding quickly to appeals for aid to the victims of last Sunday's fire in Chelsea.

Relief efforts are being organized in Dedham, Needham, Newton, and Westwood to collect food and supplies for the people left homeless by the massive blaze.

In Newton, the Lions Club has set up four collection areas for canned and non-perishable foods. They are located at the Oakley Food Mart, 979 Washington st.; Saul's Barber Shop, 747 Beacon st., Newton Centre; West Newton Mobil Station, 1232 Washington st.; and the Walnut Drug Store, 833 Washington st.

The mayor's office has set up another collection point in the city at the Eliot Church, Centre st., Newton Corner. For those who would prefer to have food and clothing picked up at their homes, call Mrs. Andy Marshall at 527-2988.

Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann sent a letter of sympathy to Chelsea Mayor Philip Spelman and has invited all Chelsea residents put out of work because of the fire to attend the Newton Job Fair Saturday at City Hall. Representatives from 20 industries and firms will be interviewing prospective employees.

Needham Firefighters Local 1706 will be collecting clothing and canned foods at fire headquarters. They are also accepting donations and checks, which should be made out to the Chelsea Fire Relief Fund. For more information in Needham, call 444-0142.

The First Baptist Church of Westwood is collecting non-perishable foodstuffs and donations at its educational center, 808 High st., from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. any day this week.

The Dedham Fire Department and Firefighters Local 1735 have established a town-wide drive for relief supplies, which can be dropped off at all local schools and the fire stations in East Dedham and downtown. Allied Container Corp. is donating cartons for the packing of the supplies for transport to Chelsea.

Spokesmen in each of the suburbs said they hope to have most of the supplies collected by Friday so they can be delivered to the fire victims by the weekend.

An administrative aide to Newton's mayor, said over 70 communities responded to the fire in Chelsea under the District 13 Mutual Aid System, which is coordinated at a central headquarters in Newton.

Newton sent a pumper, four police ambulances, and almost a dozen police officers to the fire.

Needham aided the fire effort by covering a Hyde Park station with one of its pumpers and putting extra men on call.

Westwood sent one of its engines to Chelsea and one to cover Dedham when that fire department sent a pumper and a ladder truck to the fire, one pumper to cover a Boston station, and another piece of apparatus to cover a West Roxbury station.

"If it wasn't for the mutual aid system and the help we were able to provide, we would never have been able to stop that fire," said Newton Fire Chief Frederick Perkins. "The cooperation among the towns was wonderful."

Quick Action Needed On Incinerator

Already in technical violation of a state order to submit plans to bring the incinerator into compliance with air-pollution control laws, Newton is now faced with the need to decide within the next two months whether to continue use of the incinerator and, if not, what method of refuse disposal to pursue.

At a meeting of the aldermanic Public Works committee last week, at which another presentation was made by consulting firm Arthur D. Little on its report on solid waste management, several aldermen sharply questioned the right of Public Works Director Richard Dudman to have allowed the delay of the report beyond the original April due date.

The gist of the ADL report is the recommendation that the incinerator not be upgraded, and that the city use the short-term solution of having rubbish trucked out of the city to existing landfill sites or other incinerators.

The preferred long-term solution offered by ADL is resource recovery, which requires a regional approach.

The city's compliance schedule for incinerator upgrading was due to be submitted to the state Department of Public Health by June 30, 1973.

The first draft of the ADL report was presented to the city in August. The final draft is expected this week for presentation to the Board of Aldermen and the administration.

The ADL contract called for the final report to be submitted by April 1, 1973, so that the Board of Aldermen and Mayor Theodore Mann would have time to make the decision on the incinerator and submit a compliance schedule by the state deadline of June 30.

December 31, 1974, is the date by which the incinerator must be upgraded, if the decision is to continue the use of the incinerator, with another six months allowed for final touches.

Dudman explained his authorizing ADL to be several months late with the report by saying that new information was being promulgated by the state which would affect the report.

Dudman said he had notified the state Department of Health that the report would be late.

Alderman Lois Pines, who said at the meeting the city "received a cease and desist order from the State Department of Public Health," that "the Attorney General has to act within 30 days," and that the case "then may go to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency," was somewhat premature in her assessment of the problem.

Walter Smith, chief of the incineration division of the Department of Public Health, reached by telephone the next day, said that if a reasonable plan is not received "in a month or two" he will take the case to the Attorney General, but no cease and desist order is in effect now.

Smith also confirmed that he had been informed by the city about the delay some time ago.

The recommendation of the Arthur D. Little firm stirred less controversy than did the fact that the ADL report is so late.

In the opinion of several aldermen, the delay constitutes a breach of contract.

Alderman Richard McGrath contended that the $37,000 contract with ADL was for a plan to upgrade the incinerator, not to obtain ADL's recommendations on solid waste management.

Meanwhile, the Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal District committee meetings are continuing at a stepped-up rate.

The district was formed last July under an Environmental Protection Agency grant of $112,500 to study the feasibility of the two cities joining together in refuse disposal.

The consultant for the district, Camp Dresser & McKee, "will validate and critique" the ADL report, according to co-chairman David Jackson, as part of its task of providing the district with material on which to base its recommendation, which is due Jan. 31, 1974.

House Passes Child Care Tax Deduction Legislation

The Massachusetts House recently passed legislation which will grant a tax deduction for child care expenses. Rep. Lois Pines (D-Newton), who has sponsored child care deduction legislation for two years, fought successfully against attempts to cripple the bill in the House.

The legislation (which parallels the federal tax deduction for child care which was available to taxpayers for the first time in 1972) would grant a tax deduction in this state against Massachusetts income taxes for child care expenditures and for certain dependent care expenditures necessary in order to allow certain taxpayers to be gainfully employed.

The bill would grant a tax deduction for Massachusetts income tax purposes of up to $400 a month for expenditures made for a dependent of the taxpayer who is under 15 years old, a dependent who is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself or herself, and the spouse of a taxpayer who is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself or herself.

The deduction would be allowed to those taxpayers whose adjusted gross income did not exceed $18,000. If the adjusted gross income exceeds $18,000, the deduction would be reduced $.50 for each $1.00 of added income. In order to secure the deduction, the taxpayer must be employed substantially full-time.

Estimates prepared by economist and assistant vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, Carol Greenwald and Linda Martin, research associate, show a potential net deficit of 2.6 million resulting from this bill.

Rep. Pines pointed out that "recently signed legislation which deprives between 300,000 and 450,000 working families of a $600 deduction to which they were formerly entitled will generate between $9 and $13.5 million in new revenues for the Commonwealth." Rep. Pines explained that "some of these same families would be entitled to claim a deduction under this new bill."

"I hope the Massachusetts Senate accepts its responsibility to assist these working families because nearly four of every five working women today help support a family," she continued.

"In Massachusetts approximately 40 percent of all women with children under 17 work," Pines added.

On June 4 of this year the House by a vote of 147-80 supported broader legislation which would grant a tax deduction to all working families for child care expenses. A deduction would have been available on the same basis as present "business deductions," which are not subject to the conditions of full-time employment and income levels found in the present House passed bill.

This bill is being supported by The Children's Lobby, Office of Children, The Women's Lobby, National Organization for Women, Mass. Women's Political Caucus, the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, and many other organizations.

Resolutions Go Back To Committee

In a brief meeting of the Board of Aldermen last week, two resolutions dealing with acquisition of land were returned to committee, as was a proposed ordinance banning smoking in supermarkets.

Alderman David Jackson, chairman of the aldermanic City Planning Committee, reported his committee in favor 6-0 of a resolution that would insert into the capital improvement program $25,000 for approval of lands to be acquired by 1975.

The acquisition of about 130 acres to be funded by $1-$2 million bonding has been recommended to be included in the capital improvement program by the Newton Conservation Commission. Alderman Peter Harrington objected to approving the money until the City Planning Committee reports its progress on reviewing the capital improvement program. The committee is charged with reviewing and amending if necessary the program each year and making recommendations to the full board.

Alderman Sidney Small, often not in agreement with Harrington, commented, "I'm pleased there's no great crowd here tonight because I want to say I agree with everything the vice-president (Harrington) has said."

"Six months from now the resolution will be pointed to as a commitment, and we're likely to be sorry," Small said.

That resolution and another, to include an amount in the capital improvement program equal to $1 on the tax rate—$350,000—each year for the acquisition of land for city purposes, were both sent to the City Planning and Finance Committees.

The proposed ordinance to ban smoking in supermarkets and other retail food establishments was returned for the second time to the Legislation and Rules Committee for further work.

Alderman Alan Bares in the United States," said he felt the ordinance s "Backward."

"Supermarkets are high-ceilinged and air conditioned, and people may move freely," Barkin said, "but the serious effects of smoking are in a confined area, such as a bar or a restaurant. The ordinance epecifically exclude that type of situation."

Also in favor of recommittal was Small, who hoped the committee would "come up with an ordinance that is livable, workable, and enforceable."

"There aren't enough cops in the whole wide world to enforce this," Small said. "Are you going to have one in every supermarket waiting for somebody to light up?"

Open Space, Radio Station Topics Of Public Hearings

Public hearings were held this week on proposals to save open space in Newton and on a request from a radio station to build a studio at its tower site in Newton Upper Falls.

WHDH Corp. is seeking permission to build a two-story office building at 1173 Chestnut St., Upper Falls, as a facility for WHDH-AM and WCOZ-FM radio.

Some neighbors did appear at the hearing to protest the plan, saying it would generate a "hazardous" increase in traffic, decrease property values, and have a negative environmental impact.

Ward 5 Alderman Edward Uehlein also spoke on behalf of residents.

WHDH representative Roger Booth spoke on behalf of the station and explained that since the corporation no longer operates Channel 5, it does not need its large office and studio facilities now located in Dorchester. The FCC revoked the corporation's license for Channel 5 last year.

The station had sought to build the studio at one of its tower sites in Needham, but a permit to build granted by the building inspector was revoked by the Needham Board of Appeals. WHDH is appealing the Needham decision in court.

Booth said that because station management feels the court fight will be "long," a decision had been made to ask for permission to locate the studio in Newton.

He explained that under FCC regulations, the studio must either be at the transmitter sites or in the town where the station is licensed. That means the studio must be in Newton, Needham or Boston.

Legal questions, stemming from the tower variance originally granted by the Board of Aldermen in 1954, also must be resolved before the Board acts on the petition.

The fact that the variance was granted by the Board of Aldermen instead of the Zoning Board of Appeals and the fact the variance states the Newton tower was to be used for the transmission of Channel 5 instead of stating WHDH are the legal considerations under study by the city solicitor.

A traffic study to determine the impact of WHDH employee traffic on Chestnut Street has also been recommended before the Board of Aldermen acts on the request.

Ald. Edward Richmond's proposed ordinance regarding use of major parcels of land in Newton ran into opposition from the League of Women Voters and the Newton Conservators at its public hearing Monday night.

Both groups, while supporting the idea of protecting "major parcels" of land, urged that a more comprehensive plan be written and adopted for major parcels and cluster zoning.

Richmond's proposal provides for a "density bonus" for developers on the remaining parcels of land in Newton that are more than nine acres. As the developers agree to save more open space, they would be allowed to build more units.

The League of Women Voters spokesman pointed out that the proposed ordinance tends to "make development of the parcels a fact" instead of leaving the question of whether or not they should be developed open.

The League also endorsed a plan for cluster zoning, grouping houses on a piece of land and saving open space, calling it "a logical first step toward planned development."

The Newton Conservators disagreed with Richmond's "density bonus" concept and rapped the plan for leaving the designation of what would be open space on any site up to the developer.

The Conservators also urged that the open space minimum should be raised from Richmond's proposed 15 per cent to 30 or 40 per cent.

No action was taken on any of the subjects of the public hearings. The Land Use Committee meets tonight (Oct. 18) at 7:45 p.m.

Housing Authority Rejects Bids

By a unanimous vote, the members of the Newton Housing Authority — acting upon the advice of the Department of Community Affairs — rejected the bids submitted for three proposed low income housing developments as "not being in the public interest."

Authority action capped 90 minutes of deliberation, dominated by Alex Cvjanovic and David Sheffield, representatives of Architects Collaborative (TAC).

After a lengthy appraisal of the current status of the three projects, Cvjanovic concluded that "the next agonizing step is to reject the bids and cut the frills."

Sheffield pointed out to authority members, however, that the Beaconwood Road, Thurston Road, and California Street-Victory Field projects had already been trimmed down to the bone, and additional austerity would be "nickel-and-diming it."

This latest log jam has proven especially discouraging for authority members, who had been fairly optimistic about the chances for realization of additional family and elderly units in Newton. The bids had poured in last month, to the pleasant surprise of those concerned, only to be received unfavorably by DCA, the funding agency.

Temporarily, at least, the authority must be patient. Consulations are now under way between the architects and the state in hopes of loosening the lid on DCA cost guidelines.

These guidelines, incidentally, were established in the early sixties, and may be incompatible with the current building costs.

For example, union wage increases, with common laborers now being paid $7.60 per hour, have sent construction costs spiraling.

In addition, Cvjanovic explained, the Phase III-Phase IV interregnum contributed to the "sky's-the-limit" attitude, as contractors were vitally concerned with protecting themselves from future economic traumas. According to Cvjanovic, "the authority couldn't have chosen a worse time to go out for bid."

Sheffield interjected that the sheer immensity of paperwork involved to submit bids may have prompted some contractors to tack on an extra 10-15 percent — an aggravation surcharge — to their final bids.

The consensus supported simplification of the bid procedure. The original five-option package, designed to entice the smaller contractor to compete with larger firms, succeeded only in scaring the small firms away.

In light of this dilemma, the authority resolved to go out for rebid with a three-option package consisting of the three sites in single options.

These modifications, coupled with a market stabilization could deflate the bids, according to Housing Authority Executive Director Frank Quinn.

Auburndale Woman Slain

Investigators of the stabbing death of 18 year-old Marcia Tyman of Auburndale have discounted any connection between her murder and three previous slayings of women in the Fitchburg-Leominster area of Massachusetts.

Miss Tyman's body was found by two employees of the state Department of Public Works off Route 2 in Harvard early Tuesday morning.

According to State Trooper Herbert Hall of the Leominster Barracks, investigators from the Harvard Police, the Worcester County District Attorney's office, and the State Police in Boston had worked on the case throughout Tuesday night and Wednesday morning and had found no connection between the Tyman murder and the others.

Miss Tyman's brother, Michael, 21, and her maternal grandfather, Frank Brocklesby, identified her body at Clinton Hospital where it had been taken after being found in a wooded rest area off the busy main highway linking the north central part of the state to Boston.

Worcester County Medical Examiner Richard Bartlett performed an autopsy at the hospital and announced the young Newton woman had died of multiple punctures and lacerations of the liver and lungs.

Police ruled her death a homicide and according to Trooper Hall "ruled out robbery or sexual assault."

Time of death was placed a few hours before the body was found at 8:21 a.m. Tuesday. The woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tyman, 257 Auburndale Ave., Auburndale, had boarded a plane at Boston's Logan Airport for a ten-day trip to Florida just one hour and 20 minutes before the body was discovered.

The woman's aunt, Mrs. Marilyn Dodd of 45 Murray Rd., West Newton, was attempting to reach Mr. and Mrs. Tyman in Florida, Tuesday evening, and told police she thought "Marcia had gone to the airport to see her parents off," according to Trooper Hall.

Two younger Tyman children, Jacqueline, 14, and Jill 12, accompanied their parents to Florida.

Investigators found $1 and a driver's license in Miss Tyman's handbag and announced they found no automobile in the rest area, nor was there any when the body was found.

Miss Tyman was a June, 1973, graduate of Newton North High School and had spent this past summer working as a nurses' aide at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. She was taking a typing course in the Adult Education Program of the Newton Public Schools at the time of her death.

Others working with Trooper Hall on the Tyman case include Harvard Police Chief John Reardon, Detective Lieutenant Joseph Doheney of the Worcester County District Attorney's office and several experienced investigators from the State Police Detective Bureau in Boston.

Detectives are still investigating the recent stabbing death of a 31 year-old school teacher in Townsend, a town very close to Route 2 and Harvard, and the stabbing death of two Fitchburg women in their apartment. All three murders took place in September.

The Chelsea Fire

There is no community near here that is not neighbor to a modern miracle.

It can be rightly called the miracle of the Chelsea fire. How else to explain the headline fact that although a searing blaze exploded through the homes of some 1,000 Chelsea residents Sunday not a single person was killed or seriously injured.

If the winds were blowing southerly or westerly Sunday many more of us would have seen and tasted the oily smoke that twisted away from another neighborhood in the late part of the autumn afternoon.

The smoke that smudged the skyline was easily seen late that day from the hilltops in Needham, Newton, Boston and as far away as Dover.

The blackness that swept away seemed to point back indelibly smirching the scene of the holocaust and also marking the miracle.

Although officials point to conditions of Chelsea and the high winds as key factors in the blaze that leveled 18 blocks within the city there is not a fire official in our own communities that is not thankful a triple alarm was not sounded in his own district.

The fire has left many Chelsea residents of all ages without a place to sleep or call their own. The blaze gutted the only homes many of these victims have ever had. Few among them has the luxury of a second home or vacation cottage to move to temporarily.

The last siren has screamed through Chelsea but there is a continued need for further help. Persons who have vacant apartments or homes are being asked to list them with Red Cross by phoning 262-1234 and asking for extensions 322 or 323.

There is also a need for clothing of all sizes. For many there was not even time to turn back for another day's wear. Donations of clothing are being collected at Massachusetts General Hospital. If you think you could help, and no offer is too small, then bring your extra garments to the hospital's central lobby.

At times Chelsea may seem far distant. But if situations were reversed would we not welcome help from that city?

From out of the debris that claimed no victim there may come our second miracle. That would be the miracle of our combined help to the Chelsea fire victims.

Worst Halloween Trick

Every year about this time as Halloween approaches the stories begin circulating about cruel incidents in other years that lend credence to belief that, yes indeed, there are true spooks roaming our land.

But more accurately defined they are not spooks but sick persons. They could be called child haters. They are the very few people responsible for such "tricks" as razor blades in apples and laxatives in candy accepted by little boys and girls making the Halloween night rounds as scary characters.

Although these cruel tricks are highly infrequent they have taken much of the fun out of the evening that youngsters so look forward to Past Halloweens and the true scare stories that come out the next day should warn us that the cruelest trick this Halloween would be not to warn the little ones about certain safety ground rules.

Boys and girls should be instructed not to eat their treats until after they have brought them home for your inspection. Usually anything wrapped and sealed by the manufacturer is safe. But to be doubly sure even things like sealed candy bars, cookies and Crackerjacks should be examined. Horror stories abound regarding just about every treat.

And then there are other things that can be done to make the chances for a fun night free from harm and injury. Flashlights should also be loaned to the little goblins leaving your house. Face masks need large eye holes so that dangerous places can be avoided in the darkness. Nose holes too should often be enlarged in masks so the spook can breathe properly.

It's a good idea to put reflective tape on the youngsters' costumes. And costumes should be adjusted so they don't drag in order to avoid tripping and falling.

Most costumes that are purchased now come made of fire retardant materials, as required by law. But what of the homemade disguises? They should also be made fire retardant with a mixture of borax, boric acid and water.

Halloween will be here in just about two weeks. When that Wednesday night comes we can all take part in the annual trick and treat.

With these simple precautions and possibly some safety ideas of your own it cannot turn into a night of terror in lieu of happy tricks and treats.

Newton Graphic Will Be Moving Friday

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Friday is going to be moving day for the Newton Graphic staff.

As reported on the front page, we are opening an office at 1178 Walnut St., and I, for one, think it's a beautiful place. Picture the Graphic, if you can, in a location with red shag carpeting, blue panelled walls, and a mirrored ceiling.

Yes, the ceiling has been the subject of a certain degree of humorous speculation, wry comments, and amazement. But take my word for it, it grows on you.

Despite the fact Monday is a holiday, we intend to keep the office open all day and perhaps see some of our readers. I assume we will be a hard group to locate on Friday because we won't be in the Dedham main office but have no idea when the phone system will be working in Newton.

The new phone number is 965-6300.

Completely Black

On other fronts, I also feel compelled this week to direct your attention to a light little story on the back page that came to us from Al Hurwitz, coordinator of art for the Newton schools.

Every week, we get hundreds of pieces of mail, most of it viewed very routinely.

Occasionally, we hit a bright spot, and this week it was the Hurwitz saga of the pizza.

Al's release deals with a festival of student films in Newton, among them the chilling story of the pizza that came to life and started wandering around.

It reminds me of Bill Cosby's old routine of the "Chicken Heart" that ate New York. And it looks like it's going to be a good film festival.

The last time I was this captivated by a press release was the day I was opening the mail, came to a plain brown, unmarked envelope, and without any forewarning, pulled out the "Miss Nude America" calendar for 1971.

When I recovered, I put it back in the envelope, went solemnly to the editor's office and told him it was for him.

When he recovered, we put it back in the envelope, sealed it, and sent it to our women's editor.

TO ALL NEWTON CANDIDATES: The deadline for returning The Graphic questionnaire is Friday. It, of course, was established before we knew Friday, Oct. 19, would be moving day. If you were planning on dropping the questionnaire off Friday, you can drop it off at the new office. The office will also be open Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Treasurer Bob Crane Makes Millions Yearly For State

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane makes more money for the people of Massachusetts than any other person in the history of the Commonwealth. He's the biggest bargain the Bay State ever had.

Those are strong statements, but they can be supported with facts and figures.

During the state's fiscal year which ended last June 30, Crane made the tidy sum of $6,276,000 for the people of Massachusetts by depositing state funds in banks and investing them in treasury bills and short-term loans.

To break down that figure, Crane realized $1,720,000 in interest on bank deposits and $4,556,000 in interest on investments in treasury bills and so-called short-time loans. This, of course, lessened the tax burden on the people by that amount.

During the same 12-month period Crane was paid $25,000 for his work as State Treasurer and $3,000 for his service as chairman of the State Emergency Finance Board.

In addition, Crane served in an unpaid capacity as head of the state lottery which in its first full year of operation raised $30 million for Massachusetts cities and towns to lighten their tax levy on real estate and which, incidentally, despite the early misgivings of some observers, was operated without a hint or taint of scandal or even a suggestion of wrongdoing.

Even those petty gamblers such as the writer, who invest $1 in two lottery tickets each week and never see their number come up, have to admit that the lottery is conducted honestly. Crane goes to such lengths that he recently advised a relative to stop buying lottery tickets. "If you had the winning ticket, I couldn't let you collect," Crane declared.

With all his duties and responsibilities as State Treasurer, few persons probably realize that Crane also is a big-time moneylender.

That doesn't mean you can drop in at Crane's office and borrow a few dollars if the family budget is thrown out of kilter by unexpected doctor's bills.

But you can borrow a few million for a week or even a weekend if you're the president of General Motors or Gillette's and are willing to pay interest of about 10 per cent.

Registered money brokers on the Stock Exchange are constantly seeking to borrow money for a giant corporation, and it's not unusual for the enterprising Crane to lend one of them a million dollars or more over a three-day holiday weekend while the State House is closed.

A spokesman for a self-styled reform organization, which imagines wrongdoing where it wishes it to be, recently took a "cheap shot" at Crane for depositing money in a bank it singled out.

The records show that Crane deposits surplus state funds in about 200 different banks and indicate that he treats all banks fairly. "All banks pay the same amount of interest," Crane replied when asked about it. "I don't favor one bank over another."

He explained that he can deposit up to 40 per cent of the capital and surplus of a commercial bank and up to the amount that is insured by a cooperative bank or federal savings and loan association.

Crane follows sophisticated investment procedures in his efforts to collect as much interest as possible for the people of Massachusetts, but while he's the official head of the state lottery he takes no risk whatever when he deposits the people's money in banks or invests it in treasury bills or short-time loans.

In one sense, Crane's office is the biggest bank in Massachusetts, handling about $6.8 billion per year in receipts and disbursements, but the average big banker receives far more in salary than the $28,000 a year that is paid to Crane.

Crane, who already has served longer as State Treasurer than anyone else, presides over a variety of public services.

Revenue is paid into his office from such sources as the state income tax, the corporation tax, the meal tax, the inheritance tax, the sales tax, the gasoline tax, the state lottery and from the sale of state bonds.

In addition, all federal grants to the state such as the revenue-sharing receipts are paid to Treasurer Crane.

His office distributes approximately $390 million a year to the 351 cities and towns in Massachusetts and collects about $117 million annually from them.

It handles the payment of all state bills and the salaries of more than 60,000 state employees, 25,000 of whom are paid directly through the Treasurer's office.

On almost any day in the week and any time during the day, Treasurer Crane's office is the busiest place in the State House. Two of his assistants receive larger salaries than he gets, but Crane is too busy trying to figure out how he can collect another million or so dollars in interest to make any issue about that.

Richardson Stood 10 Feet Tall At Tragic Close Of Agnew Case

When Elliot L. Richardson was Massachusetts Attorney General, and before that U. S. Attorney at Boston, he prosecuted people, but he didn't persecute them. Some of the persons who were prosecuted by Richardson during those periods may dispute that statement. But this reporter was in a position to observe Richardson closely.

While there invariably is a wave of sympathy when a person in high office is humbled and humiliated as Spiro Agnew was in one of the truly tragic chapters in American history, it is crystal clear now that Richardson did not trespass on the rights of Mr. Agnew; nor did he shrink from the most difficult and disagreeable duties.

It is typical of Richardson that he did not send an assistant to a Baltimore courtroom to ask for clemency for Spiro Agnew; he went himself.

The finish of the sad Agnew case provided a convincing answer which squelched those columnists and commentators who had centered their fire on Richardson and virtually accused him of destroying Agnew for political reasons.

Richardson stood ten feet tall as he asked a crusty hard-bitten federal judge, sitting in a Baltimore court, to spare the resigning Vice President of the United States the indignity of going to prison.

Elliot Richardson does not trespass on anyone's rights. He is not that kind of person. He has a profound respect for individual rights. And he treats everyone alike — the rich and the poor, the mighty and the humble, those in high places and the little people.

Throughout the unfortunate Spiro Agnew investigation, it seemed apparent that there was no political capital to be gained by Elliot Richardson from destroying Mr. Agnew.

Even though Spiro Agnew stands today a convicted felon, disgraced in the eyes of the people of the United States, it is only fair to report that his rights were violated by the newspapers and television networks which flagrantly disregarded the traditional secrecy and sanctity of the Grand Jury.

That is something to which even those who disliked Spiro Agnew and applauded his downfall should give serious thought. But Richardson did not trespass on Agnew's rights. He didn't violate the privacy of the Grand Jury, and he became justly angered when the Justice Department he heads was accused of leaking evidence harmful to Mr. Agnew.

It seems evident now that Spiro Agnew's worst enemy was Spiro Agnew.

Richardson, to be sure, is a Yankee Brahmin, but he is not a bigot, as some columnists have implied. When he was Lieutenant Governor and later Attorney General, he had Blacks, Italians, Irish, Greeks, Catholics and persons of just about all origins working on his staff.

He has been criticized for charging late in the 1966 Attorney General campaign that Francis X. Bellotti lacked moral insensitivity because he accepted a fee from an insurance company while serving as Lieutenant Governor. Bellotti later was cleared of any wrongdoing or conflict of interest.

Persons close to Richardson say he did not verify his information until late in that campaign, that he was informed the polls showed he was far ahead of Bellotti, that he might jeopardize his election chances by making an 11th hour allegation against Bellotti but that Richardson felt the statement should be made regardless of the political consequences.

That's the kind of person Richardson is. He doesn't believe in the don't-tip-over-the-applecart strategy. As a result he almost lost the 1966 Attorney General fight, a defeat which would have relegated him to political obscurity.

Elliot Richardson has been both an embarrassment and a protection to his boss, President Nixon.

He has been a protection because nobody who knows Richardson suspected for even a moment that there would be any coverup of any wrongdoing either by Spiro Agnew or in the Watergate mess.

Richardson leans so far over backward to be fair that he almost ruins the person he is working for. That's Richardson's code, and he accepts it when it happens to him, as it did at the 1962 Republican State Convention, when Leverett Saltonstall, for whom Richardson had worked, made a questionable ruling which resulted in the nomination of Edward W. Brooke over Richardson for Attorney General. Richardson insists that Salty was in a difficult position and made the right ruling.

Richardson certainly was not trying to protect his boss when he named Archibald Cox as special Watergate prosecutor. Cox is now a big nuisance to Nixon. Richardson can't control Cox and doesn't try to do so. Cox already is straying far afield from the things he was supposed to probe, but Richardson is not interfering with him.

At one point friends of Spiro Agnew claimed he was being "framed." At another critics of President Nixon expressed fear that the Watergate case would be "bagged." But Elliot Richardson doesn't "frame" people or "bag" cases. He does what he thinks is right and lets the chips land where they fall.

Only time will tell whether he can do that at the highest level of national politics and survive politically to the extent of being a serious contender for the Republican nomination for President in 1976. A Presidential fight between Elliot Richardson and Ted Kennedy would be an interesting one, indeed.

Reply To Mr. Wollins

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I'm embarrassed when I read a letter like the one Ben Wollins wrote to the Newton Graphic last week.

Mr. Wollins has missed the point of our American way of government when he criticizes any candidate for mayor after admitting he's "never met or spoken with either Mr. Carmen or Mr. Mann."

Involvement is prerequisite to our political system. If Mr. Wollins is sincere about his concern for Newton, he should make the effort to meet Mr. Carmen and Mr. Mann, and then support whoever he feels will best serve Newton.

It's possible to excuse Mr. Wollins' lack of knowledge about the issues currently facing our community and our country.

I guess it's possible for someone to say that a discussion of campaign financing is "detracting from the issues" the same week that the vice president of the United States is forced to resign his position in an attempt to avoid being sent to jail.

And perhaps I can disregard Mr. Wollins contradiction when he infers that the present city administration has "kept the lid" on Newton's budget when the budget has been increased, and will continue to increase as the result of irresponsible action like borrowing money to meet the city payroll.

Maybe Mr. Wollins honestly believes that the people of Newton must helplessly accept the burden of the mayor's mishandling of property revaluation that will significantly increase every homeowner's tax bill.

What is inexcusable is Ben Wollins' attitude that his "years" of political "labor" entitle him to fault our local government before he familiarizes himself with it.

Winston Churchill once said "It is better to be making the news than taking it; to be an actor rather than a critic." I wonder if Mr. Wollins will bother to vote on Election Day, or will he wait for the morning after to protest the results?

Cabot Student Has Request

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I am a sixth grade student at Cabot School, Newtonville. I like the school very much as do my three brothers and sister who are also students.

However, we have one major problem at the school. The bathrooms are in sad shape. They are known as slum areas.

For the past five years, we have been hoping and praying for repairs (teachers and principal too!), but they have not come about.

On Oct. 25, there is a meeting at City Hall and our situation is on the agenda. The PTA is urging its parents to participate. I am appealing to other taxpayers in the Cabot School district who do not have children in the school to show some interest and attend the meeting since a lot of your tax money supports our school.

We shouldn't have to put up with this problem much longer. Please attend!

Towers On Agenda-

Committee under the so-called anti-snob zoning law (Ch. 774), where proceedings have been stopping and starting for more than two years.

On its Board of Directors is Richard Lovell, the senior lawyer representing the Towers before the board.

The general feeling among the Board of Aldermen seems to be that since site work has been done and the site is ready for foundations, the building must be allowed to proceed, though not without penalty to the developer.

Some members of the board are opposed to the Towers in any event, but these seem to be in the minority.

The consensus is that the premissive use should be extended, not only because so much preliminary work has been done, but also because there are many unanswered questions about the involvement of several city department in the series of events that allowed continuation of construction after the expiration of the permission.

The prospect of more than $1 million in real estate taxes annually from the Towers is another inducement to allow the completion of the Towers.

The Land Use Committee is now faced with the problem of getting a written agreement to be signed by the Towers and NCDF that will bind each party, so that the committee can grant extension of permissive use with the agreement as a condition.

As a guarantee that the Towers will perform according to whatever agreement is reached, the Board of Aldermen has the requirement that the Towers submit an amended site plan for board approval.

The Towers has deviated from the original site plan approved with the permissive-use petition. A new site plan must be prepared and approved, and approval could be made contingent on the Towers fulfillment of the agreement.

Rev. Gilbert Avery III, president of NCDF, and Marc Slotnick, executive director, asked the Land Use Committee for guidance on the number of units that might be acceptable to the Board of Aldermen.

Chairman Alan Barkin would say only, "Not less that 40," which is the number that can be built under applicable zoning laws for the 8½-acre parcel of land.

Discussions up till now between NCDF and the Towers have mentioned at least 40 units, with the Towers proposing "up to 68 maximum," and NCDF responsible for securing the necessary permissive use.

Avery commented at the most recent meeting that in 1971 the Board of Aldermen had approved 102 units on the site (the only one of the original 10 sites that was granted permissive use in 1970).

"If developed at 85 units," Avery said, "this would be the lowest density for townhouses anywhere in the city."

The Towers proposes that 40 per cent of the units be leased to the Housing Authority, but NCDF considers 25 per cent to be the maximum to create a good socioeconomic mix.

The remainder of the units would be for moderate-income persons.

According to the Towers proposal, the site would be purchased by a wholly owned affiliate of the Towers Trust. The trust affiliate would develop the site, obtain the financing, and build the housing.

NCDF would retain the option to repurchase the entire property for land cost. Under the Towers' plan, NCDF could repurchase either when the mortgage is fully paid, after about 25 years, or by paying the mortgage balance after 12 years.

The management of the housing is one point that had not been worked out.

Another is the location of the access road to the Hamlet St. property. Neighbors in Thompsonville (the section around Langley Rd. north of Route 9) do not want more traffic on heavily traveled Langley Rd., and prefer ingress and egress through the Towers property.

The possible resurrection of NCDF brought back to City Hall the principal opponents of the organization in its fight for low-income housing in 1970.

Robert Stiller, the most persistent NCDF antagonist, objected to the conduct of the Land Use meeting. "If the NCDF proposal is coming before Land Use, I say they should have a docket number, public hearing and so on," Stiller said. "This should not be on NCDF but on the Towers."

Barkin replied, "We can discuss anything we want as long as it's in the open. Anybody can come in. Certainly if NCDF proposes a use on Hamlet St., there must be a public hearing and all the rest of it."

"The Towers should stand or fall on the merits of the Towers," Stiller argued.

Aldermen Harry Crosby cut that digression short by saying, "That's a dangerous assumption as far as the Towers goes."

Candidate Has Recreation Plan

Barbara Schiller, candidate for alderman-at-large in Ward 2, this week put forth recreation proposals for older teenagers.

Saying the city lacks "realistic programs geared to meet the special needs of young people," Mrs. Schiller called for the creation of Youth Houses as an answer to the "aimlessness of today's youth."

She envisions the Youth House concept as one where many of the "shelter buildings" located on Newton fields and playgrounds would be converted into recreation centers. Teenagers would be given free use of the buildings with "minimal restrictions and would be entirely responsible for them."

"I am not naive about the teenage situation," said the mother of five. "I know some will scoff at the Youth House. There will be problems of delegating responsibility of rival cliques and so forth.

"But the Recreation Dept. has a hard time reaching this age group. We have no open spaces for kids to use. Drop-in centers deal with problems only when a crisis stage has been reached. Youth House costs nothing. It is worth a try."

NRA-

"Just meet with White; and if you cannot genuinely come up with a compromise on the design, I will vote to rescind," Cadwell stated.

It was then that NLFIA President Donald Budge asked Cadwell, "Does the authority feel it has enough latitude to allow White Construction Co. to change its plans?"

Cadwell's affirmative reply touched off a verbal storm from LOPAC and NLFIA members and two Newton aldermen present at the meeting.

Ward 4 Alderman Richard J. McGrath stated, "If you can allow White to change its plans, you can rescind aand pick Spaulding and Slye as the community desires."

"It appears," he continued, "as if your taking sides with White when you allow them to change already submitted plans."

"It bothers me," stated Budge, "that you would allow White certain design changes, including the switch from a single building concept to a multi-building concept as desired by the neighborhood."

Edmund Mangini, urban renewal chief for the state Department of Community Affairs, and the man responsible for the disapproval of the selection of White because it "did not take the wishesof the community into consideration" also appeared at the meeting.

"The authority has selected a developer with a single building concept and I don't think that can be changed," Mangini said.

He also added, however, that "my legal advisors tell me the vote cannot be rescinded."

"I guess I threw the biggest monkey wrench into this project," he continued, "but I was hoping the people could work with the selected developer without any kind of change in the law."

"Irrespective of what Mangini's lawyers tell him," countered Ward 4 Alderman-at-Large Louis I. Egelson, Jr., "I would rather see the authority rescind and let the chips fall where they may."

"We'll get a resolution of support from the Board of Aldermen and rattle a few swords of our own if we have to, " he continued.

"I realize Mangini is now in a tight position, but let's rescind anyway," Egelson urged.

"Maybe White won't contest in the courts after all especially if he wants to do any more business in Newton," Egelson continued.

"But," interjected Cadwell, "I don't want to see the community acting as capriciously as the authority has been accused of doing."

"Why risk a court case unless the community groups have met with the selected developer and failed to reach a compromise?" he asked.

Authority member Richard D. Clarey, made the motion to rescind after the authority recessed its own meeting and allowed LOPAC and the NLFIA to vote separately on whether or not they wanted to meet with the selected developer.

Both groups overwhelmingly voted to reject the idea and instead voted, again overwhelmingly, to ask for a rescission.

When the rescission motion carried, an eerie silence momentarily dominated the crowded basement room of the Hamilton School and was only broken when Budge announced triumphantly, "It's a whole new ball game!"

The authority declined to immediately vote to select Spaulding and Slye for the commercial project, and was congratulated for "taking separate steps" by Egelson.

"You now have the complete backing of the community, the Board of Aldermen and the mayor, and we all hope you will act expeditiously as possible in making another choice," stated the alderman-at-large.

Richard Ellis, a representative of the White firm present at the meeting, left immediately after the vote was taken and would make no comment.

Clarey indicated he expected as much difficulty over the vote from Mangini as from the rejected White.

"We have an opinion from the renewal consulting firm of Foley, Hoag and Elliott that says our actions tonight were legal," concluded Clarey.

Retarded Gain With Yard Sale

An unusual yard sale is to be held on Saturday, Oct. 20, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Newton Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, 785 Centre St., Newton Centre.

The sale will feature a trailer load of Christmas decorations at ridiculously low prices and will include wreaths, novelties, trees, ornaments and lights. Now is the time to prepare for the coming holiday at a leisurely pace.

Gigantic pumpkins will be offered for sale, as well as "trick or treat" candy. Attic treasures including antiques, bric a brac, household and baby goods, handicrafts, art works, and also terrariums made by retarded teenagers will also be available.

The sale is the first fund-raising event to be sponsored by the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Committee to Establish Community Residences for the Retarded, Inc.

The committee, a non-profit organization, is dedicated to providing a normalized lifestyle for retarded children and adults.

The first residence, Juniper House, located at 14 Newtonville Ave., Newton Corner, will open within the next few weeks and will become the permanent home of eight adult retardates from the Wrentham State School.

The committee sees the need for at least 20 residences for the retarded in the Newton-Wellesley-Weston area and the funds raised from the sale will help the committee attain its goal.

More information may be obtained by calling Lucie Chansky at 244-7310; Edna Tarutz at 332-8326; Marilyn Lovell at 244-8889 or Jenny Crowder at 244-5250.

Ambulance Bill Gets Legislative Approval

The Emergency Medical Care Bill was enacted today in both branches of the Massachusetts Legislature and sent to the Governor for signature.

This will allow the Massachusetts Department of Public Health to regulate ambulance services, require specific training of emergency medical care personnel and technicians, establish a communications network between emergency vehicles and hospital facilities and set up an advisory board to assist the Commissioner of Public Health in coordinating a state-wide emergency medical care program which would remedy the present emergency health care inadequacies in Massachusetts.

According to Rep. Lois Pines (D-Newton) a sponsor of the bill, "Statistics indicate that every citizen in Massachusetts will need emergency medical care sometime in the next ten years and, therefore, should be critically concerned with a system that presently requires only a standard first aid course of approximately 26 hours of training for an emergency medical technician and none for the driver of the vehicle compared to 5,500 hours of training for embalmers and 5000 hours for hairdressers."

Rep. Pines also stated: "Last year there were over 29,000 deaths in Massachusetts due to accident, heart attack and stroke. More than 23 percent of the accident fatalities could have been saved, according to a 1971 University of Vermont study, and 30 percent of the heart attack victims should have lived, according to the American Heart Association, if emergency medical care had been adequate."

"Some of the finest hospitals in the world are located in Massachusetts, yet our citizens often die before reaching these facilities because emergency medical care is so poor in the Commonwealth," she concluded.

Where The Champions Meet

The professional football players of the National Football League who check into the Marriott Motor Hotel in Newton each week prior to their game with the New England Patriots are handled by a champ.

But there are some differences between the burly pros of the NFL and the Marriott's champ . . . mainly she's a lot prettier and she's a basketball star.

She is Dale Ryan of Newton who helps staff the reception desk at the Marriott. A sports enthusiast, Dale was captain of this year's Newton Suburban League, the community basketball team which won the intercity competition for the third straight year.

The champion team, with home base at Cabot Park in Newton, was comprised of nine girls, ranging in age from 20 to 25, all from the Newton area. Team members included Cecil De Marco, Ann McGowan, Marie Donahue, Gina Silver, Karen Pierce, Paula Mullen, Fran Towle, Marie Donegan and Dale.

"We play full court with a five gal team, using men's rules," said Dale, who played center. "Our toughest opponent in both the East and West Divisions of the League was Stoughton."

All of the games were held outdoors at basketball courts in the different suburban cities around Boston. The girls acted as their own sponsors.

"We played some high scoring games." commented Dale. "It really keeps you in shape . . . and you meet a lot of nice people."

The daughter of the John William Ryan's of Newtonville, Dale is a graduate of Our Lady's in Newton and attended Boston State for two years before she joined the staff of the Marriott.

Although Dale experienced a sprained ankle and torn ligaments in one of the games . . . as did some of her teammates . . . she will be playing again next year.

"I love all sports," said Dale, who also enjoys horseback riding. "I'm a great spectator as well as a participant."

Party Day At Hospital

Raising $10,000 for the dialysis equipment in Newton-Wellesley Hospital's new Special Care Unit is the goal for the Hospital Aid Association's 21st Party Day.

The date is Wednesday, Oct. 31, and village chairmen are hard at work preparing for the annual event, and aid's major fund raising effort of the year.

Last year's Party Day with a similar goal provided suction and oxygen for the Hospital's delivery suite. The dialyser, this year's goal, is used to cleanse the blood of impurities and is essential for kidney patients and for some cardiovascular patients. The equipment, which will be new to Newton-Wellesley Hospital, is necessary for the emergency treatment of those whose condition must be stabilized before they are ready for more specialized care.

Party Day chairmen are Mrs. Hugh M. Tomb for Newton and Mrs. Harold F. Birk for Wellesley. Mrs. Shepard F. Williams, Waban, and Mrs. William Elfers, Wellesley Hills, are chairmen of tickets, reservations and contributions. Mrs. Chester E. Borden, Auburndale, is chairman of prizes, and Mrs. George A. Dempsey, Newton Highlands, and Mrs. John M. Case, Wellesley, are chairmen of refreshments. Publicity chairman is Mrs. Worthing L. West, Newton Centre.

Newton College Holds Parents' Weekend

More than 300 parents from all parts of the country will spend Parents' Weekend, Oct. 20-21, at Newton College in Newton.

A Sunday brunch will feature as guest speaker Mary Egan Boland, a 1960 graduate of Newton College, an attorney, and president of the Springfield, Mass. City Council. Mrs. Boland is married to U.S. Rep. Edward Boland.

A major highlight of the weekend will be the traditional annual football game between sophomores and seniors to be played on the Newton College campus on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 20.

A picnic on the campus at noon on Saturday, a reception late Saturday afternoon, and a liturgy to be celebrated in the college chapel on Sunday morning will round out the weekend's planned activities.

City Workers Get Increase Of 5.1 Percent

A 5.1 percent pay increase will be paid to all city employees during the month of November, James Salter, aide to Mayor Theodore Mann, said this week.

The cost of living increase was originally set at 4.8 percent last June. That figure was disputed by Louis Rufo, president of Local 800, largest of the city's labor unions.

Arbitration carried out over the summer resulted in a figure of 5.1 percent, because of an ambiguity in one clause of the 1972-73 contract.

Members of Local 800 recently voted against accepting the results of the arbitration. Rufo claimed that the increase should have been 5.4 percent.

Rufo said this week that his union "will do something," but declined to elaborate.

New Form of Censorship, Triple The Taxes

By PHILIP M. STONE

HELSINKI (UPI) — The tax collector has become Finland's severest movie critic. If he dislikes a film he can tax it three times the normal rate.

The taxation policies follow concern by Finns over their increasingly violent crime rate. The government believes film violence is a major cause.

Using a law 50 years old but not enforced strictly until this year, the tax authorities and the office of film censorship can judge that a film with a poor plot, immoral, or badly filmed, can be taxed at 30 per cent of the theaters' receipts compared with the normal 10 per cent. Excess violence is considered immoral.

Theater owners, forbidden by agreements, cannot raise their prices for a higher taxed film, and so for business reasons will seldom show such a film.

Films of an educational, scientific, or news nature may be shown tax free as may films intended for children. Most Walt Disney films, for instance, fall in this category.

The main victims of the 30 per cent rule are films with excess violence, particularly Italian westerns. Jerker Eriksson, chairman of the Film Censorship Board, said, "Italian spaghetti westerns are usually made on a shoestring budget, have poor plots and are not artistically good although there are exceptions."

But it was two British-made films which first caught the tax man's attention and were hit with the higher tax.

The first film was Sam Peckinpah's "Straw Dogs". Then followed Stanley Kubrick's "Clockwork Orange" which the censorship board first rated in the normal category. But the tax man reclassified it to the higher bracket, and when the distributor appealed to the Supreme Court the ruling was upheld.

A spokesman for Warner-Colombia said, "The cinema owners are not allowed to raise their prices even though a film is heavily taxed. So we have to be very sure of its success before we'll distribute the film."

No Hong Kong Films

One distributor said he cannot bring into the country the new wave of Hong Kong-made spy films because the censor and the tax authorities claim they contain too much violence.

Eriksson said, "The law began in the 1920s to make it very difficult to distribute bad films and make it easy to distribute good films. We know the distributors are very upset now, but we are disturbed by the violence in the films."

The state Office of Film Censorship views about 300 films a year and rates about five per cent in the tax category, Eriksson said. The board is not so much concerned with sex as it is with violence, although pornography is banned, he said.

The board is comprised of eight members and must, by law, include at least one woman, one representative from the finance and education departments, a psychologist, and a person with an above-average knowledge of cinema art. The board makes its recommendations to the tax authorities but they are not binding.

"A film made by reputable people and internationally well-known has a better chance of being approved than a shoe-string budget film," Eriksson said. "But the ruling on 'Straw Dogs' and 'Clockwork Orange' should demonstrate that we'll draw the line no matter how good the cast or the director."

Mel Adelson Appointed Homestock Vice President

Joseph Freeman, President of J. Homestock, the five store furniture showroom chain, has announced the appointment of Mel Adelson as vice president for marketing.

In making the announcement Freeman stated "Mel Adelson brings to our organization 15 yars of insight, experience, and excitement in the furniture trade. He also brings to J. Homestock a new perspective, since a marketing division is new to our structure and, I dare say, new to the retail home furnishings field. We are indeed fortunate to have attracted a man with such capabilities to assume primary responsibility in such key areas as sales promotion, advertising, development of specialized sales training programs, and community relations."

Adelson comes to J. Homestock from Sealy, Inc., with whom he was associated since 1967, serving most recently as director of sales.

In elaborating on Freeman's comments regarding the structuring of a retail marketing division within the chain, Adelson said "It's so unique, but yet rather basic. We will be communicators working in tandem with our own merchandising and store operations divisions; we will keep our troops informed as though one distinct force to accomplish our main objective of spreading the J. Homwstock story to the consumer."

Active in community affairs, Adelson has previously served as chairman for the National Foundation for the March of Dimes, Massachusetts, Middlesex County, during 1966 and 1967, and is past chairman of the Framingham, Precinct Town Meeting Representatives, an elective position. In 1971 he was cited by the Jewish Federation of Philanthropies in New York with their Community Service Award. During the Korean War he served as a U.S. Army Infantry Officer.

BREAKING THE TIES

BONN (UPI) — About 1,200 couples get married every day in West Germany but a lot of the ties don't bind, the Ministry of Justice says. In 1972, 80,444 marriages ended in divorce, mostly settled out of court on "domestic disagreement" grounds.

Campaign Reform Petition Drive Opens

W. Frederick Uehlein, chairman of the executive committee of the Newton Young Republican Club, announced today the kickoff in Newton of a bipartisan statewide drive for effective campaign reform.

In announcing the drive at the October meeting of the club, Uehlein explained that 56,000 signatures are currently being sought throughout the state for a petition which seeks to place a bill, which will strengthen the laws relating to expenditures and contributions for candidates running for state office, on the November, 1974 ballot.

He added that, "the legislature has demonstrated that it will not act responsibly on this matter. It is up to the voters to demand reform."

This carefully drafted bill, sponsored by such concerned citizens as Mayor Theodore Mann and Senator John Quinlan, seeks to stiffen sanctions for violations of campaign spending laws, to require all campaign contributions or expenditures over $25 to be by check, to limit each candidate to one bank account and one checking account with open records, to require the media firms to report costs, to create a Corrupt Practises Commission to oversee these laws, and to insure that all contributions and expenditures are reported.

"The fight to put this bill on the ballot will not be an easy one," Mr. Uehlein emphasized. "Signature petitions must be collected by the first week in November. We are pledging 5,000 signatures in Newton. As one of the most compelling pieces of legislation ever to be presented to the Massachusetts voters, it demands the support of all concerned citizens."

Uehlein urged all volunteers to call his home at 244-7488 or office at 969-1500.

Newton Men Receive Army Award

One of the U.S. Army's highest scientific honors, the Army Research and Development Achievement Award, was presented to two Newton men at a ceremony conducted recently at the Army Materials and Mechanics Research Center in Watertown.

David A. Colling of 43 Woodcliff Rd., Newton Highlands, and Jacob Greenspan of 14 Manet Circle, Newton, were the two Award recipients. Both are employed as research engineers in the Engineering Materials Development Branch, Materials Application Division, at AMMRC.

The award was given, "In recognition of. . . a pioneering achievement in the area of uranium alloys. . . which provides the Army with a basis for improved armor piercing projectiles, and for improved design for the XM673 Nuclear Projectile Case."

Also cited for this Award was their colleague, F.J. Rizzitano, chief, Materials Application Division, AMMRC.

Within the past several years, depleted uranium has become available to the Army for non-nuclear applications. It is the only practical alternative to tungsten in the area of very heavy metals. Its utilization, however, depends largely on development of high integrity alloys, capable of withstanding severe structural loading. It is alloys of this kind that have been developed by Colling, Greenspan and their associates at AMMRC. These alloys are presently exhibiting superior performance in various vital structural ordnance applications.

Prior to entering Army materials research at Watertown in 1971, Colling was a senior engineer in the Magnetics Department of Westinghouse at Pittsburgh. At AMMRC, he is responsible for melting and heat treating facilities. He has been engaged in melting and casting of large scale uranium alloys, aluminum alloys, titanium alloys, and non-magnetic maraging steels for ordnance applications.

He holds two patents, has authored more than 40 technical papers, and is a research affiliate of the Department of Metallurgy at MIT. Colling and his wife, Genevieve, have five children, Jeanne, 14; Gregory, 11; Mark, 8; Elizabeth, 8 and Suzanne, who is 5.

Before beginning his work in Army materials research at Watertown in 1961, Greenspan served on the staff at MIT and as a senior engineer or Chief Engineer with several Boston area research organizations. At AMMRC he pursues materials and process research, particularly in the area of beryllium and uranium alloys. He has authored nearly 50 papers and other publications, and holds patents on uranium alloys and beryllium oxide.

Greenspan and his wife, Sylvia, have a daughter, Arlyn, who is 18.

Newton Jews Rally To Israel's Aid

Newton's Jewish community has wholeheartedly entered into a three-pronged effort to sustain the State of Israel during the current Middle East crisis.

According to Rabbi Murray Rothman of Temple Shalom in West Newton, over $100,000 was collected in one night for the Israel Emergency Fund of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies.

"We filled our santuary with only one day's notice and raised the money," said Rabbi Rothman.

"In addition," continued Rabbi Rothman, "the temple board of directors met on Tuesday evening and purchased a sizeable Israel Bond on behalf of the congregation."

"We are not limiting our efforts to just raising money for the emergency fund and purchasing bonds," he added.

Rabbi Rothman then listed various educational programs offered to the Jewish community in order to keep them informed of the crisis.

On Friday, Oct. 19, the Temple will hold a social action service featuring Congressman Robert Drinan who will report on the Middle East situation from Washington.

The following Friday, Oct. 26, Professor Gerald Wohlberg of Boston University will relate the current Israeli-Arab conflict with the fuel crisis.

"We will continue to hold educational rallies in addition to the two fund drives," Rabbi Rothman stated.

The same efforts were taking place in temples throughout Newton while in Boston a resolution supporting Israel and a Middle East peace won unanimous support in the state Senate.

Introduced by Senators Irving Fishman (D-Newton), Jack H. Backman (D-Brookline) and Alan Sisitsky (D-Springfield), the resolution states in part that "Israel has legitimately used its armed forces to secure its national existence against a new military war commenced by Egypt and Syria on the High Holy Days."

The resolution calls on Congress and the President to use "their best efforts to restore peace, and insure the survival and independence of the democratic State of Israel."

The Newton Clergy Association also issued a statement recently urgently urging "the United Nations to seek peace and immediate reconciliation in the Middle East."

The Greater Boston, North Shore Councils and Grand Lodge District No. 1 and Women's District Grand Lodge No. 1, B'nai B'rith publicly protested "against the premediated, vicious attack by Syria and Egypt on Israel on the Day of Atonement, the most solemn Jewish holiday of the year.

The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith also issued a statement charging the Soviet Union with "orchestrating" the Arab-Israeli War.

An impromptu art auction will be held at Art Asia, 8 Story St., Cambridge, at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 18. All proceeds will go to the Israel Emergency Fund.

Benefit Dance At Moseley's To Aid Charles River Workshop

Last Saturday, through the use of a helicopter from Wiggins Airways based at Norwood Airport, photographer Bob Chalue was elevated to a high vantage point to take this aerial view looking down at the six and a half acre site of the Charles River Workshop in Needham.

Although the workshop is a job-training facility aimed at teaching retarded children skills that will enable some of them to eventually gain employment in the community, clients with other handicaps are also aided.

A sign of things looking up are the facilities noted by numbers in the adjoining picture:

1. A new residential building for retarded adults recently constructed as a home for continuous occupancy by eight retardates and their house parents. These residents work during the day and live as a family at other times.
2. Reserved land area for approximately nine more residential homes and a recreation building.
3. Workshop Building for daily job training.
4. Pre-school Nursery Building and play area.
5. Cafeteria (latest creation of the CRW).
6. Workshop and Administration Building.
7. Meeting Room and Offices (now under construction).
8. Skating rink and basketball court (recently constructed for use as a basketball court in good weather and capable of being flooded for skating in winter).

In order to help the Charles River Workshop continue to expand and keep looking up, a benefit dance will be held on Friday, Oct. 26, from 8:30 to 12:30, at Moseleys on the Charles in Dedham. A buffet will be served and more than $200. in free door prizes will be drawn. It is sure to be a delightful evening dancing to the music of Dick Pillar's Recording Orchestra.

Tables for ten persons may be reserved and individual tickets may be otained by calling 449-2855, 444-4044 or by stopping in at the Opportunity Shoppe, 91 Chapel street, Needham.

What-Can-You-Learn From-Centre-Street-Fair

A stretch of Centre Street in Jamaica Plain, from Green to Eliot, will be the site of a unique educational fair on Saturday, October 20, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Sponsored by the Children's Museum, Centre Street businesses, professional offices, and community organizations, the Fair has been designed to demonstrate that the people and places of a neighborhood street can be resources for learning and enjoyment.

Throughout Fair day, demonstrations, tours, and participatory on-street opportunities will bring Centre Street environments and activities into the public eye. The local pizza chef will instruct fairgoers in the art of slinging dough; the dry-cleaner will show behind-the-scenes operations in his plant; the antique shop will conduct an old-time auction; the 1769 Tory mansion will be open for historic inspection; at the grocer's doorstep, a Children's Museum naturalist will boil wool dyes from spinach, cabbage and onions.

The What-You-Can-Learn-from-Centre-Street-Fair may be reached by Arborway-Huntington trolley from Park Street.

The Fair complements an October-November Centre Street exhibit in the nearby Children's Museum Visitor Center. Additionally, the Haunted House at the Children's Museum will be open throughout the day of the Fair.

MacDonald Color Centers In Golden Value' Sweepstakes

Donald MacDonald of MacDonald's Color Centers announced today that his stores in Norwood and Dedham are participating in Fall Hardware "Golden Value Days" being conducted now through October 20.

Mr. MacDonald said that during this special sale customers are being afforded the opportunity to win a long list of valuable prizes. Eight automobiles (an American Motors '74 Matador to each winner) will be given away to some lucky shoppers in this nation-wide promotion.

"These grand prizes lead off a list of over 1,000 valuable merchandise prizes," said Mr. MacDonald. "Locally we are giving away six table model Christmas trees which are fully assembled and flame retardant.

"We invite all our friends and customers to come in and register at our contest counter, or to clip the coupons from our ads . . . or from the ad in the October issue of Reader's Digest. There are no jingles to write, nothing to buy," Mr. MacDonald said," and the winners will be announced following the national drawing in October.

"Our Fall Golden Value Days Sale was planned and timed to the season of year when folks are buttoning up outdoor activities and concentrating on fixing up the inside of their homes," Mr. MacDonald declared, "And we at MacDonald's have done all possible to provide the widest selection to serve homemakers-both men and women. We have selected Golden Values only in the finest merchandise at the thriftiest prices."

"It will be 'open house' during the entire celebration. All our customers are urged to drop in, ask about hardware needs and shop the 10,000 items regularly carried in stock, as well as to take advantage of special buys during Golden Value Days."

Tay-Sachs Screening Test In Brighton Nov. 4

The first New England mass screening for Tay-Sachs disease will be held Sunday, November 4, from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Brookline - Brighton - Newton Jewish Community Center, 50 Sutherland Road, Brighton.

The free screening is aimed primarily at couples of child-bearing age who are of Ashkenazi (Eastern European) Jewish background.

Tay-Sachs is a fatal genetic disorder primarily affecting children ofAshkenazidescent. A simple blood test can identify carriers of the trait for this incurable disease. If two carriers marry, each of their children has a one out of four chance of being born with the disease.

Pregnancies of carrier couples can be monitored to determine whether or not a fetus is affected so these couples can bear only healthy, normal children.

The screening is sponsored by the Tay-Sachs Prevention Program, a joint effort of Beth Israel Hospital, Children's Hospital Medical Center and the Eunice Kennedy Shriver Center. There is no charge for the blood test, but participants are encouraged to make a voluntary donation to support the continuation of the screening program.

A second screening will take place Sunday, December 9, at the Marblehead Jewish Community Center. For additional information, contact Nancy Schwartz, coordinator of the Tay-Sachs Prevention Program at 891-9349.

Hadassah Hospital In Israel Mobilizes Resources For War

The Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Center in Ein Karem, Jerusalem, the largest medical complex in the Middle East and the sixth largest in the world, is on a full mobilization and emergency alert to handle the incoming patients during this current Arab-Israeli conflict.

All ambulatory patients in the hospital have been discharged to make available 320 beds for wounded soldiers. All reserve trucks, ambulances, equipment and personnel have been readied for service.

The helicopter landing pad has been enlarged since the Six-Day War, and over the past several days, more than 70 helicopter ambulance cases have been admitted to the hospital. At present, only the most serious casualties are being sent to the Hadassah Medical Center from all other hospitals in Israel, because of the modern technical equipment and advanced techniques offered by the hospital and its medical staff, not available at the surrounding medical institutions, such as treatment of injuries sustained by the wounded soldiers in the areas of the brain, heart, lung, complicated bone damages and eyes.

Hadassah is the only hospital in Israel with special equipment for treating certain eye injuries and extra eye specialists are already on duty in the Department of Ophthalmology.

Volunteers, including Russian immigrant doctors, are pouring into the hospital to offer their services in any way possible. Teen-age Americans, who are on a year-course work-study program, under the auspices of Hadassah, are volunteering their services with young boys helping with stretcher-bearing of the wounded and young girls setting up a nursery to care for the children of the medical staff and civilians who are called for around-the-clock assignments.

Locally, the Boston Chapter of Hadassah has compiled over 1000 names and addresses of prospective blood donors who have flooded their offices at 325 Harvard St., Brookline, with telephone calls to volunteer blood, but at the moment, Israel has not yet asked for extra blood from the diaspora and therefore, names and blood types are being held for quick emergency action, should the need arise.

Some of the wounded soldiers have been visited over the past few days by Nina Katzir, wife of the President of Israel and Mayor Teddy Kolleck of Jerusalem.

The Boston Chapter of Hadassah, with over 8000 members in the Greater Boston area including Newton, is cooperating with local fund-raising efforts and activities on behalf of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston and the purchase of State of Israel Bonds.

At the same time, The Boston Chapter of Hadassah has a major fundraising campaign underway on behalf of the Hadassah Medical Organization, with the culmination of their Donor Luncheon to be held Nov. 19 and 20 in the grand ballroom of The Copley Plaza, Boston.

Over 1500 members and guests are expected to attend the two-day luncheon, the proceeds of which will benefit the multi-million dollar emergency fund drive to meet the present demands by Hadassah, the largest women's organization in the United States with over 325,000 members and the largest Zionist bloc in the world.

Co-Chairmen for the 47th annual Donor Luncheon of the Boston Chapter are Mesdames Robert Naigles, Brookline and Maurice Silverstein, Chestnut Hill. Mrs. Hyman Burstein, Brookline, is the chapter president.

Theater-Dinner To Benefit Hospital Cardiology Unit

An evening of dinner and theater on Oct. 28 at the Chateau de Ville, Framingham, offers Newton-Wellesley residents not only a pleasureable night out but a way to help provide Newton-Wellesley Hospital's cardiology unit with much-needed lifesaving equipment.

BRUCE LEONARD son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Leonard of Newton was recently awarded a group trophy for being an outstanding athlete at Camp Baurercrest in Amesbury. For information about the camp, contact Jim Sloane at 969-2665.

Children's Center Takes Registrations

The Newton Children's Center, formerly the Grace Church Nursery School, is entering its third year as a preschool center for children 4-6 with "special needs" and other children.

The center emphasizes integrated development for each child socially, emotionally, intellectually and physically. Activities include opportunities to experiment in art, music, dramatics, science and sponsored field trips.

The Children's Center begins its fall semester during the week of Sept. 24. It is currently located at the Greek Evangelical Church, 1115 Centre St., Newton Centre. There are openings. For more information, call Joanne Williams, 244-6996.

The Women's Aid for Heart Research, a public spirited group of Newton and Wellesley residents, who over the past 17 years have been raising funds to support educational and research projects related to heart disease, are planning the event.

Over the years the organization has donated numberless pacemakers to hospitals in the Greater Boston area, has contributed to the cardiology exhibit at the Museum of Science and to research projects at Children's Hospital Medical Center and Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, among others.

Now "because of the recent cutbacks in government subsidies and our new relationship with the cardiac unit at Newton-Wellesley Hospital," said the Heart Research Aid's President Mrs. Ted Benard of Newton, seconded by her Vice President Mrs. Robert Davis, also of Newton, "our financial needs have been tremendously increased."

"We are fully aware of the excellent job being done by Newton-Wellesley's Cardiac Unit and are equally concerned for their need for specialized equipment for use in cardiac emergencies in support of the already skilled medical procedures in practice there," the women stated.

Both items of equipment selected for financing are specifically for use within the hospital's new special care unit and will make possible far more precise determination of the status of patients in deep cardiac trouble or in shock.

Both Drs. James J. Sidd, chief of Cardiology, and Dr. Joel J. Rubenstein, associate chief, have expressed great appreciation of the Heart Research Aid's taking on the responsibility of raising the funds for the two machines.

The portable multi-channel recorder, Dr. Sidd explained, will provide direct measurements of pulmonary artery pressure and intra-arterial pressure, while a Portable Bedside Cardiac Output Determinator will enable the physician to make a precise determination of cardiac output.

Such precise definitions of condition will not only help determine therapy and assess a patient's response to drugs, but will also help select out those patients whose condition may call for transfer elsewhere for treatment via the intra-aortic balloon device.

"When the need for this lifesaving equipment came to the attention of the Aid for Heart Research," Mrs. Benard said, "we felt that our position as a community service group demanded that we give whatever financial support we could to Dr. Sidd and Dr. Rubenstein for the marvelous lifesaving work they are doing here in our community hospital."

"After all," she continued, "anyone of our families may be faced with a severe cardiac emergency someday and so we all have a responsibility to see to it that the very best help is at hand."

The Chateau de Ville dinner-theater evening has been organized as a fun way to importantly supplement the funds needed to purchase the new equipment for Newton-Wellesley's cardiac service.

Anyone wishing information about reservations or making contributions should contact Mrs. Murray Bernstein, 62 Westgate Rd., Newton, or call 244-5414.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

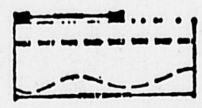
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

Smile when you say "Cheese" because not only does cheese provide elasticity to the food budget, it also provides a source of high-quality protein to the diet.

Approaching the seemingly endless cheese counter in the supermarket, it is possible to become a bit confused—you will be viewing anywhere from 100 to 130 different American and imported cheeses. How will you make your selection?

If you like mild cheese, you might prefer American, Cheddar, Edam, Gouda, Neufchatel, or Swiss. If a sharper cheese is your choice, you might like Provolone, Stilton, Roquefort, Gorgonzola or Provolone, the spicy-type cheeses.

Think of cheese in terms of a crusty-top casserole of macaroni and cheese, golden toasted cheese sandwiches, a zippy dip, an elegant smooth cheese cake, a tangy salad dressing, a pizza pie or bubbly lasangne, a partner for apple pie, a hot bowl of onion soup fully covered with rich melty cheese, or just a nibbling good snack.

The cheese most commonly used is the Cheddar or American. To be absolutely right technically there is a slight difference between the two, since American cheese can be inclusive of all Colby, granular curd and washed curd cheeses. However, in common usage, most people are referring to the Cheddar cheese when they say American cheese.

"Natural" and "processed" are two words that should be understood when related to cheese. A natural cheese is one made from a blend of a natural cheese with other food materials or a combination of one or more kinds of natural cheese. Process cheese is a blend of fresh and aged natural cheeses of the same variety, pasteurized to prevent further ripening and heated with an emulsifying agent to produce a consistently smooth-textured cheese product.

The high food value of milk has long been recognized. Cheese, a product of milk, has long been recognized for its high food value. A ready source of proteins, necessary to build tissues and muscles, cheese contains all of the essential amino acids. Most varieties of cheese are about 25 per cent protein. For example, just six ounces of Cheddar cheese provides as much milk calcium and phosphorus as a whole quart of milk.

A few tips about cheese: Cover cut cheese in plastic wrap or baggies and place in refrigerator . . . Mold may form on any natural cheese. This mold is in no way harmful, it may be cut off before the cheese is served without detriment to the quality of the remaining cheese . . . No cheese should ever be served chilled. The flavors of all cheese varieties are best savored when the cheese is warm . . . In all cheese cookery, use low heat. Cheese becomes stringy and tough when subjected to high cooking temperatures. Do not overcook cheese; it is best to heat it in a double boiler just until it melts and cheese dishes prepared in the oven should have an oven temperature of no more than 350 degrees.

CHEESE PUFFS

½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine, softened
2 cups (½ pound) shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Buy Her A Fur Coat

Want to make a woman happy? Buy her a fur coat.

So think the executives in the fur industry who maintain that howling icy winds are never the reason women yearn for the luxury of a fur coat.

No, indeed. Rather, it's the girl they see in the advertisement—the model running through the snow, her head thrown back, laughing as she cuddles in the softness of dense fur.

This picture, according to them, leads a woman to think, "If I had a fur coat, I too would be that happy.

So, if you've been contemplating buying a bit of "happiness" this year, chances are the fur will be a fox. Red fox, silvery-gray fox or one of the dyed fox furs. They've all achieved fur stardom this fall and winter.

Back in the 30's nothing spelled allure, sexiness and elegance more than Marlene Dietrich or Joan Crawford wearing a chiffon negligee dripping yards and yards of soft, fluffy white fox. (You can't beat fox fur for flattery.)

Appearing as shawl collars and cuffs or wide tuxedo borders on capes, sweaters and coats, fox is truly a stunning trim—provided the wearer has the height for it. (If you're short or on the petite side you might prefer just the fox muff or a single skin tied at the neck.)

Fashions By Ruth Lenson

The cloth wrap coat and trench coat style with oversized patch pockets is transposed into fur combinations, such as the white Swakara lamb collared and cuffed in a cloud of soft, fluffy white fox.

Once considered an average-to-low price fur, the price of fox this season has shot sky-high . . . approximately double the price of a year ago. When questioned, the fur wholesalers explained that they too are governed by the law of supply and demand.

Designer Bill Blass goes all the way with fox—using it both dyed and natural. There's no quarrel with a meticulously tailored gray flannel suit accessorized with a large economy size silver fox scarf complete with white tipped tail and beady glass eyes.

Today, smarter styling goes into the new furs. As one fur designer put it, "Let's face the facts. Women have always considered fur a status symbol and it is. There is really no substitute for a stylish fur coat regardless of the cloth coat's label. And the great news today is, young people have fallen hard for fur.

"Most of our customers are young and though their first coat probably came from the neighborhood thrift shop, they enjoyed the touch as well as the warmth of fur. You can bet her second coat will be purchased brand new after she's graduated college, gotten a job and saved her pennies."

Because most women have slimmed down and have less matronly figures, furriers have not hesitated to promote the chubby jackets of yesteryear. Every scrap and smidgen of fur gets used these days, with the result that pieces of fox put together in tweedy patterns have created new designs that are easy on the checkbook. However, unless the mixing and patching is well executed, the look can be chewed up and very bad.

The topper, already a cloth coat hit, is also a favorite fur style . . . such as the sleek sable topper that looks so right over a pair of pants for a night out on the town.

Camel-dyed fox is made up in a three-quarter coat and comes with a separate matching boa that fastens high on the shoulder. The fur style Donald Brooks opts for is this coat worn over a brown pleated shirtdress, brown felt hat with a pull down brim and brown ghillie shoes.

Two Weekend Trips Ideal For Foliage Sights

If you want to get outdoors to see the fall foliage but are unable to take a weekend trip, the American Automobile Association suggests two local drives—either one ideal for a Saturday or Sunday afternoon.

COLONIAL TRIP
52 Miles
(Round Trip from Boston)

Follow Routes 2 and 4 west to Lexington. Stroll across the Battle Green with its Captain Parker Statue. The Visitor's Center (open 9 to 5) contains a battle diorama, Munroe Tavern, Buckman Tavern, and the Hancock-Clarke House are all worth seeing.

Route 2-A winds through brilliant autumn countryside from Lexington to Concord. The highway follows the old battle road, and the entire area has been designated the Minuteman National Historical Park. You can obtain information from the Visitor's Center in the Buttrick Mansion overlooking the Old North Bridge in Concord to direct you.

Concord's famous bridge and Minuteman Monument are perfect for picture-taking, with the colorful foliage along the Concord River. Also visit the Antiquarian House, Sleepy Hollow Cemetery, and the many historic houses.

Immediately past Concord Center, bear left at the fork on Sudbury Road. It is a pleasant drive through rural country. At the Sudbury line, the road becomes Concord Road and takes you through the center and on to U. S. 20.

Just off the Old Boston Post Road (U. S. 20) is Longfellow's Wayside Inn, a restoration of one of the country's most famous and oldest operating inns. On the grounds are the Martha-Mary Chapel, gristmill, "Mary Had A Little Lamb" Schoolhouse, coach house and barn.

Return directly via U. S. 20 to Watertown and Routes 16 and 2 to Boston. Don't forget to stop at one of the colorful roadside stands for apples, tangy cider, and other fruits of a bountiful New England harvest.

SOURH SHORE TRIP
86 Miles
(Round Trip from Boston)

From Boston, take U S. 1 which winds around Jamaica Pond, past the Arnold Arboretum, and connects with Route 128 south of Dedham. Follow 128 southeastward past the Blue Hills Reservation, now radiant with autumn colors, to Route 3. Leave at Exit 30 and follow Pond Street to Accord. Then take Route 228 into Hingham.

It is called Main Street and is lined on both sides with charming old homes. You have to see it to believe it.

Continue on Route 228 to Jerusalem Road and South Main Street, a beautiful ocean drive, into Cohasset with its stately village green. Country Way affords good views of fall foliage, and takes you to North Scituate, and Greenbush.

Turn right onto Old Oake Bucket Road, where one quarter mile west you can se the well where once hung th Old Oaken Bucket of Samue Woodworth's poem.

At Sherman Corner, follo Winter Street south to Route 12 in Norwell. Follow 123 t Assinippi and Route 53 throug Accord to a left turn on Derb Street, which leads to Route and the Southeast Expresswa back to Boston.

Nickles Count To UNICEF

NEW YORK (UPI) — "A Nickel won't buy much, but it will cure a chld of trachoma or protect him against diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus," says Emmy-award winning Richard Thomas, appealing young star of "The Waltons."

He does the saying in a series of television and radio public service spots requesting folks to help the needy children of the developing world by putting coins in UNICEF's familiar orange and black Trick-or-Treat boxes on Halloween.

Costs of UNICEF aid are somewhat higher today than when the United Nations Children's Fund first started providing health, education and nutrition supplies for needy youngsters in the developing world 27 years ago. But the dime or quarter or 50 cents you drop into the Trick-or-Treat carton still pack a lot of purchasing power.

Here, for example, is a list of items UNICEF can now buy for $1.01.

—50 cents. 400 vitamin A and D capsules.

—25 cents. 100 servings of a high protein food supplement.

—15 cents. Enough seeds to sow 2500 vitamin-rich tomato plants.

—10 cents. Basic school supplies for child (ruler, pencil, eraser, ballpoint pen, and exercise book).

—1 cent. Enough vaccine to protect one child against tuberculosis.

Another celebrity who's lending support to UNICEF's Trick-or-Treat Campaign this fall is Casper, that friendly cartoon ghost who's busy with his own Trick-or-Treat carton on television and in the comics.

He also will be making one of his rare appearances as grand marshall of the second annual UNICEF Children's Parade into New York's Central Park on the Sunday preceeding Halloween.

Similar parades are being planned in other towns and cities across the country. So are a host of variations on the door-to-door collections which still provide the bulk of the more than $3 million raised by American children to help UNICEF children.

Cinema Review: Night Watch

NIGHT WATCH gives Elizabeth Taylor a chance for a really excellent piece of exotic acting. But the mystery is why?

The film is adapted from a stage play, and it is no baffling problem as to what Miss Taylor saw in the role of Ellen Wheeler. A rich, spoiled, tempermental and very beautiful wife, mad as a loon, puts on a series of hysterical outbreaks which lead to murder. The lady is wily enough to pretend to a lot of weird behaviour when she decides to punish her husband and her best friend for their betrayal.

But none of it adds up except as opportunity for Miss Taylor to act up to the limit of neuroticsm.

I am not surprised Richard Burton would have none of the male lead, the courteous, gentlemanly John Wheeler. Laurence Harvey plays the role stoically, almost as if he were mentally counting the size of the check he will receive at the picture's end.

Billie Whitelaw plays the other woman, and not for a second does she act capable of luring any man away from the bejeweled Liz. Probably the scene in which she pours ice water on the back of an unidentified lover when he is in the shower indicates the hitherto sedate young woman has her moments.

Miss Taylor's name has been one of the cinema's greatest attractions in the boxoffices of the world until recently. This film is her biggest mistake of 1973.

Homemade Halloween Goodies Better Than Candy

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Candy is dandy for Halloween, but homemade snacks, cookies and real fruit drinks are even better for fueling small fry at parties or trick-or-treat calls.

All the following recipes are easy to make and some can be served either warm, chilled or at room temperature. Use plastic sandwich bags to package the tuna turnovers and cookies individually if you hand them out to youngsters at the door.

Tuna treasures hide tuna salad in a pastry shell. They're good warm or cold. Cream ½ cup of softened butter or margarine with ½ cup of creamed cottage cheese in a medium sized bowl. Blend in 1 cup of unsifted all-purpose flour. If necessary, chill dough until soft enough to roll. In another bowl, mix 2 (6 1-2 or 7-ounce) cans of tuna in vegetable oil, drained, with 2-3 cup each of chopped celery and pared, finely chopped carrot, 4 teaspoons of lemon juice, 1-2 cup of mayonnaise and ½ teaspoon of salt. Roll dough and cut into 12 (6-inch) squares. Divide filling among squares, placing 1-4 cup of it near the center of each one. Pull one corner of pastry over the filling to form a triangle and pinch edges to seal. Place on ungreased baking sheet and sprinkle each turnover with ½ teaspoon of sesame seeds. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven about 40 minutes, or until golden brown. For trick or treat bags, seal each chilled turnover in a sandwich size plastic bag.

Halloween Brew

Halloween brew is a spicy fruit juice mixture that can be served warm or chilled. Heat 2 cups of cider with 1-4 teaspoon each of ground nutmeg, ground cinnamon and ground allspice until mixture boils. Remove from heat, stir in 1-4 cup sugar, if desired, and 2 6-ounce cans of frozen reconstituted orange juice concentrate, then heat to serving temperature. Or, cool the spiced cider, mix with the orange juice and refrigerate. Serve with clove-studded orange slices. Makes 2 quarts, or 16 half-cup servings.

A punch bowl full of orange nog makes a delicious party table centerpiece. Have all the ingredients ice cold before mixing. Place 2 cups of milk, 1 quart of orange juice, 2 eggs and 1 quart of orange sherbet in a large mixing bowl and beat until thoroughly mixed—using either a rotary beater or an electric mixer. Refrigerate until serving time. Stir again with beater or wire whisk to reblend ingredients before bringing the punch bowl to the table. Makes about 2 ½ quarts, or 20 (half-cup) servings.

Witches' chips and broomsticks are cookies.

For witches' chips, sift 2 cups of sifted all-purpose flour with 1 teaspoon of baking soda and ½ teaspoon of salt. Cream ½ cup of shortening. Gradually add 1 ½ cups of sugar and beat until mixture is light. Add 2 eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add sifted flour mixture alternately with 5 tablespoons of thawed, undiluted frozen orange juice concentrate, beating after each addition and ending with flour mixture. Stir in 1 cup (a 6-ounce package) of semi-sweet chocolate pieces and 1 tablespoon of grated fresh orange rind. Drop by teaspoons about 2 inches apart on a greased baking sheet. Bake 10-12 minutes in preheated 350-degree oven. Makes about 48 cookies.

Graham cracker crumbs take the place of flour in fruited broomstick cookies. Beat 3 eggs until light and fluffy. Beat in 1 (6-ounce) can of thawed, undiluted frozen orange juice concentrate. Stir in 1 cup of sugar. Add 2 cups of graham cracker crumbs (you'll need about 28 crackers if you make your own), 1 teaspoon of baking powder, ¼ teaspoon of salt, 1 teaspoon of vanilla, 1 (8-ounce) package of pitted dates, chopped or snipped fine and 1 cup of chopped nuts. Mix well. Turn into a greased 9-inch square baking pan. Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 50 minutes, or until tester or toothpick comes out clean when inserted in center. Remove from oven, cool in the pan, and cut, after cooling, into bars about 1-2 inch wide and 4 ½ inches long. Makes about 36 bars.

UNICEF recipe

Cindy Boeing, 18, Cincinnati, a youth intern with the U.S. Committee for UNICEF, invented a ginberbread cookie treat that even small children can make.

UNICEF gingerbread cookies call for a 14-ounce box of gingerbread mix and water added one tablespoon at a time until the dough is stiff enough to roll and cut on floured waxed paper with a floured rolling pin. If the dough accidentally gets too sticky, work in some flour.

Use cookie cutters or a knife to cut into Halloween shapes—pumpkins, UNICEF collection boxes and children holding hands. Bake on greased cookie sheets in preheated 350-degree oven 12-15 minutes. Cool before icing in bright colors.

Science Museum Hours Set

Make Veterans' Day weekend special — visit Boston's Museum of Science.

The upcoming mini-vacation provides the perfect opportunity to enjoy the Museum, the Charles Hayden Planetarium, and all the programs, demonstrations and exhibits that make this institution one of the most dynamic science museums in the country.

During the October 20 through 22 weekend, the Museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Monday — the holiday, and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Recent additions to the Museum's smorgasbord of exhibits include a Honeywell 316 computer ready to challenge visitors to games of memory and intelligence, and a Machine Tool shop manned by experienced operators.

In addition to the many and varied exhibits on natural and physical science, visitors may choose from a number of programs and demonstrations given daily. A talking Transparent Woman explains the internal workings of her body; and Museum staff members present live animal demonstrations with such animals as a porcupine and Spooky the great horned owl, and electricity demonstrations using a Van de Graaff generator.

In keeping with the season, staffers also present discussions on the chemistry of fall colors.

For an extra fee of 50 cents visitors may take in "Wings and Things," a Cahners Theatre program on the principles of flight given on Saturdays and Sundays, and "Worlds of Wonder," the current Planetarium program on some of our neighbors in space, given daily.

The Skyline Cafeteria, overlooking Boston and Cambridge, is open for lunch daily. Parking is available at nominal charge. By MBTA, take the Lechmere car to Science Park Station. Admission: Adults, $2; children $1.

TURN OUT THOSE LIGHTS

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Purdue University is trying to save money by turning off utilities when not needed. It has asked staff and students to help by turning out unused lights, cutting down on air conditioning and unneeded water and power in laboratory equipment. The result has been a savings in actual 1972-73 budget dollars of more than $212,000.

AUTO FACTS

By JOHN NAJARIAN

Fog is one of the most treacherous of driving conditions. If at all possible, it is usually best not to drive at all in a very thick fog. If driving is absolutely necessary, all you can do is reduce your speed drastically. Be prepared to stop your car within the limits of your vision, even if this is not more than a few feet. Set your headlights on dim position because fog reflects light.

It is best to come into NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191 when you are in need of parts for your car. We carry one of the most complete stocks in the entire area featuring such well known brands as Walker, Gates and Blackhawk. In addition we carry the entire Delco line. BankAmericard honored. Open: Mon. - Fri. 8-7, Sat. 8-5.

HELPFUL HINT: The rule is: if you can't see where you're driving, don't drive.

Business Opportunities Conference Friday

Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton announced that Charles A. Rossiter, director of International Sales at Orion Research, Inc. of Cambridge, will be the featured speaker at the Business Opportunities Conference in Federal Procurement and Foreign Trade to be held Friday Oct. 19 at Regis College in Weston.

Co-sponsors are the Chambers of Commerce of Fitchburg, Gardner, Leominster, Newton-Needham, South Middlesex and Waltham.

Rossiter has been intimately involved in the remarkable record which Orion Research has achieved in foreign commerce. Spearheaded by his imaginative and aggressive development of overseas markets, Orion Research has attained a sales mix which includes 43 per cent in exports. He will talk on development of foreign markets for the small businessman.

The conference will bring local businessmen together with representatives of a wide variety of federal agencies. In individual counseling sessions, participants will meet with procurement specialists to analyze their capabilities as government suppliers.

Among the agencies to be represented will be the General Services Administration, Defense Supply Agency, Small Business Administration, Department of Commerce, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The conference will include extensive counseling sessions, seminars in foreign trade and bid preparation, and a luncheon at which Rossiter will speak.

In addition, Congressman Drinan will make himself available for private meetings with businessmen to discuss particular problems which they have been encountering. These meetings may be arranged by contacting the Congressman's Waltham office.

Drinan commented, "It has been my goal to plan the conference format to maximize the opportunities for participating businessmen to make appropriate contacts and gather valuable information. I want to encourage small businessmen to actively compete for a fair share of the markets available through government procurement programs and foreign commerce. By strengthening individual firms, I hope to help invigorate the economy of the Fourth Congressional District."

Further information on participation is available at the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce or from Congressman Drinan's office at 400 Totten Pond Road, Waltham. (phone 890-9455).

STOP Sign Locations Increase

Since the State Department of Public Works announced its new STOP sign program for cities and towns last January, the total number of approved STOP sign locations has jumped 50 percent, from 11,000 to an estimated 16,500.

DPW Commissioner Bruce Campbell said that 207 of the Commonwealth's 351 cities and towns had taken advantage of the department's offer to provide posts and signs for approved locations at no cost to the local communities other than that of putting the signs in place.

By the August 1 deadline 7,189 applications for STOP signs were received. Of these about 5,500 were likely to receive final approval, Campbell said.

The City of Attleboro topped all communities requesting approved locations with 256, followed by Beverly with 227, Barnstable with 219, Dartmouth with 206, and Peabody with 195.

The cost of each post and sign unit is estimated at $30.

At the same time Commissioner Campbell revealed that he has sent a letter to every city and town informing them that a change in Chapter 90 policy now allows such funds to be used for the fabrication and erection of standard street name signs on local street systems.

Cmpbell cited as a guide Section 2D-40 of the Massachusetts Manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices which states: "Street name signs should be erected in urban areas at all street intersections regardless of other route markings that may be present and should be erected in rural districts to identify important roads not otherwise marked."

Campbell struck a note of urgency in suggesting that the program should be completed in time for the anticipated influx of visitors for the National Bi-Centennial celebrations.

Standard street name signs are described as having letters at least four inches high, the sign to be reflectorized or illuminated, with the lettering and background of constrasting colors, preferably white lettering and border on a green background.

The Commissioner, in his letter accompanying a questionnaire, said the primary consideration "is the prevention of accidents by providing concise and adequate signing at street intersections for the stranger."

Campbell asked that the questionnaires be returned to the DPW by Oct. 30 in order to implement the program at the earliest possible date.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

Friday night we took our sons, Randy and Scott (ten and eight) to see the Planetarium show at the Museum of Science in Boston.

While Scott curled up and went fast asleep for the duration, Randy kept up a stream of questions about the star projector which sat like a monster robot in the middle of the room. (Among other things, he wondered whether the projector or the Tyrannosaurus Rex would win the battle if both came alive.

On the other side of Randy was another boy, about the same age, who kept answering Randy's questions with great assurance — whether he knew the answer or not.

Shy Randy was impressed by this display of knowledge.

Then the other boy asked Randy, "Will the ceiling open up so we can see the stars?" Randy couldn't believe his ears at first, but finally explained that the dome stayed closed.

Later on, Randy said, "That boy must have been from the country. Someone from the city would have known you couldn't see the stars in Boston even if you did open up the ceiling."

He's right. People in the city have to take their children to the Planetarium to see what country people can see for free.

In the city, you're lucky if you can see the Big Dipper. Maybe you can tell where the Little Dipper is, because you can see some of its stars, and maybe you remember from childhood how all its stars are supposed to fit together. In the city, the Milky Way is simply something sugary which gives you cavities.

Electric lights are a great blessing, but not an unmixed one. We have lit up the earth, but electricity has taken away, our sky . . . and with it some of the sense of awe and mystery which people have always felt under the eternal stars.

I recommend for all city children a nighttime trip way out in the country, on a cool clear autum evening, to a dark and quiet spot where there is still a sense of the miraculous.

And for country children — permission to go out when the stars are brightest and count their lucky stars.

During October, you can see three evening stars — planets, really. They will be brighter than any planet display you'll be able to see for many years: Venus, low and beautiful in the Southwest, Jupiter mighty in the South, and Mars rising belligerently in the East.

And in December and January, the sky will be putting on its most spectacular show: a new comet which scientists hope may be as bright as or brighter than Halley's Comet. (No one can be sure as yet.)

Kohoutek Comet will first be visible to the naked eye in early December, in the mornings in the Southeast. Then it will duck behind the sun, and come out from the other side about December 28th in the evenings in the Southwest. Kohoutek will get brighter and brighter until it reaches its height of glory about January 15th to January 20th.

Fall Festival At Needham

Maragh — authentic Scottish sausage from an old-country recipe — plus all-American home cooked food, cheeses, needlework, handcrafts, dried floral arrangements and Christmas gift items will be offered at the Fall Festival at Needham Presbyterian Church, 1458 Great Plain Avenue, on Saturday, Oct. 27, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

In addition to sale booths in the church, the Festival will overflow into a barn owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Imrie at the rear of the building. Here will be sold firewood, white elephant items and plants for house and yard.

There will be coffee bars at both church and barn throughout the day. A baked bean and ham supper will be served at 6 p.m., followed by an old-time country auction in the barn at 7.

Temples Offering Lecture Series

The Combined Adult Education Committee of the Conservative Temples in the Newton-Chestnut Hill area invites all members of the general community to participate in a program of learning.

The program begins at Temple Mishkan Tefila, 300 Hammond Pond Parkway, Chestnut Hill on Tuesday evening, Oct. 23, and continues at that temple for eight consecutive weeks.

It offers the participant a marvelous opportunity to combine an outstanding lecture series with one of nine "mini-courses" each designed for interesting study in an aspect of Jewish culture or philosophy.

The lectures will highlight topics of current Jewish interest and culture. In the opening lecture Professor Marshall Goldman, chairman of the Economics Department at Wellesley College, will talk on "Energy and the Soviet Union in the Middle East: Oil Troubles the Waters."

On Oct. 30, Dr. A. Holtz of the Jewish Theological Seminary will speak on "Voices of the Alienated," a consideration of modern Hebrew poets, while on Nov. 6, "To Russia with Love" will be the title of the lecture by Rabbi Jack Riemer of the Beth Abraham Synagogue in Dayton, Ohio.

Later in the series, lecturers featured will include Louis Newman, new executive director of the Bureau of Jewish Education, and Miss Judith Hauptman, the first woman doctoral candidate in Talmud at the Jewish Theological Seminary.

Of the nine "mini-courses," five will be in language. In light of the current interest, there will be Yiddish courses on both basic - taught by Mrs. Chaya Perera - and intermediate - taught by Mrs. Harriet Segal - levels. For those interested in Hebrew, the elementary course will be taught by Mrs. Ilona Haendel of the Solomon Schechter Day School. Miss Tamar Even-Tov and Mrs. Talila Mor, both familiar with the Ulpan method, will be offering the courses in Basic Conversational Hebrew and Intermediate Conversational Hebrew respectively.

Rabbi Joseph Stern, instructor in Bible and Talmud at the Hebrew College will give a course on "Jewish Ethic in State and Society" which will focus on the ethical principles of Jewish Law as they pertain to current political and social situations. "The Jewish Family —Then and Now" will be the title of a course to be given by Rabbi A. Lieberman of Temple Mishkan Tefila. Rabbi Lieberman will analyze the Jewish family in terms of attitudes towards love, marriage, family, and sex.

The two final courses are concerned with literature, Miss Susan Niditch of Harvard University will concentrate on the prophetic writers and the wisdom literature in a course entitled "The Unique Relationship: God and Israel." As a contrast, Ehud Luz, visiting instructor at Brandeis University will be concerned with modern times. His course, "The Experience of Israel in Modern Hebrew Literature" will compare the experience of two generations of Israeli society: the pioneers and the sabras.

The cost for this entire series is $7.50 for regular participants and $5 for golden agers. All students are admitted free.

The course and lecture series is made possible by the joint cooperation of several temples and further information is available at the offices of Temple Mishkan Tefila (332-7770), Temple Emmanuel (332-5770), Remple Reyim (527-2410), or Temple Emeth (323-9649).

Registration is possible either through these Temple offices or at the door.

Mobile Homes May Solve Housing Needs

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — It has three bedrooms, two baths, a family room with wood-burning fireplace, a kitchen complete with radar range and trash compactor. It's a mobile home.

No, you don't hitch it behind the family car, but it is transported to the homesite over the road, and it comes completely furnished—at a cost of around $8.75 per square foot, about half the average cost of unfurnished, conventional housing.

The price of the average mobile home ranges from around $5,000 to $12,000, depending on size, equipment and furnishings, says J.P. Hayden, Jr., president of The Midland Co., Cincinnati, Ohio. Midland makes, sells, finances and insures mobile homes.

This is one reason mobile home living is being looked on as a solution to the housing needs of an increasing number of Americans — particularly young marrieds and retired couples.

According to the Mobile Homes Manufacturing Association in 1972, 97 per cent of all single family housing units selling for under $15,000 were mobile homes; 80 per cent of those selling for under $20,000 were mobile homes; and 67 per cent of those selling for under $25,000 were mobile homes.

Hayden lists among the factors in the growing popularity of this type of housing:

—Young couples looking for a home find the down payment on a mobile home much easier to manage than the larger amount generally required on conventional housing.

—The average financing on a mobile home is eight and one-half years, compared with a 20-25 year mortgage on conventonal housing.

—The mobile home comes completely furnished, if the buyer so chooses.

—More community-style mobile home parks are being built, offering attractive settings for mobile home dwellers.

—The minimum maintenance required for a mobile home appeals to many people.

—The mobility possible is a factor for some mobile home dwellers whose jobs require frequent moves.

With costs of conventional housing, including labor, materials and land, increasing rapidly, Hayden said, mobile homes or other forms of factory-built housing such as modular homes, turned out on a mass-produced basis, will provide a practical answer to the housing needs of an increasing number of families.

This is particularly true, he said, for young families where the price of so-called "low-cost" housing has risen above their ability to pay, as well as for retired couples trying to live on a fixed income.

Price Not Only Factor

Still, price is not the only factor. The modern mobile home has come a long way from the early "trailer." Most of the more than one-half million mobile homes sold last year featured modern, fully equipped kitchens and a full complement of labor saving devices for the homemaker, Hayden said.

There is a wide variation in floor plans—50 different in Midland models alone. Interior design provides a choice for almost any taste. There is an increasing variety of exteriors, also, in durable materials that mak for little outside maintenance.

Mobile homes can include all furnishings, appliances, central and hearing cooling, plumbing. They need only be connected to utilities when delivered to the site.

Increasingly, mobile home communities are being developed, offering excellent homesites, particularly where zoning restrictions preclude placing them on individual lots.

Rental rates for these p vary considerably, deper on geographical area an amenities available. They from approximately $30 t per month in the Midwe about $100 monthly in Ca nia, Hayden said.

In financing mobile ho Hayden said, repayment g ally is over a period of sev 10 years. Longer term arr ments are becoming avail including programs backe federal agencies, such as FHA and VA. Purchase mobile home may also inc trade-in of an older unit.

New, Cheaper Steel Produced

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A new type of steel has been developed at the University of California that is stronger, tougher and cheaper than steels now produced in the United States.

Development of the new iron-chromium-carbon steel marks the culmination of eight years of research by Prof. Gareth Thomas and his student research team.

Thomas said the new steel is far superior in strength and crack-resistance to 4340, a steel commonly used in this country, and is two per cent cheaper to produce. He said it is 80 per cent cheaper than 18 Nickel Maraging, the steel which most closely compares to the new steel in strength and toughness.

Snow leopard or lynx? Look again at the species tag chances are it will read "Fox" because so much fox dyed to represent other animal skins. Along with t neutral dye colors, prepare for a few shockers such burgundy, navy, brown or spruce green.

Most of the gaily colored dyed fox fashions are wo with dresses or suits of the same hue and usually fou only in couture collections. Such as Chester Weinberg navy fox jacket worn with a body-clinging matchi matte jersey evening gown.

An important trend noted these past few years is th fur has come out of hiding. No longer does a fur hang the closet waiting for a special occasion.

Furs run hurriedly into the market worn over pants jeans—furs appear most casually on the ski slopes. Fe styles are so restrictive they have to be saved for form occasions.

If your chubby fox jacket looks just right with a lo slink of a matte jersey dress, great! Also try wearing with straight tweed slacks or an afternoon shirtdress.

There's no end to the moods that today's furs ca capture — sporty and fun or romantic and classic.

Newton High Gridders Win Again

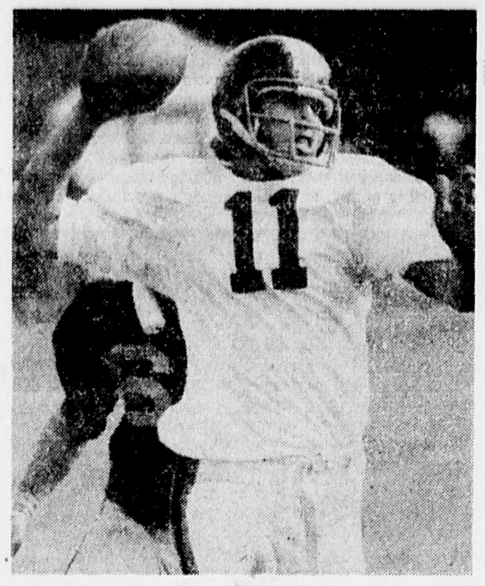
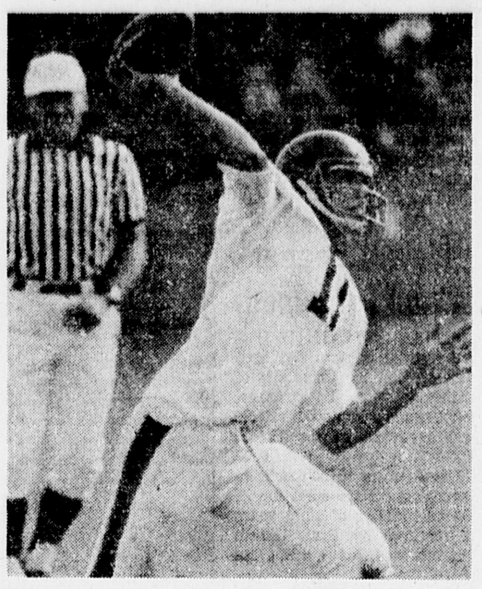
Moffie Fakes Handoff To Steve Cononico



Ready To Pass



Fires The Bomb

By KEITH GLASSER

Newton North dumped previously unbeaten Weymouth South 15 - 6 Saturday at Weymouth's Legion Field, as the Tigers upp'd their record to three wins and a loss. Weymouth South dropped to two wins, a loss, and a tie.

Newton kicked off to start the game and forced Weymouth South to punt. Newton scored on its first possession. The Tigers went sixty yards capped by a thirty-three yard run by Quarterback Cal Moffie areund left end. Gary Breton and Mark Riley threw the key blocks that sprung Moffie for the score. Bill Seaward booted the extra point.

For the rest of the first period and second quarter neither team threatened. At the half it was Newton 7 and Weymouth South 0.

Midway through the third quarter Weymouth fumbled on Newtons 46 yard line. Enter Junior Quarterback Bob Kinsella. Kinsella drove the Tigers 58 yards before Moffie returned to the line up aand sprinted 6 yards around left end for the score. Newton scored the two extra points on a perfectly thrown pass from Kinsella to John Connely. Connely made a fantastic catch among three Weymouth South defenders.

The fourth quarter was controlled by Weymouth South but their only score came on a three yard pass from Quarterback Steve Izbicki to Mark Lindstrom. The pass for the extra points failed as Newton's Gary Tutungent knocked down the pass.

With the exception of the two scoring drives, the second half was played between the two opposing teams thirty yard lines. Whenever Newton started to move they were halted by costly penalties. The final score was misleading since with the exception of the fourth quarter - Newton dominated the play.

Cal Moffie completed 5 of 8 passes; Kinsella completed 4 of 5. John Connely had a good game as he snatched 5 passes and Coach Walker praised him highly. Gordon McNeil had his usual good punting game. Peter Waxman intercepted a Weymouth South pass in the second quarter which helped stop Weymouth South as the were moving offensively.

Saturday, Newton plays Arlington at 1:30 p.m. at Newton's Dickinson Stadium.

Newton High Soccer Team Has Six Game Win Streak

RICK GORDON

According to head coach, Mike Buzzi, Newton High's soccer team ". . . put a lot of time in on defense," and their current six game winning streak is strong evidence to that fact.

The Tigers hustled to triumphs over Arlington, Cambridge Latin and Brockton upping their season's record to 9-1-2. During the six consecutive victories, Newton's defense and goalie Mark Wasserman yielded but one goal, gaining five shutouts.

On October 9 Arlington travelled to Alison field hoping to avenge an earlier 3-2 loss to the Tigers. However revenge was far from what they got. Alan Freedman and Steve Blauer each tallied goals in the 2-0 Newton triumph. Sami Fam assisted on Freedman's goal and Blauer's goal was set up by Rudi Viscomi.

Coach Buzzi praised, "We had a very strong performance all the way around." Mark Wasserman turned aside all the Arlington shots in the first three quarters and Ricky Olin preserved the shutout in goal for the final session.

After the Arlington game Newton journeyed to Cambridge and outdueled Cambridge Latin 2-1. For the first time this year the opposition outshot Newton; the margin was 15-11. Coach Buzzi said, "We played a very good first and third periods." The Tigers had one tally in each of those quarters. Rudi Viscomi and Phil Rosenblatt scored the goals. Viscomi also picked up an assist.

Newton was fortunate to gain the win, "We were lucky they didn't score in the fourth period. They had three or four 'golden' opportunities," commented Coach Buzzi. Frank Bodengraven, one of the game's stars, saved what could have been the tying score covering for Mark Wasserman when he got caught out of the goal. "Mark played an excellent second half," in Buzzi's terms.

The Cambridge goal came in the second quarter temporarily tying the score. Newton's "tremendous attitude" and "superior conditioning" finally shone through and the Tigers came home the victors.

In one of the season's biggest games, Newton defeated Brockton 1-0 on October 13. Coach Buzzi said afterwards in reference to his teams' earlier loss to Brockton, "The whole team felt we were better than they were. We played one of our best games."

Midway through the first quarter Rudi Viscomi headed in a pass from Rosenblatt for his fourteenth goal of the season. From there it was defense, defense, and more of the same. "Their goalie was very good," noted Buzzi. However Wasserman was a bit better allowing nothing at all. Newton outshot Brockton 14-10 and ". . . they (Brockton) didn't have good shots," according to Buzzi.

Frank Bodengraven, Bill Bertrand and Steve Bergin were the defensive stars for Newton. Bergin shadowed the Boxer forward, who had tallied all three Brockton goals in the teams' first meeting, exceptionally well. Viscomi and Doug Giron were outstanding on offense.

Rudi Viscomi's goal put him within three of eclipsing the Newton goal scoring mark for a season. Tim Tsochantaridis holds that record as well as the total points mark which also is well within Viscomi's reach. Mark Wasserman now has posted six shutouts on the year, all within the last eight contests.

Coach Buzzi seems more and more delighted each day, "I've been very pleased with the attitude for practice, the desire to improve, and the overall team play." One of the keys to the season says Buzzi is, "We have good depth; we can substitute at almost ever position without hurting ourselves."

The Junior Varsity squad extended its record to 13-0 outscoring their opponents by a 10-1 margin over four games. An undefeated season is only six games and two weeks away. The J.V. team already has what can be termed a successful season. They have no tournament awaiting them, only the satisfaction of a job well done.

The varsity is now winding down the season as well. Coach Buzzi says "I don't think we are looking forward to the tournament yet." However if the team continues to play as it has been, it seems unlikely they can be eliminated from a playoff berth. If the defense stays together, and the personnel stays healthy, tremendous success may lie ahead in the weeks to come.

N.A.A. Lions Win 7th In Row

The N.A.A. Lions won their 7th game of the season over Wellesley Tornadoes Sunday by a score of 22-8.

The N.A.A. Lions won their 7th game of the season over the Wellesley Tornadoes Sunday by a score of 22-8.

The game was not brilliantly played by the Lions, but they controlled the ball when they had to. Hampering the effectiveness of the N.A.A. this week is the loss of Barry Gale. The standout fullback and linebacker freakishly injured his ankle in a practice scrimmage at Needham last week.

Graphic SPORTS

Frank Wall - Sports Editor

The game started off bad for our boys which has been the pattern the past three weeks. After electing to receive the ball, they fumbled it at their own 45. However, the first 3rd down situation of the game right safety Jim Quinn picked off a pass at the 38 yard line. After halfback Steve Fleming was nailed for a loss in the backfield and an off side penalty the Lions fumbled.

Wellesley was assessed a 5 yard motion penalty and defensive end Jack Forti sacked the quarterback for an additional 5 yard loss. However, with a second down 15 situation, quarterback Chris Gibson unloaded a 42 yard bomb to end Shane MacDonald for a T.D. Gibson threw to end T. J. Palmer for the conversion points and an 8-o lead.

The Lions were unable to move the ball after the kickoff and were forced to punt. The Tornadoes also had trouble moving the ball, and faced with a punting situation made an errant snap where Andy Toyas fell on the ball at the Wellesley 28. Even with their field position handed to them, the Lions sputtered and Wellesley took over on downs at the 37 yard line. Unable to move on three plays, Wellesley punted, and the Lions launched their first scoring drive from the N.A.A. 34.

Brian Kinsella, quarterback, lugged the pigskin for 11 yards followed by fullback Rich Fillers' blast for 12 more. After a first down pass attempt went incomplete, Filler followed guard Jim Schmidlein and center John Kane for 4 more yards. From there halfback Steve Fleming skirted left end for 40 yds. and a T.D. Fleming got a big block from Paul Butters enabling him to get outside. Quarterback, Brian Kinsella got nailed on the attempted conversion rush.

Following the kickoff the Tornadoes were again held in check and forced to punt. Rich Proia fielded the ball at his own 41 and received two great blocks from tackle Mike Hernandez and Steve Fleming and moved down the sideline. It appeared as though Rich was headed for six when he lost control of the ball. Fortunately it went out of bounds on the 22 yard line.

Fullback Rich Filler picked up 17 yards in two successive carries and Brian Kinsella carried for 3 more to the two.

From there, halfback Fleming powered his way in for the go ahead points and his second T.D. Throwing key blocks were Schmidlein, tackles Joe Donoghue, Proia, end Dave Marcus and Filler. Halfback Proia tallied the conversion over tackle Mike Hernandez.

Following the kickoff, time was running out when Hernandez and middle guard Andy Toyas sacked the Wellesley passer. The undefeated Lions took a 14-8 score into halftime.

The third period saw the defensive unit continuing their blitz of the Tornado offense. On the first 3rd down situation, end Jack Forti broke in to block the pass. The Lions offense failed to mount any serious attack and the teams traded possession three times.

It wasn't until the fourth period that Lions tallied their final score. Starting at their own 48, Proia lugged the 5 yards, Fleming 10, Kinsella 5, Filler 4, Proia 7 more, two successive penalties assessed against Wellesley and an 8 yard burst by Fleming for the final T.D.

Proia talled the final conversion points to cap the scoring 22-8.

It was obvious the Lions were not sharp, but still played well when they had to. John Kane did a very effective job at linebacker, and Sean Foley played well at offensive center and defensive tackle. Doug Bullen also played well at offensive guard. Roverback Rich Proia and linebacker Steve Fleming were immense on defense.

The Lions return to league action this Sunday when they host the Concord Indians at Newton Highlands Playground at 1:30 p.m.

Newton Cross Country

By RICHARD RAUM

Despite a slow start, losing three straight to Waltham, Brockton and Weymouth South, Newton's cross country team managed to come on strong, as they defeated Cambridge, Brookline, and Rindge to even their record at 3-3.

Oct. 4: Newton faced Brookline at Dickinson Stadium, and edged by with a 28-31 victory. Brookline took first and second in the race, but heavy placing in the middle positions enabled Newton to pull out a victory.

Jon Black and Owen Kupferschmidt took third and fourth respectively, followed by a Brookline runner, who was followed by Ralph Gott, John Carleo, Steve Wrenn and Mike White, all of Newton to take sixth through tenth place.

Oct. 12: Newton, again not taking first place in the race, placed strongly in the middle positions to overtake Rindge 23-32.

Newton placed 2, 3, 4, 5 and 9 getting the bulk of the important positions.

Jon Black placed second followed by Owen Kupferschmidt (who ran his fastest course time in 14:20). Ralph Gott took fourth place, one second ahead of Tom Hightower. Jon Carleo finished the Newton showing taking ninth.

Two more meets remain this year for Newton, as they take on a very tough Weymouth North team at Weymouth North then finished the year at home against Arlington.

South Cross Country

By RANDY GRODMAN

Displaying a dismal 3-7 record, the Newton South Cross Country Team is still trying to hold itself together.

Although they were demolished by a sure-footed Acton team on Tuesday, Oct. 9, the team has hopes of winning their next few meets. The race against Acton at Mount Ida Junior College proved to be a disaster for South, as they lost 15-50.

Senior Mike Shockett, a new team member, has continued to put in fine performances. He finished first for the team in the race against Acton.

On the same day that the Varsity was defeated, the Junior Varsity also lost. The score was 17-43. Senior Russ Kintner ran an excellent race, and finished third all-around.

Making a surprising change, Coach Richard Geist, a German teacher at Newton South, suddenly decided to switch captains. With only three league meets remaining in the season, Coach Geist appointed Bob Lein the new team captain.

Upon being informed of the news, former captain Byron Ress was quoted as saying "I quit!"

BY HOWARD APPLESTEIN

Led by Kevin Hoban and Tony Lombardo the Newton South Lions stormed past the Concord Carlisle Patriots by a score of 27-16. Hoban had another great day for the Lions. He had three touchdown runs of 1, 2, and 65 yards respectively. To add to his three touchdown runs on offense,Kevin chipped in with two interceptions on defense to add to the Lions victory. It was Tony Lombardo's 54 yard interception run to the Concord 16 yard line that broke the game open for the Lions. Tony replaced Jeff Lawson at quarterback in the second period and played a strong game considering it was the first tine he played there all season.

Surprising there was no scoring in the first quarter. Both teams had trouble moving the ball and it looked like another low scoring game. The only play in the first stanza which brought people to their feet was when sophomore Rich Gosman took the kickoff from his won 15 yard line to the Concord 45. Unfortunately the Lions couldn't take advantage of Grosman's 40 yard return.

The first Lion touchdown came midway through the second period. It was set up by a bad snap that got by punter Len VanGaasbeek and was recovered by Hal Bennett on the Concord 18 yard line. After a two yard run and a 5 yard penalty moved them back to the 21, the Lions went to work. On second and thirteen Lombardo hit Hoban on a swing pass to the Concord eleven yard line. Lombardo then called on fullback Walter Fatini three straight times and Walter responded by moving the ball to the one yard line. From there Joban darted around end for the score. Bob Lipson kicked the extra point.

LOMBARDO STARS

The second Lion touchdown also in the second period was set up by Tony Lombardo. Lombardo took a Jim Crew pass all the way from his own 30 yard line to the Concord 16. Peter Nathanson, Walt Fatini, and Kevin Hoban all ran the ball well setting up a two yard touchdown run for Hoban that gave the Lions a 13-0 lead. This time Lipson missed the extra point.

The 13-0 score held all the way up to the fourth period. On the second play from scrimmage in the fourth quarter Hoban took a handoff at his own 35 yard line and simply outran all the Concord defenders for a beautiful 65 yard touchdown. The Lions two point conversion was thwarted by the Concord defense.

From that point the momentum swung rapidly towards the Patriots. Trailing 19-0 quarterback Carew moved the ball down to the Lions 28 yard line where he hit on a 28 yard touchdown pass to halfback Dick Galdi. On the ensuing kickoff an onside kick was executed perfectly by the Patriots. Quarterback Carew again moved the Patriots offense combining beautifully with hs favorite receiver Brian Connal. He finally scored himself on a one yard quarterback sneak. Carew passed to Don Costello for the 2 yard conversion making the score 19-16 in favor of the Lions. A Lion 19 point lead was quickly evaporated into a slim 3 point lead.

ONSIDE KICK

The Patriots were again successful attempting an onside kick. Thss time they recovered on their own 35 yard line. The Lions defense was finally equal to the task as they halted the Patriots drive on the Lions 40 yard line. Quarterback Tony Lombardo engineered a drive with Walter "Saboo" Fatini scoring from the 5 yard line. Peter Nathanson completed the scoring with a two point conversion run making the score 27-16 favoring the Lions.

It was a wild game that saw the Lions almost blow a 19 point lead. Again there were many bright spots for the Lions. Besides the outstanding performances by Hoban and Lombardo, there were many other people who played good games. Running — backs Walter Fatini and Peter Nathanson ran well all afternoon. People who excelled in the line were Dennis Anastasia, Rick Taranto, Peter Maples, Haskell Kingston, Hall Bennett, Matt Sabetti, and Bob Taglienti. Linebackers Greg Moan and Aaron Moynihan played well but not as well as they had played in previous weeks. Along with Kevin Hoban, Captains Tony Lombardo and Art Murphy played their usual steady games. Those three defensive backs execute the Lions zone defense to perfection. Another bright spot was the excellent punting of Scott Groper. Scott got off one boomer of 47 yards.

COACH PLEASED

Coach George Winkeler said after the game in his usual flabbergasting manner, "I'm very pleased to have won the game. The offense moved the ball better today than it has all season. Many times our defense set up our offense in excellent field position."

Next week the Lions travel to Bedford. This game should be a real tough battle for the Lions. In last week's column I predicted the Lions to win by 6 points and they won by eleven. This week I predict the Lions to win by three. I also predict that the only South rooters will be the Pep Squad and the Cheerleaders along with a few other loyalists such as new principal Ernest Vanseasholes and house-master Joe Nathanson. On that account I hope that I'm wrong.

South Girls' Field Hockey

By RANDY GRODMAN

Coached by Miss Judy Blanchard and Miss Pam Hixon, the Newton South Girls' Field Hockey Team possesses an honorable 1-1-4 league record.

The team is made up of twelve girls who consider field hockey to be a healthy part of their high school education.

The team members include Manager Cathy Clark, a fullback; Captains Carol Kress and Elise Tofias; Denise Garcia, a forward; Beth Gillis, a fullback who has been perpetually plagued by injuries; Susan Gordon, a fullback; Janet Gove, a forward; Lisa Jacobs, the team's only goalie; Lynne Korelitz, a halfback; Shiobahn McNally, a halfback, Gail Shahon, a halfback; and forward Dianne Sullivan.

Current Varsity players who made the team last year are Cathy Clark, Beth Gillis, Janet Gove, Carol Kress, Gail Shahon, and Elise Tofias.

Last year's team held a 4-4-2 record, and the girls are aiming for a 5-1-4 season this year.

Goal scorers for the team so far have been Elise Tofias, 3 goals; Carol Kress, 2 goals; Denise Garcia, Janet Gove, and Dianne Sullivan are each credited with one goal.

On Monday, September 24, South played Bedford at home, and won by a score of 1-0. Elise Tofias scored the lone goal on a breakaway. The pass came from senior Carol Kress.

Newton South travelled to Wayland on Wednesday, September 26, and both teams fought to a 0-0 tie.

On Monday, October 1, Weston came to South and again the final score was 0-0. Holding a 1-0-2 record, South was determined to upset a strong Lincoln-Sudbury team; however, on Wednesday, October 3, South lost 1-0 to the home team.

Maynard travelled to Newton South on Tuesday, October 9, and for the third time this year tied 0-0.

On Thursday, October 11, South played a powerful Concord-Carlisle team, and tied 1-1. South scored on a shot by Janet Gove which was tipped in accidentally by a defensewoman.

On Saturday, October 13, Concord-Carlisle invited Newton South along with various other high schools, to what was called a "play-day". Playing twenty minute games, each school competed with three other schools.

Newton South won all three of their games. The first was played against Dracut High School. South won by a score of 2-0. Captains Carol Kress and Elise Tofias each scored a goal for South.

Playing against Ashland, South managed to score one goal, and the defense held their opponents scoreless. Denise Garcia scored the game's only goal.

South played their third game against Burlington, and won by a score of 3-0. Scoring for South were Carol Kress, Elise Tofias and Dianne Sullivan.

The Newton South forward line has continually shown the ability to exert much pressure on the opponents. Not to be overlooked, however, is the fact that thet the team's defense has only allowed two goals all season.

There are three games remaining in the season:

Wednesday, October 24 at Wellesley High School.

Thursday, October 25, aganst Newton North High School.

Eagles Outlucked By Miami In Southland

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Ouch, with a capital O and that doesn't rhyme with Choke with a capital C, but it might as well.

Drives to the one, five, and seven-yard lines produced the staggering total of three points for the fearless Boston College Eagles in their quest for immortality and a spot amongst the nation's top 20 football teams, last Friday, and a second Miami no-name defense, nicknamed the Hurricanes, was the reason why.

Challenging the huge 16th-ranked Hurricanes on their home turf, Boston College succumbed, 15-10, after being in command for about 59 of 60 minutes of play, before 25,418 in the Orange Bowl.

So many times the Eagles had the game within their grasp and the Hurricanes with their backs to the wall, but they just couldn't come through with the big offensive play and Miami kept coming through with the big defensive play.

Mistakes galore and the offense's inability to move consistently left the BC Big D guarding the fort on numerous occasions, and the ball-hawking 11 came through with more steals than Walt Frazier, but Miami's last-gasp charge ran through the front line like it was made of paper.

People like Ken Ladd, two interceptions, and Ned Guillet, another fumble recovery, protected the BC goalline like knights shielding damsels in distress, but a speedy power back named Woody Thompson decided he had had enough of that situation, and single-handedly propelled Miami on its winning drive.

Oklahoma, Miami's opponent the week before, which faced Southern Cal a week before that, stated it found Thompson harder to contain than the Trojans' Heissman Trophy candidate Anthony Davis. It wasn't hard to see why.

Thompson carried 10 times in the Hurricanes' relentless march from its own 20 with just minutes remaining in the game. In all, it took Miami 15 straight running plays to cover the 80 yards as BC's defense caved in in front of it. The winning points tallied by quarterback Carney, crossed the line with 56 seconds left.

Thompson, who suffered from a mild case of fumbilitis in the first half, finished with 178 yards rushing.

Thompson, and third-string quarterback Carney, who directed the final drive, took over and did their thing at the end, but the only reason Miami was still alive was a defense which rivaled that other local crew, the Dolphins, for tenacity and ferocity.

BC did not score a touchdown from scrimmage. In the second quarter, with the half swiftly running out, the Eagles could not push the pigskin over on a first and five situation.

That one was a big set of downs for Miami. Earlier a drive reached the seven and BC settled for a 21-yard Fred Steinfort field goal.

The last BC threat which would have iced the game died when end Dave Zumbach dropped a Gary Marangi pass in the end zone unmolested.

Marangi played an excellent game, though BC's offense suffered from a lack of imagination. The backs just weren't pounding out the yardage with their usual abandon and rather than switch to the passing game with more regularity, Marangi kept handing off. When he did go to the air he was effective. He finished with 13-for-22 and a 108-yard day.

Halfback Mike Esposito was the one who suffered most at the hands, feet and bodies of the bruising Miami defense. Esposito churned out 85 yards, but carried the ball 29 times to get that far.

What Esposito did do, though, was score a spectacular touchdown on a 100-yard kickoff return, which at the time, in the first quarter, looked like it might have prevented a rout.

Miami was up 9-0 at the time, but Esposito's runback gave BC the momentum.

It was the chance of a lifetime, the chance to move into the top 20 in the polls. The Associated Press had Miami listed as 16th at gametime and while the Eagles weren't in the top 20 they had received votes. A win would have surely have moved them in. But now the Eagles are just a 3-2 team, a safe bet to hold onto second-place in the Lambert Trophy balloting behind Penn State. For now the Eagles can't look for any loftier goals than that.

—o—

Next scheduled victim is Pittsburgh, not the Steelers, the Panthers.

Pitt has been woeful for a decade, but this year is dangerous. Not really dangerous, but not a team to suffer a letdown against.

Pitt was 1-10 last year and the Panthers are a heck of a lot better than that now. There are 36 men back from that squad and you could say they are hungry.

Hopefully, the Eagles won't suffer from sunstroke. Saturday's encounter at Alumni Stadium won't be under the lights unless there's an eclipse. Starting time is 1:30 the first afternoon start in six games for the Eagles.

Put it this way, if BC doesn't take out its frustrations on Pitt and kick the Panthers back to Pennsylvania it will be a disaster proportionate to the Titanic for the Eagles' post-season hopes.

Job Fair Saturday

Newton's Second Annual Job Fair will be held Saturday, Oct. 20, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the City Hall cafeteria.

In addition to representatives of at least 15 business and manufacturing firms and the state Division of Employment Security, the Job Fair will have in attendance members of the city's Veterans Service Department, Human Resources Department, and Citizens' Assistance Office.

This will initiate the series of Pot Luck Suppers to be held once monthly throughout the coming church year. The only requirement for admission to the suppers is that each person bring a food contribution to the general table.

Area Rehabilitation Center Opens New Central Office

Elected officials, agency representatives, clients and area residents have been invited to attend the formal opening of the Cambridge District Office of the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission at 2464 Massachusetts Ave., Cambridge, on Friday, Oct. 19, 1973. This office was formerly located in Union Square, Somerville.

The relocation of the Somerville Office to the Cambridge address makes the services of the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission more convenient and central to the majority of clients of the area being served by this office," stated its supervisor.

"The new quarters provide an atmosphere consistent with the confidentiality and efficiency of the Commission," he continued.

Cornelius (Connie) Campbell a resident of Roslindale, a naval veteran and a member of the staff of the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission for twelve years is the Cambridge District Office Supervisor and administers all phases of rehabilitation services of the Cambridge Office providing vocational rehabilitation services to the qualified residents of Cambridge, Somerville, Newton, Belmont, Waltham and Watertown.

Prior to becoming a member of the staff of the rehabilitation, Commissioner Campbell was a member of the staff of the Veterans Administration concerned with the placement and supervision of disabled veterans.

The services of the rehabilitation commission are available for those residents of Massachusetts who have a physical, mental, psychological, handicap that is a substantial barriers to employment and who may reasonably be expected to prepare for gainful employment.

"After medical, psychological and vocational evaluation to determine the nature and degree of disability and to assess work capacity, many varied services are available singly or in combination to effectively add to the vocational potential of the qualified client," Campbell stated.

Examples of these services are: counseling and guidance, artificial limbs, hearing aids, wheelchairs, training for the right job, school or college, on the job-training in a rehabilitation center or at home, maintenance and transportation during rehabilitation and placement in a job suited to the individual's physical and mental capabilities.

The Cambridge District Office has a staff of 19 professionally trained vocational rehabilitation counselors with a back-up staff of nine clericals to serve the area and invites residents of the area to call 492-0360 for information or appointments.

Interested residents of the area serviced are invited to visit the new office and take part in the formal opening on Friday, Oct. 19, in the form of an open house from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Red Cross Needs Blood Badly

The Massachusetts Red Cross Blood program has received numerous requests from Americans wishing to donate blood on behalf of the victims of the Middle East conflict.

According to American National Red Cross in Washington, D.C., no official word has yet been received from any of the partisans involved. If and when official requests for blood and blood products are received, the Mass. Red Cross Blood Program will do everything within its capabilities to meet any requests from abroad.

Red Cross Blood Centers will accept any blood donations directed for the victims in the Middle East crisis. But until official word is received, this blood will be used to meet transfusion needs locally.

However, any directed donations will be honored, no matter when they were made, should the need arise to ship blood abroad.

Because of the possibility that the conflict may intensify, it is imperative that U.S. Blood Banks be fully stocked.

Library Friends Sponsor Building Drive Contest

The Friends of the Newton Free Library want a new building and one way they are arousing interest and action is by sponsoring a "Bumper Sticker Contest."

Open to Newton residents of all ages, the "Bumper Sticker Contest" is divided into two categories and will result in the selection of slogans for two bumper stickers for citizens' use: one slogan highlighting the need for a new main library; the other stressing library usage. Examples of possible slogans include "Let's meet at the Library," and "I want a new Library."

A celebration honoring the contest winners will be held at the time of the awards. First and second prizes in each category will be awarded by a jury selected by the Friends of the Newton Free Library.

The Friends of the Newton Free Library are an enthusiastic group of library supporters who organized more than ten years ago to help foster relations between the Newton Free Library and the citizens of Newton. The friends support the trustees in their recommendations for the library.

The Bumper Sticker Contest is just one of the many activities sponsored by the Friends. In the past they have shown films, held lectures and functions honoring Newton authors. They also organized the gala Bookworm Ball and a successful book sale.

All bumper sticker ideas should be mailed to Mrs. Elinor Persky, publicity director, Newton Free Library, 414 Centre st., Newton, 02158 or leave them at your nearest library addressed to the attention of Mrs. Persky.

All entries should include name, address and telephone number. The Bumper Sticker Contest closes Nov. 30. Get your entries in today.

Charter Commission in 1969, and served several years on the Community Relations Commission.

Miss Ball, who is 75, was born and raised in Newton.

In a brief address thanking the Chamber of Commerce for the award, Miss Ball recalled that recently she had had to change her voting address. When filling out the form, she omitted the line for occupation because, she said, she really has no occupation.

An Election Commission official suggested saying "retired," but Miss Ball said, "I'm definitely not retired."

The official then suggested "at home." Miss Ball rejoined, "But I'm never at home, either."

They settled for "at home."

The featured speaker for the evening was Middlesex County Sheriff John J. Buckley.

Buckley congratulated Newton and Needham for the reduction in burglaries achieved in the past year and urged the audience to work for local as well as national laws to curb the use and availability of handguns.

Attorney Shibow has asked for a jury trial and the case has been drawn before United States District Court Judge Joseph Tauro. The United States now has 60 days to answer the charges.

ASTROLOGY

By Oscar Weber

URANUS AND PLUTO

Q. My mother thinks you are grand and I would be delighted if you could tell me when Uranus will be halfway around my natal chart? Also what House or Astrological Sign Pluto was in on my birth date which is March 3, 1933 at 11:30 p.m. in Boston, Mass.

J. H. A.

A. The planet Uranus was in 21 degrees and six minutes of Aries at the moment of your birth. It was exactly halfway around the Zodiac from that point in Libra on November 20, 1972 and again on April 9, 1973 and on September 7, 1973. It will not return to that point in the Zodiac for another 84 years.

The opposition of the planet Uranus to its birth position usually indicates a period to develop personal inner talents in original or unusual ways.

The planet Pluto was in the Sign of the Zodiac Cancer in the Eighth House of your horoscope at your moment of birth and this usually indicates some possibility of developing a form of extra-sensory perception. If you would like to take advantage of such potentials first learn how to relax.

It may manifest as precognition, clairvoyance, clairaudience or mental telepathy but the development of any of these would require and depend upon how well you have learned how to relax. They do not do well under tense conditions. In any event you have probably experienced strong hunches from time to time.

You have a magnetic personality, much sex appeal and can be gracious and charming. You are apt to be extremely sensitive which may make it difficult for you to be objective.

All your emotions are strong, love, passion, anger, etc. and should be controlled by yourself or they may get out of hand.

G.I.'s Get Boost In College Aid

Virginia Payette says:

The Vietnam veteran didn't get any parades . . . and he's high on the list of men looking for jobs. But now there's a little action on the home front to get him a college diploma.

And if ever a situation had its ironic aspects, this one does.

For one thing, the government that was so anxious to sign him up for duty in the rice paddies isn't all that eager to get him on campus. As usual, the problem is money.

Domestic thrift is the big thing now and the Administration says that includes veterans' benefits. It even tried to cut $160 million out of aid to disabled servicemen, but a national howl stopped that.

Even so, a smaller portion of the federal dollar is being spent on veterans today than 10 years ago. And that has to be divvied up between six million more men and women.

Meanwhile, back at the universities, more places are opening up. With the end of the draft there was a sudden drop in enrollments of young men who didn't go to war. This makes room for the soldiers who did.

The question now is how to get the two together. And that's more complicated than you might think.

To begin with, any veteran who is interested has to fight a battle with red tape that's almost as frustrating as his skirmishes with the Reds in Indochina. Others don't know—or care — enough even to try.

The result is that up until recently only 33 percent of ex-servicemen were taking advantage of the G. E. Bill to go to college. That's way down from the 50 percent who used their education benefits after World War II.

And among the disadvantaged vets (poor high-school education, handicapped by the war, drug problems, etc.) only one in 25 is working for a degree.

But things are happening that may change this.

Leading the campaign to get veterans involved in higher education is the Carnegie Corporation. (Founder Andrew, remember, was so big on learning he donated millions to public libraries.) For three years now it has been working with community and junior colleges to interest them in vets as students.

Again, money is the problem. G. I. benefits haven't kept up with inflation.

After World War II the government sent a full-tuition check to the university and a $75-a-month allowance to the veteran. Now, a single veteran gets $220 a month, but that has to cover everything, including tuition.

It doesn't take most of them long to figure out $1,980 a year won't stretch far enough. "In most states," says one vet, "you can get more money on unemployment."

But the Carnegie program has been working with community colleges on how to help the veteran with his problems, providing colleges with lists of disadvantaged vets, and organizing PREP programs on military bases to help servicemen make up their educational shortcomings while still in service.

It has also brought in the American Legion to persuade veterans a college degree is worth going after. Legion posts furnish local colleges with a monthly list of new veterans, and follow this up with a vet-to-vet pep talk from a young collegian.

Over 700 colleges are involved so far. And, to attract more, the government has come up with a financial carrot: a bonus of $300 per vet or $450 per disadvantaged vet if the college increases its ex-servicemen enrolled by 10 percent.

This might be one answer to the cost-sequence most colleges are caught in these days. Every little bit helps, and if it spurs their interest in recruiting veterans, old Andrew Carnegie would consider his money well spent.

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

Cooking under pressure? Then rediscover the pressure cooker!

This nostalgic old appliance of the '30s is enjoying a bright, new revival now that more and more homemakers are fleeing their kitchens to seek "equal opportunities" in the workaday world. (The trouble with women is that it generally ends just about dinnertime! And there's good, old Mom, shackled into her apron again, trying to get something on the table in short order.)

Pressure cooker to the rescue! It can turn our heroine into a culinary wonder woman, simply by cutting cooking times in one-third. Think of it! A one-hour stew that's table-ready in 20 minutes! A three-hour pot roast in an hour or less! A fancy French chicken dish in only a fraction of the time it takes to thaw out one of those TV dinners!

And, if that's not enough, the pressure cooker has special advantages for today's calorie-wise, cholesterol-conscious, wallet-wary cook. It can take those less-expensive, less-tender, less-fattening cuts of meat and turn them porterhouse-tender at only a fraction of the calories. And today's pressure cookers come with nonstick finishes, so you can prebrown meats without added fat . . . an advantage Grandma never had when she got her first pressure cooker.

Here's our "liberated" recipe for French chicken breasts in red wine — Coq au Vin. Since you don't have the time to chop onions and grate orange rind, we've taken all the shortcuts without compromising flavor. And the calorie count is thoroughly modern!

PRESSURE COOKER COQ AU VIN
(Chicken in Wine)

2 chicken breasts, split
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup dry red table wine
1 cup water
¼ cup dried onion flakes
½ teaspoon granulated orange rind
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon dried parsley flakes
Garlic salt and pepper

Place the chicken pieces skin side down in a cold pressure cooker. Heat over moderate flame, until chicken begins to brown in its own melting fat. When skin side is brown, drain fat and turn the chicken pieces over. Sprinkle with flour. Add all remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer at 15 pounds pressure for 15 minutes.

Reduce the pressure according to manufacturer's instructions. Uncover and return to heat. Simmer, uncovered, for a few more minutes, until the liquid evaporates into a gravy-thick sauce. Makes four servings, 156 calories each.

WITH MUSHROOMS — add a small (two-ounce) can of mushrooms, including the liquid, to the recipe. Adds only five calories per serving.

If you have no pressure cooker, you can make this recipe in a heavy pot or top-of-the-range Dutch oven. Increase cooking time to 45 minutes. Add more water, if needed.

Two Napkins?

Today's Story
by norton mockridge

There's a gentleman in Paterson, N. J., who has a BIG problem, and he's turned to us for an answer. He wants to know why only ONE napkin is furnished to each person at lunch or dinner.

"This," he says, "is a very serious problem, and so far very little attention has been given to its solution. But maybe you, or your readers, or perhaps the etiquette lady, Amy Vanderbilt, can come up with an answer."

The gentleman doesn't want his name used—says that friends rib him when he brings up the subject—but he definitely wants this napkin business ironed out!

"Here's the point," he said. "When you're eating and you wipe your mouth with the one napkin given you, you soil it, right? Well, then you must place that soiled napkin on your lap, rubbing it against your clothes and risking the stain being transferred.

"Why not TWO napkins? Then you could keep one napkin on your lap to protect your clothes, and lay the soiled napkin on it. I'll admit that I've attempted to solve this problem by using the edge of the tablecloth for wiping, and the napin in my lap to catch dropped food.

"But there again is a problem. Tablecloths aren't provided everywhere. Lots of restaurants, for instance, get by with just place mats. And if there's no tablecloth to wipe on, what do you use? Your sleeve?

"Please, Mr. Mockridge, ask your readers to come up with some ideas to help us. And ask your friend, Amy Vanderbilt, to decree that true etiquette DEMANDS two napkins! At least two!"

Well, give it some thought, and meanwhile, I'll put the question to Amy.

Speaking of Amy, by the way, she's been having what she calls a "big whoopdeedoo" in her own syndicated column over a matter called "privacy for patients" in the doctor's office.

Seems that a number of readers have complained to her that when they go to the doctor's, HE doesn't question them about their ailments and complaints. The NURSE does.

"I've been questioned by a nurse who was rude and snoopy and just trying to get very private information from me," wrote one lady reader. "She asked me about things that really aren't her business at all and have nothing to do with my illness. Should I stop seeing that doctor, should I complain to him about his snoopy nurse, or what?"

Amy presented the question to her readers and she learned that quite a few do resent being questioned by the nurse. And sometimes, a few of them pointed out, the questions are asked by a girl in a white uniform who isn't even a nurse.

"A fresh snippit right out of high school," said one lady, "asked me some of the most PERSONAL questions. I was shocked! I wouldn't tell her one thing!"

A lot of nurses wrote, however, to defend the practice.

"Generally," said one, "the questions are asked not out of curiosity but at the doctor's request in order to save his time. If a nurse knows what the complaint is, she can anticipate the doctor's treatment and gather the necessary equipment—thus saving time.

"If a patient enters without an appointment, the nurse MUST ask certain questions to determine whether that patient's condition warrants immediate attention."

So there you are—two big problems: Should we have more than one napkin, and should the nurse ask you personal questions? Let me know what you think.

Wants Recognition As MS.

by Amy Vanderbilt

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I have read your and several readers' comments regarding the use of Ms. and I must confess that I don't understand any of you.

"I agree with you that Ms., with or without the period, is a fairly ugly combination of letters, that it is evocative of manuscripts, that the sound 'mizz' is somewhat ungraceful, that there is no 'history' behind its use, that it constitutes an abrupt change and, finally, that people resent and resist change from the known to the unknown.

"But surely you agree that men are not subjected to a specific designation that identifies them as single or married. Do you find it necessary to be labeled only because you are not a man? Does it not strike you as being displeasing that you are automatically differentiated from your male peers only because you are not a member of that sex?

"If you and those others are so happy wearing your label, why have none of you suggested that the same identification system be applied to men? Perhaps Mr. for the singles and Mtr. (Miter) for the marrieds.

"You are entitled to select your preferred style of address, but based on a system that discriminates. Do you want to continue that? Change is an intrinsic part of life. That which does not change stagnates. I am aware of 'tradition' and its place in the society of man, but I am not afraid that it will disappear. It will change whether I want it to or not.

"It is not anonymity that I am asking for, but the opposite. I want recognition as a human being of the female sex. But I want the same recognition received by or given to a human being of the male sex. I am a she; he is a he. He is Mr.; I am Ms. — L. S., Woodhaven, N. Y."

What an interesting letter. You head your memorandum to me merely To: Amy Vanderbilt and From: (your name sans title). I have pointed out in these discussions on Ms.—which I can't bear to call anything but "M" "S"—that the Quakers among themselves don't use titles. Their custom, however, has not been generally taken up by the rest of the world because people seem to have a need for titles.

A friend of mine who is a professor of linguistics pointed out that the Russians tried to abolish titles in the satellite countries without success.

She believes that titles are important to people. Certainly, for example, if a man has a name that could be feminine, I like to see his title to set me right. And even "Comrade" is a title, when you think of it. After all, its anonymity in Russia, at least, doesn't succeed in hiding the sex of the comrade as Russian names have male and female suffixes.

I have been a liberated woman all my life. I've been a practicing journalist since the age of 15 and any suggestion that women are—broadly—inferior to men has always seemed ridiculous to me

Certainly any woman like me who maintains a successful career while raising her children could not produce sons who have no respect for the strength and intelligence of women. It doesn't displease me one whit to be differentiated from a male peer.

I am a woman with a woman's special talents and sensitivity, quite willing to admit that many men might have the same abilities.

I do not like the idea of unisex. I do like the idea of both sexes being able to reach their ultimate goals warmly and lovingly supported, if possible, by the opposite sex.

Any discrimination I have encountered on the way up, I have fought—not only for myself, but for other women.

But I would fight it equally for men. I believe in whole egos for both sexes.

Perhaps we are not so far apart in our beliefs.

FORGETFUL

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Recently I had a rather large party for which I telephoned invitations a fairly short time in advance. Everybody who accepted came, except one man who neither came nor called to make his apologies. I don't know whether he just forgot and may never think of it again, or whether he will remember later and be deeply embarrassed. When I see him again, should I say anything or just let it go?—M. E. H., St. Paul, Minn."

I would mention it pleasantly, saying, "We were so disappointed you didn't get to the party on (date). Perhaps you should have sent you a reminder, not just trusted to a telephone invitation." The important thing is not to be unpleasant or accusative about it. Sometimes these things just happen. I'm sure your friend did not mean to be rude.

(For Amy Vanderbilt's booklet, "Large Parties," send your name and address, plus 25 cents in coin, to: Miss Amy Vanderbilt, Transcript Newspapers, P. O. Box 10, Weston, Conn. 06880, requesting the booklet by name.)

Technology Change

By Marquis Childs

As a measure of the fantastic changes that have occurred in this amazing century take a look at the plane that Charles A. Lindbergh flew in the first flight across the Atlantic. The year was 1927, not so long ago that many of us can still remember the excitement when the lone flyer landed at Le Bourget airport in Paris at the end of his 33½-hour solo.

There it hangs in the Smithsonian Institution, a single-engine plane looking incredibly small. There, too, is the Wright brothers' plane from Kitty Hawk in 1903, more nearly a manned kite than an aircraft.

The record of America's technological progress has gone forward from those two monuments almost without interruption. The doubters, as Lindbergh doubted in 1941 President Roosevelt's claim to be able to manufacture 50,000 warplanes, have always been proved wrong.

Consider the record. Three astronauts have just completed 59 days in space in the Skylab. Another crew will go up on Nov. 11 to spend 56 days in the laboratory, although their stay could be longer depending on circumstances.

Work is already in progress on a space shuttle to be operational in the 1980s. This will have a continuing function with a projected use of a hundred round trips between earth and the stratosphere. It will be able to stay aloft from seven to 30 days during which time earth-orbiting payloads can be launched.

The cost sounds stratospheric — $5.1 billion for the space shuttle — yet put alongside the bill for the weapons of annihilation the Pentagon demands it is not so large.

As for the scientific benefits, perhaps only a few specialists in the space field can give a proper evaluation. But the cynics who spoke derisively of spending billions to put some clown in the sky are wrong on several scores. Landing on the moon was not so much like the justification for climbing Mt. Everest — because it was there — or as an exploration comparable to Columbus' discovery of the New World.

What is to be gained from that sterile, dead planet, the scoffers ask. The discoverers of that other era were met with the same doubts and derision. Better leave those empty places to a few Indians.

On the aircraft-production side the record is equally impressive. Seventy-nine per cent of the planes in operation on the world's airlines in 1972 were made in America. This does not include the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China, but their inclusion would make little difference. China is about to acquire 10 Boeing 707s.

On military aircraft the figure is difficult to come by. It seems likely, however, that the percentage would be about the same as for civilian sales, although in recent years the French have been pushing their planes in the Middle East and in Africa.

American technology in computers and electronics is unrivalled. That is one reason the Soviet Union is so anxious for a trade deal. Unrivalled, too, is productivity on the farms.

With about four per cent of the population in agriculture the abundance of food and fiber suffices not only for consumers at home but for sales overseas to help correct the trade imbalance and, as has been shown in the past year, to be dissipated in deals costly to the United States taxpayer.

The great achievements in production, in discovery and invention, are in painful contrast to the failures in self-government illustrated by the grim mess in Washington. It may not be too much to say that if we find a way out of the morass — the swamp of intrigue, deceit and doubt — it will be thanks to American productivity.

A painful fact of contemporary life is that social and political understanding have fallen so far behind technological change on an order of magnitude like the discovery in millenia long since past of the wheel. The hazards of this gap are dramatized by the individual who has his finger on the nuclear button and his social reflexes back in another age. Aspects of the Stone Age are a left-over in the mind of computerized 20th century man.

The Smithsonian Institution is building a new Air and Space Museum that is to be dedicated on July 4, 1976. The Wright brothers plane and Lindbergh's Spirit of St. Louis will be central exhibits illustrating how in an eye wink of time, as measured sidereally, change has come.

That no one can predict what manner of man will preside over that occasion is a melancholy commentary on the gap between technology and politics.

Fish

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — The longer a fish is kept on a stringer, in the trunk of a car, or dead in the water, the more chances of ruining a day's fishing efforts, the Nebraska Game Commission cautions.

Commission experts advise killing a fish as soon as it is caught in warm weather and placing it in an ice chest. If an ice chest is not available, then keep the fish in a cool spot, sheltered from the sun.

A fish kept on a stringer, especially when dragged along by a trolling boat, or placed live in the trunk, will flop around and cause bruising of the meat, the commission said.

Other tips on getting the most out of a day's fishing:

—Clean the fish as soon as possible and wash the body cavity. Carry ice and pack the body cavity with ice but don't forget to drain the ice chest occasionally to prevent "water-logging" of the meat.

—After getting the fish home, use the meat as soon as possible because generally the longer it is kept the poorer the flavor.

—If the catch is to be kept for any length of time, clean the fish thoroughly and freeze them. To prevent "freezer burn" place the fish in a plastic bag and add water.

The Great Smokies is the most popular national park in America with 7 million visitors a year—seventy thousand a day—more than twice the number that visit any other national park in the United States.

Student Films In For Screening

Albert Hurwitz, coordinator of Art, Newton Public Schools, will present a program of films made by the students last summer at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 24, at the Mason-Rice School.

The scene pictured above is from the special effects film, "Where Pizzas Crawl."

In this film, a pizza cook tosses his dough into the air, and it comes down several miles away. However, the pizza has now been transformed into a giant pizza, who runs around eating people. The pizza eventually gets indigestion, and commits suicide, throwing himself off a cliff.

The students who created this film are Eric Brown, Alan Berkowitz, Rosemary Fabien, and Sarah Kirshner.

Other Newton residents whose films will be shown are: Jane Feigenson, Debbie Freedberg, Phillis Rittner, Liz Yoffe, Giga Rosenberg, Anna Portnoy, Thea Lee, Laurel Shader, Steve Avruch, Eric Feigenson, Bill Maron, Mike Nemrow, Mark Agulnick, Victor Eng, Robert Morehouse, David Kunitz, Andy Nagy, Richard Brodie, Brian Hardy, Lou Chobanian, Doug Ferguson, Michael Miller, Mary Callahan, Tammy Hurwitz, Faith Michaels, Liz Ahern, and Tom Tercyak.

The public is invited to this showing.

Selzer: A Born Photographer

There is no doubt that Norm Selzer who is exhibiting photographs at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, through early November, was meant to be a photographer.

Take, for instance, his photographs of the dance. The dancers, their meticulosuly trained bodies engaged in truly stunning sets of movements, are transformed into wonderous demi-gods. Selzer's perceptive eye catches the intensity and concentration. . . the sense of perfection that the dancers achieve.

Selzer is struck also by the geometric patterns, the angularity and strength, as well as by the grace and movement of these dancers, all members of the Boston Ballet Company.

For some photographers the stage is a trap, since the exaggerated gestures, necessary for reaching the top balcony can look grotesque when seen from up close. But somehow Selzer makes it work.

His dance photographs are more than just records of theatrical performances. They seem to be celebrations of theatricality itself, by someone who clearly loves it. . . and hopes we love it, too.

Or take the nature photographs, another major focus of the show. Even these non-theatrical pictures have the strength and drama of a stage work observed from up close. Look particularly at the zebra-plant where the dramatic lighting heightens the three-dimensional feelings of movement, relating the photo to the dance, or at the startling clarity of the cactus.

In talking about his craft, Selzer, who studied with Minor White, Herb Hamilton and Paul Caponegro, divides photography into two broad areas: craftsmanship; defined as knowing and understanding the techniques and materials you have to work with; and "the scene," the innate feeling that something should be photographed at a certain moment.

Selzer goes on to explain that his works are untitled "since I feel the beholder should have his own experience is part of what he views."

Selzer's photographs have been exhibited at the Schenectady Museum, at Harvard University and in the Photo Vision '72 Show.

The one-man photography show can be seen at the Main Library through early November. Library hours are 9-9 Monday through Friday, 9-5:30 Saturday and 1-4 Sunday.

Silver Exhibit To Open At Library

Hand-wrought gold and silver jewelry, small bowls and serving pieces of silver by Anne Garland of Newton Highlands, are on view in the display cases at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner, through October.

Ms. Garland, who will have a one-woman show at the Worcester Art Museum beginning Nov. 19, received her B.F.A. and M.A. in art history from Tufts University where she also was an instructor in the art history department.

She has instructed students in the art of jewelry-making and jewelry design at the Boston Center for Adult Education and Garland Junior College, Boston.

Ms. Garland has been invited to join the design department at Georg Jensen in Copenhagen, Denmark.

Currently teaching at the Needham Arts and Crafts Center and Brookline High School, she also teaches private students at her studio in Newton.

Ms. Garland has exhibited her works at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, the Boston Arts Festival, the Window Gallery in Brookline and Tufts University. Many of her pieces are in private collections.

Related photographs are displayed along with a complementary selection of books available for borrowing.

Main Library hours are 9 a.m. through 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m.-4 p.m. Sunday.

Country Players In Rehearsal For Season's Lively Opener

Many local residents are involved in the Newton Country Players fall production of "Pajama Game."

Lilting songs and explosive zest prevail in a tale of a slow-down strike in a pajama factory when even the slow-motion of the striking employees seems like a speed-up where every dancer has the exuberance of a cheerleader after a touchdown.

What is any production without "Dropsy?" Mark Buchine will be looking for them, so if anyone is missing their pajamas, Newton Country Players plead "not guilty."

To make stars glitter, one must have lights and controlling them will be Paul Laurie who did such a great job on "Gabriel Ghost" last season.

Paula Grossman, a usual stage standout, is handling the printing this time around.

Tom Dininio, a budding set designer, is heading up set construction and Jim Sloane is business manager, handling the affairs at the box office.

If one forgets their lines or blocking, there is always Sandy Deming, stage manager, to count on.

Resume gathering and spreading the show's good word is the responsibility of Linda Lourie, publicity.

"Pajama Game" is an infectiously funny and lifting musical comedy and additional information may be obtained by calling 969-2665.

Camera Club Offers Courses

Registration begins at 6:45 p.m. for each lecture and the lectures begin at 7:15 p.m. sharp. Participants should bring their cameras.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
(Mass. Audubon Society)

Frosts are now ending the greatest parade of monarch butterflies that anyone can remember.

Monarchs are those orange-and-black large butterflies that tilt and glide as well as flutter above roadways and along beaches. They are headed south for the winter in the greatest monarch migration on record.

While driving toward New York along the Wilbur Cross and Merritt Parkways in late September, Don Verger of West Acton, Mass., and a group of friends counted 1067 monarchs as they flew across the road as singles or in groups.

At Eastern Point in Gloucester, Mass., where monarchs customarily rest if they arrive there late in the day, Ivy LeMon of Gloucester and several friends who cooperate with her butterfly banding projects, estimated that up to 100,000 monarchs were present. Miss LeMon, who is staff butterfly expert for the Massachusetts Audubon Society, says the 1973 flight is the greatest in the more than 20 years that she has observed monarch migrations.

Dr. Fred Urquhart of the University of Toronto, who has been tagging migrating monarchs since the 1930's, reports the present crop the largest ever.

Exactly why so many monarchs survived this year to make the one-way trip south is a mystery. Some believe the summer was an exceptionally good one for milkweed, and monarch butterflies specialize in milkweed as their host for eggs and caterpillar food. Some think that a reduction in indiscriminate chemical spraying may have permitted the young to survive.

Several thousand monarchs were killed in eastern Massachusetts when the state sprayed malathion to curb a possible spread of eastern equine encephalitis. Weirdly, most of the spraying occurred after cold weather had almost wiped out the mosquitoes that the spray was supposed to control.

Oddly, the monarchs flying south are at least two generations removed from the monarchs which will return to New England next spring. Although tagged monarchs have been traced from Ontario to Mexico, none ever make the return trip north. Instead, they breed in the south and die. The next generation begins a return trip north, but few individuals in that group get very far north. They breed and their descendents continue the northward movement.

Thus, the round-trip migration of monarch butterflies is even more difficult to fathom than the migration of birds. Although young birds may make an unguided migration to ancestrial wintering grounds — in South America, say — they do have the benefit of experienced adult birds guiding them back north the following spring. With butterflies there are no experienced old hands to offer examples. Just brand new butterflies that somehow seem to know what is expected of them in family tradition.

Army Wins Charles River Watershed Assoc. Award

Of considerable interest especially to the environmental community was the presentation of the Charles River Watershed Association 1973 Environmental Protection Award to the New England Division, U. S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The presentation was made Wednesday at the Association's annual meeting to be held at the Perkins School for the Blind in Watertown.

In a dramatic break with tradition, the Corps has recommended acquisition of 8422 acres of wetlands in the middle and upper Charles River watershed to be maintained in their natural condition as permanent flood controls. If the wetlands are preserved, the Corps believes, structural controls will not be needed to secure the public safety. According to CRWA's Executive Director, Mrs. Rita Barron, the protection of the wetlands will provide additional social, recreational, and environmental values. In recognition of this outstanding proposal CRWA has selected the New England Division to be the recipient of its first special award. Colonel Charles J. Osterndorf, Deputy Chief of the New England Division, will accept the award on behalf of the Corps.

The evening program will commence with early refreshments at 7:30 when guests will be invited to tour an extensive exhibit area. Students from the Dover-Sherborn Regional High School will demonstrate simple water quality testing techniques, and displays will include acquisition plans of private and state agencies, a proposed cultural use of the Watertown Arsenal property, characteristic soils of the watershed, and reproductions of historic maps and documents.

A brief business meeting will be followed by a slide tape program on the so-called Natural Valley Storage flood control proposal which has been developed especially for the occasion by program chairman John T. Blackwell, CRWA's Vice President. The evening will be highlighted by the award presentation to the Corps.

The Charles River Watershed Association is in its eighth year of citizen concern for the Charles River, with membership representing the 35 cities and towns in the watershed. Its focus is on citizen education and government agency liaison and involvement with all public and private programs relating to the watershed. CRWA invites all citizens interested in the potential of the Charles River to attend the meeting. For further information please call CRWA at 527-2799.

Electric Vehicles Invade Greater Boston

As oil shortages, soaring gasoline prices and increasing air pollution cause growing concern across the country, Boston is setting the pace for other metropolitan areas with the establishment of a comprehensive demonstration program for electric-powered road vehicles with a network of support facilities.

The first step in the program was announced today by Electromotion Inc. of Bedford, Massachusetts, the only U.S. manufacturer of lightweight electric vehicles designed "from the ground up" for urban American road conditions. The company has announced the appointment of its first Greater Boston dealerships, Gaston Andrey, Inc. located in Brookline, Framingham and Watertown. Together, Electromotion and Gaston Andrey will spearhead a program for the area that will make Boston a showcase for the demonstrated practicality of the electric. The program will involve leasing electrics to selected commercial firms, government agencies and private individuals.

Initially, demonstration program participants will be concentrated in the metropolitan area (within the circumference of Route 128), with supporting exchange-recharge stations in Brookline, Framingham, Watertown and Bedford. Additional recharge stations will be established at key points throughout the city as the program develops. Participating users will include delivery services, taxi companies, shuttle services, government maintenance teams and selected private citizens.

Electromotion vehicles are already in use throughout the U.S. While electric-powered road vehicles have long been widely used in Europe, it took the advent of the new federal regulations limiting exhaust emissions to provide the final incentive for the acceptance of the vehicles in this country.

According to Gaston Andrey, president of the Boston-area dealership and leasing organization, electrics may never replace rural vehicles powered by internal combustion engines. However, there are already areas of travel and transportation where they are fast becoming a "must."

"Heavily populated metropolitan areas where auto emissions are now the largest single cause of air pollution are an obvious market," says Andrey.

The electric road vehicles to be used in the showcase program operate on a battery pack that can either be replaced at an exchange station (in less than two minutes) or recharged right in the vehicle by simply plugging in to a standard 120 volt current. Operating costs for electrics can run as low as two cents a mile, which is about a quarter of the cost for typical internal combustion-engined examples.

Andrey points out that one reason for this is greatly reduced maintenance costs. Because electrics have no carburetor, spark plugs or points; no fuel or water pumps, there is very little to get out of order. There is no oil to change, and no radiator so the driver doesn't have to worry about winter freeze-ups. "The ideal vehicle for city and suburban driving," says Andrey. Complete details of the program will be announced in coming weeks.

Boston State, Pharmacy Launch Joint Program

Presidents Kermit C. Morrissey of Boston State College and Raymond A. Gosselin of Massachusetts College of Pharmacy have signed an agreement whereby both neighboring colleges would launch immediately an interinstitutional pilot program geared to avoid many areas of duplication of courses and educational facilities through an exchange of students.

The program is the first of its kind between public and private institutions on the undergraduate level in the Greater Boston area.

President Morrissey said, "The program is in the best tradition of education in that it demonstrates the value of cooperation between the public and private sectors."

President Gosselin added, "Programs like these are naturals with colleges that are in such close proximity as we are."

Science laboratories and equipment, pharmacy manufacturing facilities, library facilities, joint research programs, etc., of both institutions are available to students participating in the "pilot".

Students at Boston State majoring in the Public Service, Medical Technology and Nursing Programs are now able to supplement their course work through courses in such areas as microbiology, medicinal chemistry and medical economics.

In turn, Massachusetts College of Pharmacy students can take teacher education courses at Boston State to prepare them for certification to teach at the secondary level in the Commonwealth's public schools.

The courses offered are selected by mutual agreement of the academic deans of the two colleges, Dr. James P. Jones of Boston State and Dr. William H. Parsons of Massachusetts College of Pharmacy.

It was stressed that the visiting students would be enrolled on a "space available" basis and that both colleges would provide counseling services to the students.

Conrad Rooks Waited 20 Years To Film 'Siddhartha' Portraiture

Right in the middle of making "Siddhartha," Producer Conrad Rooks had to call it off. Luckily it was a temporary action since this Indian-made philosophical and magnificent cinema production is a unique work or art.

But what happened was that the two Indian stars, who are the very top of their profession in India, refused to be photographed making love. It isn't done in India where kissing on the screen is censorable.

And while the Swedish camera crew under Sven Nykvist, who is Ingmar Bergman's prize winning cinematographer, looked on in unconcealed amusement, Shashi Kapoor, who is more esteemed in India than Ghandi, and Dimi Garewal, most beautiful and popular of Indian actresses fumed.

Never, no never, could they make love openly in European style with people looking at them.

Eventually Rooks packed up and prepared to go to London. He grew tired of explaining that this kind of physical love is necessary in pictures shown all over the world as he expected "Siddhartha" to be.

"It seems that the two chief players decided that maybe they were wrong. And they were anxious to have the film completed even if it meant a kind of unrestrained passion before the camera that was shocking to them both" explained Rooks, a 34-year-old man with sparse straight hair, cool eyes and a quiet charm of personality.

"So they reconsidered their early stand. In my turn I made sure no one visited the set, that all the entrances to the location scenes were barred from everyone but the actual crew working there and that the whole production was turned into top secret activity."

cinema updated

by Marjory Adams

I can report from seeing the film at a preview that the result is as exciting and realistic, as well as beautiful, as any I have ever seen in a foreign presentation. The very fact that Kapoor and Mi-s Garewal were not jaded from half a hundred motion picture scenes of love making during their past experiences gives this particular sequence an unbelievable freshness.

"Siddhartha" seems to have upset more than the Indians. It was shown at Yale University this past month, and the audience of cynical students felt there was something wrong with it due to the fact that it had so much emphasis paid to spiritual values. People worked for world peace but they did it through their own soul reaching. Nobody threw stones or set off a bomb. This started out a campaign of derisive laughter.

Then in the middle of the film, a fellow student arose. He was from India. He chided the disparaging assembly. "You Americans are so frightened when you meet anything on a spiritual level," he said a bit contemptuously. "But I can tell you that this picture represents India. It is sincere and authentic a film of Indian life as it was, and as it is."

Now these young Yalies have been conditioned to consider themselves the cleverest and the most aware of the current younger generation. One of the accepted truths that the Indian philosophy expounded in the picture is that cleverness is only a minor value as compared to faith, loyalty and reverence.

The Indian government was at first reluctant to extend a visa to the Western film-makers because of their objections to a former anti-Indian documentary directed by Louis Malls. Rooks, a convincing man in his quiet way, persuaded Mrs. Indira Ghandi and other officials in Delhi that "Siddhartha" would be a celebration not a denigration of Indian culture.

For a short time the Indo-Pakistani war interfered with Rooks and his group but after the cessation of hostilities "Siddartha" started as planned, on actual locations.

These included many of the places Rooks had visited during the 25 trips he made to India since he was 19. The sadu sequences which depict a group of sadhus or holy men, wandering for two weeks in the jungles along the Ganges near Rishikesh is probably the only sequence of this kind ever shown to Western audiences. Certainly no other European group ever accompanied real sadhus on their travels.

The Maharajah of Bharatput put all his palaces and estates at Rook's disposal and that is where the love scenes took place, in a bower suited to the meetings of a great courtesan, Kamala, and the Holy man, Siddhartha.

Just who is this Conrad Rooks whose production shocked Indians and mystified Yale students?

He was born in Kansas City December 15, 1934, but was brought up in Chappaqua, New York. His late father owned a large cosmetic firm. Conrad very early displayed a love for motion pictures. His mother found that her son was better off in one of the local movie theatres than getting in trouble with some of his unruly schoolmates.

"Sometimes I saw three shows a day," Rooks. "And I have ever since felt that story telling is a series of visual images."

The youth got himself into almost all the trouble an imaginative teenager can dream up. He was expelled from private schools, had a drinking problem and even experimented with peyote, a hallucinatory drug introduced to him by Cheyenne Indians.

It is not surprising that his first film was "Chappaqua," in praise of the American Indian. With beginners' luck, it caused a sensation at the 1966 Venice Film Festival. It won the Silver Lion Award, beating out pictures by Truffant, Varda and Vadim.

Of course many of the men he met during his peregrinations were briefly in the cast - such men as Allan Ginsberg, Jean-Louis Barrault, writer William Burroughs, Ravi Shankar, The Fugs and Paula Pritchett.

Sad to say Universal bought the screen rights to "Chappaqua" and then let it stay unknown and unexposed to public view. Rooks has recently bought back the picture himself.

He waited 20 years to make "Siddhartha" and he feels that it is almost a religion with him. It expresses what he thinks of life. The book by Herman Hesse, German Nobel prize winner, was published in 1922. Rooks was determined to make it into a film ever since he first read it.

"Siddhartha" has sold some 2,000,000 copies in the United States alone. Princeton professor Theodore Ziolkowaki says regarding Hesse, "His works anticipate with startling clarity the crucial dilemma of contemporary man in a dehumanized society."

Say Rooks, "Hesse was the first prophet of the possibility of overturning the puritanical work ethic altogether. His constant theme was the loss of soul through devotion to machines, which eventually results in trauma. The true profession of man is to find his way himself."

Maybe this refusal to believe that gurus can point the way to truth is not conventional at the present time, but Rooks says that self searching for heightened awareness and the meaning of just being alive is an antidote to the anxieties that result in drugs, alcohol, escapism and drop-outs from life.

and what've you got?

A lot of brands are talking about their filters lately.

But how many have something to say about the taste end? The tobacco.

One brand that has plenty to say is Kent.

We insist on lower-leaf tobaccos for our cigarette. (They're a lot milder than the leaves at the top.) And we go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states for the 24 different tobaccos we use in our blend.

In fact, we place as much importance on our tobaccos as we do on our famous Micronite filter.

Because it takes both to give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Last Year's Ghost Is Still Cheap

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's biggest maker of Halloween costumes this year says "boo" to price increases.

If it helps take the pain out of costs rising all about you these days this bit of news ought to cheer you. Your kids can do their spookin' as devils, skeletons or witches at 1972 prices.

Alfred R. Fischer, sales manager of the Ben Cooper Clstume Company, said in an interview that "we're holding the 1972 line."

The price of costumes ranges from $1.29 to $2.98. Accessories —hoses, wigs, hats, beards and such—run from 19 cents to $1.98.

Fischer said the costumes are mostly for those under 12. "After that age," he said, "the accessories are used for do-it-yourself costumes.

The Halloween man said boys and girls have a choice of 200 characters — ranging from comic strip to movie characters with practically everything in between, including playland biggies such as Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy.

Fischer said during the last 15 years Superman has moved into a top spot, followed, 10 years ago, by a Batman craze. This year among the hot characters are Spiderman, Charlie Chaplin, and Laurel and Hardy.

Clowns, princesses, astronauts, cats, lions, and Casper the Ghost are other all-time favorites among Halloween costumes. Casper is made by a Copper competitor—"number four."

Inside the costume works, it's already Halloween, 1974. "Our designers started working on next year's line six months ago," Fischer said.

The wig part of the business isn't as great as it could be. Too much competition from real hair-dos of an unusual type, Fischer said.

In recent years, according to Fischer, the accessories part of the Halloween industry has grown considerably.

He attributes this to the fact that more teen-agers and adults of all ages are having Halloween parties.

Despite High Prices, Cognac Is Scarce

By JOHN MORRELL
London Financial Times—UPI

LONDON —It was over 500 years ago that the exporters of the modest white wine of Charente, on the west coast of France, found that their produce traveled better by sea if they first distilled it. They traded the result for furs, wood and salted foods from Norway where the recipients diluted the distilled spirit with water and pronounced it excellent.

So was the modern Cognac born. And today, such is the demand for it, there is a Cognac shortage that even high price has not alleviated.

In this situation, the industrious growers of the Charente have taken steps to meet the worldwide clamor. They have obtained permission from the French government, necessary under the production laws, to plant 2 million more acres of vineyards during the next three years. When these are added to the 6.5 million acres already under cultivation there will be 8.5 million acres devoted to growing the Saint Emilion Folle Blanche and Colombard grapes from which Cognac is distilled.

Naturally it will take something like three or four years for the new vines to bear grapes suitable for making the wine so that a shortage of Cognac will continue throughout that time.

This has provided a splendid opportunity for the makers of Armagnac, a rival to Cognac which is produced in the region 90 miles south of Bordeaux to the west of Toulouse. Connoisseurs often think Armagnac superior to Cognac, for it is made in a modest, individual way that contrasts with the big distilleries replete with laboratories and publicity men in Charente.

Darker, Stronger, Cheaper

It is usually a darker color, a red-gold with shining lights in it compared with the somewhat paler Cognac. It has just as fine a bouquet and, for many people, a more individual, stronger flavor. It is also slightly cheaper.

Hitherto Armagnac has only had 11 per cent of the French grape brandy market compared with the 56 per cent of Cognac and 33 per cent of other spirits such as grape brandies, rum, Calvados and cider and fruit brandies such as are produced in Aslace and elsewhere.

Now under the direction of Gustave Ledun, head of the National Bureau of Armagnac, a drive to snatch some of the Cognac pride of possession is under way. There is plenty of scope, as I saw when I recently visited the vineyards and centers of production around Lannepax, Cazeaubon, Condom and Auch. At present only 500,000 liters (approx. 529,000 quarts) are used from a wine crop of 900,000 liters and some experts think that production could go up by four times within the next six years if the demand warrants it.

The Armagnac process differs from that of Cgonac in that a single distillation is made from a continuously running still as against a double distillation for Cognac. As with Cognac there is a long period of maturing in oak casks.

Half the Armagnac sold is drunk in France, but exports go to West Germany, the United States, Britain (where consumption has doubled this year), Scandinavia, Switzerland, Belgium, Italy, Holland, Hong Kong and Hawaii.

Armagnac claims to be much older than Cognac and to have learnt the art of distillation from the Moors in Spain. Now it aims to catch up with the time lost to its rival.

Health Planning Council Opposes State Legislation

The Advisory Council to the Office of Comprehensive Health Planning has asked Governor Sargent to veto pending legislation which undermines current laws controlling the construction and modification of all major health facilities in the Commonwealth.

In a letter to the Governor, John Lund, chairman of the Council urged Sargent to veto House Bill 7496 which would circumvent certificate-of-need legislation. House Bill 7496 directs the Department of Public Health to issue a certificate-of-need to the Bessie M. Burke Memorial Hospital in Lawrence.

In his letter, Lund stated, "As you are aware, there have been specific processes established to control the unnecessary and unplanned construction and modification of health care facilities through the certificate-of-need laws. By asking the legislature to overturn a decision of the Public Health Council, the Bessie Burke Hospital has challenged the certificate-of-need process."

Lund went on to say, "The Advisory Council feels strongly that enactment of H. 7496 would be most unfortunate since a precedent would be established which could undermine the effectiveness of the certificate-of-need legislation and comprehensive health planning in Massachusetts. The Council recommends you veto this bill as well as any other which clearly circumvents duly established processes."

The Advisory Council is a 70 member body, of which 36 members represent consumers of health care services and 34 are providers of those services. The Council provides the Office of Comprehensive Health Planning with input and expertise from health groups and citizens' interests throughout the Commonwealth.

Employment Tax Filing Date Near

Although the 1972 income tax filing season has ended for most individuals, an important tax deadline is approaching for employers, William E. Williams, district director of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts, said today.

Oct. 31 is the last day for employers to report and pay both Social Security and withheld income taxes for the third period of 1973; however, they have until Nov. 12 to file their returns if they have deposited the entire quarterly tax liability on time in a Federal Reserve bank or authorized commercial bank.

Employers should use the pre-addressed Form 941 mailed them by the IRS to report these taxes.

For more information see IRS Publication 15, "Circular E — Employer's Tax Guide." It's available free by writing your IRS district office.

Halloween Party At The Children's Zoo

The Children's Zoo celebrates halloween early. On Saturday, October 27 there will be a special halloween party at the Children's Zoo.

Everyone who attends the zoo wearing a halloween costume will be admitted free as guests of the Boston Zoological Society. Not just kids, but everyone who shows up at the front gate in a costume will be admitted free. Most of the Children's Zoo staff will be in costume for this special day.

At noon there will be a costume judging and the best costume, the funniest costume and the oldest and youngest people in costumes will be awarded prizes. Besides the fun with costumes there are all the animals to see at the zoo. Lion cubs, young leopards, a baby African elephant, goats, sheep and dozens of other animals are waiting for you at the Children's Zoo.

This special halloween party is also an end of the season special. This weekend of the 27th is the last weekend the Children's Zoo will be open this year. All the animals will retire to winter quarters and return again in the spring.

Bring the entire family to the Children's Zoo, in costume, and be guests of the B.Z.S. The front gate opens at 10 in the morning and closes for the day at 5. The parking is free and all those not in costume will be charged the regular admission price of 75 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. The Children's Zoo in Franklin Park is owned by the Metropolitan District Commission and operated by the Boston Zoological Society.

Boston In Pictures Among Reviewed Books

The First Deadly Sin, by Lawrence Sanders.
(Putnam, $8.95)

Here is a superb example of the realistic detective novel that is as much concerned with the people involved in the crime as the police work itself. The result is one of the most compelling of its species seen in years.

We have Daniel Blank, the modern soulless man who, fittingly, is a computer expert, pitted against Capt. Edward F. Delaney, a confident, humane police officer. Blank, for kicks, uses an ice ax on total strangers. Delaney is in pursuit.

The two plot lines cross and recross each other neatly and finally meet in a crashing climax. One might quibble that the finale is slightly overdone but it matters little. Sanders has written a highly credible tale that pulls the reader in and never loses its grip.

The author lards his story with marvelous background details of New York's moneyed set, the goings-on in a precinct house and the life and attitudes of a successful cop. Perhaps his best creation is the "in" couple, operators of a shop called the Erotica, who are dedicated to being "first" in any mindless fad.

Joan Hanauer (UPI)

Franz Kafka: Letters to Felice, edited by Erich Heller and Jurgen Born.
(Schocken, $17.50)

This collection of letters to Kafka's love, Felice Bauer, provides a rare glimpse into the artist as a man. Written over a six-year period, they reflect Kafka's wild, passionate and unstable nature and show how difficult it is for the obsessed genius to live even a moment's worth of normal life.

The Secret Jews, by Joachim Prinz.
(Random House, $6.95)

Marranos was the name given to the "secret Jews" who publicly converted to Catholicism under threat of the Inquisition, but covertly continued to practice their real faith. It's their story, plus the equally remarkable history of other "secret" Jews whose communities exist to this day, that Prinz related.

Brahmins & Bullyboys, edited by Stephen Halpert and Brenda Halpert.
(Houston Mifflin, $12.50)

A fine book of photographs by news photographer Frank Radway who from 1890 to 1930 captured Boston as it moved into the 20th Century. The pictures record all slices of life from the stiff and proper Boston Brahmins to the newly arrived earthy Irish, from an accident involving an old trolley car and the new automobile to young immigrant children sitting atop a rusty trunk on the city docks.

The Times of London Anthology of Detective Stores
(John Day, $6.50)

A distinguished panel of judges, including Dame Agatha Christie, picked the 10 stories for this compilation and they abound in twists, surprises and unexpected endings. The standard of writing, to get by these judges, had to be higher than run-of-the-underworld who and why-dunnits.

Soccer Talk
By PAUL ELDRIDGE, JR.

A recent copy of "Soccer America" had a letter from the U.S.S.F.A. to all state associations. It stated that the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports has added soccer to the 31 other sports that people can go for.

Anyone interested in earning the Presidential Award may pick up all necessary information and forms at any of more than 2,200 Montgomery Ward retail and catalogue stores or by writing to: Presidential Sports, Award, P.O. Box 129, Radio City Station, New York, New York, 10019.

Upon completion of the qualifying standards and upon payment of a $3 fee, the participant will receive a colorful emblem, a handsome lapel pin and a certificate bearing the President's signature and seal.

An item of interest to coaches of youth soccer teams. Pepsi-Cola, Inc., has produced six films, featuring Pele, and entitled "The Master and His Method." They are under the following sub-titles: Ball Juggling and Dribbling; Shooting; Heading and Trapping; Passing; Penalties; Free-Kicks and Goalkeeping and Physical Preparation.

The films were shot in color at the Santos Football Club grounds as well as other locations in Brazil, and to increase their entertainment value, include some footage from Pele's matches with Brazil and Santos to help to demonstrate the master's method.

These 16 mm color-sound films are now available in the United States through your local Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company distributor. The films are available on a first-come, first-serve basis. There is no fee, but they must be returned immediately after showing.

The 1973 pre-season New England College Soccer ratings are: 1) Brown, 2) Harvard, 3) Bridgeport, 4) Springfield, 5) Connecticut, 6) Williams, 7) Amherst, 8) U.R.I., 9) Hartford and 10) Middlebury.

John Bardett, Jr. is the new coach of Southeastern Massachusetts University. S.M.U. was the 1972 C.I.S.C. Conference Co-champions, District 325, NAIA Champions and NAIA Area 8 Runnerups.

Leeds United is still rolling along, having won all of their games except one so far this season, and that one game was a tie with Manchester United. But Leeds manager, Don Revie, has one worry off of his mind, that of the English World Cup. Leeds was knocked out of the competition by a vastly improved Ipswich team.

I had the opportunity to watch Ipswich, first hand, when they played Southend United in a pre-season game. They impressed me very much.

Burlington Hosts Flower Show

Anticipation is half of happiness!

And what happier way to foretaste the joys of the coming season of thanksgiving and renewals, than to see the "Holiday Medley" Flower Show at the Burlington Mall, between Nov. 5 and 10? This standard flower show is being presented by the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc. (of which Mrs. C. Campbell Patterson of Chestnut Hill is president), in cooperation with the Burlington Mall Merchants Association.

A large committee headed by Mrs. Leonard Francis of Chelmsford with Mrs. Irving W. Mack of Lawrence, as advisor, has been working since early Summer on the planning of the show. The key idea has been to combine, in one setting, the festive theme of all of the season's major holidays.

When you see the results, your own festive fancies will bloom with new ideas, too, in the enchantment of holiday banquet and holiday settings (16 of them!) and designs inspired from Hanukkah to Happy New Year. There will be magnificent horticultural displays, a large educational section, and a section for Junior gardeners to display their skills.

Towers Rejects Housing Agreement

Complete reversal of several points thought to be under firm agreement, and new information about financial arrangements, have thrown the Towers condominium request for extension of permissive use into chaos again.

After several meetings on the Towers offer to provide low-income housing in conjunction wth the permissive use extension, the Land Use Committee, until Tuesday night, felt that it had pointed the two parties—The Towers and the Newton Community Development Foundation (NCOF) owners of land abutting the Towers — in the right direction.

The two parties were to work out details of their cooperative venture to build 50 units of low and moderate income housing according to an agreement that had already been signed between the two.

At Tuesday night's meeting of the Board of Aldermen, the presence of Albert Goodman of Detroit, co-developer of the Towers with Mario DiCarlo of Newton, changed the picture completely.

Goodman, who had not attended any of the previous meetings of the Towers, NCDF, and the Land Use Committee, told the committee in a recessed meeting that the previously signed agreement was totally unacceptable to him.

He had only learned of the agreement the previous Friday night, Goodman said, certainly could not be expected to build o n land he knows nothing about, and offered instead to build on another property on Rowe St., West Newton.

If that were not acceptable to the aldermen, Goodman added he wuuld give the city $150,000 for the Housing Authority.

Any condition attached to the extension of permissive use, Goodman insisted, would kill the financing, which it had been stated by Towers lawyers Richard Lovell and Christopher Connolly, would expire at the end of October if the extension of permissive use is not given by then.

Goodman dropped his next bombshell when he said, less than five minutes after the expiration had been reconfirmed by the lawyers, that "by getting hold of the right person" he had been able to get another extension of financing with the Philadelphia bank until Nov. 15.

Land Use Committee Chairman Alan Barkin responded "It was represented to us by the developer (DiCarlo and the lawyers) that an agreement had been hammered out with NCDF. I'm getting dingdonged all over the place. It's getting to be a habit, and I'm getting tired of it."

The Towers construction was stopped last month when aldermanic candidate Mark White brought to public attention the fact that the Towers permissive use had expired in 1971, and that an extension would have to be voted by the Board of Aldermen.

Since that time, the Land Use Committee has met several times in special session trying to accommodate the Towers and work out the proposal for housing.

At a meeting last Thursday, proposed order of the Board of Aldermen was prepared, which would extend the permissive use for two and one-half years, with the condition that not more than 350 units of the planned 428 units of the Towers be occupied until 20 two-bedroom apartments are provided the Newton Housing Authority for its leased-housing program.

NRA Developer Decision Pending, New Authority Member Proposed

The Newton Redevelopment Authority has yet to make a decision on a new developer for its commercial parcel in Newton Lower Falls after it voted last week to rescind a previous selection.

In another development this week, Mayor Theodore D. Mann nominated Otis Robinson of Waban as a replacement for authority member Mario DiCarlo who resigned last month.

The reversal vote has raised the spectre of either disapproval of a new developer choice by the state Department of Community Affairs (DCA) or a breach of contract suit by the rejected developer, Woodland Realty Trust of Newton, or both.

At the time of the rescission vote last week, Edmund Mangini, urban renewal chief for the DCA, told authority members that a change in developers at this point may be illegal.

Mangini also told them, however, that a compromise solution offered by authority chairman Cecil Cadwell may be just as illegal.

"The authority has selected a developer with a single building concept and I don't think that can be changed," Mangini said at the time.

Cadwell had proposed that community residents meet with representatives of Woodland to work out a multi-building concept as desired by the neighborhood.

It was Mangini who had originally raised the hopes of the Lower Falls community when he disapproved the original choice last summer because "it did not take the wishes of the community into consideration."

Both the Lower Falls Improvement Association (NLFIA) and the Lower Falls Project Area Committee (LOPAC) had petitioned Mangini for just such disapproval after the authority had neglected their combined advice and selected Woodland.

Police Track Burglary Suspects

Investigators for the Newton Police Department have several leads in connection with a series of burglaries committed throughout Newton during the past weekend.

In one case, police were able to establish the tentative identity of one suspect with the aid of an eyewitness and a photo file.

While investigating a break at a boarding house on Newtonville avenue police discovered that one tenant actually saw the burglar, investigators said.

The boarder was sitting in his room when his door opened and a young man waved in a friendly manner and left.

"The tenant is deaf and therefore did not hear any noises while the burglary was in progress," a police spokesman said.

"We are pretty sure, the burglar thought the man's room was empty and entered it to continue his ransacking of the house," he added.

Missing at the time of the investigation, police said, were several ladies wristwatches, $20 in cash, and a quantity of tranquilizers.

Police are also searching for a suspected Newton Centre man in connection with an unsuccessful break at the rear of 93 Union St. in the same section of the city.

While making his rounds Officer George E. MacNair Jr. foiled the burglary, but the two men involved fled the area before other officers could arrive on the scene.

The officers found a door of the building open, and $1,500 worth of stereo equipment piled nearby. The equipment had been taken from its usual places, police said.

Officer MacNair recognized one of the men, according to the police report of the incident, and the suspect is currently being sought for questioning in connection with the case.

Police are also investigating the weekend burglary at the home of Dr. Arthur Newman at 475 Washington St.

Police theorized that entry was made through a cellar window, broken in the attempt, and the doctor's office was subsequently ransacked.

Missing, according to police, are two pistols, a man's $800 watch, and a white gold diamond brooch.

The home of Abraham Borkum, 24 Ruane Rd., West Newton, was also ransacked and burglarized over the weekend and police said the thieves gained entry by cutting a screen on a rear porch and prying open a wooden door.

"The thieves bolted a security chain after they gained entry," a police spokesman said.

Missing from two ransacked bedrooms and the dining room, police said, are an 18-piece silverware set, several bank books, a string of pearls, a $100 gift certificate and $300 in cash.

Police said they would question two unidentified men who had been hired by the homeowner to paint his residence. They also said they had obtained fingerprints during their investigation.

Missing from the home of Howard Richard at 71 Commonwealth Ave. after a weekend burglary are $600 in travelers checks, $10 in cash, a personal check for $100 and a white, 26 inch, 10-speed bicycle.

Police are also continuing their investigation into a burglary at the home of John Dutton, 57 Shornecliff Rd. where entry was apparently made through an unlocked cellar door.

The thieves ransacked the entire second floor of the home and made off with $220, police said.

"Neighbors were able to supply us with a description of two men seen in the area around the time of the burglary," an investigator reported.

Police were also investigating two other recent breaks at the homes of Lawrence Cooper, 317 California St., and Marianne Martin, 432 Chestnut St.

It was not known immediately what was missing from the ransacked Martin residence, but Cooper reported a missing black and white, 12 inch, Panasonic television set to investigators.

Aldermen Decline Impeachment Vote

A move by Alderman Richard McGrath to introduce a resolution that the Board of Aldermen ask the Massachusetts congressional delegation to "initiate and-or fully cooperate with efforts which will result in the resignation or impeachment of President Nixon" failed this week.

Alderman Robert Tennant, whose resolution commending the President for ending the Vietnam War has been languishing in committee for more than six months because of unfavorable response from the board, jumped to his feet in indignation at McGrath's proposal.

"It amazes me," Tennant said heatedly, "that this alderman not too long ago stood in this same place saying we should not go into national issues. This same alderman is always saying we should not be asked to act hastily on issues we have just been presented with."

"If this does not get referred to committee I'll charter (table) it anyway," said Tennant.

Alderman Joseph McDonnell commented that although he was glad to see the President's position on yielding the Watergate tapes had changed over the weekend, the impeachment requested in the resolution is only a legal action to etermine whether the President should be removed from office, not the removal itself.

"It is a tribute to the people of this country," McDonnell said, "that the outcry over the weekend brought about this change."

The motion to take up the resolution Tuesday night was defeated by failure to gather 16 affirmative votes.

Opposed were Michael Antonellis, Alan Barkin, Ernest Dietz, Louis Egelson, Robert Gaynor, David Jackson, Michael Lipof, and Tennant.

Harrington Heads Committee Investigating Newton Incinerator

A special committee has been appointed "to make an investigation and study of the operation and management of the incinerator within the city of Newton," House Speaker David M. Bartley announced this week.

Newton Representative Peter F. Harrington has been appointed chairman. Other members appointed include Representatives Richard Landry of Waltham and Paul Guzzi, Lois Pines, and David Mofenson of Newton.

In a statement Harrington said, "The $2 million Newton incineraton has been in the focus of public attention since it was constructed in 1965. At the insistence of members of the Board of Aldermen, the city of Newton brought suit against the designers; residents of Newton and Waltham have consistently complained about fly ash residue; and incinerator workers have made numerous complaints about unsafe working conditions.

In 1972 the Newton Board of Aldermen made a study of the incinerator and appeared ready to make recommendations to correct the problems of fly ash and smoke control. Mayor Theodore Mann then requested a further study and report by Arthur D. Little consultants, and the decision has been put off since May of 1972. Arthur D. Little consultants have not yet filed their final report."

In outlining the committee schedule, Harrington said, "First we will inspect the conditions at the incinerator. Then, if the mayor will cooperate, we will interview various city officials and incinerator employees. Then we will consult with federal and state authorities concerning the alleged violations of occupational health and safety standards. Finally we will hold at least one public hearing prior to making any recommendations for legislation."

A former Ford fellow, he taught urban politics at the University of Wisconsin and Middlesex Community College in Boston.

Traveling Meals Inaugurates Newton Delivery System

"Traveling Meals of Newton," a program of meal delivery to invalids, shut-ins, convalescents and elderly who are unable to prepare their own meals, will start in December.

The Rev. Michael Scrogin of the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre is leading the program, which is a joint venture of eight Newton Centre temples and churches.

The program is patterned after a similar program in Needham, which is now in its second year of operation.

Eligibility for delivery of meals will be based on a doctor's certification of need.

Meals will be prepared individually at a local nursing home according to medical need and will be supplied in kosher style if desired.

A hot midday meal packaged in a styrofoam container and a cold sandwich-type supper will be delivered at one time 5 days a week by volunteers. The cost will be $2 per day.

While the program at first will be able to serve about 30 persons, Rev. Scrogin foresees the total need as around 80 to 90 person in Newton.

Churches in several villages in the city have begun exploratory discussions on extending the program.

Applications and requests for information on eligibility should be directed to Rev. Jerald Stinson, director of the Department of Human Resources, at City Hall, 244-4700, extension 266.

Would 'Speed Traps' Help

A program of "speed traps" at Newton's most dangerous intersections and roadways has been proposed in a resolution submitted to the Board of Aldermen by Alderman David B. Cohen.

Th measure calls on the Planning Department to identify the danger spots, which on the basis of traffic or pedestrian volume or widespread disregard of speed regulations are most in need of monitoring.

Once the locations are pinpointed, the Police Department would be responsible for setting speed traps there once or twice a month.

"The best and only way to make certain that speed limits are being observed is through their regular enforcement," Cohen said.

The Ward 7 alderman recognized that the city does not have the resources to monitor speeds on all streets at all times, but believes that resources are available for monitoring from time to time at varying intervals.

"In this way," Cohen said, "the would-be speed violators can never be certain that a particular stretch of road is not being monitored."

Cohen added that he feels the program can be carried out by the Police Department with existing resources.

The resolution will be discussed in the aldermanic Street Traffic Committee in November.

Ward 5 Democrats Meeting On Oct. 30

The public is invited to attend a meeting of the Newton Ward 5 Democratic Committee Tuesday, Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. at the Church of the Good Shepherd, 1671 Beacon St., Waban.

Ron Rosenblith of Common Cause will speak on "Going to the People: Initiative Petitions."

Common Cause, with other organizations, is gathering signatures for 2 initiative petitions designed to improve political practices in Massachusetts.

One would create an independent office headed by a Director of Campaign and Political Finance to administer and enforce election laws. The second would require most public officials earning more than $15,000 a year to disclose their outside sources of income and personal economic interests.

Centennial Commission Reports Profit

The apple tree that symbolized Newton's Centennial celebration last summer has begun to bear fruit.

The Centennial Commission reports that there will be a surplus of between $3,000 and $6,000 realized from Centennial activities.

The surplus, which cannot be known exactly until all the commemorative medallions and Centennial Journals have been disposed of, will be spent for "some community purpose," such as a library, according to Mayor Theodore Mann.

Probably more significant than the facts that the Centennial did not cost the city any money, and even will return money to the city, is the number of community events initiated for the Centennial that will be continued.

The fair and family picnics that took place on City Hall grounds and the median strip of Commonwealth avenue are under discussion by the Board of Aldermen as annual event.

The Newton Arboretum, a centennial program for planting trees purchased by Newton citizens, has been adopted by the Newton Conservators. The aldermanic City Planning Committee is working to give the program official sanction, so that the plantings may be done on city property. The commonwealth avenue strip between Walnut and Chestnut streets is the first location planned.

The Youth Commission, which planned centennial events for young people and got many others involved in community activities for the first time, hopes to repeat some of its most popular programs.

The disposition of the surplus, after all accounts are settled, will be the decision of the Centennial Commission, headed by Dr. David Kosowsky.

The Centennial Commission is a non-profit corporation.

Flu Shot Clinic Immunizes Many

On Oct. 11, the Health Department of the City of Newton conducted a most well attended influenza immunization clinic.

This was the City of Newton's most successful clinic. A total of 1310 persons were immunized. A special clinic was also held on Oct. 10 to accomodate a small percentage of the community who were unable to attend the scheduled clinic.

The immunization is advised particularly for persons in the older age group; persons in nursing, convalescent, and rest homes; persons of any age who have a chronic disease. Proper immunization this year consists of two separate injections at least two weeks apart.

Any person who reacts allergically to egg or egg products or has any acute respiratory disease or other active infection should not receive the vaccine.

The second shot will be given on Oct. 25 in the Newton City Hall cafeteria from 9 a.m. to 12 noon; 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., and 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

DAVID A. COLLING of 43 Woodcliff Rd. has received one of the Army's highest scientific honors, the Army Research and Development Achievement Award, Colling was incorrectly identified in last week's paper.

More Rights Given Young Adults

Eighteen year olds now have the rights of all citizens - including the right to enter into contracts - as a result of a bill signed into law last week by Governor Sargent.

Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton), member of the Special Commission on the Age of Majority, states that the commission had found that history provides little support for a majority age of 21 and filed legislation to lower the age to 18.

In addition to conferring the power to enter into legal contracts, 18-year-olds will now be permitted to serve on juries, open credit accounts, and receive medical treatment of all types without parental consent.

In addition, parents will no longer be required to financially support children 18-years or older who are indigent. Those parents who are able to pay are still responsible for the support of totally disabled childlren 18-or-over, however.

Rep. Mofenson says that the legislation puts Massachusetts in step with the other New England states and with several other states which have lowered the age of majority to 18 in the past three years.

The law has resulted in a sweeping revision of state statutes. "Minor" now means any person under 18 years of age. "Full 'Age" now means 18-years or older, and "Adult" and "Age of Majority" means 18-years old.

The legislation reduces from 21 to 18 years, the age requirements of the Department of Public Welfare for foster care and adoption proceedings. Criminal offenders may be committed to the Department of Youth Services up to 18, instead of 21 years old.

Rep. Mofenson said that in making its report the commission stated: "The age of 21 appears to have been accepted originally because that was the age at which it was believed that one acquired the physical strength necessary to wear a heavy suit of armor."

"At other times, with other considerations paramount, other ages of majority have prevailed. Roman law, for example, at one time, recognized the age of 14 as the age of amajority since this was the age at which it was believed one had the capacity to understand the law," he said.

"What is clear, therefore, is that there is nothing particularly God-given about the age of 21 as such, and that things do change in the light of changing circumstances," Mofenson continued.

Rep. Mofenson further indicated that the commission was persuaded that there was little to recommend 21 as the age of majoirty and that if an age of majority is necessary, 18 was a much more appropriate age.

"In reaching this conclusion, the commission has considered the physical, intellectual, moral, sociological, and psychological development of the 18 to 20-year-old group, as well as opinions solicited from individuals and groups who would be affected by a change in the law," Mofenson stated.

The commission went on to indicate that although there is some disagreement about the degree of maturity possessed by the 18 to 21-year-old age group, it believes that most of the evidence clearly indicates that 18 to 21-year-olds, on the whole, are capable of acting as mature persons.

Legislation setting 18 as the age at which males can marry without parental consent and at which 18-year-olds can make a will was signed into law in 1971. It was also the year in which 18-year-olds were given the right to vote. Last year produced legislation allowing 18-year-ol to purchase liquor.

Open Space Tour Sunday

At 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 28, the second Open Space Bus Tour will leave Newton City Hall for points south of Beacon Street.

The bus will return to City Hall at 4 p.m. or shortly after.

The tour is run jointly by the Newton Conservation Commission and Newton Conservators, Inc. as a briefing for citizens on the open space land acquisitions recommended by the Conservation Commission to the Mayor and Board of Aldermen for inclusion in the City's 1973-78 Capital Improvement Program.

The 44 seats on the Recreation Department bus are available to the public on a first come, first serve basis. Since the bus was nearly filled for the Oct. 14 tour of Charles River lands, the Conservation Commission advises prompt arrival to obtain a seat.

Weather permitting, the passengers will leave the bus at some of the tour sites, so jeans and thick-soled shoes are suggested for comfort.

Sites north of Beacon Street will be visited Nov. 11.

Guzzi Offers Amendments To Campaign Disclosure Law

Representative Paul H. Guzzi (D-Newton) indicated this week that he will offer a number of amendments to strengthen House Bill 7590, an act relative to the full disclosure of campaign contributions.

Guzzi, chairman of the subcommittee which initially drafted the proposal, stated: "This legislation is more timely and necessary than ever before. Recent events demand swift enactment of a comprehensive law which will ensure the public's right to know who contributes what amounts of money to candidates for elective office."

The proposal, which has been worked out during the past four months by the Committee on Election Laws, includes a number of provisions recommended by Rep. Guzzi:

It defines the term "candidate" to include all elected officials;

It requires the reporting of all funds raised in non-election years;

It mandates the reporting of campaign expenditures and contributions, in an election year, before the actual election occurs;

It lowers the maximum amount of money an individual can contribute to any political candidate in a calendar year from $3,000 to $1,000;

It guarantees that all political committees formed for the election of a candidate, including Presidential and Vice-Presidential candidates, will be done with the consent of those candidates;

It requires the reporting of the disposition of all residual funds which may be left over from a campaign.

A number of other provisions, which Rep. Guzzi feels are necessary to guarantee the integrity of the proposed Disclosure Bill, have been deleted from his sub-committee recommendations. Among the amendments which the Newton legislator will propose are:

A limit on cash contributions to all political candidates of $25. All other contributions would be made by check;

Limiting the number of political committees a candidate can have to one;

Deleting a section of the bill which would exclude the specific reporting of sources of capaign contributions prior to Jan. 1, 1974, the effective date of the legislation;

Requiring exception reporting of all large contributions before an election occurs, and instituting a "freeze" on contributions immediately prior to the election.

Representative Guzzi said: "Anything less than complete reform of our disclosure laws, with effective monitoring and enforcement by the secretary of state and the attorney general, would be a sad and shameful performance at a time when most people are disgusted with recent political events. While I support and have recommended many of the provisions contained in House Bill 7590, I feel that the amendments which I am suggesting are absolutely necessary to correct a political system in which too many people have lost faith, and over which a dark cloud of suspicion now hangs."

Dance To Aid Leukemia Fight

International Rho Pi Phi Pharmaceutical Fraternity, Alpha Chapter Alumni and Ladies' Auxiliary, are sponsoring an Annual Aid for Leukemia Research Dinner–Dance on Sunday evening, Nov. 18, at the Sidney Hill Country Club in Chestnut Hill.

Proceeds from the annual dinner-dance will be turned over to the New England Medical Center Hospital for further research in the fight against leukemia.

Trend For Youth Away From Drugs

The trend of youth problems in Newton, as nationally, is away from drug addiction and toward problems related to sex and alcohol, according to the latest quarterly report of the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Multi-Service Center, Inc.

Alderman Michael Lipof, chairman of the mayor's advisory committee on alcoholism and drugs recently made known the conclusions of the report.

"It is encouraging to see that hard-line drug abuse seems not to be the problem it was two or three ears ago. One of the reasons, I'm sure, is that agencies like Multi-Service are meeting the needs of troubled youth before the fact and are addressing themselves to the problems that often drive young people to the drug culture," Lipof said.

Lipof would like to see greater emphasis on sex education in the school systems and at home.

The caseload of the Multi-Service Center has been increasingly sex-related, Lipof said, and "VD is rampant."

Even though Multi-Service Center and the Newton-Wellesley Hospital are making great strides in combating VD, "it is only through enlightenment that we can prevent the increase of the problem," Lipof said.

Impeachment

For the most part the word impeachment has been limited to footnote proportions in the history books of our local schools. It's not hard to imagine that if it were included in a vocabulary test at the high school level a month or so ago there would have been few who could accurately define the term and the process in its broadest sense.

But in one week the 10 letter word of impeachment has blossomed into the parlance of every age group and interest. We hear it mentioned at just about every local gathering or grouping. The term is questioned and debated in every circumstance and locale.

And although we have become somewhat more familiar with the definition of impeachment we still remain shocked and surprised that enactment of criminal proceedings instituted against the President of the United States by the country's highest legislative body looms as a very real possibility.

The U.S. Constitution spells out the provisions of impeachment in precise terms: "The House of Representatives . . . shall have the sole Power of Impeachment . . . The Senate shall have the sole Power to try all Impeachments . . . The President, Vice President and all civil Officers . . . shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors."

The quotation from the constitution is explicit. Whether the proceedings should be applied to the president in their simple enormity is still open to question and personal conviction.

The former Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox, whose abrupt firing as independent Watergate prosecutor brought the crescendo of impeachment to a high point in history, has suggested the matter should rest in the hands of Congress and the American people. Former Attorney General Richardson also expressed similar sentiments Tuesday when he said the decision must be made by the American people themselves.

The impeachment question will remain simmering even though the president's lawyer says Nixon now has agreed to turn the tapes over for judicial review. The quick change of mind may soften the anger but it will not dispell the anxiety of both friends and foes.

The uproar since the weekend surely bent the will of the man who appeared close to defying the orders of the federal judge he would not dare fire.

In this country conviction on an impeachment does not include fines or imprisonment. In the U.S. it comes down to a judgement on an impeachment that shall extend no further than removal or disqualification from office.

Throughout our country's history there have been 11 impeachment trials held in the U.S. Senate. Only one, relating to Andrew Johnson, ever concerned a president. He was acquitted by the margin of one vote.

Now, 105 years later, the cry of impeachment or resignation is brought to the doorstep of the president of the Watergate years. Even a war in the Mid East has not taken the spotlight from the occupant of the Oval Office. But the real heat of the decision now rests with those we elected to represent us in Congress. Will their actions be our actions? Will their decision by ours?

The President, only weeks ago, urged the nation to get on with the business of running the country. He implied that Watergate was behind us, a matter of minor import.

But the real answers to Watergate have never been given to the satisfaction of all concerned. Thereis no political future for Nixon or the nation while the questions are realistic and the answers are rhetorical.

Watergate in far off Washington has become a hometown issue everywhere.

Tay-Sachs— A Way Out

By CYNTHIA BLACK

It is said that a successful genetic program requires three things: the population at risk must be easily identifiable, there must be a simple, inexpensive method of detecting carriers, there must be a means of diagnosing the disease before birth.

Happily, after many years of research and investigation, the tragic, genetic disease Tay-Sachs has fulfilled the three criteria. While it cannot, by its nature, be eliminated, it can be detected and controlled.

The days when a couple had to endure the agony of watching a helpless child die can be ended.

Tay-Sachs is a rare genetic disease that primarily strikes Ashkenazi Jews. It developed in eastern Europe more than 1,000 years ago and is carried today in a small segment of that population as a recessive trait. Among the

Completely Black

Ashkenazi Jews, it is estimated that one in 900 couples runs the risk of having a Tay-Sachs child. The odds are high because both parents must have the recessive trait. If they do, the odds are one in four that their child will be born with the disease. It is always fatal.

The major breakthrough in Tay-Sachs came when researchers isolated and identified the missing enzyme, "Hex A," that leads to the disease. That was what they needed to know in order to be able to test for the disease.

On Nov. 4, the first major screening in this area will be conducted at the Brookline - Brighton - Newton Jewish Community Center at 50 Rutherford Rd., Brighton, from 1 to 5 p.m. The free screening, which involves a simple blood test, is aimed at married couples of childbearing age. A blood test of both partners will be made and any couples who both carry the recessive trait of the disease will be notifed.

Pregnancies of carrier couples can then be monitored to determine whether or not the unborn child will have the disease. If so, the pregnancy can be terminated, and carrier couples will have only healthy children.

I hope it sounds simple, simple in the classic sense. All it takes is the motivation to be screened on the part of Newton couples on Nov. 4.

Nixon Unlikely To Ride Out Storm For Rest Of His Term

Nothing seems to have stunned the American people quite as much in recent years as President Nixon's action in firing Archibald Cox as Special Watergate prosecutor and then accepting the resignation of Elliot Richardson from the position of U.S. Attorney General.

In truth, however, it wasn't all that startling and was completely characteristic of Richard M. Nixon and the role in which he sees himself as President of the United States.

President Nixon had made a compromise agreement under which he would make available the portions of the White House tapes relating to the Watergate mess and would allow Senator John Stennis to monitor the tapes to assure that no relevant material was withheld.

This was acceptable to the Republican and Democratic leaders of the Ervin Committee, but Cox created the impression that it was not acceptable to him although he subsequently said, in effect, that he was going back to the court to see if the compromise was satisfactory from the standpoint of the court.

Cox certainly gave all the appearances of defying Nixon. Nobody in the executive branch of the federal government can do that and survive if Nixon can apply the axe to him, and Nixon wielded the axe in vigorous fashion not only on Cox but also on his entire staff.

What was fundamentally wrong with Nixon's action in ordering Cox fired was that the President had said he was giving Elliot Richardson "absolute authority" in the Watergate investigation.

Richardson was in a position where he couldn't dismiss Cox without reneging on a pledge he made when the question of the confirmation of his appointment as Attorney General was before the Senate.

At that time Richardson declared that if his appointment was confirmed and he became Attorney General, he would appoint a special prosecutor and give him all the independence, authority and staff support he needed to carry out his assignment.

When Nixon ordered or requested Richardson to fire Cox, he was asking the Brookline man to disregard that pledge and break faith with the Senate. Rather than do so, the cool, unflappable Richardson submitted his own resignation.

Yet, there was no suggestion of bitterness in the letter of resignation which sounded as if Richardson understood Nixon's desire to have Cox fired but was simply unable to execute it.

"While I fully respect the reasons that have led you to conclude that the Special Prosecutor must be discharged, I trust that you understand that I could not in the light of those firm and repeated commitments (his pledge that he would give Cox full authority and independence) carry out your direction that this be done," Richardson wrote to Nixon.

"In concluding his letter to the President, Richardson said:

"In leaving your administration, I take with me lasting gratitude for the opportunities you have given me to serve under your leadership in a number of important posts. It has been a privilege to share in your efforts to make the structure of world peace more stable and the structure of our own government more responsive. I believe profoundly in the rightness and importance of those efforts, and I trust that they will meet with increasing success in the remaining years of your Presidency."

That does not sound like the farewell from a man who is angered with his boss for not keeping faith with him. The tone of Richardson's letter leaves the impression that he was sympathetic with Nixon's order that Cox be fired but that he was not in a position to carry out the directive.

Richardson has served during the Nixon years as Assistant Secretary of State, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Secretary of Defense and Attorney General.

His departure from the Cabinet left Nixon with only one major voice beside his own in the administration — that of Henry Kissenger, and Kissinger talks only on international affairs.

Despite his years in high public offices, Richard Nixon is one of the world's worst practitioners of the art of public relations. He seems totally unable to present himself in a favorable light. He can't even put his best foot forward at his own press conference.

His removal of Archibald Cox, justified though it may have been, and the dismantling of the organization of lawyers Cox had set up, was made to appear like a challenge to Congress to impeach him. Some of Nixon's critics believe Congress may sidetrack the appointment of Gerald Ford as Vice President and move for the impeachment of Nixon in order to install Speaker Carl Albert in the Presidency.

Nixon foes are now arguing that Congress must either impeach Nixon or surrender to him. That seems to be a more drastic sizeup than the situation warrants. But Nixon's enemies are taking advantage of a situation which he created.

It is incredible that a President, overwhelmingly reelected less than a year ago, could get into so much trouble in a span of about 10 months. Richard Nixon has a faculty for putting his worst foot forward. It seems unlikely he can ride out the storm for the rest of his term.

Sonny McDonough In New Fight To Keep Skinner From Bench

Governor's Councillor Patrick J. (Sonny) McDonough blocked the nomination of Walter J. Skinner of Newton for a Superior Court judgeship four years ago because he believed Skinner persecuted innocent people, among them former Governor Foster Furcolo, when he was chief prosecutor for the State Crime Commission back in the early 1960s.

Governor Francis W. Sargent made an all-out fight to win Council confirmation of his nomination of Skinner. He submitted Skinner's name to the Council three times, but he could muster only two votes, and Skinner's nomination was voted down three times by a 5-2 margin.

McDonough said then and reiterates now that Skinner shattered the lives and blackened the reputations of men who were not guilty of any wrongdoing.

It was true that men were indicted, lived under clouds for long periods of time and finally were cleared. Charles Gibbons, the last Republican Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, was a broken man when the charges against him were finally dropped. He died a short time later. His indictment obviously had helped to speed his death.

Now President Nixon has nominated Skinner to be a judge in the federal court in Boston, and McDonough is preparing to renew his fight against Skinner in the U. S. Senate.

The odds are against McDonough this time because Skinner presumably is being sponsored by Senator Edward W. Brooke who was Massachusetts Attorney General when Skinner was directing the prosecution of the Crime Commission cases.

The Senators usually go along with "a member of the club" rather than an outsider although Senator Edward M. Kennedy had a nomination to the federal bench withdrawn after the Boston Globe vigorously opposed it.

McDonough has requested Ted Kennedy to arrange for him to appear before the Senate Judiciary Committee when a hearing is held on Skinner's nomination. The proceedings should be interesting.

Sheriff Buckley Insists He Will Run Against Sarge

Middlesex County Sheriff John Buckley, a powerful vote-getter in his home county; insists that he will challenge Governor Sargent in next year's Republican primary.

Most GOP politicians are doubtful that he will do any such thing when the time comes, but if Buckley doesn't intend to tangle with Sargent, he is putting on a convincing act.

It is highly improbable that Buckley or anyone else could defeat Governor Sargent for Republican renomination, but Buckley's candidacy would provide an outlet for all the sons and daughters of the GOP who have become disenchanted with Sarge and some of the bumbling connected with his administration.

Rejection of a sitting Governor by his own party is usually disastrous for that party, and the nomination is worthless to the candidate who wrests it away.

That has happened twice in the Democratic party but never in the Republican party during the period this reporter has covered politics.

James M. Curley toppled Charles F. Hurley, then Governor, in the 1938 Democratic primary, but Leverett Saltonstall defeated Curley in the subsequent election.

Francis X. Bellotti upset Endicott Peabody in the 1964 Democratic primary near the end of Peabody's term as Governor, and John A. Volpe bested Bellotti in the election battle which followed.

The Republican voters are not likely to turn on Francis Sargent as the Democrats did on Charley Hurley and Chub Peabody. But a primary run by Buckley would point up any Sargent weaknesses in his own party.

Problem of Improving System Of Nominating Veeps Difficult

After what happened last year to Senator Thomas Eagleton when he was nominated as the Democratic candidate for Vice President and to Spiro Agnew recently after he was twice elected to the Vice Presidency, a demand is mounting for the adoption of a new method of choosing Vice Presidents.

One suggestion which has been made is that candidates contest for the Vice Presidential nomination in those states which have popular primaries.

Former Governor Endicott Peabody tried to do exactly that last year. Many political observers considered him some kind of nut. He was ignored by Democratic leaders and most Democratic voters. Who ever heard of running for the Vice Presidency?

Everybody knew Vice Presidents almost always are handpicked by the Presidential nominees and that Chub was trying to break a political tradition.

Some change may be made in the present system of picking Vice Presidential candidates, under which they usually are chosen overnight in a conference in a smoke-filled hotel room after the Presidential nomination has been won and lost.

There is not time for a thorough check into the background of a possible nominee to determine if there is any reason he should not be put up for the Vice Presidency. The Presidential candidate really is at the mercy of the man he selects as his running mate and must depend on him for a virtual confession if there is some reason he should not be nominated.

It's a safe guess, for example, that within 24 hours after Thomas Eagleton's nomination for the Vice Presidency, the members of the Republican high command knew more about his medical background than did George McGovern.

Actually, there is no assurance that the Agnew tragedy might not be repeated, regardless of what method of picking Vice Presidents is adopted.

Agnew was a surprise choice by Richard Nixon for the Republican Vice Presidential nomination at the 1968 GOP National Convention.

Former Massachusetts Governor John A. Volpe probably would have been Nixon's running mate if Senator Edward W. Brooke had not executed a political coup which saw his followers turn out to vote for New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller as their presidential preference and bind the Bay State delegation to Rocky.

As it was, it finally came down to a choice between Agnew and Volpe, and in the end Nixon decided on Agnew.

Ironically, Agnew was not as enthusiastic a Nixon backer as was Volpe. Agnew first supported George Romeny. When Romney withdrew after talking himself out of the Presidential contention, Agnew shifted to Rockefeller.

Agnew apparently wound up in the Nixon camp more by default than anything else. He was piqued that Rockefeller didn't court him enough for his support.

During two Presidential campaigns and throughout his service as Vice President, there never was any hint of any wrongdoing in Agnew's background; nor would there have been any if Agnew had engaged in two public campaigns for the Vice Presidential nomination.

Eagleton's medical background might have been revealed if he had been engaged in a public contest for the Vice Presidential nomination. It did come out in time for him to withdraw from the Democratic ticket and be replaced on it by Sargent Shriver.

For Veterans

Editor,
Newton Graphic:

I agree with the article written by Virginia Payette in the Oct. 17 Newton Graphic.

The money a veteran gets to go to school is not enough to cover tuition in many of the colleges; never mind an inducement to go to college.

Also it might be added that there is a bill in Congress to do away with the time limit a veteran has to take his school benefits. I urge all veterans to write their representatives in support of HR 8330. By passing this bill, Congress will open up the opportunity for many more veterans to take advantage of their GI benefits at a time which is economically possible for him or her to do so.

No Fans For South

Editor,
Newton Graphic:

A few Saturdays ago, I attended the opening home football game of Newton South High in a marvelous stadium made to hold thousands, and found myself in a huge crowd of about 35 fans.

I was amazed, and even more so, when I was told "nobody ever comes to see South play." I just can't believe that the South side of the city that boasts such talent, affluence, concern, and involvement can not come up with MORE fans than players. And so I went to all the games to date to see if the situation would improve . . . it got worse. All we provide is the same loyal weekly handful of fans, a small but willing pep squad, for home games an intent faculty leader and his student "octet" in the stands, and, as ever, our cheerleaders relentlessly trying to get a response from near empty seats.

Where are all the students? Why don't they care enough to come to the games? Why do all the other schools arrive complete with marching bands, cheerleaders, pom pom girls, baton twirlers, and most important . . . FANS? Where are the student and faculty leaders who can bring kids together and organize a marching band or at least a larger "in the stands" band?

Does NSHS really have a severe case of rampant apathy as I have been told? What a pity.

Wouldn't it be nice to see some more fans at this Saturday's game and even at the following two away games . . . Who knows . . . for the final home game Thanksgiving morning. I might be able to say, "I got lost in the crowd."

One of the Fans.

A Way Out- (Continued from Page 4)

It is much more classically simple than the way things used to be.

Thirteen years ago, before the enzyme was isolated, before the genetic defect was well-known or well-publicized, one Newton couple, the Alvin Stahls faced the alternative of watching one of their children die.

The Stahls, interviewed last week, had never heard of Tay-Sachs until their third child was diagnosed as having it at the age of 11 months. He died at the age of 2.

They have been involved in Tay-Sachs groups since that time, and today, speak with genuine enthusiasm and excitement about the screening.

They are not a couple who dwell on tragedy in any sense, and when interviewed had nothing but positive, optimist things to say about the screening.

The Stahls have three children now, Robert, 19; Barry, 16; and Kimberly, 7. Kimberly, it's apparent, was born before screenings and after their third son died. Mrs. Stahl acknowledged that it was not until Kimberly was 3 months old that the doctors were able to assure she and her husband their daughter did not have Tay-Sachs.

That's another situation that parents need never face now because of the screening.

The estimated cost of caring for a Tay-Sachs baby, who normally only lives until the age of 4, is set at $50,000.

"I wish you'd point out," Mrs. Stahl said to me, "that the cost of this entire screening program is the same as the cost of caring for one Tay-Sachs baby until it dies."

The alternatives, I hope, are apparent. Knowledge or ignorance; chance or choice.

Health Manpower Bill Passes

Legislation designed to ease the near critical need for health manpower by authorizing the training and use of physician assistants has been signed by the Governor.

The bill, as passed, was redrafted by the Joint Legislative Committee on Social Welfare, chaired by Sen. Jack H. Backman (D. Brookline).

"In Massachusetts, the need for physician assistants has become more acute in recent years due to the decline in the number of general practitioners, increase of medical assistance required under the Medicare and Medicaid programs and over burdening of physicians and nurses currently engaged in the health delivery system," stated Backman.

"Despite the fact that Massachusetts shows a favorable physicians-per-population ratio many of these physicians are concentrated in a few urban centers," he continued.

"In addition, these same physicians are, in a great many cases, specialists who do not provide primary care," Backman said.

According to Backman, it has become increasingly important to develop and implement a program which will train health professionals who can supplement the existing core of physicians and nurses.

"This increase in personnel will make health delivery more readily available to a greater portion of the population," explained the Brookline lawmaker.

"Physician assistants have long been necessary to improve both the quantity and quality of medical care in our Commonwealth," he added.

"We have observed other states where such programs have been put into effect with great success. By allowing physician assistants, who are acting under direct supervision of a licensed physician to provide the primary or basic health care, we are at the same time freeing those same licensed physicians to direct their time and energy toward the most critical areas of the health profession," said Backman.

Lead Testing To Continue In Waban And Upper Falls

All Waban and Newton Upper Falls parents of children in the age group of one up to the sixth birthday who may have missed the lead screening tests in their neighborhood are urged by Dr. John M. Cohen, Chief of Pediatrics at Newton-Wellesley Hospital, to take advantage of the next screening session to be held at the Hyde School in Newton Highlands on Tuesday, Oct. 30.

Families new in the area may not have received personal letters about the community-wide lead screening now under way in Newton and some Waban and Newton Upper Falls children may have been unable to make the earlier sessions. Results from screenings are turning up as many as 7 to 10 percent of children tested with sufficiently elevated lead levels to need retest.

The Oct. 30 session is scheduled for Newton Highlands children and any Waban and Newton Upper Falls children not tested previously. Residents of other parts of Newton will be invited to test sessions in their own neighborhoods at a later date. Children now enrolled in nursery school in Newton will be tested there.

To make an appointment for this Oct. 30 screening, parents are asked to call the Community Service Center at 969-5906. They will be asked to give name, telephone number, and the time they would like to come for the appointment. Appointments on Oct. 30 will be scheduled between 9 and 11:45 a.m.

Baptists Convene

On Sunday, Oct. 28, over 200 American Baptist Churches of metropolitan Boston will be sending their delegates to the First Baptist Church of Cambridge on Magazine street for the Tri-Association Mid-Year Meeting.

The Associations, covering all American Baptists with and along the Route 128 belt, will be gathering in the afternoon to review last year's progress of Baptist work within metropolitan Boston area. Local churches will present specific work with the elderly, teenagers, housing, pre-school care and Christian Education.

The theme, "The Faith Goes On" will be developed by the guest preacher, Dr. Sloan Stanley Hodges, executive secretary of the Progressive National Baptist Convention, Inc., Washington, D.C.

Sloan, a native of South Carolina and a graduate of American Baptist Theological Seminary, Nashville, Tenn., has served churches in Detroit, Mich., Cleveland, Ohio., Johnson City, Tenn. as well as Toronto, Canada. Dr. Hodges is not only a leading black preacher, but serves the Christian community at large through the work of the Baptist World Alliance and the National Council of Churches.

Also three different ethnic choirs will be featured in the service of worship, the First Baptist Church of Arlington, Dr. Joseph Sweeney, pastor; The Peoples' Baptist Men's Chorus, Dr. Charles Owens, pastor; and The French Speaking Baptist Church, Rev. Laroche, pastor; will present music characteristic of their individual worship.

Nonantum Health Center Opens

On Oct. 28, the Silver Lake Family Nursing Health Center, a division of the Newton Visiting Nurse Association, will open at 358A Watertown street in Nonantum.

The idea began when the residents and the nurse covering the area arrived at the conclusion that many people in the area were not obtaining adequate health services and those who often waited until they were severely ill.

A committee composed of Newton Visiting Nurse Association representatives together with their Boston College liaison, met with members of the community to discuss area needs and alternate solutions. Mrs. John A. Webber was selected to chair the Neighborhood Advisory Committee.

After much groundwork was done, the Board of Directors of the Newton Visiting Nurse Association voted to test the concept that nursing intervention in a health center setting would be an appropriate method of meeting the expressed needs in this area.

Meanwhile, through Mrs. Webber, the Nonantum Women's Club became involved, performed and tabulated studies, and adopted the planned center as a project.

Many sites were considered. The Nonantum Christmas Party Association generously offered the use of their facility at 358A Watertown street, which they quickly renovated to make it available. We are happy to accept their hospitality.

The Newton - Wellesley Hospital has loaned the waiting area furniture to the Center, and the hospital will also provide the backup services.

Many parties within the community are working diligently and harmoniously. The result is the grand opening of the Silver Lake Family Health Center, a division of the Newton Visiting Nurse Association on Oct. 28. Open house is from 1:30 - 3 p.m. Ceremonies at 2 p.m.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann and Mrs. Worthing L. West, president of the Newton Visiting Nurse Association, will cut the ribbon to officially open the center that will be staffed by Mrs. June T. McGlaston, R.N. Members of the Nonantum Women's Club, under the direction of Mrs. Webber, president, will serve refreshments.

The Newton Visiting Nurse Association is pleased to respond to a need expressed by the community.

Towers Rejects-

In this way, the Land Use Committee expected to prevent a disregard of the Towers commitment.

Since the Towers had deviated from its original site plan for the condominium project, a new plan would also have to be approved, which would give the Land Use Committee the ultimate guarantee of compliance with the Towers-NCDF agreement.

Goodman offered his personal guarantee that he would provide housing and comply in every other way with the requirements of the Board of Aldermen if they would grant the extension.

Besides the changes occasioned by the participation of Goodman in the negotiations, another problem was introduced by a report from the Towers that the neighborhood around Hamlet St., where the housing was to have been built, is now opposed to the location of housing there.

This constituted another reversal of a point that had been earlier thought to have been settled, and Robert Cohen, whose Chestnut Hill land abuts Hamlet St., said that the last he had heard there was no opposition to 50 clustered units of housing, there had been an agreement with NCDF on the number of bedrooms, that agreement had been reached on not using Carlisle St. as an access, and other details were being worked out.

The source of the sudden neighborhood opposition was never explained.

Marc Slotnick, executive director of NCDF, was informed of the collapse of the agreement only at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday. His reaction was unfavorable.

On the floor of the Board, the Land Use Committee voted 4-3 to hold the item for further special meetings.

A move to take the Towers' request out of committee for a vote failed 11-11.

Voting to hold in committee were Ald. David Cohen, Peter Harrington, Michael Lipof, and Richard McGrath. Opposed were Barkin, Joseph McDonnell, and Matthew Jefferson.

The vote to take the item from committee showed Ald. Barkin, Wendell Bauckman, Ernest Dietz, Louis Egelson, Robert Gaynor, David Jackson, Jefferson, Andrew Magni, McDonnell, Sidney Small, and Edward Uehlein in favor.

Opposed were Richard Bullwinkle, David Cohen, Thomas Concannon, Harry Crosby, Peter Harrington, Michael Lipof, Richard McGrath, Lois Pines, Edward Richmond, Robert Tennant, and Board President Eliot Cohen.

Ald. Michael Antonellis was absent and Ald. Jason Sacks was excused from voting to the Towers because of his business relationship as salesman for the condominiums.

School Records Now Available To Parents

House Bill 6401, an act which permits parents and guardians of students to be granted the right to inspect their student records, was signed by Governor Sargent to be effective immediately.

An emergency preamble was attached by Governor Sargent and the bill which was passed by both the House and Senate at the recommendation of the Joint Committee on Education. It was introduced by Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) Leonard Bird and Sarah Noll, students at Newton North High School.

The new legislation will allow the parents and guardians of a student, and students themselves who are over 18 years of age, to inspect their school records.

Rep. Pines stated, "There is no valid reason for withholding a child's school records from his parents or from a student aged 18 or older and it would help to avoid classification detrimental to the child and assure accuracy and fairness."

"This parental request for information is related to a general right-to-know interest which has found expression in certain areas of the law, especially as manifested in the first amendment of the United States Constitution," she said.

"It is also related to freedom of the press which is the very foundation for all those freedoms that the first amendment of our Constitution was intended to guarantee," continued Rep. Pines.

Writer and educator, John C. Holt and supporter of House Bill 6401 stated: "For the schools to compile as they do secret dossiers on students, often full of what could fairly be called malicious gossip, diagnoses, and labels to be circulated later to other schools, employers, and any government snooper who asks to see them, is educationally unnecessary and a gross and dangerous violation of the civil liberties of the student."

"The student and his parents have a fundamental right to see these documents for several reasons including: what is written may gravely affect the student's entire life; they are surely entitled to see what everyone else may see; only if they see them can they defend themselves against the unjustified charges and misleading or mistaken information which these dossiers too often contain; and the whole notion of such dossiers is repugnant in a free and democratic society" stated Holt.

"The schools ought not to have the right either to keep or to distribute such records, but if they do, they should at least be required to open them to those most concerned, and to claim that parents may not be "qualified" to look at them, I would have to ask 'what qualifies the employer, policeman, or FBI agent?' " Holt asked.

New York established this policy through court action several years ago. Rep. Pines stated: "I am very pleased at the passage of this legislation and I believe it will help protect thousands of school children in Massachusetts from potential irrevocable harm incurred as a result of inadequate attention on the part of teachers to students' school records."

The legislation was supported by Secretary of Educational Affairs Joseph Cronin, numerous educators, the Mass. Advocacy Center, and The Black Legislative Caucus as well as many others.

LEONARD M. TURESKY, district manager in Newton for the Franklin Life Insurance Co., Springfield, Ill., has qualified for membership in Franklin's Key Club. He was incorrectly identified in last week's paper.

Police Issue Safety Guides For Halloween

Police Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department today issued his annual Halloween advisory.

The Chief stated, "Unfortunately, daylight savings time ends the weekend prior to Halloween night and at the height of our evening commuter traffic, many of our younger citizens will be crossing the streets in the traditional "trick or treat" encounter with the neighborhood families."

"It is our hope," continued the Chief, "that our young people will be accompanied by an older person and that street crossing will be kept at a minimum."

"In most instances, the costumes and masks worn will tend to restict either the movement or visibility of the child, and I ask all motorists to be particularly vigiliant in the operation of theirmotor vehicles on Halloween," he concluded.

Local Teachers Win High Honor

Two local high school teachers were honored recently in Rochester, N.Y. for outstanding teaching of high school chemistry.

Helen W. Crawley of 45 Lawton Rd., Needham a teacher at Winchester High School was given the Northeast Regional American Chemical Society's Award for High School Chemistry Teaching as was Wallace J. Gleekman of 35 Rangely Rd., Newton, a teacher of chemistry at Brookline High School.

A teacher since 1935, Miss Crawley has inspired scores of students to continue study in chemistry and other sciences in college and at least 24 of her students have received outstanding awards in chemistry during the past 10 years.

Gleekman's success as a teacher rests in his "almost demonic energy," according to a former sttudent, describing Gleekman's work in the classroom. He has been teaching since 1954 serving at the King Philip High School before joining Brookline High in 1958.

Miss Crawley developed an Advanced Placement Chemistry Course in which students work at their own pace, and a college prep course which uses new and innovative teaching techniques to help students in chemistry studies.

Gleekman was unable to accept his award last year because he was in Herzlia, Israel, developing a new curriculum in oceanography for the American International School.

In addition to his teaching and teacher-training activities, Gleekman has served as chairman of the chemistry education committee of the ACS Northeastern Section for over a decade and has also found time to act as consultant for school chemistry projects and serve on the board of directors of six chemistry and teaching organizations.

He is a graduate of Bridgewater State College and holds an Ed.M. degree from Boston University.

Miss Crawley was a member of the National Science Foundation review panel for proposals for summer science training programs for high ability secondary school science students and in 1960 served as a member of the New England School Science Advisory Council Board.

An active member of the New England Association of Chemistry Teachers (NEACT), she has been NEACT President and Vice-President and has participated in 29 of the association's 34 summer conferences.

She has been a member of the Massachusetts State Science Fair Committee for 23 years, serving as chairman of judging, vice-chairman and chairman of the committee.

Miss Crawley received the B.S. degree from Simmons College and the M.A. degree from Vassar College.

The Newton Youth Center in conjunction with the Recreation Dept. will operate four neighborhood youth centers this year. They will be located in Newton Highlands, Upper Falls, Newton Centre, and West Newton. Each center will offer a wide range of activities including a gym program, drop-in center, and coffee houses.

The center in West Newton began this year's program on October 12th by opening Warren Junior High School for a gym program. Saturday, October 20th the Coffee House opened in the First Unitarian Church, Washington St., West Newton. The popularity of the Coffee House was demonstrated by a very successful first night which featured a local group called "Brew." The Coffee House will operate on Saturday nights from 7:30 to 11 p.m. during the school year.

The Youth Center is also planning a Halloween Dance for Oct. 31 at Warren Junior High School. The Center hopes to be able to arrange to have "Powerhouse" appear at this concert.

City Gets Grant For Youth Corps

Anthony J. Bibbo, ACSW, Executive Director of the Newton Community Service Centers, Incorporated, announced the receipt of a grant this week by the Service Centers, from the United States Department of Labor, with which to operate an In-School Neighborhood Youth Corps Program for Newton and 15 surrounding communities.

The grant amounting to $233,800 for the current school year will run through June, 1974. Established in 1965 under the authority of the Economic Opportunity Act, the Neighborhood Youth Corps is administered by the Manpower Administration of the United States Department of Labor.

In commenting on the program, Bibbo stated that the NYC In-School program provides work experience and supportive services to low income youth and serves to enable them to continue and or to resume their education. The program is designed to raise the educational attainment of youth and improve their employability through paid work experience.

Generally, the Neighborhood Youth Corps program provides gainful employment and other benefits to disadvantaged youth, increases the potential employability of youth through meaningful work experience and academic training, provides additional income for youth from poor families and incentive to improve academic achievement by participants, and assist disadvantaged youth to develop responsible attitudes and to overcome problems of social adjustment.

This program is a part of the Manpower Plan for the Newton Ancillary Manpower Planning Board (AMPB) to be incorporated into the comprehensive manpower plan for the state of Massachusetts. Among the communities to be covered through this funding are: Canton, Dedham, Dover, Medfield, Millis, Needham, Newton, Norfolk, Norwood, Plainville, Sharon, Walpole, Wellesley, Weston, Westwood and Wrentham.

The present contract will include staffing to include a project director, three project counselors, and clerical staff. They will be housed at the Newton Community Center at 429 Cherry Street in West Newton.

Right To Privacy Upheld

Massachusetts may soon gain a new legal safeguard against invasions of privacy, according to Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton).

Rep. Mofenson, who carried the bill for the legislature's Joint Judiciary Committee, says the measure, which allows persons to seek injunctions against damages for invasions of privacy, has passed both branches of the legislature.

The measure, which could have broad interpretation in the courts, might extend to wire taps, personal harassment, and use by the media of private, personal information.

The measure was originally inspired by Jacqueline Onassis legal tussle with a photographer she claimed was harassing her. In Massachusetts, Mrs. Onassis would have had no legal means to keep the photographer away from her.

In an opinion favoring the bill last year, the Judicial Council said it is becoming technically possible for the "Big Brother" invasions of privacy of H.G. Wells, "1984" to become reality.

Rep. Mofenson said that the technological possibility of such invasions has prompted numerous persons, desirous of avoiding that result, to turn their attention to safeguarding privacy.

Also this week, a bill filed by Rep. Mofenson to establish a special commission on privacy was enacted by the Legislature and signed into law by Governor Sargent.

AUTO FACTS

By JOHN NAJARIAN

Fog is one of the most treacherous of driving conditions. If at all possible, it is usually best not to drive at all in a very thick fog. If driving is absolutely necessary, all you can do is reduce your speed drastically. Be prepared to stop your car within the limits of your vision, even if this is not more than a few feet. Set your headlights on dim position because fog reflects light.

It is best to come into NEWTON AUTO SUPPLY, 438 Lexington St., 969-1191 when you are in need of parts for your car. The children will also discuss the history of Newton Indians. Exhibits will feature murals, a teepee and realia of Indian life, all made by Newton children. Simple refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Marjorie Neal, Nonantum Branch librarian, invites all Newton citizens to join her at the Nonantum Branch Library on Oct. 28 for the library's 11th Centennial Program.

"The Indians of Newton" is but one of the twelve major themes of the Newton Free Library's year-long Centennial Celebration planned by Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian with the cooperation of her staff.

The Main Library's two Centennial programs included a tea honoring thirteen of Newton's many authors, a play presented by the Young Adult Drama Workshop, and a talk about valuable antique books.

Fascinating changing exhibits of old newspapers, documents, city records, maps and books from the library's Newton Room, as well as memorabilia on loan from the Jackson Homestead enhance the Library's Centennial Celebrations.

The Newton Free Library inaugurated its Centennial programs in January with a distinguished panel discussion entitled "Education - Then and Now" at Waban. Other Centennial programs held in different libraries throughout the city included "The Business Scene" at Newton Centre, "The History of Newton Clubs" at Newtonville and "Religion in Newton" at Lower Falls.

Also the library celebrated the Centennial with a discussion of "Transportation" at Highlands, "A River Walk Along The Charles" starting from Upper Falls, a program about the "Notable People of Newton" at Oak Hill Park, and an authentic exhibit and panel discussion about Newton "Buildings, Furniture and Furnishings" at Auburndale.

Programs yet to come will feature a "Fashion Parade of the 1800's," Nov. 15, and a "Family Holiday Fair - As It Was In 1873' scheduled for the Boys' and Girls' Library on Dec. 9.

ROBERT H. DICKINSON, West Newton, has been appointed vice president of American International Travel Service (AITS). He will direct the overall financial, marketing and operations functions of Carnival Cruise Lines, a subsidiary. Dickinson was incorrectly identified in last week's paper.

Drug Abuse Plagues Country

"Drug abuse is a world-wide problem, but the United States has more of it than anyone else; no other country has the same complexities due primarily to the weakening family structure" said Dr. Dana L. Farnsworth, recent guest of the Newton Guidance Clinic and Newton Mental Health Association as he highlighted findings of the National Commission on Marihuana and Drug Abuse on which he served as Vice-Chairman.

"Alcohol is 20 times more dangerous than marihuana, one of the reasons being that it is socially and legally acceptable; while marihuana is not a very good drug — it's a waste of time in that for the most part it makes life pleasant and dull — one tends to lose his interest, drive and motivation" Dr. Farnsworth said.

"There are some residual effects after long-term use of marihuana, but hard facts about physical results are very sparse. Marihuana is seductive, but not toxic, and the user is affected by the circumstances in which he uses it," he continued.

Dr. Farnsworth felt that marihuana should not be legalized as it can only produce harm to the individual, but felt strongly that it should be "decriminalized and demythologized, that we should de-emphasize it and let it sink to its own level" then we can deal with it unemotionally. He suggested lower, or no penalties in some instances, for use of marihuana.

Dr. Farnsworth pointed out that drugs by themselves are harmless until used — people are the problem. When a person is on drugs, he should be treated like anyone else who has a problem, whether it be financial, sexual, family, etc., which means that you look at the whole person, not just the problem.

"Drug use by the young in this country," said Dr. Farnsworth, "is an index of massive disillusionment in various factions in our society — social, racial, poverty and a brooding sense of injustice, in addition to being subject to the many pressures constantly working on them through their peers, TV commercials, and families — all these add to the general 'Watergate Mentality' that permeates every area of our lives. It's normal to be paranoid today," explained Dr. Farnsworth.

"Society is overly concerned with acquisitions rather than teaching the young those things he can work toward and get pleasure from doing all his life as opposed to instant gratification," he stated.

Dr. Farnsworth emphasized the importance of working towards elevating our own tastes without attacking the young—to start right where we are now to talk with the young to transmit our values, rather than impose them, and how important it is to teach by example that there is pleasure in being warm and human and useful to someone else.

Dr. Dana L. Farnsworth is presently Professor of Hygiene Emeritus at Harvard University and Consultant in Psychiatry in the Harvard School of Public Health.

He has devoted his entire professional life to the health of college and university students and has received 10 honorary degrees in that field including the Distinguished Service Award from the American Psychiatric Association, the Schoenfeld Distinguished Service Award from the American Society for Adolescent Psychiatry and the Pax Christi Award from St. John's University.

Men Featured In Speakers' Bureau

Richard L. Beard of 21 Bontempo Rd., Newton and Robert L. Goldberg of 217 Bonad Rd., Chestnut Hill are among 22 speakers featured in the Speakers' Bureau of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Beard is available to talk on computers, explaining the nature of the "thinking machines" that have already lifted man higher than his fathers ever dared to dream.

In his talk on personal finance, Goldberg recommends mutual funds as a relatively new vehicle for providing the smaller investor with a professionally managed and broadly diversified investment portfolio.

Goldberg joined the Hancock as an assistant manager in the group department in 1960. From 1964 to 1967 he held the position of assistant agency secretary in the general agency department and from 1967 to 1968 he was supervisor of agencies in field office administration. He has been with John Hancock Distributors, Inc. since 1968 where he is now vice president, secretary and treasurer.

Richard Beard

Robert Goldberg

A Harvard graduate, he was a major in the Marine Corps and is on the board of governors of the Huntington School.

Young men between the ages of 21 and 35 are honored and recognized for their accomplishments. As a directory of the nation's young leadership, "Outstanding Young Men of America" is used in public and private libraries along with other chronicles of personal and professional achievement and permanent copies are kept in the Library of Congress.

Goldman Receives Insurance Award

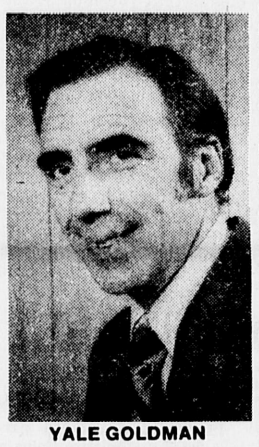
Yale Goldman of Newton was one of the 25 persons awarded the professional insurance designation, Chartered Property and Casualty Underwriter, by the Boston Chapter of the Society of C.P.C.U.

The conferment was made at a luncheon meeting of the Boston Chapter following a morning of seminars held at the Copley Plaza Hotel on Oct. 25.



YALE GOLDMAN

The C.P.C.U. designation is awarded to persons who complete a series of five comprehensive national examinations on subjects including insurance, economics, government, law, finance and management. Candidates must also meet professional standards with regard to education, experience, character and age.

Goldman has been in the insurance business since 1948 after graduating from Boston University's College of Liberal Arts with a B.A. in chemistry in 1947. During the fall semester of 1972, he was an instructor at Northeastern University's Insurance Institute.

He opened his own office in Newton, in 1957 in order to be able to provide a complete insurance and financial planning service. His office serves more than 800 business and personal accounts.

The Chartered Life Underwriter designation is a designation conferred in the life and health insurance fields, but otherwise is similar to the C.P.C.U. designation awarded in the area of property and liability insurance. Goldman is one of less than 350 persons in the United States having been awarded both designations.

Goldman is a licensed insurance agent and broker. In addition, he is one of only approximately 25 fully licensed by the Commonwealth as an insurance advisor; that is, in each of the fields of life insurance, health insurance including group, and fire and casualty insurance. He has been a member of the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. since February of 1960, having become a registered principal in September of 1969.

Born in Boston, Goldman has lived in Newton, since 1952, is married and has two children. He has served as president of the Countryside School PTA for two years, chairman of the local Cub Scout pack and currently is serving as chairman of the Budget Committee of the Newton Association of Insurance Agents.

"George, do you feel a draft?"

A home that isn't insulated right isn't only uncomfortable. It's expensive. In fact, poor insulation can add from 15% to 100% a year to heating costs. Spread that out over a few years and you've got the cost of insulating properly in the first place. And what most homes need is a good six inches of insulation in the roof or attic floor—plus tight storm windows and doors. And did you know you can also save money on your heating bill by closing drapes and shades at night?

And another suggestion. If you don't have a fire going in your fireplace, close the flue. Or else it'll pull 20% of the warm air out of the room in just one hour. Not to mention what it'll do to your heating bills.

Now these are just a couple of the ways you can make your home more economical this year. You'll find even more ideas in a booklet from Boston Edison entitled, "The Wise Use of Energy." You can get the booklet free. Write to "The Wise Use of Energy," P.O. Box 300, Boston, Mass. 02116. Electricity is a resource. Use it wisely.

Day Care Committee Provides After School Pilot Program

The Newton Day Care Committee has announced the opening of a pilot program for "After School Care" for children in grades one through four.

It is operated at Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St. in Newton Corner. Mrs. Keith G. Willoughby, chairman of the Day Care Committee, also announced the appointment of Judith Freed as director of the "After School Care" program. Prior to her new responsibilities, Miss Freed was a teacher on the start of the pre-school Day Care Center.

The "After School Care Center" is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. Children may eat lunch in school or bring a sandwich, beverage will be served.

Tuition is $25 per week. During the duration of the pilot program, only full time children can be accepted.

During school vacations and school holidays, full day programming will be offered. The center will then be open from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Children must bring their lunch, beverage and snacks will be served. Tuition for this full day service is $40 per week or $8 per day.

Snow days will be handled the same as the Newton Public Schools for the first day. After that announcements will be made on radio stations WNTN, WHDH AND WBZ.

Activities include outdoor and indoor play, creative arts, quiet play, tutoring, field trips, attention to individual needs.

A staffing ratio of one staff member to every five children will be maintained.

The registration fee is $10 for one child and $5 for the second child in the family. This fee is not refundable or applicable toward tuition. Billing will be quarterly in advance with the expectation that the full balance is paid by the end of the quarter.

If the need for this program is demonstrated as we expect, new units will be opened in different parts of the city as facilities become available or are developed.

At the time of this announcement, the "After School Care Program" is not funded by anyone; therefore, expenses must be entirely met by tuition payments.

"It is our hope," stated Mrs. Willoughby that some funding will become available as we successfully run the center and prove the need for this service in the City of Newton."

"At such time, we hope to be able to offer scholarships to those who need them," she continued.

The pre-school day care center, which serves children from 2 years and nine months through the age of 6, is in its fourth year of service and continues to operate in the United Presbyterian Church at Park and Vernon streets in Newton Corner. A limited number of places are still available for the fall.

For further information or registration, please call Miss Edith Babkey, at 969-5907, director of Child Care Services.

The Newton Day Care Center, a non-profit agency, is sponsored by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparallelled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

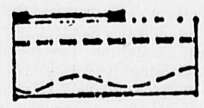
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge, Danvers, Springfield or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

There's a tingle of excitement in the air. Halloween is coming and that means fun for everyone with witches, goblins and other ghostly figures making their trick-or-treat rounds.

However, nowadays many parents of younger children prefer not to take them out on this night of mischief, preferrring at-home Halloween parties because of cruel and often hazardous tricks played on the unsuspecting young.

Party ideas will follow, but for those who will be making their "rounds," the following tips for safer "Trick or Treating":

Be sure the costume is flame resistant or, at least, flame retardant. Home sewn costumes can be temporarily flameproofed at home by soaking in the following special solution and letting them drip dry: Mix 3 oz. of boric acid; 7 oz. of borax; and two quarts of water. Saturate fabric or material and allow to drip dry. The material will resist fire until washed or wet by rain. Hemlines should be several inches off the ground to avoid tripping. Light, brightly colored costumes, easily seen at dusk or dark, are best. Children should carry a white shopping bag to collect their "treats" — this adds to their visibility. Be sure mask is secure and that holes correspond to the child's eyes. NEVER permit children to carry pumpkins with lighted candles — give them flashlights and check to see that batteries are fresh.

A parent should always accompany young children on their rounds. The "cranks," people who dislike children, are usually well known to the community — children should be told to stay away from these particular homes.

Urge children to stay in their own neighborhoods where they are known and to avoid homes that are dark or dimly lit; people who welcome Halloweeners generally leave lights on for them. Last of all, emphasize to the children that they are NOT to eat any of the goodies they collect until they get home where everything should be carefully examined; discard anything unpackaged; wash and cut fruit into small pieces and unwrap candy bars to check each piece.

Informality is the keynote to Halloween entertaining. Have games planned for the children with suitable prizes — each small guest should have his treat bag to carry home.

A version of Sloppy Joes made with ground beef, tomatoes, onion, green pepper and seasonings spooned onto hamburger, frankfurter or crispy submarine rolls, cookies, Jack-O'-Lantern Punch and caramel apples go along with the fun of dunking for apples.

WITCHES' BREW SUBMARINES

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 medium onion, chopped
1 small green pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic, peeled and halved
1½ pounds ground beef
1 can (1 lb.) whole tomatoes
½ teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon sugar

Witches' Brew Submarines

¼ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
⅛ teaspoon ground cumin
6 submarine rolls

Melt butter or margarine in large skillet, add onion, green pepper and garlic. Cook gently until golden, stirring occasionally, about 20 minutes. Stir in remaining ingredients, except rolls; heat slowly. Let simmer about 10 minutes. Remove garlic. Serve over sliced submarine rolls. (Hamburg or frankfort rolls may also be used.)

HALLOWEEN PUMPKIN CAKE
(For Adults)

1 cup chopped pecans or walnuts
¼ cup bourbon
½ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
1 cup pumpkin puree, fresh or canned

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour a 9 or 10-inch tube pan. Combine nuts and bourbon and let stand for 1 hour. Cream butter or margarine and gradually beat in sugar until mixture is fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla and mix well. Sift flour with baking powder, baking soda and spices. Stir in flour mixture alternately with pumpkin, ending with flour. Add bourbon-nut mixture; pour batter into prepared pan. Bake for 1 hour and 15 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan about 30 minutes and turn out on a cake rack to cool. When cool, dust top with sifted confectioners' sugar.

TOASTED PUMPKIN SEEDS

Wash pumpkin seeds to remove all strings. Pat dry on paper towels. Place on a baking sheet and sprinkle with salt. Bake in oven preheated to 250 degrees for about ½ hour, or until lightly gold and crisp.

Information Please

Ruth Lenson

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

IMPORTANT: HAVE YOU SENT YOUR ENTRY INTO THE PILLSBURY BAKE-OFF CONTEST? ? The contest entry phase closes October 31, 1973, so hurry, hurry, hurry! ! Send to: The Pillsbury Company, Box 60-38-B, Minneapolis, Mn 55460.

BAKE-OFF TIPS: Select an idea that shows off the light, flaky characteristics of crescent rolls. Keep your recipe simple — both in preparation and number of ingredients. Use ingredients that have high appeal with family members and choose ingredients that are easy to buy or that you'd commonly have on hand. The cost of the recipe should be a good value for the occasion where it will be served. Your recipe should taste great and be eye appealing.

We've already had a finalist from the West Roxbury area — we're looking for another Transcript winner!

Question: I love the new format for your columns. Turning to you for favorite recipes that can be sent by mail to one of my favorite sons in college. Most appreciative. Mrs. Edna Parad, Newton. P.S. Also, please note the proper method of packing; the last package of chocolate chip cookies had enough pieces for all the freshmen to sample.

Answer: Thank you for your kindness regarding the new Women's Pages. We all know that "care packages" are important to college students away from home. Following are mailing tips as well as a cookie and bar recipe.

MAILING COOKIES: 1. Start with a sturdy box or tin, lined with foil or wax paper. Place crumpled paper in the bottom of the box to make a cushion for the cookies. Wrap flat cookies in pairs, back-to-back. Individually wrap all others. Place heaviest cookies on the bottom. Stuff popcorn, crushed paper or puffed cereal between the individual packages to keep the cookies from getting jumbled during their journey. Place crumpled paper between layers of cookies. Top with another cushion of crumpled paper. Place a mailing label inside the box and tape box carefully before wrapping. To insure special handling, label the package "Fragile, Handle with Care."

OATMEAL CHIPPERS

½ cup butter or regular margarine
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats
1 pkg. (6 oz.) semisweet chocolate pieces
1 cup chopped walnuts

Cream together the butter and shortening. Add sugars gradually, beating until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Blend in sifted dry ingredients, mixing thoroughly. Stir in oats, chocolate pieces and nuts. Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls about 2 inches apart onto greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about 10-13 minutes. Remove cookies and cool on racks. Yield 8 dozen.

SWEET AND SOUR CHICKEN

4 cups cubed cooked chicken
4 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup water
1 cup reserved pineapple juice (or add enough water to make 1 cup)
½ cup sugar
¼ cup vinegar
4 tablespoons soy sauce
¼ teaspoon black pepper
½ cup slivered almonds
1 green pepper, cut in 2-inch pieces
2 fresh tomatoes, cut in wedges
1 can (15¼ oz.) pineapple chunks, drained

Mix cornstarch with water to form paste; blend in pineapple juice. Add sugar, vinegar, soy sauce and pepper. Simmer for 10 minutes. Add chicken and last 4 ingredients. Cook another 10 minutes until thoroughly heated. Spoon over rice. Serves 6.

Question: There's one thing my family just loves and that's spaghetti or pasta in any form . . . but, I think I've exhausted my entire supply of pasta recipes and would like something new. Do you have something? Many thanks. — Mrs. E. E., West Roxbury Answer: O.K. Try this one — Spaghetti Cake! Or, to be more exact, Tuna Spaghetti Cake — a dish so delectable and different you'll even serve it on special occasions when company's coming!

TUNA SPAGHETTI CAKE

1 pound spaghetti
One-third cup butter or margarine
3 cans (6½ or 7 oz. tuna in veg. oil)
¼ cup finely chopped onion
1 can (3 or 4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
One-third cup sliced pimento-stuffed olives
8 oz. mozzarella cheese, shredded
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
One-third cup dry bread crumbs

Break spaghetti strands in half; cook for 10 minutes in boiling salted water. Drain, add butter and mix well. Drain 2 tablespoons oil from tuna into skillet; add onion and cook until tender. Add to spaghetti along with tuna, mushrooms, olives, mozzarella cheese, Parmesan cheese, parsley, salt and pepper. Beat eggs with milk; pour over tuna-spaghetti mixture and mix well. Coat a buttered 9-inch spring-form pan ( or 10-inch tube pan with removable bottom) with bread crumbs; reserve about 2 tablespoons crumbs for top. Turn tuna-spaghetti mixture into pan and sprinkle with reserved crumbs. Bake in 375 degree oven for 40 minutes. Let stand for 5 minutes. Remove side of pan. Cut into wedges and serve with Parmesan Cheese Sauce. Yield: 6-8 servings.

PARMESAN CHEESE SAUCE

¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 cups milk
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Melt butter over low heat in saucepan. Blend in flour, salt, pepper and paprika. Gradually stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens and comes to a boil. Add Parmesan cheese and parsley. Yield: 2 cups.

UNICEF Treat For Halloween

By RUTH LENSON

This Halloween, instead of asking for treats, many youngsters will be collecting funds for the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) to help the poor children of the world.

First created by the General Assembly in 1946, the organization helps fight children's diseases, and helps governments set up centers to care for children and mothers.

UNICEF greeting cards, note paper, as well as a yearly calendar may be purchased at UNICEF offices or wherever greeting cards are sold. The preface of their newly published 1974 calendar reads as follows:

"The pages of this calendar reflect the happiness of children in the passage of the seasons, and also the diversity of the life of the new generation growing up around the world. This generation will soon be responsible for our planet. Yet we know that many need better protection during their vulnerable years and better preparation for their future life. This is particularly true of the 800 million children in the developing countries of Asia, Africa, the Middle East, and Latin America, where UNICEF is active. UNICEF helps these countries' programs in the fields of child health services, nutrition, family welfare and education. Each year, the sale of greeting cards and calendars contributes a larger amount to UNICEF's income for this task.

"An important contribution to UNICEF's global work has been made by the distinguished artists and museums whose works of art illustrate the calendar. Chosen from amongst the many outstanding UNICEF card designs of the past six years, these illustrations delightfully depict many facets of the artistic vision and culture of the thirty countries on five continents from which they are drawn. UNICEF gratefully acknowledges the generosity of these artists and museums in making the designs available."

The cover of the calendar depicts a Henri Roussou country scene with children, dogs, grazing cows and a white horse. Within its covers are 53 art reproductions by artists the world over — 10 representing the United States.

There, in the middle of August is Newton artist Rosalind Smith's charming woodcut, "The Swing," a laughing girl, in gay abandonment swings out over yellow sunflowers. The viewer relives with her the memory of a similar joyous childhood experience.

A visit with the artist finds her in a sunroom, turned artist studio. She is perched on a stool, needlepoint in hand, the glint of the needle flashing as she punctures the canvas. Three small poodles vie for her attention and she gently admonishes them to behave as she talks about "The Swing."

"I'm really quite thrilled to be represented in the UNICEF calendar. Two years ago the UNICEF people used "The Swing" as a greeting card and evidently the card sold very well because I was informed they were going to use it in their 1974 engagement calendar. I consider it a great honor . . . there are so few of us who have an opportunity to do something for an organization like UNICEF. The print is my contribution, and recently I was notified they will be using another of my woodcuts titled "The Day Before April" this spring; again, I am highly honored."

Roz (as she is known) is attractive, with warm gray-blue eyes, suntanned skin and chestnut brown hair. When questioned about her printing career, there is sadness in her voice as she speaks about the late George Lockwood.

"I first began studying lithography in George's Impressions studio. He was taking on seven apprentices and I became one of them which meant I was allowed to cart around 50 pounds of stone and grain its surface. It was difficult and challenging. The most exciting thing I've

Want That Dream House? Get It With Loan, 'Sweat Equity'

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — A retired Army nurse in Colorado built herself a $100,000 "dream house", using a $50,000 loan and "sweat equity."

Neither the nurse nor the house is typical, but the socalled "sweat equity"—do-ityourself labor—is a way that many families are using to acquire the home that want but can't afford.

Take, for instance, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence O. Bulson of Rutland, Vt., who saved $3,400 by taking part in finishing the interior of their three-bedroom ranch home. Or, Mr. and Mrs. Myron Borowski of Sacramento, Calif., who figure they saved more than $4,000 by finishing their own home.

More ambitiously, Byron Frye, a 28-year-old schoolteacher of suburban Minneapolis, Minn., and his wife put $10,000 of their own labor into their three-bedroom, two-bath, split level, doing all finishing work except for plastering which they subcontracted. Miss Margaret Bangerter, a 33-year-old Minnesotan, a farm girl turned beautician, estimates she, too, saved at least $10,000 by finishing her home herself.

Each of these homebuilders work through a division of the Evans Products Co., Portland, Ore., whose Homes Grup will erect a house on a customer's lot anywhere in any of the 50 states. It is a leading producer of precut homes and second largest builder of single-family homes in the country.

"Sweat equity and affordable financing are the elements that make Evans unique among the nation's home builders," says William Schmidt, manager of corporate communications.

Evans, through three divisions, sells homes directly to the buyer, starting as low as $10,000. From a wide selection of plans—and literally hundreds of options concerning equipment, finishing materials such as roof, siding, windows, paneling, tile, lighting and plumbing fixtures appliances—a customer plans his house. Modifications to suit individual preferences are made by the company's architectural department at no extra charge, except where additional materials are involved.

The company precuts structural lumber, pre-hangs windows and doors, fabricates trusses and other components at factories across the country. It erects a weathertight house, about 60 per cent complete, on the purchaser's lot in an average time of one week and delivers all necessary finishing materials to the site.

Finishing Touches

It is in the finishing— installation of roofing, siding, sheeting, wall board, paneling, electrical, heating and plumbing systems, kitchen cabinets and decorating—that the customer can achieve his savings. He can act as general contractor, hiring professionals for some of the work or, where he feels qualified, do the work himself. Along with finishing materials, the company provides detailed finishing instructions.

Schmidt says the average selling price for houses is $13,700, and the average finished value $25,000 to $26,000.

It's a system, Schmidt says, that makes it possible for many families to acquire a home they otherwise might not have been able to afford.

Evans' financing programs—it has several—also help buyers, although company financing is not required and local sources may be used for either conventional or federallybacked mortgages. Schmidt says the company financed more than half the homes it sold in 1972 and, in 27 years of lending, had experienced less than one-quarter of one per cent default.

"No Snap"

While emphasizing that it is "no snap" to do it yourself, Schmidt says it is a practical way for the family who has thought out carefully just what it can tackle to cut the cost of home owning. He says Evans now is getting "second generation do-it-yourself builders."

Miss Bangerter, the beautician from Minnesota, for instance, said she "likes work, likes to have projects to do. After 14 years of apartment living, I wanted to regain the luxury and freedom of a private home," she said.

She began her planning three years before she moved in. Once she had picked her home and the shell was up and weathertight, she moved into the basement of the two-story structure "so I would have less commuting and more time to work on my home." She pounded on shingles and paneling, installed insulation; hung cabinets with assistance from her father, a retired farmer; and assisted a brother with the wiring and heating units. She laid parquet floors and tiled the kitchen.

Her home—living room, dining room, kitchen, bath and en on first floor, large bedroom and bath on the second—came as a $21,796 package, including wiring, heating, cabinets, and plumbing package. She estimates she saved at least $10,000.

Exhibition Of Dutch Graphic Artist At Museum Of Science

An artist whose prints are on popular record-album covers and in science textbooks is the subject of a new exhibition at Boston's Museum of Science.

The work of M. C. Escher, Dutch graphic artist who died last year, will be shown through Jan. 18. It is on loan from John D. Merriam of Boston, whose collection, one of the most comprehensive in this country, has never before been displayed to the public in its entirety.

Escher was an artist who created ingenious variations from recognizable figures and conventional motifs. Though often appearing strange and absurd, his transformations have an interior logic. They deal with several, often contrasting, facets of reality which are related by a deliberate intellectual process.

Ranging from early, representational studies of the 1920's to the inventive compositions that characterized Escher's last 30 years, the 86 prints and three drawings on view at the Museum appeal to viewers with a variety of interests.

Among scientists, the first to be attracted to Escher — there is the discovery that his woodcuts, wood engravings, and lithographs give a visual image of an abstract theory or structure. Psychologists use his work to study visual perception. Mathematicians and physicists are kindred spirits with him in regarding the plurality of the universe as a challenge for analysis and ultimate solution.

Among youth, Escher's element of playfulness, the combination of real and what appears to be unreal in the same drawing, and the generally Alice-in-Wonderland feeling that Escher seems to project bring an immediate acceptance.

Among some groups, it is the mysterious that they find interesting; still others enjoy Escher's traditional, rather than abstract, treatment of people, places, and things.

The exhibition in the Design Around Us Gallery is complemented by Moebius strips and a stellated rhombic dodecahedron hanging from the ceiling. These were constructed by the Exhibits Department under the direction of Robert McCleary, who designed the exhibition.

Assistance in planning the exhibition was given by Mrs. Eudoxia Woodward, artist, photographer, and art consultant, and Dr. Arthur L. Loeb, Department of Visual and Environmental Studies, Carpenter Center, Harvard.

Dr. Loeb, a friend and collaborator of Escher's, will lecture on the artist Friday, November 16, at 8 p.m., in the Cahners Theatre at the Museum. Admission will be the regular Museum Friday night half-price fee. Advance reservations are recommended.

"M. C. Escher: Graphic Works" is open during Museum hours: Mon.-Sat., 10 to 5; Fri. night to 10; Sun., 11 to 5.

Fly-By-Night Affair To Air Franklin Park Zoo

The Fly-By-Night Affair for the Franklin Park Zoo, hosted by the Boston Zoological Society has been moved to the Transportation Museum in Larz Anderson Park, Brookline, Nov. 3. The evening will be a special one with animals from the zoo, an open bar and dancing until one. The party, originally planned for the Museum of Science was moved because of a conflict in scheduling. The Transportation Museum will be filled with live animals, two bands, special attractions, and a few old cars.

TV star, Bill O'Brien will entertain and the music will be provided by "Uncle Sam and His Love Thy Neighbor Ragtime Band." Additional music will give the evening a festive atmosphere. The Transportation Museum was chosen because of it's convenient location and also because the Boston Zoological Society and the Transportation Museum are cooperating with the Metropolitan Cultural Alliance in a Matching Funds Program with the Shawmut Bank.

Robert Mainer, president of the Boston Zoological Society said, "The Transportation Museum is smaller and therefore will not accommodate as many people. Those planning to attend should send in their ticket request as soon as possible to the Society office." The tickets for the evenings affair are $35.00 a couple, which includes food and an open bar. Send for tickets to the Boston Zoological Society, Franklin Park, Dorchester, 02121.

This gala night will benefit the efforts of the Society in making the Franklin Park Zoo one of America's finest. The first step will be the "Bird World" complex, currently in the final stages of construction. This new $2 million exhibit complex will feature a walk through aviary, water fowl pond and a bird house with five magnificent "natural" environments. A swamp, rain forest, river bank and desert will be home to hundreds of the world's birds.

Saturday, Nov. 3 and 8:30 p.m. is the night to reserve. The birds will be there, the animals will be there and you should be there too. The Fly-By-Night Affair for the Franklin Park Zoo at the Transportation Museum in Brookline.

Family Halloween Night At Museum Of Science

Recipes for witch's brews and instructions on how to make a proper broom are only two of the intriguing bits of information to be divulged on Family Halloween Night at Boston's Museum of Science.

Friday, October 26, is the date set for an evening of sorcery, night creatures, pumpkins and magic. The schedule of special programs planned offers something to fascinate family members of all ages.

In addition to brews and brooms, the auditorium program "Science and Sorcery" will discuss spiders, black cats, and other popular witches' familiars, pumpkins, potions, and the eerie swamp fire, Will o' the Wisp. To be given at 6:30, 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. in Cahners Theatre, the program will examine these and other aspects of witchcraft and their bases in science.

A one-night-only Charles Hayden Planetarium presentation on the stars of the autumn sky will focus on the constellations connected with ancient Halloween lore. On the first floor demonstration stage, visitors will meet the Museum's year-round Halloween representative, Spooky the Owl, and several creatures of darkness, including the bushbaby and the slow loris.

In the new Wright Theatre, visitors will be treated to a bag of tricks. Lewis the Wizard, a magician known in New England and New York, will give performances at 7, 8, and 9 o'clock. His repertoire is extensive and he promises an evening of scientific tricks and surprises.

To get into the atmosphere of the evening, visitors are invited to wear costumes. There is a 50 cent fee for the Planetarium program. There is no charge above the regular half-price Friday night admission of $1 adults, 50 cents 5-16 years for any of the other programs. Skyline Cafeteria will be open for dinner from 5 to 8 p.m., and in keeping with the season, visitors may top off their dinner with a slice of pumpkin pie.

Series Of Transportation Talks Available From GM

A look into future modes of transportation is the basis of a new presentation recently developed for public viewing by General Motors Corporation and is now available to interested groups free of charge. Called "Urban Transportation . . . Ready for Tomorrow," the speech is one of six presentations offered by the local GM Speakers Bureau from the GM Training Center. Teh Urban Transportation speech discusses the problems involved in developing efficient transit systems and the tenchology available to help solve the problems. The presentation includes slides of innovative and futuristic transportation systems and highlights the basic concerns that most metropolitan areas face in solving traffic congestion.

During the speech, the GM representative will point out some of the choices and alternatives most communities confront in deciding future transit needs. He also examines where GM and the entire automobile industry fit into the urban transit picture.

In addition to the Urban Transportation talk, other presentations offered by the local GM Speakers Bureau include: "Air Pollution," "Industrial Pollution," "A Look at Traffic Safety Today," "GM and Minorities," and "A Look at the Labor Picture This Year." All are keyed to a 30-minute time period. Questions are welcomed following the presentation.

Seek Volunteers For Case-Aid Program

The Norfolk Mental Health Association is once again recruiting volunteers from the community, both men and women, for its Case-Aide Program at Medfield State Hospital. The program is one in which a volunteer works on a one-to-one basis with a selected patient for about three hours a week. This caring, supportive relationship is under professional supervision provided by the Case-Aide Supervisor, Mary Ciapciak, and the hospital staff and is aimed at encouraging the patients, sometimes as young as 18, to resocialize and hopefully to re-enter the community.

Mrs. Ciapciak emphasizes that no special educational requirements are necessary, the main need being a sincere desire to help another person. It has been found that an hourly visit a week can motivate a patient in many ways. There are also great benefits that the volunteer can derive from this relationship.

In addition to the satisfaction of befriending another human being, many volunteers report great interest in the learning process in working with the staff in the intricacies of human nature. Some volunteers who originally felt inadequate in attempting to help in the rehabilitative process soon found their efforts bearing fruit and have urged others to try their skills.

Mrs. Ciapciak will be pleased to discuss the program with anyone interested, either individually or in groups, and may be reached at 769-0399. The Norfolk Mental Health Association is also available for information at 769-0006. Mrs. Ciapciak may also be reached at the Medfield Hospital at 1-359-4312, Extension 270.

Condominiums Save Vacation $ $

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Trying to stretch your travel dollars in these days of rising costs? Why not consider renting a condominium apartment for your vacation.

The fact is that increasing numbers of U.S. and foreign airlines are promoting condominium resort vacation packages here and abroad.

Combined with low off-season air fares, they offer some unusual bargains for travelers on a budget. For example (air fares are not included):

Iberia offers 15 days for $122 per person, double occupancy, in a "luxury" apartment at the modern beachside resort known Mar-Bel in Tangiers, Morocco.

Swissair ski packages include one week at Flaine—designed by noted architect Marcel Breuer—in the French Alps for $95 per person, double occupancy.

Pan American has a package which includes a week stay on the island of Oahu in Hawaii from $92 per person, double occupancy. And for $75 per person, double occupancy, you can spend one week, with breakfast every morning, in the famed mountain lake resort of Bariloche.

Rates are generally lower per person if more than two share the same apartment. Maid and linen service usually is included but you do your own cooking.

Condominium apartments are available today in many popular travel destinations in Europe, South America, Canada, Caribbean and the United States.

They all share certain basic features setting them apart from other resort properties in several important ways, according to Matt Schmitz. Schmitz is a vice president of Condomart Internatiional, a pioneer in the marketing of condominium holidays which represents more than 46 properties in different countries.

Privately-Owned

"Condominium apartments are privately-owned and therefore are furnished by the developers to appeal to sophisticated investors who occupy the apartments themselves for a month or so each year," he said in a recent interview.

"Basically, a condominium offers a home away from home where vacationists can enjoy a greater degree of freedom than when staying at a hotel. They don't have to worry about the kids or dress up just to leave their rooms. And they can further cut expenses by dining at home—there are fully-equipped modern kitchens and on-site shopping is usually available. They can dine out when and where they choose."

Schmitz said most condominium resort developments include various sports facilities—"golf, tennis, boating, bathing, skiing, etc., depending, of course, on the location."

He said most of the Americans renting condominiums "generally have been to the particular country and now want to spend some time learning more about the poeple and other attractions without spending the family fortune."

Schmitz had some words of warning for Americans planning vacations at a condominium resort.

"Be wary of plans that appear to offer 'free' vacations ... these often are set up by real estate developers intent on selling property or the apartment itself," he said.

He noted that a condominium development is not the same as a condominium resort, which is constructed and planned as a leisure community with resort facilities as opposed to what may merely be a residential building.

And make certain that the community is completed and all facilities operating and available for use before buying any package, he said.

Detailed information can be obtained from Condomart International, 655 Madison Ave., N.Y., NY. 10021 or from local travel agents and participating airlines.

Post Office Has New Money Order System

The U. S. Postal Service's new postal money order system is now nationwide.

The new money order may be purchased in amounts up to $300. The old money order limit was $100. The new money orders are on sale at all offices in the Boston Postal District.

The fees for the new money order system range from 25 cents for amounts up to and including $10.00; 35 cents from $10.01 to and including $50.00; and 40 cents for amounts from $50.01 to and including $300.00.

Under the old Postal Service money order plan, three separate $100 money orders would have cost three separate 40 cent fees totalling $1.20. The new system will allow customers to buy a $300 money order for a 40 cent fee.

Benefits to buyers of the new Postal Service money orders include a larger customer receipt which contains a complete record of when and where it was purchased, and the purchase amount.

Money orders provide the safest means of sending money, they are difficult to alter, and there are more than 77,000 post offices and bank outlets where they may be cashed.

Open House At Army Reserve Center Nov. 1

Topics of discussion will include:

A. Recent pay increases to reservists.

B. Free educational opportunities available.

C. Career openings ranging from auto mechanics to meteorology.

D. New Congressional benefits awarded to reservists.

ANIMAL UNDERPASS

EXETER, England (UPI) — A tiny underpass was constructed under a highway near Exeter to allow nocturnal badgers to follow a path they have trod for centuries.

Badgers will not give up their paths even when roads are built across them and thus are a traffic hazard on English roads at night.

A lot of brands are talking about their filters lately.

But how many have something to say about the taste end? The tobacco.

One brand that has plenty to say is Kent.

We insist on lower-leaf tobaccos for our cigarette. (They're a lot milder than the leaves at the top.) And we go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states for the 24 different tobaccos we use in our blend.

In fact, we place as much importance on our tobaccos as we do on our famous Micronite filter.

Because it takes both to give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Italy's Top Producer Gone American

cinema updated

by Marjory Adams

Dino De Laurentiis, Italy's best known, prolific and distinguished cinema producer has gone American. He discussed it at a conference held in Boston with local motion picture writers, and has already established his family, including his wife, the actress Silvana Mangano and their four children, in an apartment at Central Park, New York City. They departed with possibly some regret from their magnificent mansion on Rome's 2000 year old Via Appia Antica.

De Laurentiis visited New England in connection with his first American made film, "The Stone Killer," with his favorite star of the film world today, Charles Bronson. This is not Bronson's first picture for De Laurentiis. It was the producer's "Valachi Papers" which brought the former coal miner from Pennsylvania into the top motion picture echelons.

"I consider him a cross between Humphrey Bogart and James Cagney," says Dino with satisfaction and pride.

De Laurentiis is not making any false promises when he says he will give the American public five other American films. They include "Serpico" with Al Pacino; "The Tough Guys" with Isaac Hayes, and Lino Venture, and "Crazy Joe."

De Laurentiis at the age of 54, admits quite cheerfully that as an American producer he is starting a new life. I asked him about the gigantic De Laurentiis Studio on the outskirts of Rome. It was built on a 750-acre site just 13 miles from downtown Rome; cost $30,000,000, and even provided rental quarters for some of its personnel. He said in 1962 when interviewed about the enormous project, "I believe motion pictures are here to stay." The studio is still there, empty for the most part, and its founder had decided his future lies on this side of the Atlantic. With some degree of gratification he answered my question about leaving the studio with the smiling remark, "If I hadn't sold it I wouldn't have been able to settle in the United States."

Sitting beside him at luncheon I had the opportunity to evaluate this new settler.

He is 54, has been connected with pictures since he was 14, is of average height, was wearing a lightweight conservative suit of light beige, has brown eyes which I gazed into after I made him remove his dark rimmed glasses, and has salt-pepper hair as closely cut as if he was already on Wall Street.

Smooth faced, assured, quiet—he would never be connected with films in the mind of a passer-by. True, he uses his hands when putting over an idea. But don't most of us these days? I decided that Mr. De Laurentiis is very apt to become one of America's most successful new producers just as he stoood at the very top in Europe for so many years.

Not all of the De Laurentiis productions will be made on this side of the ocean. There are two really big films which will, of necessity, be photographed abroad. The first is "Merry Widow" and Barbara Steisand will undoubtedly take the title part. This, of course, calls for a Paris background. The other is "Casanova" and in this production Dino admits he will take a seat on the sidelines. Italy's Federici Fellini, with whom he has been associated before, will direct.

If you try to enumerate the hundreds of De Laurentiis productions you soon run out of paper. I first met him when he was in New York connected with the festivities that introduced the spectacular "War and Peace." Two of his films have brought "Dynamic Dino" Oscars. They were artistic as well as financial successes—"La Strada" which starred another of the director's favorites, Anthony Quinn and "Nights of Cabiria." Other films include "Barabbas," "Ulysses," "The Valdez Horses," which also stars Bronson and "The Bible."

One of his earliest films, "Bitter Rice," produced after World War II, was considered the most challenging film of the year. American critics, ready to cherish any unusual film from Europe, hailed it with cries of ecstasy. It was aimed at the intellectual audience. That's one thing about De Laurentiis, he is as much interested in the dollars that the cerebral filmgoers pass through the boxoffice windows as he is when the guys and gals who like lots of blood and action dig deep into their jeans. "The Stone Killer" incidentally, is duck soup for these aficianados.

There's so much violence in the film, so many men falling dead and so many astounding massacres that it seemed natural to ask De Laurentiis about it... "But isn't violence the biggest problem in the world today," he answered. "It is all around us. And movies are only one medium of today's powerful society. Violence is in your streets, on your television sets, on the front pages of your newspapers. It can't be stepped around."

He admitted, however, that much of the killing in "The Stone Killer" is meant to be with a laugh. There's so much of it, it gets to be of cartoon quality—BIFF, BANG, POW! Director Michael Winner meant it to be that way.

Someone asked the producer why he chose an Englishman to be the director of his first American made film. Winner is also the director of "Serpico."

"When Michael called me from London and wanted to make a picture with me I said 'Send me the story.' After reading the story I called him to meet me in person."

"I said, 'Let me see your face. Let me see your eyes. Then I'll tell you whether we'll go through with it. And since then we have only the most beautiful relationship."

I figured if Dino could ask Michael to see his eyes, there wasn't any reason why I shouldn't ask to see the eyes of the important Mr. De Laurentiis. Actually, I couldn't tell very much. This is a man who keeps a lot of things to himself, I decided, no matter how outgiving is his conversation during a mass interview.

He knows his own value. When his son, Federico, a most attractive and handsome young man of 19, regarded the move to America as an opportunity to study motion picture making in the University of Southern California, his father said a firm NO.

"I am your university, I shall show you how to make pictures." he declared. Undoubtedly it would be an opportunity considered heavensent by every student now in drama school in this country, but maybe the smiling young man at the luncheon has other ideas.

As for his children becoming actors, Dino looks on the suggestion with jaundiced eye.

"It is no life for the majority of players who never become important stars," he says. "Most young people today are not willing to do what is necessary. They must fight every minute,be strong, and above all, ambitious. That they work hard is to be taken for granted."

Son of a spaghetti manufacturer in Naples Dino started out selling spaghetti for a living, but when he arrived at Rome on his first trip he forgot the spaghetti and became an actor. He joined the studios as an extra, but by the time he was 20 the youth had worked his way up from prop man and assistant manager to be in a position to produce his own films. That was in the days of neo-realism when art was long and expense accounts short.

And no one suspected that Dino could one day toss aside a $30,000,000 studio named for him to turn American.

Will Halloween Be Just "Trick Or Treat?"

Apples, cookies, candy, cider, and donuts seem to go right along with the witches, ghosts, ghouls, and goblins of Halloween. The goodies are treats—payments in lieu of tricks. Or are they?

This Wednesday evening the annual pilgrimmage begins for the long anticipated treasures. Will it be "trick or treat?" or trick or treatment? For many children it is an evening of great fun and adventure, but for some it can turn into a night of tragedy and sorrow.

Each year, far too many children are injured and killed Halloween Eve by motorists unable to see them darting unexpectedly into the street. Others are badly burned as their costumes are ignited by flames from lighted candles and lanterns. These tragic situations could be avoided if parents would observe rules of good sense and safety, such as the following suggested by Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies.

Use only bright costumes. A white-sheeted ghost is more easily seen by a passing motorist than a black-clad witch. But even brightly clothed children may be hard to distinguish as the evening darkens so flourescent strips which would make them even more visible, is suggested.

Liberty Mutual advises that you do not allow children to carry lighted candles, or lanterns, or any type of open flame. Many children have been burned in past years when their costumes, often made of extremely flammable material, caught fire. A flashlight would be easier to carry, and would also make crossing the street safer.

Be sure to chaperone all children who would not normally be allowed outside alone at night. Younger children should be out only in the early evenings. The discreet presence of an adult can stop a problem situation from developing.

A major problem each Halloween is children who have been cut, drugged, or poisoned. Apples and cup cakes can have razors hidden in them. Any kind of non-commercially packaged edible can have drugs or other poisonous ingredients added to them. Be very careful that gum, candy, and other snacks are securely wrapped, and that the wrapping has not been opened and resealed. It is best to trick or treat in your neighborhood.

Keep a light on in front of your house so that there is no danger of children being injured by walking into objects or holes they cannot see in the dark. If there is a pet in the household, keep it away from the door.

A Unicef Treat For Halloween

ever done in my art career was working with George because printmaking was really in its infancy at that time — there were no ateliers functioning in this country with the exception of one the Ford Foundation sponsored on the west coast. George was really an innovator.

"He started with a certain amount of knowledge but most of it was trial and error and we probably failed as often as we succeeded. Though I tried all mediums, I decided that I loved woodcuts best of all — there is something about the resistance of wood. At that time if I did five prints off a block that was fine and I was on to something else; if one or two sold, that was lovely, and if they didn't that was all right too."

Roz smiled as she recalled her first woodcut of her son and his toy banjo, done about 14 years ago. This active artist is now shown by galleries throughout the country and her prints are in private collections in the United States as well as England, Germany and Japan.

As we speak, her needle slips in and out of her colorful design. She explains, "This needlepoint tapestry is a reproduction of a woodcut of mine, one that my husband and I are particularly fond of, and since we don't own a framed print, I am doing this tapestry for our home." home."

The work is almost completed and is quite beautiful. The exact reproduction portrays two young girls beneath a sprawling oak tree; the children hold "pretend" wild flowers and Roz tells you they are a fantasy, so like the res. of her prints.

Roz's face lights up as she discusses her association with the Newton School Department. "The greatest source of joy in the past few years has been my visiting the elementary schools in Newton, teaching printmaking. It's amazing how quickly the children caught on to the procedure, perhaps because of prior experience with linoleum cuts."

A trip downstairs to an amazingly neat basement where the actual printmaking is accomplished, and one sees wire clothesline holding prints in the making. The study is of a prim and proper little girl sitting on a rocking chair, clutching a bouquet of white daisies.

"My husband and I are now working on an edition of 260 woodcuts. I could never do it alone — when you work with six or seven colors it's very tedious and rather ticklish; even though we have a press, there's a lot of hand work. We print on multiple blocks and wood can be very tempermental. Joe has become quite expert at doing my printing — though he's not an artist, he's an excellent printer.

"These prints are for a sort of Print-Of-The-Month Club called Fine Arts 260, so called because the artist submits 260 prints and is allowed to keep about 10-15 proofs. That is the extent of the edition."

Most of Roz's prints are involved with children and their happy as well as contemplative moods. As you again study the UNICEF calendar's August print, "The Swing," and read the quotation beside it: "What is true and sincere is most congenial to man's nature" (Cicero) you marvel at the aptness of the quotation.

Tigers Score Fast, Beat Arlington

By BOB LOW

A consistent ground attack, timely passing and a few good breaks helped the Newton High Football Team mount a comeback in the middle periods, as they defeated Arlington 21-7 at Dickinson Stadium last Saturday.

After Arlington took a 7-0 lead the Tigers scored three of the next four times they got the ball to wrap up their third straight win.

The first quarter was dull and the Tigers appeared uninspired. On Newton's first play, Arlington's Mike Cummings intercepted Cal Moffie's pass to set up his team in Newton's territory. Newton's defense held, however, and after a Tiger drive was halted, Arlington got the ball back on their 20 yard line and proceeded to march downfield. They steadily covered chunks of ground until they were faced with a fourth down and inches inside Newton's 20. Quarterback Glenn Fratto tried to get the necessary yardage by running wide but was forced inside and tackled for a loss by the persistent Newton front line.

Newton's offense, hurt by an interference penalty, lost ground back to their eleven, and attempted to punt. However, Arlington broke through the Newton line and blocked the punt. The ball rolled out of bounds on the four yard line. Two plays later, David Sewfield drove in for six points and then he added the extra point to make it 7-0 Arlington.

Arlington attempted a low kickoff which Chris Jones blocked and dove on for Newton to set them up on their 47. From there, the Tigers finally got themselves together and drove for a touchdown in eleven plays. Gerry Keleher's 20 yard run put Newton on Arlington's 33. Two quarterback sneaks by Moffie helped to move the ball to a first down and goal on the 8. On fourth down, Gary Breton drove over from one yard out to pull Newton within a point.

Newton tried for a two point conversion, but Moffie's pass was thrown short.

On the kickoff, the Tigers were handed another scoring chance when Arlington fumbled on their 35, but Moffie was sacked twice while attempting to pass. On fourth down, Gordon MacNeil again tried to punt but once more his kick was blocked and Arlington took over on Newton's 40.

Battling the clock Arlington moved downfield. Three passes netted them 36 yards, and with a first down on the four they gambled on being able to run two plays before the half ended. However Fratto was stopped for no gain and time expired just a second before Arlington could snap the ball for a field goal attempt. The half ended with the score Arlington 7, Newton 6.

Arlington received the second half kickoff on their 34 and, with Fratto running for 27 yards, moved to Newton's 27, before losing the ball on downs.

The Tigers then moved 73 yards in nine plays to take the lead. Key plays in the drive were a 13 yard pass that gave Newton a first down on their 43 and 12 yard run by Moffie on which Arlington was also given a holding penalty. Gerry Keleher capped the drive, scoring from one yard out.

Once again Newton went for two points, and this time Moffie ran it in and the score stood 14-7 in Newton's favor.

On the weirdest play of the game Newton dashed Arlington's chances. Arlington, after a Fratto run, had a first down on Newton's 37. Fratto went back to pass and was hit by several Newton players. He was almost down when he shoveled the ball forward. It was swarmed on by several Tigers on the 34 yard line as a penalty flag was thrown. After considerable discussion amongst themselves, the referees awarded the ball to Newton on the 39. Five plays later, after a 34 yard run by Keleher, Newton put the game away on a five yard run by Keleher. John Connelly added the extra point to make the score 21-7.

There was no further scoring in the fourth quarter as Arlington couldn't move the ball against the stubborn Newton defense, and the Tigers just ran out the clock. The final score was 21-7.

The win put Newton's record at 4-1 overall, 2-1 in the league, while Arlington is now 1-4, with a league mark of 0-2. The next home game for the Tigers is November 3 against Boston Latin.

Turkey Day Game To Be At NU Field

The annual Newton High vs. Brookline High football game scheduled for 10:30 a.m.

Thanksgiving Day, November 22, will be played on Northeastern University's Parson's Field.

Parson's Field which has recently undergone a complete refurbishing has a new astroturf surface on its football field which will provide better field conditions than those that usually prevail at that time of year on sod surfaced fields.

H. S. Football On Friday? Ronayne Doesn't Think So

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Recently, at the weekly college football luncheon, the Greater Boston college coaches broached the idea of asking the Massachusetts Principals Association about the feasibility of moving schoolboy football games to Fridays and thus avoiding head-on attendance conflicts.

At that meeting, Jim Ronayne, former Newton North football coach and present faculty manager, spoke against the idea.

Ronayne, who is not adamantly opposed to the concept, did not feel it was realistic for most schools because of neighborhood situations and the high cost of installing lighting.

Last week, Ronayne elaborated on his remarks.

"There are a lot of different viewpoints on this issue," Ronayne said. "The colleges want this because they're looking for more attendance, the college coaches have a selfish attitude and like to see their sons play, and the high schools have the custom of playing on Saturday afternoon. Of course, a lot of customs have changed."

Peabody High School plays most of its home games under the lights on Fridays now, but it cost the city $15,000 to install football say increased revenue will cover that cost in no time.

"There are a lot of problems facing Friday night football," said Ronayne. "A lot of fields are in residential areas, and let's face it, crowd control these days, from the Patriots down to Junior High is a problem. We have 16 policemen on duty at Dickinson Stadium on Saturday afternoon. I wouldn't guess how many we would need for Friday nights."

Proponents of the Friday system also argue that it keeps school activities within the school week, giving the kids two days off. Peabody claims it never practices on Saturday or Sunday.

Ronayne admits he never really considered that argument, but doesn't see why it wouldn't work as long as all teams were equal in practice time.

The Friday afternoon alternative seems equally as untenable.

"It just lets the parents out," said Ronayne. "I think maybe that's where Saturday afternoon football came from 25 years ago, when we were all working a five-and-a-half-day week."

Ronayne refused to speculate on whether Friday afternoon games right after the close of school would increase student attendance.

"Right now," he said, "student attendance is up in urban cities and low in suburban cities. Kids are doing their 'own thing' and that usually does not mean watching other people."

Ronayne's solution to make everybody happy is to shift games to Saturday mornings.

"I lean to that instead of Friday," he noted. "Since I've been in Newton we've played a dozen a.m. games besides Thanksgiving for different reasons. It gets away from lights and avoids competition with the colleges."

George Winkler, Newton South football coach for a decade and the school's Athletic Director, has mixed reactions about the question.

"I have no objections to playing Friday," he said, "but I want to emphasize that I'm perfectly happy with Saturday.

"Let me say this. If you're going to play Friday, you'll have to play at night and the cost of lights makes it almost unfeasible to do it. It would cost thousands of dollars, but it could open up a whole new area if they could be used for baseball games and other things. After all, there are lighted tennis courts."

Historically, Winkler pointed out, Friday night football was the thing. During his high school career there weren't any Saturday afternoon games. However, he said, about 20 years ago, the Newton School Committee ruled out night football, and though he is unsure if that decision still stands, he is sure there has been no night football involving a Newton high school team since then.

Winkler was uncertain whether attendance would benefit from night football or not, or even if the colleges would gain that much with the shift.

"I don't know if we played on Friday that we would draw more," he said. "We don't draw very well, anyway.

"The sporting dollar is stretched pretty far here like in any metropolitan area and there are so many colleges here with each drawing its own little group of fans none of it might matter.

"I want to do what's educationally sound for the kids," Winkler said. "Giving the kids the weekend off, especially in this day and age where they have more interests, might be a good idea."

Newton South Soccer

By RANDY GRODMAN

The Newton South Soccer team played their only game of the week on Saturday, October 13. Playing at home against Acton, a team which South had previously beaten, Newton South was edged by a score of 2-1.

Things looked good for South early in the game. Three minutes into the first period, senior Jeff Randall scored after controlling teammate Roger Gordon's perfect corner kick.

South controlled the game throughout the first half, and goalie John Bamel came up with some remarkable saves.

However, at 8:16 in the third period Acton tied the score at 1-1. The goal was scored directly after a corner kick, on a scramble in front of South's goal.

Neither team could break the tie during the remainder of the game, and two five minute overtime periods were inevitable.

Three minutes into the first overtime Acton was awarded a penalty kick, due to a hands ball in the penalty area. Acton's Jon Kapstad took advantage of the opportunity, and made the score 2-1. Although South fought desperately throughout the remainder of the overtime, they were unable to score.

Playing exceptionally for South in the contest were senior Paul Lynn, a forward and junior John Bamel, the goalie.

South's record now stands at a disappointing 2-5, and five games remain in the season.

Inspired by Coach Mark Young, the Newton South Junior Varsity has been improving rapidly, and now holds a 3-4-1 record.

On Thursday, October 11, South played Acton at home. Neither team was able to score, and the result was a 0-0 tie. Most of the game was played at midfield, and the defense of both teams proved to be effective. Fullback Jay Rubin played an outstanding game for Newton South.

On Saturday, October 13, South travelled to Acton, but the home team was unable to stop Newton South this time. As neither South nor Acton could net a score during the first four periods, the game went into double overtime.

Sophomore Danny Wisel scored for South, and the assist was awarded to junior Howie Appelstein.

Excelling for South in their 1-0 victory were fullback Jay Rubin, goalie Lenny Crieser, and the entire forward line.

Hopefully South will continue to outhustle their opponents, thereby achieving a winning season.

Tiger Soccermen Still Unbeaten

By BOB LOW

Thriving on strong defensive play, Newton High's Soccer Team gained two ties to run their unbeaten string to eleven games.

The Tigers started the week by playing to a 1-1 tie with Concord-Carlisle. Rudi Viscomi scored for Newton to come within two goals of Tim Tsochantaridis' record for goals in a season by a Newton player. The Tigers outshot Concord-Carlisle 24-7.

Brookline then came to Newton and managed to hold the Tigers to a scoreless tie. As they have in every game this season, the Tigers outshot the opposition, this time by 21-9.

The key to the Newton streak has been its defense. They have given up an average of less than one goal every three games, and goalies Mark Wasserman and Ricky Olin have recorded seven shutouts.

The players credit experience as a major factor in the performance of the defense. Goalie Mark Wasserman said, "Our experience is starting to show", while Fullback Frank Bodengraven called the defense "solid" and pointed out that four members of this year's defensive unit were varsity players last year.

Coach Mike Buzzi explained the great defensive play differently. He said, "We have spent a lot of time on individual defensive assignments; who marks who; how we mark on specific situations. For instance, one thing we do well this year is passing back to the goalie instead of turning and getting caught off balance or kicking the ball out of bounds. We've worked on an awful lot on heading. I think our fullbacks are some of the best headers in the Suburban League."

Buzzi added "A lot of guys have come through. Mark (Wasserman) has had a lot of good games. He has really come far. "Buzzi also named Steve Blauer, Steve Forte, and Bodengraven as the recent standouts on defense.

When asked whether he though experience was a major factor, he answered "Yes, but defense is easy to teach. We have worked really hard at it."

Buzzi feels that the other teams are not equal to Newton in defensive ability. He said that the reason for the Tigers' recent lack of scoring is that opponents are "playing more than three men back. Brookline had six men back at times."

Assistant Coach Bernie Flanigan agreed with Buzzi that the development of skills is the reason for the defensive display. "The players have come a long way since the beginning of the season", he stated. "They now know what it is to mark men, and head the ball forward. They have learned skills and have come a long way as far as confidence."

He added, "They know how to call, pass back, and move forward to put the other team off side; they have that down to a tee."

The Tigers by virtue of the long unbeaten streak have taken over first place in the Suburban League with four games to play. They have the same number of points as Cambridge (20), but Cambridge has played an extra game. Brockton also poses a serious threat with 19 points. The top two teams in the league will advance to the state tournament, which begins on November 5.

The Tigers have no more home games left, but feel that this won't be a big problem since two of their remaining games are against Waltham and Rindge, both shutout victims in their first meeting with Newton. The Rindge game is also the season's last, unless the Tigers make the playoffs, and will be played on November first.

So riding an eleven game unbeaten streak and playing great defense, the Booters hope to stay hot and enter the state tournament.

South Runners Lose Two Meets

By RANDY GRODMAN

Losing eight of their last nine meets, the Newton South Cross Country team has continued to run downhill.

Led by captain Bob Lein, South travelled to Wayland on Tuesday, October 16. Competing against two strong teams, South lost to Wayland 39-18, and to Weston by a score of 40-18.

Running under extremely difficult conditions, namely a strong wind and a treacherous 2.4 mile course, five runners placed for Newton South. They were Mike Shockett, who placed sixth all-round, Bob Lein, placing twelfth, Jeff Karol, Dennis Burke, and David Robinson. Senior Ara Shishmanian also participated in the meet.

The Junior Varsity entered five Newton South students in Gary Abramson, Arthur Brown, Russ Kintner, Stuart Rothman, and Joel Zecher.

Last Saturday, Newton South was one of 50 schools from Massachusetts participating in what is called the Catholic Memorial Invitational Meet.

The 2.8 mile course began at the Franklin Park Municipal Golf Course, and the finish line was at White Stadium.

There were 350 Varsity runners entered, and 250 boys ran in the Junior Varsity race. Newton South entered seven competent Varsity athletes: Jeff Karol, Russ Kinter, Bob Lein, David Robinson, Stuart Rothman, Ara Shishmanian, and Mike Shockett. Running for South's Junior Varsity were Dennis Bauke, Arthur Brown, and Joel Zecher.

Trophies were awarded to the first 15 runners who placed, and the next 25 boys received medals.

Newton South's first three finishers were Bob Lein, placing 99th, Mike Shockett, 104th, and Jeff Karol, who placed 114th. Dennis Bauke placed an amazing 38th in the Junior Varsity race.

Holding a current 3-9 record, the Newton South Harriers are preparing for the Class B Championship, which will be held this Saturday.

Following that, South will travel to Bedford to participate in the Dual County League Meet on Saturday, November 3.

The team's last league meet will be run against Concord-Carlisle and Maynard. Hopefully, South will end their season with a 5-9 record.

Big Play Eludes Lions, Lose 8-0

BY HOWARD APPELSTEIN

In a very sluggish football game, the Bedford Buccaneers upended the Newton South Lions by a score of 8-0 last week.

The Lions had their chances all afternoon but just couldn't make the big play. In the first half, the offense fumbled away the ball three times to Bedford. The Lions did engineer one drive in the first half that got them as far as the Bedford 4 yard line. From there the Lions blew a golden opportunity to score when quarterback Jeff Lawson overthrew Hal Bennett who was wide open in the end zone.

But the play that will stick out most in the Lions' minds occurred with only 40 seconds remaining in the first half. The Lions had the ball on the Bedford 25 yard line when quarterback Lawson went back to pass, fired for Kevin Hoban at the goal line but before Kevin could get to the ball he was knocked down from behind. The South bench went wild when pass interference was not called. If pass interference had been called it would have given the Lions a first down on the Bedford 1 yard line.

Taking advantage of a Walter Fatini fumble, the Buccaneers marched 37 yards to score the only touchdown of the game, early in the first period. The touchdown run of 1 yard by quarterback Bill Hendrikus was set up by the strong running of halfback Chuck Bruha and fullback Steve Emerson. The other two Bedford points came in the second period when Paul Tormey's snap from center eluded the grasp of punter Scott Groper and sailed out of the end zone.

The Lion offense after looking so good on the week before again had problems. The quarterback situation is the Lions' big problem. Tony Lombardo and Jeff Lawson split the duties at quarterback. Both quarterbacks' problem is passing.

Coach George Winkler said after the game, "We just had no passing attack. Hoban was open all day, but we just couldn't get him the ball. You can't win ball games without a passing attack."

It was a game that should have been won by the Lions. The Lion defense had no problem in stopping the pretty inept Bedford offense. Offensively the Lions were hurting in the line. Two of their starters Rich Taranto and Bob Taglienti were hampered with injuries and did not play. Haskell Kingston had a minor injury and he saw limited action. George Brockman and Scott Groper both played well filling in for the Lions.

Running backs Walter Fatini, Peter Nathanson and Kevin Hoban after looking great for two weeks slacked off and didn't play their usual steady game. Although Peter Nathanson made one outstanding play in the first half, the Lions had the ball on the Bedford 16 yard line and they had a fourth and ten situation facing them. Quarterback Lawson threw a pass that was low and in the dirt, but Peter scooped it up on the 6 yard line giving the Lions a first down. Unfortunately, the Lions could only get as far as the 4 yard line. The Lions last chance for a touchdown was killed when safety Mike Elias picked off a pass deep in the Buccaneer territory.

Next week the Lions are at home against a very powerful Stoughton team. Last time these two teams met Stoughton crushed the Lions by a score of 41-13. And that was last year at Stoughton. There's no doubt that Stoughton is the toughest team to face the Lions all season. If you go to the game, I can assure you that you'll see a lot of Scott Groper punting. By the way Scott had another great day punting against Bedford. My prediction is Stoughton by 24 points. It's not that the Lions are that bad, it's that Stoughton, who is undefeated, is that good!

Bedford — 6-2-0-0 — 8
Bedford — Bill Hendrikus 1 run (run failed)
Bedford — 2 point safety (ball hiked out of the end zone)

N.A.A. Lions Win 8th In Row

The Newton Athletic Association Lions won their 8th consecutive game this season by overwhelming the Concord Indians by a score of 22-6.

By virtue of the win, the Lions have reduced the number of games needed to win the league to 1. The Lions will be playing Arlington at home next week to clinch.

The boys from N.A.A. balanced out their attack which is somewhat different than just using their awesome ground attack. The Lions picked up 135 yards passing and 130 yards rushing.

The blue and gold opened their scoring on the second possession of the game. From their own 43, halfback Rich Proia pegged a 29 yard pass to end Shawn Daley who made a spectacular catch battling the defender. Proia on two successive carries bowled his way in for the score. Richy also rushed the conversion for an 8-0 lead.

On the ensuing series, the defense really stuffed the Indian offense and forced a punting situation. Proia fielded the punt at his own 35, received excellent blocks from Brian Kinsella and Mike Hernandez and went 65 yards for an apparant T.D. only to find out that a clip was detected.

On the first play from scrimmage, quarterback Brian Kinsella hit Proia with a pass good for 33 yards. On the second play, halfback Steve Felming went 9 yards for the score behind the blocks of tackle Joe Donoghue, halfback Rich Proia, end Jim Quinn, and fullback Rich Filler. QB Brian Kinsella threw to end Shawn Daley for the conversion and a 16-0 lead.

Down by two T.D.'s the Indians went to their passing game, and on a third down 15,

Paul Butters intercepted for N.A.A. at their own 43. On first down, Kinsella got nailed for a 12 yard loss attempting to pass. On second and 22, Fleming popped through the left side for a 20 yard gain. Fullback Filler blasted for 8 more, Concord fired offside for 5 more, Filler again for 6, Fleming for 23, and Proia 6 yards for the score. The attempted rush was no good.

Near the end of the half, a serious Concord threat was thwarted when linebacker Noel Foley intercepted a pass. The Lions took a 22-0 lead into intermission.

The third period saw Concord control and ball for most of the time. However, a disputed play took place when Concord attenpted to punt. The N.A.A.'s Doug Bullen broke through and blocked the punt. Another Lion came along and attempted to scoop the ball for advancement. He apparently fumbled the ball resulting in a Concord recovery. The officials ruled Concord a first down which the Lion staff protested. It was on the ensuing drive that set up Concord's score.

The Lions repelled the Concordians at their 14, but fumbled it back on the first play. Four plays later the Indians scored. Concord attempting to get back in the game tried an on-side kick which was recovered by Jim Schmidlein.

The second unit of the Lions appeared headed for a score when they became bogged down at the eight. An attempted pass was picked off and returned for what looked like a T.D. From this point on Concord ran out the clock against the second defensive unit of the Lions.

With eight seconds left in the game, the Lions were called for pass interference in the end zone giving Concord two cracks from the one. The second unit showed fortitude and pride in repelling the threat.

Defensively, newcomers Doug Bullen, Noel Foley, and brother Sean Foley were excellent in subing roles. End Jim Schuster and linebacker John Williams and middleguard David MacAvinn were also effective while in there.

Offensively the Lions displayed excellent balance in their ground attack. Fleming led all rushers with 52 yards followed by Paul Butters 28 yards, Rich Proia 18 yards, Rich Filler 17 yards, Jack Forti 11 yards, and quarterback Rick King 4 yards.

Notes of interest: Scott Seidman was used sparingly and felt O.K. Scotty will be used full time alternating with end Jim Quinn. This move will allow Dave Marcus to alternate the fullback duties with Rick Filler. Filler has been very impressive in two starts filling in for the injured Barry Gale.

The Lions will not have an easy time next week when it engages the tough and physical Arlington Spy Ponders (4-1-1).

Newton Girl Swimmers

By BOB LOW

Still looking for their first win in their inaugural season, the Newton High Girls Swimming Team fell to Medford 55-40 for their third loss.

The score however, was a considerable improvement from the 76-19 defeat that was handed to them by Lexington in the team's first meet and the 69-26 loss to Lynn.

Newton took four firsts out of eleven events; Mary Moulvaney with a time of 2:54.6 in the 200 yard individual medley; Beth Miller with a 1:34.5 in the 100 yard butterfly; Mary Moulvaney again, this time in the 100 yard backstroke; and the team of Joanie Rosenblatt, Betsy Howard, Lorie Green and Pat Higgins took the relay for Newton.

Other Tiger swimmers who placed were: Katie Blu in the 200 yard free medley; Judy Robertson in the 200 yard individual medley; Pat Higgins in the 50 yard freestyle; Marilyn Mannix in diving; Rene Bott in the butterfly; Pat Higgins and Lorie Green in the 100 yard freestyle; Debbie Greenside in the 400 yard freestyle; and Judy Robertson and Sue Fay in the breaststroke.

The swim team practices everyday, often swimming close to a mile. The work is beginning to pay dividends, however, as the team scores begin to improve.

The team and their coach, Ben Merritt, hope that win number one will come soon. They have three home meets this week; against Winchester tomorrow; next Tuesday against Belmont; and against Brookline next Thursday.

South Soccermen Lose One, Tie One

By RANDY GRODMAN

Currently possessing a 2-6-1 league record, the Newton South Varsity Soccer Team has been plagued by one-goal losses, but is slowly coming into its own.

On Tuesday, October 16, Concord-Carlisle came to Newton South and defeated the home team by a score of 1-0. Due to a violent wind, both teams played under demanding conditions, and therefore attempted to keep the ball on the ground.

It was an even contest until 6:25 in the second period, when Concord-Carlisle's left wing, Perry Mascola, scored on a shot from about 15 feet out on the left side.

Concentrating on containing South's forward line, Concord-Carlisle's defense withheld immense pressure from a determined, but unsuccessful Newton South team.

Although South lost the contest 1-0, two juniors, Ray McKinney and Jimmy Young, played exceptionally well for South.

Not to be left unmentioned is senior Amy Cooper, who's good nature prevailed when she accepted the position of running the lines.

Senior Ed Lafferty was unable to play in the game against Concord-Carlisle, as he was ejected from the previous game against Action due to his participation in a free-for-all.

Last Friday, a fired up Newton South team traveled to Lincoln-Sudbury with the hopes of defeating their most competitive rivals. It should be noted that Lincoln-Sudbury, the top team in the league, has not lost a home game in 17 years.

Finally, at 14:01 in the third quarter, one of Lincoln-Sudbury's fullbacks committed a personal foul in the penalty area. Senior Aris Bidianos took advantage of the penalty kick, and the score was Newton South 1, Lincoln-Sudbury 0.

During most of the fourth quarter, a spirited South team completely dominated. Coach Einhorn used four fullbacks for the remainder of the game, with the intention of stalemating the Lincoln-Sudbury offense.

However, the tremendous pressure of a determined Lincoln-Sudbury team proved to be decisive, and with only 1:40 left in the game Lincoln-Sudbury tied the score.

Throughout the overtime periods, Lincoln-Sudbury forwards constantly tested South's goalie, John Bamel, who played a remarkable game, making at least a dozen saves.

When time ran out the score was: Lincoln-Sudbury 1, Newton South 1.

Many of Newton South's players participated in what can be truly labeled a great team effort. So much did they play as a team that it is difficult to single out any one player as having performed outstandingly.

Plagued by an assortment of injuries all season, senior Paul "Barney" Lynn injured his left knee during the first quarter.

It should be pointed out that South's co-manager, Jon Sandman, twice reminded the timekeeper to start the clock.

At the conclusion of the game Coach Alan Einhorn proudly told the team: "This proves to me, and I think to all of you, that our team is as good as or better than the best team in the league."

The Newton South Junior Varsity Soccer Team holds a 3-4-2 record, and has hopes of winning its final three games.

On Tuesday, October 16, South travelled to Concord-Carlisle, and came back to tie the score at 1-1.

Concord-Carlisle scored first in the second period on a rebound. Goalie Lenny Crieser made the initial save, but was unable to recover in time.

Newton South's prayers were answered, and during the third period South was awarded a penalty kick. Sophomore Carson Milgroom tied the score at 1-1, and the game went into overtime.

During the overtime periods South dominated, but was unable to break the tie, even when they were awarded another penalty kick.

Excelling for South in the 1-1 contest were fullback Jay Reubens, who saved a goal, and goalie Lenny Crieser, who continues to perform exceptionally.

On Friday, October 19, South hosted a powerful Lincoln-Sudbury team. South lost by a score of 2-1.

Making the score 2-0, Lincoln-Sudbury scored again in the second period.

Early in the fourth period, South's Joey Less made the score 2-1 on a nice passing play.

Although most of the game was played at midfield, South had a few scoring opportunities; however, Lincoln-Sudbury is a larger and better-skilled ball club.

Both the Varsity and the Junior Varsity have two games remaining in the season. They are:

Friday, October 26, against Weston at home.

Tuesday, October 30, at Wayland.

Half Empty Freezer Wastes, Fuel, Space, Money

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW York (UPI) — A half-empty freezer wastes fuel, money and space.

This reminder comes from an appliance manufacturer at a time when home freezer sales are breaking records, fuel supplies are low and money is tight.

By midsummer, many appliance dealers said they were sold out of home freezers and had back orders to be filled well into fall.

The sales increase was touched off largely by consumers stocking up on beef before the end of Phase IV price controls, but some also appeared worried about possible meat shortages and long-term increases in food prices, says the General Electric Consumers Institute, Louisville, Ky.

The institute and other sources offer the following tips for operating your home freezer economically and efficiently:

Keep it as nearly full as possible. More fuel is needed to run a half-empty freezer than a full one. If your food supply is low, fill empty spaces with ice.

Locate your freezer in a cool, dry, well-ventilated area out of direct sunlight, and avoid placing it in a room that is hot in summer or heavily heated in winter.

Watch for special sales of freezable foods, but buy only those your family likes and will eat within a few months to a year. Shelf life varies, depending on the type of food and whether it's raw or cooked. Specific information can be found in good freezer cookbooks or obtained from your county extension agent.

You can save both time and money if you chop, package and freeze in measured amounts leftover raw green pepper, onion, celery and parsley until needed for a recipe.

Freeze Bread

Day-old baked goods taste oven-fresh if you freeze them before reheating. Frozen white bread cuts easily with a sharp serrated or scallop-edged knife, but dark breads with chewy crusts and dense crumb—pumpernickel, for instance—are easier to slice before freezing.

A few frozen loaves of bread are good to have on hand, but it's a waste of freezer space to store a lot of bulky, low-cost items.

Stews, soup, sauces and gravies hold up especially well in a freezer. Leftovers with or without sauce or gravy can be packaged as homemade frozen dinners on trays from the commercial variety.

Whatever you freeze at home should be packed and sealed airtightly in vapor-proof materials in meal-size or serving size batches, so you won't be faced with leftover leftovers.

Samll quantities freeze faster than large ones, and shallow layers faster than deep. To save both money and quality, cool food quickly to room temperature before placing it in the freezer. You can cool a large amount of food rapidly if you divide it among several containers and place them in a sink of cold water. Stir the contents often to speed up cooling and keep it uniform, and change water in the sink as it warms up.

Fast freezing retains higher quality and requires less energy output. Follow your freezer manufacturer's directions for the amount to be frozen at one time—usually no more than one-tenth of freezer capacity.

Margaret Murphy's midwest chili with beans saves freezer space because one bulky ingredient—tomatoes—is added just before serving time. This recipe is from Mrs. Murphy's "The Cook It and Freeze It Book" (Hawthorn).

Soak 2 ½ cups of dried red beans overnight in water to cover and cook until tender. Drain. In a skillet, saute until tender 2 cups of coarsely diced onion and 2 green peppers, chopped. Add 2 pounds of ground beef chuck and cook until lightly browned. Add 3 teaspoons of salt and the cooked beans. Cool, spoon into 2 freezer containers of about 1 quart capacity, label, date and freeze. Note on labels that 2 ½ cupts of canned tomatoes, ⅛ teaspoon of cayenne pepper and 2 tablespoons of chili power should be added to each container when heating it in a covered saucepan. Can be stored up to 4 months. Makes 4-6 servings per batch.

Soccer Talk

By PAUL ELDRIDGE

Wednesday, October 17, will go down as a black day for English sports fans. For on that day England tied Poland, 1-1. England needed a win in order to make the 1974 World Cup Finals in Munich, Germany.

If Wales had beaten or tied Poland, then England would have been in the final sixteen teams, without having to play Poland. But the amateurs of Poland, yes amateurs for Poland, who do not have professionals, per se, split their two games with Wales.

This set up the showdown between the two countries. Because of the tie with England, the Polish team now has a chance to win their second championship in two years. For this is the same team that won the Olympic Championship in 1972. This game may also have brought an end to the managerial career of Sir Alf Ramsey. Sir Alf added another controversial move to his list, when he benched West Ham United's Bobby Moore the day before the game.

Moore was always one of England's most consistent strikers.

So don't be surprised if Sir Alf is fired. One possible replacement for him would be Darby's manager, Brian Clough.

The end result of the game is that England, Wales and Northern Ireland are out and Scotland is in. Yes, Scotland won their group and made the final sixteen teams. All of Great Britain will be rooting for Willie Ormond and the Scottish team to bring home the World Cup.

Boston Inter is off to a rough start in the Mass. Soccer Division I. They will have to tighten up their defense if they hope to repeat as M.S.A. Champions. All-Star Tom Damigella is still in goal for Inter, but they have some new fullbacks this season and they have yet to get their moves down pat.

Inter has another All-Star on their roster. He is forward Lucien Pierre. Pierre is captain of the team this season, last year he was player coach. He played many years with a first division club in Haiti called Victory, and played with the Norwood Kickers before coming to Inter two years ago.

Another player coming over from the Kickers this year is Emmanuel Ekana of Cambridge. Ekana, a midfielder, played his college soccer with Harvard and now coaches the Roxbury Latin J.V. team.

John Bertos of the Boston Astros is sponsoring live TV games from Europe on Sunday mornings. The closed circuit showings will be at the Savoy Theatre in East Boston. Check the papers for time and dates.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lenkaitis on the birth of their daughter, Kristen. Bill, the Patriots center, tells me that the strongest pair of legs in this year's training camp belonged to the Colonials placekicker, John Smith. Smith was all set to play for Queen's Park Rangers in England this year but passed it up to try American Football.

Lenkaitis also told me that moral is high on the Pats team despite all their troubles. He also says that he is happy to be back, but he hated to be called up because of an injury to his good friend, Jon Morris.

Hancock Bank Reports Increase In Earnings

Hancock Bank reports net earnings for the first nine months of $738,493 or $2.64 a share, up 13.1 percent over comparable 1972 results of $653,003.

President William E. Kelley said total deposits increased 10.1 percent, equal to $6,529,220 over a nine month total $64,600,101 attained last year.

Loans increased from 45,764,848 for three quarters of 1972 to 54,480,462 for the same period in 1973, an increase of 19 percent.

The directors of Hancock Bank voted payment of a higher regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents, an increase of 5 cents per share, according to Kelley.

Hancock Bank, headquartered in Quincy, maintains 15 banking offices throughout Norfolk County.

Michael Bielski of Newton . . .

New Manager, New Dance Company

By FRANCES SHUPING

Michael Bielski, new general manager of the New England Dance Theatre, at 26, has recorded a professional background to rival someone twice his age.

Mr. Bielski came to his post at the new dance theatre after a season in Washington, D.C. as production administrator for the Opera Society at the Kennedy Center. He also took time to serve as stage manager for the opera, "Mahagonny" at the Milwaukee Performing Arts Center.

Born in Philadelphia, Pa., Mr. Bielski moved to Newton with his family in 1955. He still calls Newton home, although he has rented an apartment in Brighton, closer to his new job.

He began composing while a student at Newton North High School. Henry Lasker, Instructor in Music Education describes Michael as a "...capable young man who did a marvelous job here in all music areas. He excelled in music appreciation, had a good flair for prose, played a very fine clarinet under the instruction of Artillio Poto, and was adept at the piano."

During his sophomore year, Michael wrote a complete symphony for the annual composition contest at Newton North. This, his first composition, not only won the school contest, but was performed by Harry Ellis Dixon at the Youth Concert Series, and by Arthur Fiedler during Newton Night at the Pops. Two other compositions won awards in the school's Creative Arts Festival, one of which, a piece for a symphony, was performed by Aaron Copen.

Michael Bielski has performed in orchestras, chamber groups, private ensembles and bands. He published a work for woodwinds and strings with Henri Elkan publishers in 1968. He composed the music for a one-act comic opera, "Death Knocks," with a libretto by Woody Allen.

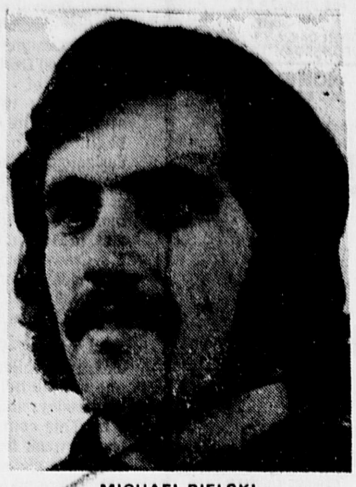
Bielski received bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Illinois. In graduate school he held an assistantship as resident composer for the cinematography department. Also, he served two years as stage manager for the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts at the University.

After college, Bielski became manager of the Music Theatre project at Tanglewood where he worked with chamber opera and performed administrative duties.

One of his hobbies is tennis, a sport he enjoys as much as possible during free time. He spent a year as tennis instructor at Stockbridge Country Club, giving lessons during the morning while working at Tanglewood evenings.

Michael's mother, Louise Bielski, is a teacher at the Lincoln School. His sister, Nancy, teaches dancing in Boston and surrounding communities. His father, the late Noah Bielski was a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The New England Dance Theatre is a non-profit organization with residence in the newly remodeled theatre of the New England Mutual Life Hall, Boston. Its artistic directors, David Shields and Goel Weirs have planned a combination of classical ballet and modern dance, two forms usually developed separately in dance companies. The repertoire will include classical and modern music.



MICHAEL BIELSKI

"My main duty," Bielski describes, "is to see that we function as a dance company." With a background in the arts and experience in business management, he will serve as a liaison between staff members and business production. He will function similar to the president of a corporation, responsible to the board of directors.

"We have a rigorous schedule, opening in January at the Life Hall," Bielski explained. "We hope to perform for six months around eight times a month. We hope to take the dance company on tour across the state during the summer. Our prime function will be to perform and we will do so year round if we can find places for our dancers' performances."

The company plans to offer performances, workshops and lecture demonstrations throughout New England to stimulate more knowledgeable interest in the dance.

The company's offices are located in the Dancer's Studio, 367 Boylston Street, Boston.

Although NEDT hopes to be self-sustaining through its subscribers, it will require support through grants and private contributions to raise $60,000 before January, 1974. (Michael Phillips photos)

Teachers First To Spot Child Trouble

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the first "child specialists" to spot "the troubled and troublesome child" is the classroom teacher, says Dr. Sam D. Clments, a clinical psychologist. He is a professor, department of psychiatry, University of Arkansas Medical Center.

Addressing a postgraduate course for physicians on management of the child with MBD —"minimal brain dysfunction," Dr. Clements said that least five to 10 per cent of American schoolchildren are likely to have a specific learning disability and-or hyperactivity and other neuro-developmental irregularities of sufficient severity as to require special help.

These are children of normal intelligence, he said, and yet, their parents often fear they are retarded because they do not develop reading, writing, spelling, and language skills at the same rate as others.

These children must be recognized and treated at an early age or they are likely to develop some form of maladjustment in later life, the doctors were told.

The two days of seminars on MBD were sponsored by the Child Guidance Clinic in Jacksonville, Fla.; the Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, University of Arkansas School of Medicine; and CIBA Pharmaceutical Company, Summit, N.J., as part of its Medical Horizons Postgraduate Medical Education Series.

The course was designed to give practical guidelines to the physician in private practice who is most likely to be consulted about the child with MBD symptoms.

MBD Usually Salvageable

Dr. John E. Peters, course director, and director of the Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry at the Arkansas school, said that less than one per cent of those afflicated are diagnosed and treated. "This is particularly discouraging," he said, "because the MBD is nearly always salvageable."

The child psychiatrist said that a child who is not helped early in his elementary school years may fall years behind in reading and writing and never catch up.

Discouraged, he may become a dropout, a juvenile delinquent, or even a drug abuser—an individual who doesn't fit in with others.

Dr. Peters said medication, used under supervision, helps MBD children to concentrate for longer periods of time and to focus their attention on completing specific tasks without being easily distracted by outside stimuli. It is discontinued when it is no longer needed.

Also helpful for the MBD child are a favorable home and school environent. When there is a disturbed situation, the chances of the child developing life-long problems are more likely.

Dr. Peters gave these tips for parents to follow at home:

Do not pressure a child for higher grades. Accept him for what he is and what he does. The emphasis should be on enjoying the learning experience.

Do not ask the child to do more than two tasks at a time. He will usually forget to do an assigned chore. Remind him. However, nagging will not help. The worst thing a parent can do is to do the chore himself. "Children have to be taught the responsibilities of life, and there is no better way to begin than with assigned chores."

Set aside a time and a quiet place away from the television set for homework. Parents should not sit with the child, but should be close by, ready to help.

An older sister or brother can read to the young child. When he gets older, perhaps at about eight years of age, he can use a tape recorder, which most children enjoy anyway.

"These children definitely do mature," Dr. Peters said, "but it takes them much longer to show it. There is a maturational lag, but they catch up in the teen years if they have sufficient support at home and in school, during their elementary school years."

New Charles River Sports Shop Has Grand Opening

Just over a year ago the Charles River Sport Shop, 312 Spring street, West Roxbury, near the Charles River MBTA Station, first opened with the idea of sharpening ice skates.

Soon there were requests for many sports items which were quickly served by the Lillis family, consisting of Joe, Bob, Dick and Marty, owners of the shop.

The original store floor space was 400 square feet. Today the new shop, which covers over 4,000 square feet for the sales and service of sports items and equipment, is now observing its grand opening.

When Marty Lillis was asked what contributed to the rapid growth of the business he replied, "personal service and if we didn't have the particular sports item on hand we obtained it quickly and of course at the best possible price."

The new Charles River Sports Shop stocks sports items and equipment for about every sports enthusiast, including hockey, tennis, football, basketball and golf.

The Lillis family invites everyone to come in and register for the many prizes to be drawn during the grand opening of the new shop. No purchase is necessary.

NRA Decision-

(Cont. from page 1)

Both organizations had advised the authority that the community desired the selection of the firm of Spaulding and Slye, the only bid to come forward with a multi-building concept.

According to Mangini, the next move in the long standing controversy is up to the rejected developer, Woodland, a subsidiary of the J. F. White Construction Company of Newton.

"I presume if there is no law suit, there will be no questions raised," Mangini stated this week.

"The authority can then proceed to make another choice and continue the project," he added.

A representative of Woodland, present for the rescission vote, remained noncommittal after his firm lost out on what looked like a sure thing several weeks ago, and this week, Ralph Ellis, president of the firm, indicated a decision on whether or not to sue would be made on or about Nov. 1.

There was speculation in some quarters that Woodland would not contest the rescission in order to protect any future interests it may have with city contracts.

"Maybe White won't sue after all especially if he wants to continue doing business in Newton," explained Ward 4 Alderman-at-Large Louis I. Egelson to the authority and members of LOPAC and NLFIA at last week's meeting.

Mangini also attempted this week to allay any feat within the Lower Falls community that the deadline for funding by the state may pass before a final solution to the developer problem is found.

"The state can make allowances for situations such as that now confronting the Newton Redevelopment Authority," Mangini said.

While the authority placed the problem on its agenda for Thursday, Nov. 8, LOPAC moved on Monday evening to increase its participation in redevelopment affairs.

LOPAC voted to endorse Otis Robinson after interviewing him on Monday, and the mayor made the appointment official the next evening by submitting the Waban man's name to the Board of Aldermen for confirmation.

During the interview, Robinson, an architect, told LOPAC members he felt "very keenly about planning, the effects of plans on people, and aesthetic values."

"Being on the Redevelopment Authority would give me a mandate," Robinson said, "to carefully consider and judge the impact of redevelopment on the community."

"I'll dedicate myself to being very careful and conscientious to see that things are done properly," he continued.

In answer to specific questions, Robinson replied that he favors open space versus "obtaining every possible dollar of tax revenue."

He also said he would have voted to rescind the vote of the authority as was done on Oct. 16, and would have originally chosen the Spaulding and Slye proposal.

Robinson expressed a commitment to housing on the redevelopment site.

"There has to be housing — some along Washington street, some low income," he said.

Robinson assured LOPAC members he would have the time to devote to redevelopment affairs even though he has never been on a municipal board.

His appointment will go into effect after 60 days unless the nomination is rejected by the Board of Aldermen.

ASTROLOGY

By Oscar Weber

DIFFERENT CAPRICORNS

Q. Everything I have read about Capricorns differ from the one before. I am getting very confused and don't know what to believe anymore.

Could you set me in the right track of what a Capricorn is? I was born on January 8, 1956 on a Sunday at 6:13 p.m. in Boston. I would appreciate anything you could tell me about myself. H.L.G

A. As explained many times in this column the Sign of the Zodiac occupied by the Sun at the moment of birth is not a horoscope. These are "Sun Signs" and each Sun Sign varies considerably in characteristics depending upon the positions of and the "aspects" to the Moon and all eight planets at the time of birth.

You are as different as it is possible from what a Capricorn Sun Sign is supposed to be according to popular conception. You are far more emotional, sensitive, passionate and outgoing than most "Capricorns."

You have a magnetic personality, strong will power and much inner drive. You do not concentrate as well as you should and your mind is inclined towards daydreaming.

You like beautiful things and music and if you keep your mind on such may do well by studying the method of procedure.

You have a fine intellect, quick and independent. You are not likely to let others influence your thoughts. In fact, you frequently differ with others and you do not hesitate to do so in no uncertain terms.

Very Average Taking A Beating

Virginia Payette says:

Every time Washington fools around with another economic phase it brings the middle-income folks closer to a sinking suspicion that what's really being phased out is middle-income folks.

Somehow, the skyrocketing cost of everything seems to hit hardest in that great majority of just plain people so dear (they say) to every politician's heart. Except when it come to looking out for them.

Then the gnetlemen in charge of these things reserve their bleeding-heart votes for the very rich and the very poor. The very average get very neglected.

Not that there's anything historically new about this. Although for awhile there it looked as if maybe we had realized the Founding Father's dream of a powerful middle class. What sociologists like to call lower-upper, upper-middle, middle-middle, etc.

But for what's happening now, let's begin with taxes. Last time anybody figured it out, they came up with the big news that, from January through most of May, every cent we earn goes either to federal, state, county or city government.

For "we" read everybody in the middle-income brackets. Many of those on the upper-upper levels, the big-time multimillionaires with savvy tax lawyers, wind up paying nothing at all. Loopholes, beloved of Congressmen (no matter what they say in their speeches on tax reform) make it all most legal.

The very poor at the other end of the scale pay nothing. So guess who that leaves to foot the bill?

Food prices are up 40 per cent, and while wealthy shoppers may not like it, they can still afford filet mignon and lobster. Poor families may not dine on steak, but food stamps cut their grocery bills considerably.

It's the man in the $15,000-$35,000 bracket who's eating macaroni these days — and sitting up nights juggling the budget to pay for it. Plus trying to squeeze out enough to keep even with the telephone, gas and electric companies which seem to wangle another rate increase every time he turns around.

He may complain that the cost of living is going through the roof, but he's lucky to have a roof. Because getting a new one is all but impossible now with mortgage rates around 10 per cent. Only those with six-figure incomes can afford it. And the very poor don't have to; welfare provides their housing.

But the middle-middles who've been saving for a new house are eyeball-to-eyeball with some very sticky statistics: in the last five years, costs of an average home climbed 37 per cent . . . down payments went up 24 per cent . . . and monthly expenses (mortgage, taxes, etc.) shot up 47 per cent.

This worries even the President and Congress. But they don't have the foggiest idea of what to do about it — except draw up a billion-dollar housing program for needy families. Which will probably include a lot of us by the time they get around to doing anything.

Ditto for the high cost of getting sick. Millionaires can suffer in private rooms; low-income patients have Medicaid. Those in between fend for themselves. (Though the Senate is talking about helping us out with our own money after the bills hit $6,000.)

But no working man with colllege-age kids can afford to be sick, anyway. Tuition is already at the hock-your-grandmother level, and a blue-ribbon panel has just urged universities to double it. Plus suggesting that federal aid be focused on the student who needs it most.

That means a bright poor kid may be able to get in. And a bright rich kid can still afford Ivy League prices. But a middle-income kid doesn't even have to be bright to figure out he's up the creek.

He can't count on a student loan, either. Those go for seven per cent, and bankers aren't about to waste their money on a college kid at that rate when they can get 10 per cent from a businessman.

But you don't need a college degree to figure out that, if the trend keeps up, we'll be down to two income groups: upper-upper and lower-lower. And when you've wiped out the middle class, who's going to pay the taxes?

Calorie-Conscious Cooking

By BARBARA GIBBONS

The "Rational Diet" — as opposed to irration fads and gimmicks — is the topic of a current report JAMA, the Journal of the American Medic Association. The AMA is a frequent critic of u balanced pop diets, most recently the best-selli Atkins "Diet Revolution."

JAMA's diet prescription was put together by Frank Tullis, M.D., of the University of Tennessee College of Medicine. It's intended for healthy adul with no special nutritional requirements.

Dr. Tullis points out that in the long run the preci form a diet takes is less important in curing ove weight than "successful behavior modification" — permanent change in eating habits.

He adds, however, that "for any diet plan to l rational, it must also be nutritionally adequate. must offer enough calories to permit physical vigor, least 1,200 a day and no less than 300 calories at ar meal. Three or four meals daily without snacking ar reasonable-size servings without second helpings a his recommendations.

He also believes in variety: "Encouraging th individual to continue the program is more importa than greater caloric restriction." Keeping up e thusiasm is also a necessary ingredient.

FIVE-POINT PLAN

Dr. Tullis sums up "the nutritionally adequa diet" in these five points:

(1) Lean meat, fish or poultry twice a day, plu three or four eggs a week.

(2) Cereal foods or bread three times a day.

(3) Green or yellow vegetables twice a day.

(4) Fruit or fruit juice twice a day (one should b citrus).

(5) Milk or cheese twice daily.

He also adds the following calorie-wise tips f staying within the calorie goal:

Remove visible fat from meat. Broil, bake roast it. Use natural juice instead of thickened gravie

Cook vegetables without fat; flavor cooki water with herbs or bouillon. A small amount margarine (corn-oil type) may be used as seasoning only if the milk used during the day is fat-free.

Green, yellow or red vegetables are preferr over starchy vegetables.

Use low-calorie salad dressings, or plain lem or vinegar.

Fruit desserts instead of pastry.

To avoid "empty calories," sweeten with sug substitutes and use only sugar-free soft drinks.

Eat meals at the same hour each day; allow consistent interval between meals.

Little or no alcholic beverages.

Those suffering from "grand obesity" (two three times their proper weight) should be provid with no less than 1,600 calories a day for women, 2,0 for men. Overweight to that degree is the result prolonged high-calorie intake — often 3,000 to 4,5 daily. "The very finding of this degree of obesi should serve immediate warning that the pers requires far more therapeutic measures."

Could Have Told You So . . .

NEW YORK — I have a friend who lives in a Westchester suburb, and boy is he mad at his fire department.

My friend, lets call him Stanley, is sort of a chronic collector. He can't resist buying secondhand stuff and storing — wheelbarrows, old clocks, desks, chairs, ironing boards, wastebaskets, magazines, newspapers, cardboard cartons and I don't know what else. Most of the stuff is busted, but he thinks that one day he'll repair it all.

Anyhow, one day a fire inspection team visited his house and the lieutenant was appalled at how much junk had been stored in the cellar and in the attached garage.

"Clean it our," said the lieutenant. "It's a fire hazard. Someday somebody will drop a lighted match or flip a cigarette into all that gook, and your house will go up in flames. Clean it out! And right away!"

Well, Stanley was very irked. He'd become attached to all his junk. And he decided to hire a lawyer and fight the fire department. But his wife objected. She sided with the fire inspectors, and so he finally gave in.

One Saturday he tore into the mess and piled just about everything on the curb in front of his house, assured that the sanitation department truck would come on Monday and take it all to the dump. When he finished at dark, he had a mountain on the lawn and sidewalk in front of the house.

He went to bed dog tired, but more or less pleased that he'd complied with the fire department order and had placated his wife. At 3 a.m., however, he was awakened by the smell of smoke and the crackling of flames.

The mountain of junk was on fire! Somebody probably had tossed a cigarette into it! And a shower of sparks was falling on the wooden roof of the house!

Before the fire department could arrive and get the flames under control, the flames had burned off most of the roof and had eaten into two of the second-floor bedrooms!

"Never would have happened," cried Stanley, "if I'd left all the stuff in the cellar and garage. I'll never listen to the fire department again!"

Every day for months while en route to his Radio City office, James O'Donnell, president of the Stutz Motor Car Co., has passed a young man and a girl who play classical violin selections on the street. There's a tin cup and a sign at their feet:

"To pay our way through music school."

Jim's dropped in many a coin to help the kids with their musical education. So, he was surprised the other day to see a girl in place of the boy.

"What happened to the young man?" Jim asked the regular violinist.

"Oh," said the girl, "he picked up a gig today and sent over a substitute."

Speaking of performers, Carol Channing, starring in the musical, "Lorelei," was accidentally knocked down in Chicago by actor Peter Palmer and she wound up with her arm in a cast.

"Peter's a magnificent performer," Carol told me. "We've been playing together for five months — and he can still fracture me!"

Who Heads This House?

by Amy Vanderbilt

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: My husband and I both work in professional careers that bring us virtually equal income. I recently received a form to fill out which was directed to 'head of the household.' I suppose they meant my husband, but his is a sticky business. Couldn't some other term have been used in case that form went to households like ours? It's a whole new world, you know. — Mrs. J. A., Boston, Mass."

I agree. I saw such a form recently that went out from a major news weekly. Although they also direct it to the head of the household, they added an asterisk with a note on the bottom of the page which read: "If yours is a dual-career household, would you please indicate both professional areas — and mark Male (M) or Female (F) beside relevant boxes." This was a tactful way of handling what must be a very common matter.

OFFICE MANNERS

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: What is a good way to introduce visitors to your employer? I worked at a reception desk for awhile and had to introduce salesmen, professors and so on and often they would look at me after the introduction as if expecting me to say something else. Is there more I should have added?

"Also, I am now a secretary and usually make coffee for my employer. When is a good time for me to ask him if he wants coffee? We have a coffeepot upstairs and I usually leave him a clean cup at his desk and he always seems to wander off and get it himself. Should I ask him if he would like some? When he has visitors, should I ask them if they would like coffee? — Mrs. L. R., Scranton, PA."

Perhaps, in some cases, you could have added a few words indicating the visitor's purpose in coming or where he is from.

Ask your employer if he wants coffee just as soon as it is ready. Sometimes the middle of the afternoon also provides a suitable coffee break. If he is drinking coffee at his desk and a visitor arrives, it would be up to him to ask the visitor if he would like coffee. This is a matter sometimes of delicate protocol and he may not wish to encourage the visitor to stay. If he has an appointment with someone at a normal coffee-break time, you can say beforehand, "Would you like me to serve coffee when Mr. Brown arrives?"

HELP!

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Each year at the office Christmas party, my husband (along with other employees) is given a cash bonus in a sealed envelope. What is the proper way to accept and thank the boss? Should the envelope be opened there? — Mrs. A. B., Fairborn, Ohio."

Tell your husband not the bonus at the Ch party but to put it safel inside pocket. If it is ha him by the boss, he shou "Thank you very muc should remember th earned the bonus and t gratitude is on both side

On Broadway

NEW YORK (UPI) — Watching Otto Preminger direct a play rehearsal is to see two performances—the one by the actors and the one by the director.

And why not? Preminger was an actor before he became a noted director-producer of the stage and screen.

In this particular case, Preminger was coaching the actors in "Full Circle," the play by the late Erich Maria Remarque, the novelist's only play, that Preminger and Roger Stevens have produced.

Preminger wasn't concentrating too closely at first. He kept asking if anyone had seen his wife. Finally Hope Bryce Preminger, costume designer, appeared, they chatted amiably for a few minutes and then to work.

"How can you be so stupid?" was the opening thrust at an actor. "You have 15 lines in the play. Think. You have to think. Don't be so mechanical."

Bibi Andersson, Swedish star of stage and movies, finally arrived. Her hairdresser made her late, and she missed lunch.

"We ordered a sandwich for you," said Preminger, who knew she had been held up. "Eat."

She made the tuna sandwich disappear, and work resumed.

The director was now polishing a small bit of business, lighting a cigarette. Leonard Nimoy, the co-star, suggested that he light Bibi's cigarette. He did so with a match, but before he could light his own, Miss Andersson, as a natural reflex, blew out the match. This happened five times.

"Bibi," Preminger finally interrupted, "why do you do zat? You must remember."

Smiling Chiding

This was chiding with a smile and soft tone. The actors went back into their dialogue in this play about the fall of Berlin.

"The ahdds are the same for everybody," said Miss Andresson, referring to bombs falling.

"Someone tell her how to say it," Preminger said. "She's saaying it with too much of an 'ah' sound."

Nimoy explained the pronunciation to her because Preminger's own English still reflects his Austrian origin. She succeeded with 'odds.'

She then had a scene with actor Josef Sommer.

"Hold her tighter," Preminger shouted from a seat out in the auditorium. "You're an attractive man."

Correct and flatter in one breath.

There were a few people in the theater's seats, including actress Paulette Goddard, Remarque's widow, and playwright Peter Stone, who adapted the German-language play. Preminger kept a close eye on all, lest they talk or otherwise disturb the actors.

But Stone couldn't resist making a suggestion for a script change, and he moved to Preminger while the players were doing an intense scene. Stone suddenly rushed back to his seat, muttering "I'm sorry" several times. He had chosen the wrong time.

When Preminger directs, he reserves the right to interrupt for himself.

Detente Is Target

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON — One fateful consequence of the war in the Middle East is the way the Nixon-Kissinger initiative with the Soviet Union has become a target. This centerpiece of the Administration's foreign policy is being shot at from every side.

The intense feeling of the Israelis and their partisans in this country is understandable. They feel the Soviet supply of advanced weapons gave Egypt and Syria an initial break and they believe, probably mistakenly, that Moscow encouraged the attack. The issue of free emigration for Jews from the Soviet Union is another reason for deep emotion.

In another class are the cold war warriors who are happy to say they never believed in the Nixon-Brezhnev detente anyway, and now you can see what these bloody Russians are up to in the Middle East. They are also the big weaponeers who want no truck with arms limitation. Anyone who believes in competitive coexistence, the essence of the Nixon detente, is a naive idealist or just a plain fool.

Jackson Jumps In

In a third category are the politicians eager to exploit the present turmoil, foremost among them Sen. Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson. Attacking Secretary of State Henry Kissinger for failing, in the Jackson view, to move swiftly enough to resupply Israel with war materiel, he is being hailed by his admirers as the likely choice for the Democratic nomination for President in 1976. Conveniently, Jackson wraps up big weapons with Israel and such domestic issues as pollution for an across-the-board sweep.

Coming at the start of taking over his new office and stepping into full public view, the Middle East war has been for Kissinger a severe blow. He is doing his very best to hold the line against a breakdown of the developing relationship with the Soviet Union. In this he has had the skilled support of Robert J. McCloskey as spokesman, one of the ablest public servants drafted temporarily for the assignment from his post as Ambassador to Cyprus.

At his briefings McCloskey has had to stand off the persistent questions zeroing in on the question of American forces joining the battle on Israel's side. This fearsome prospect serves only the sensationalists. The President was certainly of no help the other day when he talked about American intervention in Lebanon in 1958 and the threat of intervention in Jordan in 1970. Today's war offers no parallel with those other incidents which stopped short of American bloodshed.

Standoff Seen

It is a disservice to Israel to suggest that American troops must come to the rescue or to say that another Vietnam is in the making. As a dedicated fighting force the Israelis have seldom in history been equalled. They embody the heroism, the sacrifice, of centuries of Jewish history.

Talk about another Vietnam is a deep disservice here at home, too. It implies a divisiveness compounded by religion and race that would make the national split over the Vietnamese war look like an exchange among village debaters.

The heavy losses both sides are taking — the Israeli drain out of proportion, given a population of three million — as the war continues leaves the looming question of the ultimate outcome. On a broadcast here Sen. Jacob Javits, who cannot be faulted as a partisan of Israel, stated that neither side in the war expect a military vict cease-fire must come wh sides have realized that fighting is of no avail.

Temple Beth Avodah Sets Class Schedule

Continuing education is a most important part of the activities at Temple Beth Avodah and each year classes are made available at convenient times for the adults to participate.

Last year, Rabbi Robert Miller initiated a Torah class, meeting each Sunday morning. An informal cluster, led by the Rabbi, the class discussed selected portions of the Torah.

It was open to all congregants, no particular preparation necessary, and consecutive attendance was not required. This was such a standout, and so well attended, that the class will be continued this year.

There will be an intermediate Hebrew class, conducted by the Rabbi, which will meet one morning a week, commencing on Oct. 23. It will be open to anyone with a reading knowledge of Hebrew, as well as anyone who attended last year's beginning Hebrew course.

New this season will be a Sunday evening course, meeting once a month.

Chairperson Mrs. Lewis Millender, and her Co-Chairperson, Mrs. Allan Springer, have announed that the seminar will revolve around the text "Basic Judiasm" by Milton Steinberg, and will be conducted by Rabbi Miller.

The theme for this year's Friday evening lecture series is "Reform Judaism — Past, Present, Future." These programs will take place on the second Friday evening of each month following the Worship service.

Interesting and stimulating speakers are projected to make this a worthwhile, informative, and provocative series. This program is open to anyone who wishes to attend, and for information as to dates and the guest speaker, please call the Temple, 527-0045.

Newton Meets Hollywood For Arthritis Foundation

James H. Fairclough, Jr., 77 Wyman St., Waban, chairman of the Massachusetts Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation, recently welcomed Academy Award winning acress Jane Wyman to Massachusetts as National Campaign Chairman of The Arthritis Foundation.

The occasion was the 25th anniversary meeting of the Massachusets Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation, held at the Copley Plaza Hotel in Boston, attended by leaders of The Arthritis Foundation from throughout the state.

In her remarks Miss Wyman commended Fairclough for his leadership in the battle to control the state's largest crippler, with over 520,000 afflicted and 32,000 totally disabled persons in the Commonwealth.

"The pain of arthritis is anything but the minor annoyance T.V. commercials would have us understand," she stated.

"Arthritis pain and disability causes 12 million working days lost each year, and thus is second only to respiratory ailments as a cause of industrial absenteeism. However, with all of this suffering there is the hope generated by arthritics themselves with their indomitable will to conquer their illness.

The Massachusetts Chapter has awarded 83 research grants since 1961, 69 clinical fellowships, and 40 hospitals and outpatient centers have been awarded grants since the inception of the Chapter in an effort to prove to these arthritis sufferers that their hope is not in vain. In addition, thousands have benefited through referral and educational programs of the Chapter," she said.

Fairclough expressed pleasure about the volunteer recruitment campaign now being conducted in many areas of the state, for a Jan. 6 fund drive. "I'm postivie that Miss Wyman's words of encouragement to our workers and the public will spur the Massachusetts Chapter in its fight to the ultimate victory over arthritis," he concluded.

Newton Clergy Elect Officers

The clergy of Newton have discovered that each servant of a congregation has more in common with his or her counterpart — be he of another faith or traidition — than he has at odds with him or her. The Newton Clergy Association (NCA) was the logical culmination of this phenomenon and it has offered a distinct voice and a peculiar presence since its inception.

Last spring, the NCA elected Rabbi Terry R. Bard of Temple Shalom, West Newton, as president, Pastor Harold Pulley of Myrtle Baptist, West Newton, as vice-president, Rector Robert Connors of Mary Immaculate of Lourdes, Newton Upper Falls, as treasurer and Pastor Polly Laughland of First Unitarian, West Newton, as secretary.

These officers comprise the Executive Committee and together with an Advisory Board — Rev. Thomas Lehman of Grace Episcopal, Newton Corner, Rev. Michael Scrogin of First Baptist, Newton Centre, Rev. John Balcom of St. Paul's, Newton Highlands, Rev. David Kreider of Auburndale Congregational, Auburndale, Rabbi Robert Miller of Temple Beth Avodah, Oak Hill, and The Rt. Rev. Msgr. William Granville of Sacred Heart, Newton Centre, — serves as govening body of the NCA.

The response of the clergy to active participation in NCA has been good this year. The Advisory Board haspproposed that the NCA take action within the city on such issues as housing, ethnic relations, the needs of senior citizens — both at home and in nursing homes — and other relevant social issues.

The board has also proposed that Newton Clergy take retreats together; that they discuss the common needs of their constituencies and how the clergy can better serve them; and that they develop ways of strengthening their identity as professionals.

The Advisory Board meets regularly to deal with pertinent matters and to plan the agenda for regular meetings. The first such meeting was proposed last Spring.

Dr. Homer J. Jernigan, Albert V. Danielsen Professor of Pastorial Care and Counseling at Boston University School of Thelogy, led the meeting of Newton clergymen wherein they discussed ways of better diagnosing problems and analysing situations within their respective congregations to make them better and more effective servants.

Dr. Jernigan's presentation was stimulating, informative and most helpful and the members of the NCA responded enthusiastically.

The NCA is beginning a new year this fall with hopes and expectations.

Carr Delivers Christian Science Lecture In Belmont

Improvement in our lives and environment begins with individual spiritual renewal of thought, Charles M. Carr, C.S.B., will tell a public audience in Belmont on Monday, Oct. 29.

"Perhaps the most needed clean-up campaign is in our private thinking about our fellow beings," he will say. "How many of us are walking around with litter in our thoughts that needs to be eliminated? Broken-down images of a family member, a boss, a teacher, a neighbor, a community — or ourselves? Cleaning up starts with renewing our thinking."

A Christian Science lecturer from New York City, Carr will speak at 8 p.m. in the Church edifice, 199 Common St., Belmont.

A native of Melrose, Mass., Carr attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He withdrew from business in 1942 to enter the full-time public practice of Christian Science healing.

From 1944 to 1954, he served in a public relations capacity for the Christian Science churches in New Jersey. He became a teacher of Christian Science in 1952.

As a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, Carr is currently on an extensive speaking tour.

"Renewal" is the title of the free public lecture.

Jewish Music Forum Elects New Officers

Cantor and Mrs. Murray Simon and Mr. and Mrs. A. Fred Prager, Newton residents, were recently elected to the Executive Board of the New England Jewish Music Forum.

Cantor Simon is Cantor and Music Director of Temple Israel in Boston, and Prager, well known in musical circles, is president of the Brookline Symphony Orchestra.

Other Newton residents who serve on the Forum Executive Board are Dr. and Mrs. Harold Berk, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Bleiwas, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Bloom, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Grodberg, and Cantor and Mrs. Alex Zimmer. Re-elected for the seventh year as president is Mary Wolfman Epstein.

The Forum's sixteenth season opens on Monday evening, Nov. 12 at John Hancock Hall, Boston. Mikhail Alexandrovich, famed Soviet-Israeli tenor, will present a program as his New England premiere performance.

Dr. Harold Berk, vice-president and membership chairman of the Forum, invites patron membership at $25 per couple for the entire series of four concerts. Contact him at 369 Dudley Rd., Newton Centre. Patrons' names appear on every program.

Psychiatrist Lectures At Library Forum

Dr. Michael Sperber, a psychiatrist affiliated with the Harvard Medical School and McLean Hospital in Belmont, will lead an informal seminar, "Fiction and Psychiatry - Their Relationship," Monday, Oct. 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre St., Newton Corner.

Using Chekhov's "The Darling," a short story which is suggested advance reading, as a point of departure, Dr. Sperber plans to bring into the discussion any questions the group may have relating to the dynamics of psychiatry or psychotherapy.

"The Darling" which describes a woman who becomes psychotic and pulls herself together again raises many questions about mental illness such as: what it is, how people become mentally ill, how it is diagnosed and how it is treated.

Dr. Sperber, who has written on some of the psychiatric aspects of works by Camus, Kafka and Dostoyevsky, is interested in the social and ethical issues facing psychiatry today.

Dr. Sperber who taught in the Department of Social Relations at Harvard and at the Cambridge Center for Adult Education did his psychiatric training in Boston. He lives in Newton Centre with his wife Renee and their two children, Lisa, 2, and Jeffrey, 5.

The seminar, an informal, open-ended discussion, is open to all interested citizens.

Choirs Join In Concert

Along with the choir of 175 voices there will be a 100 voice Junior Choir. Both choirs will be under the direction of Miss Loryne H. Koebele.

The Choir Festival is sponsored by the Presbyterian Churches in the area but the Choir will be made up of many denominations.

CHICAGO (UPI) — New studies have revised the evolutionary timetable.

There now appears to have been about 70 million years available for the development of modern mammals instead of only 5 million as formerly estimated, according to the Encyclopaedia Britanica. The revision followed new studies of radioactive rocks.

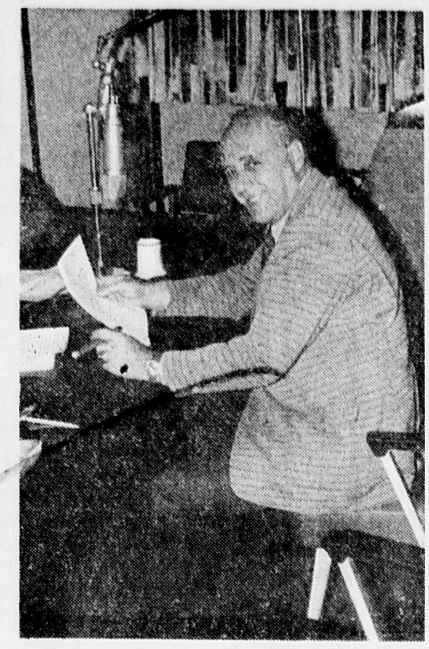
Red Auerbach speaks out on Rodman of Foxboro . . .

"I had to 'buy' the place before I agreed to sell it!"



I'm beginning my third season as radio-tv spokesman for Rodman of Foxboro. And when I say I had to 'buy' Rodman first, I mean I had to believe in the Rodman way of doing business. The people at Rodman treat each customer like a friend. They really care. Whether a Rodman car owner (Rodman Ford Sales, Rodman Lincoln-Mercury), a rental customer (Rodman Car Leasing) or one of a happy handful of Enstrom F28-A helicopter owners (Rodman Helicopter), the Rodman customer is King! It's because the Rodman people respect their customers that they have so many of them — about ten thousand, round figures. And it's why I say, "Once a Rodman customer, always a Rodman customer." All right, maybe I'm stretching the point a bit, but the fact is, eighty percent of all Rodman customers become repeat customers.

As for me, I joined the rank of "happy Rodman friends" two years ago. That's when I became a believer.

And I've been talking about Rodman ever since.

Creative Dance Team At Museum Of Fine Arts

The Boston premiere of "An Eveing With the Rohms" launches a series of five avant-garde performances co-sponsored by the Museum of Fine Arts and the Museum School. The first of "Five Evenings," this "Sculptural situation incorporating ballet" will be presented in the Tapestry Gallery of the Museum Tuesday, October 30, at 7:30 p.m.

The ballet dancer Patricia Rohm performs dance movements within structures designed by her husband, sculptor Robert Rohm. She feels "more as a moving element of the structure than as a dnacer performing in the traditional sense."

In the first part of this unique creative dance, Ms. Rohm works with a ballet bar angled at 45 degrees on a platform 16 feet above the floor. She makes her way up the incline of the bar in a sequence of compounded movements.

The second part of the presentation is performed in an angular structure. In this composition, the diagonal is formed by a 50-foot plane inclined from the floor to meet a horizontal "ceiling" above. In a slow and measured ballet sequence, Ms. Rohm begins on point and moves up the plane, adapting her gestures to the condensed space.

Tickets at the door or write "5 Evenings," Dept. of Education, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston 02115, or call 267-9300, Ext. 226.

TV Profile

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Conrad Bain, who plays the amiable and bibulous Dr. Arthur Harmon on "Maude," is an affable, sophisticated New Yorker who never set foot in Hollywood before being cast in the weekly comedy series.

Bain possesses much the same easy-going, good-neighborly qualities of Dr. Harmon without the bumbling manner.

Although he was born in Alberta, Canada, Bain considers Manhattan his home, a nine-room apartment at 72nd and Broadway in a building erected in 1885. He's lived there for 21 years.

His wife, Monica, is a painter and has decorated their apartment in gleaming modern style to contrast with the decrepitude of the building.

When the Bains first moved in, the apartment was so ramshackle they couldn't put their children on the floor to play. White vinyl tile, which Bain installed himself, has replaced the old wood floors. Leather, wood and metal furniture in rich browns and oranges is the order of the day.

Now that the place is fixed up, the Bain offspring are much too old to play on the floor. Their children are Kent, 23; Mark, 21; and Jennifer, 18.

If the family spends more time in New York City than in Hollywood, it is only because they can't get out to Long Island often enough.

Bain and clan built their own home, about 100 miles from their apartment, on Gardiner's Bay, seven miles from East Hampton, with a view of Connecticut across Long Island Sound.

L.I. Retreat

It is a four-bedroom house standing on a cliff over the water. Bain said they began pouring the foundations in 1961, doing all the work by hand themselves, and completed the project in 1966, working on weekends, holidays and during vacations. It is their favorite retreat.

In Hollywood they rent a house in the San Fernando Valley, shipping some of their furniture west and buying other pieces here.

Conrad and Monica are not making any commitments to the West Coast, however, and feel they uprooted themselves by leaving the familiar surroundings of New York. Most of their friends live in the East.

Last year, during the CBS-TV series' hiatus, Conrad returned to Manhattan to star on Broadway with George C. Scott in "Uncle Vanya." He was unhappy when he had to cut short his appearance in the play to return to Hollywood to rejoin the series, although he is fond of the show and its cast.

Daughter Jennifer lives and travels with her parents. Kent is an industrial engineer in Stamford, Conn. Son Mark is learning to become a carpenter in Southern California.

Bain has had to change his life style as well as his locale. Instead of arising late in the morning after working on the stage until 11 p.m., he now arises at 7 o'clock to fix his own bacon, eggs, toast, cereal and grapefruit—"Breakfast is my most important meal"— before reporting to the studio at 9 a.m.

Brushing Hair

CHICAGO (UPI) — Girls who brush their hair 100 strokes daily to keep it healthy and shining may be hurting rather than helping their crowning glory.

Experts, meeting at an American Medical Association conference in Chicago, warned that excessive brushing and combing actually damage hair.

The most degradative hair care process is combing. This is due to the force applied in repeated strokes.

"Brush and comb to groom, not to treat," said Dr. Norman Orentreich, of New York, who developed the hair transplant. "There is good evidence that it causes hair loss."

As for that healthy, vibrant, glowing hair referred to in commercials for hair tonics and other such potions, the doctors said that there is no such thing.

"The plain, unadorned—bald, if you will—truth is that hair is as dead as any fibrous cord, even when it is being manufactured within the follicle," said Dr. William Montagna of Beaverton, Ore.

Since hair is dead, the experts agreed, it cannot be "fed" with "protein or lemons or anything else."

The hair experts, however, said there was no truth to the tale that frequent shampooing of hair produced baldness. They suggested that hair should be washed only as frequently as necessary and that more frequent washings could break hairs.

Persons with very oily hair could shampoo daily, they said, while persons with dry hair would do well to go four to seven days without shampooing, if there is no unusual exposure to dirt.

The experts also agree that it is impossible to identify people through examination of hair.

"The size, color, distribution and wear of hair cuticles differs so widely for each person that the practice of using hair for individual identification by those in forensic medicine has gradually become obsolete and outmoded," Montagna said.

Veterans Comprise 'Pajama Game' Cast

Sparked by the presence of four stalward veteran performers in the cast, the Newton Country Players moved into high gear during rehearsals with only three weeks remaining before the curtain of their season's opening production, the ever-popular Broadway musical comedy success, "The Pajama Game." Director is Mrs. Liz Bruce of Newton.

With book by George Abbott and Richard Bissell, music and lyrics by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, "The Pajama Game" features such memorable hit tunes as "Hey There," "Steam Heat," "Small Talk" and "Hernando's Hideaway."

Performances are slated for Friday and Saturday evenings, Nov. 16-17 and 23-24, with special discount prices for students on Friday nights only, upon presentation of identification.

The production is available for programming to sponsor groups and theatre parties interested in fund raising at the Rebecca Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St., Newton, with its seating capacity of 150.

Organization bookings for alternate mid-week dates are also available. A cabaret-style seating arrangement with tables and chairs is planned.

Danny Kosow of Chestnut Hill, director-in-residence with the Players for the past four years, moves across the footlights to appear as Hineszie, the time-study man, after receiving rave reviews for his portrayal of Senex in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" at Playhouse 101, Milford, N.H., this summer.

In 1972 Kosow was the recipient of the "Best Director Award" for community theatres in New England.

Off stage, he has appeared with the Players as Richard Pawling in "The Shock of Recognition" from "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running," and as the Envoy in "The Balcony," a role he repeated both as an entry and finalist in the New England Theatre Conference Drama Festival.

His perceptive performance as the Older Actor in the three-character avant-garde "War" with the Players in 1969, also an entrant into the Festival, was instrumental in the winning of two major awards and seven guest appearances with the Entr' Actors Guild at the Fenwick Theatre, Holy Cross College.

For the Players, he created also the lead roles of Sky Masterson in "Guys and Dolls," the devil Mr. Applegate in "Damn Yankees," Judge Aristede Forestiere in "Can Can," Daniel Corban in "Catch Me If You Can" and Sir Lawrence Wargrave in "Ten Little Indians." He also performed in their mini-musical revue, "The Ones That Stopped the Show."

While assistant producer of the Falmouth Playhouse, he appeared in the national touring company production of "The Best Man," which starred Frank Lovejoy and Sheppard Strudwick, and in 1968, Kosow appeared with the Weston (Vt.) Playhouse as Vittorio Vidal in "Sweet Charity" and in "Brigadoon."

For the Players, he has directed a series of highly successful productions including "Gabriel Ghost," "Sam Stiller, Private Eye," "Gold in the Hills or The Dead Sister's Secret" and "See How They Run," as well as the one-act plays "Dinner for One" and "Suppressed Desires."

Essaying the role of Mabel is an 11-year veteran with the Players, Ruth Boynick of Newton Centre. Under their banner, she appeared as a housewife in "Inherit the Wind" and a nun in "Can Can" before being featured as Agatha in "Guys and Dolls," Doris in "Damn Yankees," Miss Jones in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," Sue in "Bells Are Ringing," Miss Skillon in "See How They Run" and Lizzie Jones, the housekeeper, in "Gold in the Hills."

She has served as choral director for Temple Beth Avodah, Newton Centre, for the past 11 years, and in a similar capacity for the Players in innumerable productions, including "Sam Stiller, Private Eye," "Gabriel Ghost," "Gold in the Hills" and "Anything Goes." She has worked also as costume designer and props chief and is a mainstay on the Players' Board of Trustees.

The husband-wife folksinging team of Soni and Gene, well-known for their countless benefit performances locally, step out of contemporary character and back into the forties for "The Pajama Game."

In private life Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tick of Chestnut Hill, they execute the roles of Gladys, the "Hernando's Hideaway" girl, and Mr. Hasler, president of the Sleep-Tite Pajama Factory.

For the Players, Soni Tick appeared as Beryl in "Everything in the Garden," did multiple cameo roles in "Puzzle Girl," and performed as a soloist in Big Mike's Saloon in "Gold in the Hills."

She has essayed the lead roles of Charity in "Sweet Charity," Nancy in "Little Mary Sunshine," Bianca in "Kiss Me Kate," Mother in "Come Blow Your Horn," the part of the wife in three plays, "Witness for the Prosecution," "Dial 'M' for Murder" and "All My Sons," the Dowager Empress in "Anastasia," the shoplifter in "Detective Story," and a number of plays by Shaw and Shakespeare.

Soni received her B.S. degree in dramatic arts from New York University, studied dramatics at the Neighborhood Playhouse, and has performed vocally on radio and TV. She studied dance with David Harris at Ballet Arts, Carnegie Hall, and for the past two years conducted dance and exercise classes in Brookline.

In addition to portraying a Bowery boy, Pete the Rat, in "Gold in the Hills" for the Players, previous stage credits for Gene include "Guys and Dolls" and a country and western singer in "Arizona Girl."

He worked sound and props for "Kiss Me Kate," lights and sound for "Come Blow Your Horn" and as house manager for "Sweet Charity."

Now entering their 18th season, The Country Players of Newton is a non-profit, philanthropic association comprised of local residents who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theatre activity on community and educational levels.

For information concerning involvement in the production, phone the show producers, Mr. and Mrs. Allyn Pinkofsky, at 444-1987,. For membership information or theatre party sponsorship data, phone Mr. Jimmy Sloane at 969-2665 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Municipal Election Tuesday

At least half of Newton's 52,000 registered voters are expected to go to the polls Tuesday to vote in the city's 1973 municipal election.

At stake is Newton's first four-year term for mayor, all 24 seats on the Board of Aldermen and eight seats on the Newton School Committee.

The mayor, aldermen-at-large in Wards 2, 4, 6, 7 and 8; ward aldermen in Wards 3, 4, 5, and 6; and School Committee members in Wards 2, 5, 6, and 7 have opponents. Two School Committee members, Francis Frazier of Ward 1 and Richard Douglas of Ward 3 chose not to run for another term. Newcomers face each other in those two School Committee races.

Incumbent Mayor Theodore D. Mann, finishing his first term, faces William Carmen, who has sought the office of mayor three times now. Carmen and Mann faced each other in the 1971 general election.

Mann in last month's Preliminary Election got 6,937 votes to Carmen's 5,493. Their totals represented respectively 54 and 43 per cent of the total vote cast.

Mann came out on top in five of the city's eight wards, Wards 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. Carmen took Wards 1, 2 and 3 in the Preliminary.

The challenger beat the incumbent mayor by a margin of 600 votes in Ward 1 and the mayor, in turn, buried his opponent by a margin of more than 1,000 votes in Ward 8.

The third candidate, eliminated in the Preliminary, got a total of 339 votes.

The October election was the city's first run-off and was mandated by the new City Charter. In prior years, any number of candidates could seek an office on the November ballot.

The Preliminary narrowed all races down to two candidates per office.

Voters in Newton elect, citywide, 16 aldermen-at-large, all eight members of the School Committee and their individual ward alderman.

In Ward 2, Alderman-at large Edward L. Richmond is the only incumbent on the ballot. Ald. Peter Harrington, elected a state representative last year, is not seeking reelection as an alderman. The three challengers for Alderman-at-large in Ward 2 are Terrence P. Morris, Barbara M. Schiller and Douglas J. Howard.

Ward 3 Aldermen-at-large Robert Tennant and Matthew Jefferson are unopposed.

Nicolo V. Nardone is the challenger in Ward 4. Incumbent Aldermen-at-Large David W. Jackson and Louis Egelson are both seeking reelection.

Aldermen-at-large Michael Antonellis and Sidney T. Small are also both seeking reelection in Ward 5 and face no challengers. Small, elected in 1971 in Ward 6 moved to Ward 5 earlier this year. Incumbent Lois Pines, now a state representative, is not seeking reelection as an alderman.

The move opened up the race in Ward 6 and voters will choose between three people for the two at-large seats in that ward. Incumbent Michael Lipof and challengers Ethel Sheehan and Joan Saklad vie for the posts in this ward.

Ward 7 has the full compliment of four candidates for the two at-large seats. Incumbent Jason Sacks reelection. The other three candidates are Mark A. White, Dominic J. Taglienti and Melvin Norris.

Ward 8 incumbent Aldermen-at-large Eliot K. Cohen and Wendell Bauckman face a challenge from Leland White, Mark White's younger brother.

On the School Committee, four of the six incumbents running have challengers.

In Ward 2, incumbent Eleanor Rosenblum faces S. Leonard Spitz. Sumner Silton is challenging incumbent Joan Needleman in Ward 5. Robert Cohen is seeking the Ward 6 seat now held by Herbert Regal, and in Ward 7 incumbent Dorothy Reichard faces Harry W. Resnick.

Ward 4 School Committeeman Manuel Beckwith and Ward 8 School Committeeman Alvin Mandell are unopposed this term.

In Ward 1, newcomers David J. Mortimer Jr. and Henry Delicata vie for a seat on the School Committee and in Ward 3 voters will chose between Gerard Byrne and John J. Keefe.

Ward alderman Andrew Magni in Ward 1 runs unopposed this year, as does the Ward alderman in Ward 2, Thomas Concannon.

In Ward 3, incumbent Richard J. Bullwinkle is running against Paul Daley this year, and in Ward 4 incumbent Richard J. McGrath, completing his first term as a wa alderman, is challenged Leonard Frisoli.

Both incumbents came out top in the Preliminary.

Ward 5 Ald. Edward Uehl faces Susan Schur and in War incumbent Ernest F. Dietz h Theodore Gross for an ponent.

Year-Round Daylight Time Favored Here

A year-round Daylight Savings Time would alleviate the current energy crisis and increase safety to Newton's children, Mayor Theodore Mann said this week in a letter to Massachusetts senators.

In urging Sens. Edward W. Brooke and Edward Kennedy to work for passage of the year-round program, the mayor stressed that Eastern Standard Time puts a strain on the power supplies of the community that would be reduced if the time of sunset were delayed one hour.

Mayor Mann further commented that the time delay on darkness would also aid in reducing traffic accidents due to the quantity of evening traffic peaking after dark.

Many young people who are involved in after-school activities away from their homes, under a year-round Daylight Savings program would not be forced to travel home for dinner in total darkness, the mayor added.

Municipal Election

Ward 7 Ald. David Cohen and Ward 8 Ald. Alan S. Barkin are running unopposed.

The polls open at 7 a.m. Tuesday and voting continues until 8 p.m.

About 10,000 Newton voters will be voting at new polling places in the Nov. 6 municipal election, according to Election Commission Executive Secretary Alan Licarie.

All voters were sent a card before the preliminary election informing them of their correct ward, precinct, and polling place.

This year for the first time if a voter's name cannot be verified at the polling place, an election official will call by phone a special Election Commission crew in City Hall, instead of requiring the voter to go to City Hall for verification.

If the name is verified by phone the voter will be given a certificate allowing him or her to vote.

If the name cannot be verified by phone, then the voter will have to go to City Hall in person. If the name is then verified, the voter may vote at City Hall instead of having to return to the usual polling place.

Lasell Names Fund Advisers

Mrs. Briggs W. Buchanan, Mrs. Hudson S. Green, Mrs. C. Peter Johnson and Mrs. Joseph M. Yanofsky, all of Newton, have agreed to serve on the campaign committee for Lasell Junior College's Capital Campaign "A Program for '76."

Lasell, the nation's oldest junior college, has embarked on a $5.5 million dollar campaign to raise funds for facilities, faculty endowment programs, financial aid programs, property and building acquisition and educational resources.

The "Program for '76," which has received one half million dollars since it began last spring, will end in 1976, the year of the college's 125th anniversary.

Alderman-At-Large

Ward 1

Robert J. Gaynor

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Attorney. B.A. in history from B.U., doctor of laws from Washington College of Law of American University; member, aldermanic Franchises & Licenses, Recodification, Public Buildings, Solid Waste and City Planning Committees.

OPEN SPACE: I favor the additional acquisition of open space; however, each should be considered on its merits. It may be possible that other governmental agencies are interested in acquiring land for open space in Newton resulting in smaller tax burden on Newton residents.

HOUSING: Some low income housing is desirable, but each proposal should be considered on its own merits.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Waste disposal, public and mental health, air and water pollution, traffic control.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. School Committees should have less power to determine the school budget. The absolute size of the school budget should be determined by the Board of Aldermen with the advice of the School Committee.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Neighborhood residents should have some veto power over the redevelopment proposals as a whole. Consideration should be given to recreation and open space uses as well.

Joseph McDonnell

(Alderman at large, incumbent) Lawyer. Chairman, aldermanic Public Works Committee. Member, aldermanic Street Traffic and Land Use Committees.

OPEN SPACE: Would support a program to acquire open space for conservation, park and recreation purposes by bonding up to $3 million. "This could be less than $1 on the tax rate."

HOUSING: Yes. All evidence shows we need at least 120 units, preferably on scattered redeveloped sites, and not on open space. Has supported all family housing proposals.

REGIONALIZATION SERVICES: Public health services, pollution control, and solid waste disposal should be given consideration because of the nature of the problems and the possibility of superior methods of handling them.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Despite the historic role of fiscal autonomy in the development of strong public education, it should now be reexamined, with control by a two-thirds vote of the Board of Aldermen given careful consideration.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Extensive public hearings must be given any future plans by the Redevelopment Authority itself before adoption of any plan.

School Lunch Menu

Following is the Newton Public Schools cafeteria "Type A" lunch menus for the week of Nov. 2 through Nov. 8:

Thursday, Nov. 8
Hot roast beef sandwich, whipped potato and gravy, buttered peas and carrots, milk.

Following is the Newton Public Schools elementary "Type A" lunch menus for the week of Nov. 2 through Nov. 8:

Friday, Nov. 2
Tuna salad on hot dog roll, garden salad, fruit cocktail, milk.

Monday, Nov. 5
Peanut butter and jelly sandwich, garden salad, peaches, milk.

Tuesday, Nov. 6
Cheese sandwich with sliced tomato on a hamburger roll, apple crisp, cole slaw, milk.

Wednesday, Nov. 7
Roast beef sandwich on white bread, potato salad, pineapple chunks, milk.

Thursday, Nov. 8

All menus are subject to change without notice.

Ward 2

Edward Richmond

(Alderman at large, incumbent) Lawyer; B.S., M.A., Boston College; J.D., Boston College Law School; chairman, aldermanic Cable TV Committee; member, mayor's advisory committee on cable communications; member, aldermanic City Planning, Public Buildings, Franchises & Licenses, Solid Waste, Drug, and Recodification Committees; member, Design Review Committee; served as chairman, Designer Selection and Design Review Ordinance Committees.

RICHMOND—(See Page 10)

Barbara Schiller

(Alderman at large) Citizen activist, research associate, housewife. Newton Junior College. Founding member, Newton-Wellesley-Weston Council Office for Children; Newton Centennial Committee; Newton Ambulance Task Force; School Bus Safety Committee; associate, Wellmet.

OPEN SPACE: Either a flat $1 tax or a $2 million bond issue, depending on plans of Conservation Commission and Planning Department.

SCHILLER — (See Page 10)

Terrence Morris

(Alderman at large) Administrator, Mass. Commission Against Discrimination. A.B., Holy Cross College; Boston College Law School, one year. Steering committee, Newton Coalition for New Policies; past president, Newton Jaycees; former ward chairman, Newton Citizens for Education.

OPEN SPACE: Favors adding $1 to tax rate because "cost of land rarely depreciates. Acquisition by speculative developers inflates land costs and puts pressure on city to allow development. Municipal acquisition affords greater flexibility."

MORRIS — (See Page 10)

Douglas Howard

(Alderman-at-large) Account manager, Singer Business Machines; B.S. from Suffolk; Junior Chamber of Commerce, Building Fund Committee of the Newton YMCA; chairman, Mass. Bay United Fund.

OPEN SPACE: "The acquisition of open space by the city does not provide the taxpayer with the best investment of his dollar. There are many homeowners in Newton who need every tax break they can get."

HOWARD — (See Page 10)

Ward 3

Robert Tennant

(Alderman at large, incumbent) Insurance executive. B.A., Staley College. Member, aldermanic Public Buildings, Franchises & Licenses, and City Planning Committees; senior vice-president, Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce; past president, Newton Kiwanis Club; director, Newton Boys Club.

TENNANT — (See Page 10)

Matthew Jefferson

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Electrician. Boston Trade School, Hampton Naval Training; executive board, Middlesex N.A.A.C.P.; chairman, aldermanic Street Traffic Committee; member, Land Use and Public Works committees.

OPEN SPACE: No. Although I believe that the acquisition of additional open space is important, I do not think it would be wise to add further to the taxpayer's burden.

HOUSING: Yes. I would still abide by the finding of the Board of Aldermen that we need at least 200 units of low-income housing, located "anyplace where other housing is

JEFFERSON—(See Page 10)

Ward 4

Nick Nardone

(Alderman at large) Supervisor; high school; past president, Holy Name Society; past president, American Legion; treasurer, District, Holy Name Society.

OPEN SPACE: "I believe that if the city of Newton can purchase open space that is worth, for example, $200,000 say for $200,000 this is great. I would not want to see the city pay more than the fair market value."

HOUSING: Believes the city needs old-age housing more. Did not say number of units or where.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: All except fire and police should be regionalized.

NARDONE — (See Page 10)

Louis Egelson

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Technical staff MITRE; faculty, Northeastern; B.S. from Harvard, M.B.A., Harvard Business School; member aldermanic Finance, Legislation & Rules committees; chairman, aldermanic Education Committee.

OPEN SPACE: Yes, and perhaps more, but only as a guideline until all parcels designated as "high priority" have been acquired. Then, we should take another look.

EGELSON — (See Page 10)

David Jackson

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Chief electrical engineer, General Egineering Division, United Engineers & Constructors; B.E. from Yale; chairman, aldermanic City Planning Committee; member, aldermanic Public Works and Street Traffic committees.

OPEN SPACE: Yes, for the future land needs for Main Library, swimming pools, open green areas and other future land needs such as subsidized housing.

HOUSING: About 600 units distributed approximately 75 in each ward.

JACKSON — (See Page 10)

AJC Welcomes Cease Fire

"The American Jewish Committee warmly welcomes the news that a cease-fire has been established in the Middle East, hopefully ending the tragic destruction of life unleased by the Egyptians and Syrians on Yom Kippur," said Sherman H. Starr, chairman of the Greater Boston Chapter of the American Jewish Committee (AJC)

"Of almost equal significance, Starr said, is the link in the agreement that ties cease-fire with movement toward direct negotiations, for we are painfully aware of the four wars that have brought havoc to this unhappy part of the world during the last 25 years."

Speaking on behalf of his group, Starr said the AJC is mindful that the most generous United States support equipment to the Arab aggressors, was responsible for getting this cease-fire initiative going. "We are deeply grateful to the United States Government for this, and know that such support of Israel will be made available whenever necessary," he said.

"As the situation moves cautiously from the military to the political the AJC prays that the way will be found to contain once and for all the hatreds and misunderstandings that in the past have all but guaranteed periodic renewal of hostilities," Starr concluded.

Founded in 1906, the American Jewish Committee is this country's pioneer human relations organization. It combats bigotry, protects the civil and religious rights of people at home and abroad, and seeks improved human relations for all men everywhere.

Mayoral and aldermanic candidates received the following five questions, listed below with and indication of how they are identified in each candidate biography.

..Candidates were also invited to submit their pictures.

The questions and their designations are:

OPEN SPACE: Do you favor the addition of $1 on the tax rate annually for the acquisition of 'open space' by the city?

HOUSING: Do you think Newton needs low-income family housing; and if so, specifically how many units and where should they be located?

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: What municipal services do you think should be regionalized? Why?

..FISCAL AUTONOMY: Would you favor some limiting of the fiscal autonomy of School Committees? If so, how? (School Committee candidates were asked the identical question).

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: How can the Newton Redevelopment Authority better serve the interests of the neighborhood in which it operates?

The Graphic Endorses

Next week's Newton election has a host of good candidates whose qualifications and aspirations merit success at the polls. Deciding among them, in some cases, is easy. In other cases it is as difficult for us as it is for many of the voters.

But the elective process depends on everyone's decisive choice.

Here in the opposed races are the Newton Graphic's choices:

FOR MAYOR

THEODORE D. MANN — His realistic approach and unmatched experience are assets that will be needed as the city's first four-year term mayor.

ALDERMEN

WARD TWO

EDWARD RICHMOND and TERRENCE MORRIS. In his first term Richmond was not shy about supporting open space and cultural affairs and participated beyond his own committees. Morris appears better informed than his competition and displays a sound enthusiasm.

WARD THREE

RICHARD J. BULLWINKLE has the vigilance and asks the questions that should be asked. Often casts himself as Newton's "devil's advocate" and this has been extremely beneficial.

WARD FOUR

RICHARD J. McGRATH is unrivaled in wanting to improve the public works department. Some say McGrath has a lot to learn, but he does not appear unwilling and ready to do just that.

WARD FIVE

SUSAN SCHUR anxious to fill the seat that some say has been empty too often.

WARD SIX

MICHAEL LIPOF shows genuine concern for youth and has initiated action when it was needed.

ETHEL SHEEHAN: sincere advocate of housing and recreation. She also has a great deal of political know how in the best sense of the term.

ERNEST DIETZ has the interests and needs of Newton Centre people at heart. And in the past they've known it.

WARD SEVEN

JASON SACKS acts and legislates independent of party affiliation. Not afraid to make known exactly whose side he is on. And loyalty itself is a plus factor in these times.

MELVIN NORRIS has a genuine concern for the Newton Corner area.

WARD EIGHT

ELIOT COHEN is our choice as Newton's leading alderman. In that chamber, and even, beyond his influence and intelligence are assets to the entire city.

WENDELL BAUCKMAN is the city's aldermanic link between the past and the present. Valuable.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE

WARD ONE — DAVID MORTIMER tends to be solidly down to earth in the educational atmosphere that sometimes slides away from reality and need. He knows who needs help and tries to get it done.

WARD TWO — ELEANOR ROSENBLUM shows that school buildings should be functional and fundamental in the whole learning process.

WARD THREE — GERARD BYRNE long involved and interested in the city's educational facilities and programs. Election would make his interest official.

WARD FIVE — SUMNER SILTON has a fresh approach and, with direction, it will be beneficial.

WARD SIX — ROBERT COHEN has the talent to bring the committee nearer the norm which represents all interested residents, not just a few.

WARD SEVEN — DOROTHY REICHARD shows a well balanced and independent approach to school matters.

WARD EIGHT — ALVIN MANDELL appears to be the outstanding member of the committee. He knows exactly what the School Committee function really is.

There are some unopposed candidates we would like to mention. In Ward One Joseph McDonnell, Robert Gaynor and Andrew Magni have evidenced competence and concern that rates high. In Ward Two Thomas Concannon has in-depth knowledge of what's really going on in the city. Matthew Jefferson in Ward Three has views and insight that will be even more valuable in the days ahead. In Ward Four David Jackson bends over backwards to be fair and he's not afraid to let you know who he speaks for.

In Ward Five Sidney Small and Michael Antonellis are unopposed as aldermen at large. But their efficiency has not gone unnoticed.

Alan S. Barkin is unopposed as a Ward Eight alderman, but he ranks high in the esteem of those who look for results from that chamber.

IMPORTANT DECISION!

Random Thoughts

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Exactly one year ago, I took over as editor of the Graphic. It's an easy anniversary to remember; it's Halloween again.

The transition is not without its lighter moments.

I, for one, get mail addressed to the following people: Cynthia Black, Cynthia Block, Cynthia Brown (from someone who knew it was a color, but not which one), Sidney Black and even Synthia Blacke.

I prefer the ones that come addressed to Cynthia Black with a salutation reading Dear Sir. . .

Completely Black

The news trio here, Black, Bateman and McKinnon are getting ready for coverage of next week's election.

Anyone interested in precinct results can drop in at the office next Wednesday or Thursday. We will have charts available. Ward totals will appear in the chart in the Nov. 8 paper.

The League of Women Voters is sponsoring its annual Candidates' Night tonight. Last month, I gave them credit for moving the candidates' nights up to facilitate coverage by the newspapers. I did so in error. The Preliminary Candidates' Night was held on a Tuesday, but this one's on a Thursday again.

The League notified me of my error and said they had discussed changing their candidates' nights in future elections. Next year, we may see a story on the final candidate forum in our papers.

Were there more candidates' forums this year than in the past? It seemed to me virtually everyone was scheduling a candidates' night. It seemed everyone was also sending out a questionnaire.

It won't take readers long to notice this week that the bulk of our paper is devoted to our candidate questionnaire. We were extremely pleased with the response to it and are missing only one biography, Andrew Magni's.

To the curious: Yes, we have ordered a new sign for the office and it will be here in about two weeks. We're sensitive on this subject and everytime we're teased, we flush with embarrassment.

Troy's Smart-Alecky Answers To Dwight Hurt His Own Cause

Jerome L. Troy, who was striving to retain his status as judge during a hearing before the Governor's Council, did not help his cause with his smart-alecky answers to questions put to him by Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight.

Troy's replies to Dwight's inquiries ranged from flippant and sarcastic to insulting. That would hardly be expected from a man seeking to create the best possible impression on the public.

Judge Troy, of course, had a right to accuse Dwight of bias, but an observer could only wonder at the manner in which Troy worded his assertions.

For example, Dwight asked Troy whether certain charges against him were of a criminal or civil nature. Troy responded: "The charges are clearly civil in nature, and if you have any question, inquire of your teleprompter behind you." (Troy was referring to a legislative legal aide who sat near Dwight during the hearing.)

Troy also attacked Dwight's method of questioning him. "You tend to make statements instead of asking questions, and I find it difficult to respond to them," Troy told Dwight. "You are biased and prejudiced and are coloring the record."

Later, as Troy seemingly was trying to avoid making a direct answer to a question put to him, Dwight requested him to speak to the issue. "You're interrupting me," Troy declared. "Whenever I'm making a point, you interrupt me, and I think your interrupting me shows your bias."

Richardson May Return Home To Run For Office Next Year

Elliot L. Richardson is expected to come back to Massachusetts next year and start strengthening his political fences in preparation for a bid for either the Presidency or the U. S. Senate in 1976.

Richardson, who went out of the Nixon Cabinet with his head high and his banners flying, has a few political options open to him, but not many.

He could challenge Governor Francis W. Sargent in the GOP primary and quite likely defeat him because of the growing public dissatisfaction with Sarge's performance.

Ironically, Richardson helped to save Sargent from defeat at the 1966 Republican State Convention.

John A. Volpe, then Governor, had bestowed his political blessing on Sargent in the latter's quest for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant Governor.

However, Representative Francis W. Hatch of Beverly, now the Republican leader of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, a position in which Sargent placed him three years ago, made a surprisingly strong fight against Sargent at the GOP convention.

Volpe called for help from Richardson, who was attempting to remain neutral in the Sargent-Hatch clash, and Richardson moved his large and energetic organization into the contest behind Sargent.

That turned the tide. Sargent won the nomination which was to prove a stepping stone to the Governorship when Volpe left Beacon Hill to become Secretary of Transportation.

Richardson and Sargent are distant cousins, but they never have been close politically.

What Richardson could do if he desires to hold elective office in 1975 and 1976 would be to seek the Republican nomination for Attorney General in Massachusetts next year.

Attorney General Robert Quinn is giving up the office to run for Governor, and the post Richardson relinquished when he left Beacon Hill to become Assistant Secretary of State at the start of Nixon's first term will be up for grabs.

It would be a step down for Richardson to become the Bay State's Attorney General after serving as U. S. Attorney General, Secretary of Defense and Secretary of HEW. But it would give him a base of political operations if that is what he wants.

Richardson sold his Brookline home after accepting a position in the Nixon Cabinet. But that should not pose any major problem for him.

He is an independently wealthy man who did not have to worry about how he would support his family when President Nixon instructed him to fire Archibald Cox.

Richardson was able to submit his resignation rather than sacrifice his principles and then go out jogging with his dogs and an easy mind the next morning.

His problem will be to keep himself and his name before the public after the present furor over the Watergate tapes, the firing of Cox and his own resignation subsides.

Richardson shapes up now as a potent candidate for the 1976 Republican Presidential nomination. If he fails in that effort, he could seek Ted Kennedy's seat in the Senate if Ted is the Democratic nominee for President or even challenge Ted if he runs again for the Senate.

It would be to Richardson's advantage to hold public office as he prepares to do one of those things, and the Massachusetts Attorney Generalship may be the answer.

Rep. Sacco Says New Prison Rules Are "Height Of Folly"

Representative George L. Sacco of Medford, who probably will be the Democratic nominee for Attorney General next year, has warned Governor Sargent that escalating tensions and relaxed precautions at the Walpole State Prison may soon plunge that institution into new chaos.

Sacco criticized recent changes in regulations at the maximum security prison as the "height of folly." He blasted a decision by new state corrections officials to suspend the rule requiring that all visitors to Walpole be searched for contraband and weapons. The new system provides that visitors may be searched only upon "probable cause."

The Medford law-maker also pointed out that a full-range of privileges for the prisoners has been restored, including additional visits, children's visits, lawn visits, canteen and yard privileges and the reopening of vocational shops.

Sacco asserts that the discontinuance of the searches has resulted in a sharp increase in the weapons and contraband taken into the prison by visitors. He adds that the new privileges have not produced greater cooperation by the inmates whose response, he declares, has been the slaying of two more prisoners, two more escapes and a continuing series of mounting demands.

"Under these circumstances, the Superintendent's suspension of visitor searches would appear to be the height of folly with potentially disastrous consequences," Sacco informed the Governor as he urged the immediate reinstitution of visitor searches at the highly explosive prison.

Harrington And Bartley Fill Thankless Roles As Leaders

A lot of hard work, drudgery and headaches are involved in presiding over the Massachusetts House of Representatives and State Senate.

State Senate President Kevin Harrington and House Speaker David M. Bartley have done exceptional jobs in their respective posts and have combined to improve the image of the Legislature to a substantial extent.

Their tasks are usually demanding, thankless ones, and there are times when both Harrington and Bartley must ponder the possibility of moving into positions which pay more money and provide fewer worries and heartaches.

Rumors were circulated recently that the hard-working, serious-minded Harrington might resign from the Senate to accept a position as a professional educator, a field in which Harrington is recognized as an expert. Beacon Hill would have lost an exceptionally capable public leader if that had happened.

But the latest word from the State House is that the towering Harrington, once a great college basketball player, has decided to continue as Senate president and not shift to any other position.

That is regarded as good news by most experienced Beacon Hill observers. The Massachusetts Senate never has had a more conscientious member than Kevin Harrington.

Tapes Could Destroy Nixon Or Restore Confidence In Him

For the present, at least, there seems no real likelihood of any serious impeachment proceedings against President Nixon as a result of his decision to release the Watergate tapes in their entirety.

In fact, there is real doubt that a majority of the members of Congress would have had the stomach to plunge the United States into the great crisis which would have developed from the President's impeachment if he had held to his intention to surrender only relevant portions of the tapes or to his original insistence that he wouldn't give them up at all.

But political observers can only wonder how long it will be before Nixon heads into another crisis which will shake the nation during this stormy first year of his second term in office.

There does seem to be some basis for the theory that President Nixon was primarily interested in getting Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox out of his hair even at the expense of having two outstanding men such as former U. S. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson and his deputy, William D. Ruckelshaus, go over the side.

The next big question is what the much argued-over tapes will disclose, particularly as to any advance knowledge by President Nixon of the Watergate break-in or any subsequent participation by him in the attempted cover-up. They certainly should show whether Richard Nixon or John Dean has told the truth. They could destroy Nixon or restore public confidence in him.

Law Change Seen To Mark Armistice Day On Nov. 11

Monday of last week may have been the last time we celebrated Veterans' Day on the fourth Monday in October. Next year we may be observing Armistice Day instead on Monday, Nov. 11.

A strong sentiment exists among veteran organizations for going back to the old Nov. 11 date, regardless of the day of the week on which it falls.

Veterans complain that there is little significance to the celebration on the fourth Monday in October.

Members of the Massachusetts delegation in Congress also report that a move probably will be made to restore daylight saving on a 12-months-a-year basis if there is a shortage of heating oil this winter.

Daylight saving is now discontinued the last Sunday morning in October because of the farmers, but Bay State Congressmen point out that the farmers managed with two hours of daylight saving for conservation purposes during World War 2.

'A Difficult Job Well Done'

Editor, Newton Graphic:

An elected official who does an honest, credible job for his constituents is hard to find at any level of government today. And when we are fortunate enough to elect such a man, we must watch him at election time as he tries to repell the rumors and misinformation circulated by someone who has decided that he wants that job.

Such is the situation in Newton's mayorality race this fall. For the past 18 months, I have watched the workings of the mayor's administration with great admiration, and for the past six months, I have watched Mayor Mann's opponent try to dispute the many advances that have been made during this administration. But these advances are indisputable.

For example, for the first time in my memory, our tax rate has decreased. There are several sound reasons for this decrease.

1) Newton received federal revenue sharing money;

2) The county costs on the cherry sheet were favorable to us;

3) Snow removal costs were very small this year;

4) Our operating costs were kept at a minimum by sound fiscal management.

The mayor's opposition does not like this tax decrease. (I don't blame him. It makes Mayor Mann's administration look very efficient.) And so the opposition hints that and increase may be expected next year because of this year's decrease. I have investigated this rumor and have discovered that the tax rate for the first half of next year has already been set. It will be half of this year's rate, and there's no evidence to make us doubt that the factors that worked for us this year will work for us again at the end of next year.

But the tax rate is just one accomplishment to Mayor Mann's credit. There are many others. Now there are new meaningful social and financial programs for the elderly.

Ecology theories have been put into practical use through leaf composting, paper recycling and the cleaning of the Charles River, just to mention a few. The crime rate, like the tax rate has decreased, and every citizen can contact the police in an emergency by using the newly installed police call boxes throughout the city. The young, the old and the needy all have a place to go to for help since the mayor established the new department of human resources.

I must sound as if I'm giving a speech, but if the mayor was doing such an excellent job in private industry, he would get a raise and a promotion. Instead, he must constantly defend his accomplishments to anyone who chooses to attack them.

I wouldn't change our adversary election process, I just think that once in a while we should stop and say, "thank you" for a difficult job well done. And I am sure that on November 6th, the people of Newton, by their vote, will also say "thank you" to Mayor Ted Mann.

Support Honesty In Government

Editor, Newton Graphic:

This Tuesday, Newton will elect its first four year mayor. It's an important decision, and each individual should make it carefully.

As Newton taxpayers, I feel we owe it to ourselves to reject the Mann Administration's political maneuvers that gave us the largest tax increase in Newton's history last year, and a token reduction from that over-charge this year.

There's no mystery behind why the mayor refuses to answer questions about next year's tax rate.

He's borrowed money to meet the city payroll, done nothing to insure equity in revaluation, and ignored federal warnings of large fines unless something is done to improve the incinerator.

Ted Mann knows that the citizens of Newton will have to pay for these shortcuts after election day. I've heard some elected officials declare that the increase in taxes could be as high as $20. Even Mayor Clark of Waltham has said that the kind of tax gimmicks Mr. Mann has tried this year are almost "immoral and unfair."

Tuesday's the day to show our elected officials that we'll no longer tolerate these kind of games with our tax dollars. I hope each citizen will consider the facts, and then vote for honesty in government.

Traveling Meals

Editor, Newton Graphic:

In recent news stories dealing with the Mayoralty campaign, one of the candidates claimed credit for a program which is still in the embryo stage. I refer to the "Traveling Meals Of Newton" program.

It is my understanding that this much needed aid to those incapable of providing meals for themselves is the brainchild of the clergy of the churches and temples of Newton Centre, and that no money is coming from the City of Newton.

My purpose in writing this letter is not to take Mayor Mann to task, but to keep this worthwhile program from foundering for the lack of funds. I fear that if people believe the money is coming from "City Hall" they will not respond to the fund raising program of "Traveling Meals Of Newton" now underway.

What Happened To Basic Skills?

Editor
Newton Graphic:

I am tired of the double-talk; on T.V. advertisements and others; by politicians; by public relations experts; and by "professional educators," who have used our classrooms as laboratories for a testing ground for theories and programs, which after ten years have been deemed by the Ford Foundation as impossible to evaluate in terms of being successful or unsuccessful.

Double-talk is a pollutant of our language, of the symbols whereby we communicate meaning. If we accept it without thought, we accept half truths or outright lies.

For many years I was double-talked into believing that my children would learn to spell, punctuate and write English, without drills, spelling tests or grammar. My 11th grader never did learn. And what are Social Studies if an 11th grader (honors graduate of a Newton Jr. High), does not know that Congress is made up of the Senate and the House of Representatives? Neither did he ever learn any American georgraphy.

No academic discipline can ever be successfully taught by denying its underlying structure. Neither math, chemistry, physics, nor English can be understood, unless one has some understanding of its structure.

Newton parents, do not be double-talked into believing nonsense. In a structureless, chaotic society, our students are crying for some direction. Please return to them the legacy of some traditional learning methods which have withstood the tests of the ages.

As a believer in public education, I must confess that my own children are now in private schools.

Three years ago, the principal of Newton High said that interest in Latin was waning and we would probably not see the return of it in our time. If as parents you disagree & do not accept this idea, or any other (and I know there are many of you, because I have heard you mumble your discontent), then voice your concern to the school principals, the School Committee, the superintendent and the teachers.

As parents and taxpayers, the mandate is yours. Stand up and be heard. Voice your concerns through these channels. Do not accept the double-talk without evaluating it.

A Concerned Newton Parent

School Department May Need $500,000 More For North High

A controversy over the relative worth of the monthly status report of the Newton Public Schools' Support Services Division led to the revelation that the city may need as much as $500,000 to complete the New North High School.

Labeling the document a "non-report," committee member Richard M. Douglas of Ward 3 objected "to a pattern all too familiar by which problems are not brought to our attention."

"I am desperately trying to get factual reports that advise the School Committee of existing problems," stated Douglas.

School Committee Chariman Manuel Beckwith of Ward 4 joined Douglas and instructed the school administration to "communicate the committee's exasperation" to John Gilleland, director of Support Services. Gilleland was on vacation and missed the meeting.

"This report isn't even bare bones. It is less than bare bones," explained Beckwith.

Several other committee members agreed verbally with Douglas, but indicated they would let his remarks stand as their own opinion of the controversial report.

Douglas took special issue with the first item of the report with dealt with the status of construction and equipment purchasing at the New North High School.

In that portion of the report, the School Committee was informed that the "various (equipment) requests and needs will be tabulated, staff recommendations on priorities noted for review and appropriate budget action taken.

"Some examples," continued the report, "are library air conditioning and asbestos shielding."

It was the last sentence that raised the wrath of Douglas who stated that "some is not enough."

According to Douglas, the report was written on Oct. 19, and since that time, he and his colleagues have been deluged with complaints about the heating and cooling systems at the new school.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink then offered the School Committee what he termed "a rough detailed report" of monies already spent on equipment purchases and equipment still to be ordered.

In doing so, Fink raised the possibility of an additional $500,000 needed, over and above already approved monies, to completely equip the still to be finished, but occupied, building.

"Of the total money approved," Fink explained, "$424,361 has already been spoken for."

"The school department thus has a balance of approximately $75,639 to finish equipping the high school," he continued.

"However," Fink added, "we estimate that to complete unmet needs for public spaces in the building we will have to come up with $202,483.53."

Additional equipment requests for the rest of the high sshool including the technical vocational areas raises the needed amount to $477,628.

"That's what happens to an $18 million building with only an appropriation of $500,000 for equipment," Fink explained to the School Committee.

Douglas added that the possibility of an additional $500,000 to complete the building did not represent "a failure or forsight on anyone's part, but a denial of our original request."

"An appropriation of $1 million is normal for a building of that size and cost," Fink explained in obvious reference to the School Committee's original request.

"I have instructed the high school principal to provide us with a breakdown of equipment needs so we can provide for them in next year's budget," Fink added.

Public Buildings Commissioner Emil G. Larson then addressed himself to Douglas' original objection to the Support Services report.

"If you would like," Larson asked, "I will elaborate" on the status of construction at the new school.

According to Larson, the heating system was finally installed properly over this past weekend, all fire alarm boxes are being replaced with more difficult to tamper with devices, and the library air conditioning problem will be solved between now and next spring.

The heating problem was the result of improperly calibrated valves which were overriding the thermostats throughout the building, and they have all been recalibrated, according to Larson.

"We are," he continued, "on a skakedown cruise and have to expect some problems."

"It will take three full days of below 40-degree weather to produce a final check on the heating system," he told the School Committee.

"The fire alarm boxes are being replaced by devices which contain glass shields over the activating arms and the cost will be borne by the city because they were not in the original specifications," Larson explained.

At this point Ward 8 committee member Alvin Mandell added, "this makes one question the forsightedness of people who developed the specifications."

Larson also told the School Committee that the air conditioning problem in the library would be solved with the introduction of a $10,000 cooling coil, another item not included in the original specifications and therefore paid for by the city.

In other unrelated action, Ward 7 committee member Dorothy Reichard presented an intermim report on the bus transportation problems confronting the school department and won approval for her motion to extend the period of free bus service until Jan. 31.

"We just did not have enough time to complete a thorough report, and the complexities of the situation demands more study," Mrs. Reichard told the School Committee.

The City Engineering Department is currently drawing up new maps to delineate limits and these will eventually be used by Dr. Vincent Silluzio of the schools' Research Division to determine paying and non-paying students for the bus service.

The School Committee also voted to request approval from the Board of Aldermen and the Mayor for an exchange of parcels of land with the Recreation Department at the site of the Davis School on Waltham St. in West Newton.

The proposed swap would facilitate renovation at the school. The School Committee would transfer 16,000 square feet of its land for 15,000 square feet of recreation land.

The change would allow construction of a school addition and a parking lot while the School Committee would be responsible for relocating a baseball diamond.

Conservators Begin Norumbega Talks

The Newton Conservation Commission will meet on Wednesday, Nov. 7, at 8 p.m. in Room 220, City Hall, for an exchange of information and ideas with Frederick Fish of Kanavos Enterprises concerning the remainder of Norumbega Park bordering the Lakes Section of the Charles River in Auburndale.

Exploration and review of past and current attitudes relative to the Norumbega land are part of the Commission's objective to complete the Charles River portion of its open space plan by the summer of 1974.

With a grant from the Ford Foundation and matching money appropriated by the Board of Aldermen, the Conservation Commission and the Planning Department have engaged a professional planner, William D. Giezentanner, to provide the technical assistance for detailed preparation of the Charles River frontage and pathway plan.

The Waltham Conservation Commission has also received a Ford Foundation grant to plan a Charles River recreation system. The landscape architecture consultants, John Wacker and Associates, have been hired to do the Waltham work.

Meetings of the Conservation Commission are open to the public.

Pianist Presents School Recital

The Music Department of Newton North High School proudly presents Arthur MacKenzie, internationally known pianist, in a recital on Tuesday, Nov. 6, in the school auditorium at 1:45 p.m. to which the public is cordially invited.

He has just returned from his annual tour of Europe where he gave concerts in Scotland, England, Holland, Austria, and Belgium.

Included in his program on Nov. 6, will be pieces he will be presenting at Jordan Hall, Boston, on Nov. 11, and at Carnegie Hall, New York, on Nov. 16.

New York Times reviews in the past have acclaimed him "as a major keyboard talent" and "phenomenal."

In the future, Westminster will be releasing a recording by him consisting of works by Chopin, Scarlatti, Scriabin, and others.

Towers Agreement Nears Decision

Barring another set of unforseen events, the Chestnut Hill Towers and the Newton Community Development Foundation will have completed and signed an agreement for the provision of low-income housing in time for a vote by the Board of Aldermen next Monday (Nov. 5) on the Towers' request for extension of permissive use.

The Towers, a luxury condominium complex of 428 units to be constructed in Chestnut Hill, was found to have been operating without permission since 1971, when the 1966 permissive use granted by the board expired, and in September was ordered to stop work on the site.

In its efforts to have the permissive use extended, the Towers offered to participate in conjunction with the Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF), in the provision of 50 units of housing on a parcel of land adjoining the Towers property and owned by NCDF — the so-called Hamlet St. site.

Twenty of the housing units were to have been offered to the Newton Housing Authority for its subsidized leased housing program for low-income families. The remainder of the units would have been rented to moderate-income families or at market value.

As this proposal neared final agreement by the Towers and NCDF, Towers developer Albert Goodman, who had been out of the country during earlier negotiations conducted by lawyers Richard Lovell and Christopher Connolly and co-developer Mario DiCarlo, attended a Land Use Committee meeting on the Towers.

Goodman called the agreement that had been worked out by NCDF and the Towers, and signed by DiCarlo, "totally unacceptable."

Goodman's counteroffer was either to build housing on a DiCarlo-family parcel on Rowe St., West Newton, or to give the Newton Housing Authority $150,000 to help it build its own housing.

Goodman repeatedly said at Tuesday night's meeting that he does not want to deal with any private enterprise, that he would rather pay $150,000 and not be involved in building any housing.

The Hamlet St. site, according to Goodman, is unbuildable because of terrain problems.

Goodman said less than 80 units on Hamlet St. would be unfeasible economically.

Several aldermen have wanted to attach a written condition to the extension of permissive use that would guarantee compliance with whatever agreement was arrived at, but Goodman said that any such condition would "kill" the $30 million financing arrangement he had with a Philadelphia bank.

The financing was due to expire on Oct. 31, but Goodman managed to obtain an extension until Nov. 15 in order to give the Board of Aldermen time in which to act on the extension.

The new agreement presented to the Land Use Committee this week offers three alternatives. First is the setting up of a limited partnership with NCDF that would give NCDF full control of the design, construction and operation of 50 units of housing.

The Towers would pay NCDF a total of $150,000, $37,500 after the Towers permissive use extension is granted and $112,500 when NCDF successfully obtains financing for construction from the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency.

An alternative, if NCDF is not able to obtain financing commitment within 18 months or has not started construction within 24 months, the Towers would advance $150,000 to assist in construction of 50 units of housing on Rowe St., 20 of which would be for low-income families and administered by the Housing Authority.

The Rowe St. housing would be built by DiCarlo.

The last alternative, if the first two fail, is that the Towers Trust would pay $125,000 (or $150,000 if no advance has been paid to NCDF) to the Newton Housing Authority.

Some points in the most recent agreement remain to be smoothed out even after the six-hour Land Use Committee meeting this week, but most members expect that on Monday night a signed agreement will be presented.

The outlook on the final vote is cloudy. Alderman Joseph McDonnell said Tuesday night that he will still offer his amendment to the proposed board order of extension to forbid sale of more than 350 units of the 428 Towers apartments unless the Towers has complied with terms of the agreement.

Some other aldermen are opposed to construction of the Towers on ecological or traffic grounds.

It's Time For Flu Shots

Sniff! ! It appears that this could be a banner year for that annual pest we know as the flu. The State Department of Public Health tells us that effects from two strains of influenza will probably reach epidemic proportions this winter.

The London strain of Influenza A first made its appearance in Massachusetts last winter. It continues this year and will strike particularly those communities which were either spared or had a relatively small incidence of this disease last year. A new Hong Kong strain of Influenza B most likely will make an appearance in Massachusetts this winter after about three years of absence.

Flu seems to come on suddenly, but actually takes one to three days to develop. The inhaled virus invades both upper and lower respiratory tracts. Common discomforts include headache, muscular pains and lack of appetite. Other irritations are puffy and burning eyes, blocked hearing, dry cough, sore throat, nausea and fever. Temperature goes up quickly during the first day . . . usually to 101 or 102. Then it reaches a peak probably not higher than 103. The fever lasts from three to seven days.

Decrease in the fever may usher in more nose stuffiness, worsened cough, and perhaps some pus in the discharges from nose and throat. From that point on, recovery is swift, though fatigue and a loose cough for a few weeks is common.

For most people, doctors say to stay in bed as long as the sickness is severe . . . and probably for two days after the fever is gone. The temperature of the room should be moderate and the humidity should be kept high. Flu sufferers with a high fever should take a lot of fluids and perhaps something like aspirin to ease the pain and bring down the temperature. Of course, the family physician can prescribe the best course of action.

Vaccination each year is the only satisfactory way to prevent or control flu. Immune or antigenic shifts and changes in structure of the virus render past vaccines useless. This leaves large population groups susceptible to infection even though they were vaccinated previously.

This year's influenza vaccine is approximately 60 to 70 per cent effective in preventing an attack of the disease. However, should one develop flu after receiving the vaccine, the disease is likely to be milder. Total immunization includes two subcutaneous injections about two to four weeks apart. The flu will strike in this area around Thanksgiving, so vaccinations should be scheduled for completion by mid-November.

Flu lowers body resistance. Yet, children and healthy adults who follow their doctor's advice almost always experience an uneventful recovery with only minor after-effects, and do not necessarily need the vaccine. Uncomplicated influenza practically never kills but often paves the way for respiratory invasion by other organisms. This most common complication is pneumonia.

Most important, the flu tends to have a snowballing effect on people already suffering from chronic disease. One disease leads to decreased body resistance leading to another disease. Risks for this group are quite high.

Gustave A. Laurenzi, M.D., president of the Massachusetts Thoracic Society, advises "total immunization against flu each year for the following groups:

A. People of all ages who have chronic debilitating conditions such as emphysema, bronchopulmonary disease, arteriosclerotic and hypertensive heart disease, congenital and rheumatic disease, and tuberculosis.

B. Persons with diabetes and other chronic metabolic disorders such as renal insufficiency.

C. Pregnant women.

Anyone above the age of 50 years.

E. Those who provide essential community services.

Again, the family physician can best decide if you should get the vaccine."

Influenza vaccine is produced in chick embryo and should not be given to those who react allergically to eggs or egg products. Any acute respiratory disease or other active infection is sufficient reason for postponing immunization.

If you want to receive the vaccination, call your doctor or your local health department. For more information on influenza or lung disease in general, contact your local Christmas Seal organization, the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

Homeopathy is the branch of medical science which combats disease by using substances which produce effects on the body like those of the disease itself.

"Hockey Afternoon" Nov. 8 Will Aid Children's Lobby

Governor and Mrs. Francis W. Sargent will sponsor an afternoon of hockey at the Boston Garden, Sunday, November 18, at 2 p.m., featuring Bobby Orr and a first-time competition between the U.S. and Canadian Junior Hockey League teams.

All proceeds of this "hockey afternoon" fundraiser will go to the Massachusetts Children's Lobby, a non-partisan children's rights organization which monitors and promotes legislation effecting child care, drug programs, battery and abuse and services for exceptional children.

Entertainment will be provided by sports writers and broadcasters who will take to the ice between game periods and provide a "Humor hockey" competition.

Bobby Orr will coach the New England all stars, the best 15-19 year-old Junior Hockey players from the New England area. Canada will be represented by Quebec's Repentigny Olympic team. A scholarship to Bobby Orr's hockey camp will be awarded as a door prize.

Tickets can be bought at the Boston Garden or through the children's Lobby, 3 Joy street, Boston. They will also be sold at the house of Sports at 566 High street, Dedham.

Alderman-At-Large

Ward 5

Michael Antonellis

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Lawyer in private practice; B.U. undergraduate and B.U. Law School; former assistant city solicitor; former assistant United States attorney; member, aldermanic Land Use, Public Works, Street Traffic committees.

OPEN SPACE: Acquisition must be part of a total budget and tax picture. "I favor open space acquisition and wish evaluation on a parcel by parcel basis."

HOUSING: "My principal concern at this time is for the low and moderate income people we now have in the city fighting to maintain privately owned residences."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: We are studying regionalized trash disposal. No general conclusions can be made at this time.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "By electing a School Committee that has a sense of fiscal responsibility."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: From what I hear of late, this body is making every effort to work with and respond to the community.

Sidney Small

(Alderman at large; incumbent, but previously from Ward 6) Chemical manufacturer. U.S. Army Leadership, School Boston University. Chairman, aldermanic Finance Committee; member, aldermanic Education and Legislation & Rules Committees.

OPEN SPACE: No. More study needed of land available and its cost before any commitment of funds.

HOUSING: Yes. The number can be determined by deciding whether the housing would be for present Newton citizens. Should be built where rehabilitation is need and where old buildings can be demolished and replaced with new housing.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Most particularly waste disposal. Might be the only answer to city's long-range needs.

FISCIAL AUTONOMY: Yes. "I would continue autonomy only in the areas of teachers' salaries and school programming." All other fiscal areas should be brought under a scrutiny other than that of the School Committee

Michael Lipof

(Alderman at large, incumbent). Real estate and banking. B.S., Boston University. Member, area board, Newton-Wellesley-Weston mental health department; governor's representative, Metropolitan Area Planning Council, and MAPC Housing Committee vice-chairman; chairman, mayor's advisory drug committee; member aldermanic Land Use and Public Works Committees.

OPEN SPACE: Not in favor of increasing tax rate, but in favor of exploring means for obtaining funds for conservation purposes. Supports land acquisition along Charles for pathway.

HOUSING: "Would like to see 50-100 units built on two or three sites that are appropriately located."

Ethel Sheehan

(Alderman at large) Freelance court reporter. Former secretary, Newton Mental Health Association, Inc.; vice-president, Catholic Inter-Racial Council of Newton; co-chairman, Newton Coalition for New Politics;

SHEEHAN — (See Page 11)

Joan Saklad

Ward 7

Jason Sacks

(Alderman at large, incumbent) Sales manager. B.A., University of Michigan; graduate school. Member, aldermanic Finance and Legislation & Rules Committees; chairman, Kenrick Fund.

OPEN SPACE: Yes, if the Conservation Commission and the Board of Aldermen agree on priority for acquisition.

HOUSING: "At least 300 units throughout the city, with no one site to have more than 35 units. Prefer infill or rent-subsidy housing."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: "Wste disposal, because the state is already pressing us and finding fault with the way it is done in the city." Also health services; more efficient on regional basis because of high costs.

SACHS — (See Page 11)

Dominic Taglienti

Builder. U.S. Navy Electrical Engineering School. Youth Advisory Board, YMCA; member, Rental Housing Association; past vice-president, Newton-East Little League and Newton Babe Ruth League; past president, Thompsonville Improvement Association.

OPEN SPACE: Yes. "I hear a lot in the city about our tax base. It may be time to sacrifice some of our tax base for open spaces to get a balance in the city."

HOUSING: Yes, about 120 units. We should not put a stigma on it by calling it "low-income housing." The Housing Authority could start by purchasing single or double lots on finished streets where there are no betterment costs, so there is no "hassle" to building this type of housing.

Mark White

(Alderman-at-large) Final year, B.U. Law School; Johns Hopkins University; founder B'nai B'rith Youth Chapter; executive committee Young Democrats of Massachusetts.

Nardone — (Continued from Page 3)

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "Over the years the School Committee has demonstrated fiscal irresponsibility. The most expensive school buildings do not necessarily make the best citizens."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "They should find out what the voters want and then strive to achieve it." City should be run like a business, and while it cannot make a profit, should not run in the red.

Jackson — (Continued from Page 3)

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: "My thoughts are still in formation and not yet clear. Need for regionalization cannot be separated from kinds of regional control, if the only available regional structure likely to be available is either inadequate, unresponsive or uncontrollable."

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. Limit annual rate of increase of cost per pupil to rate of increase in cost of living.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By trying to act like a service corporation which has to sell its services instead of like an authority.

Richmond (Continued from Page 3)

OPEN SPACE: Yes.

HOUSING: "I would suspect that more than 200 units are now needed . . . I would support the concept of low-income housing in two family homes in any location in the city which is currently zoned for two-family housing."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste disposal, because no one municipality can afford the costs necessary to incinerate according to state air-pollution standards. Also certain recreation facilities, such as conservation and wetland acquisitions, and transportation.

FISCAL AUTONOMY No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: In general by acting as a municipal, not a state–level, agency.

Morris — (Continued from Page 3)

HOUSING: "Ward 2 contribution: 8 units at 613 Watertown St., 20 units at Security Mills property, 4 units at 931-939 Washington St., 20 units on Maguire Ct., 12 units on site of Newton Junior College; 6 units at 360 Crafts St.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Collection and disposal of solid waste; purchasing, to achieve economies.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Not in favor of limiting. "Present system of electing School Committee gives the voter-taxpayer sufficient means of controlling irresponsible spending."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Should give the project area advisory committee veto power subject to reversal by unanimous vote of the authority. Neighborhood residency should be requirement for at least one Authority member.

HOUSING: Yes, but no one knows how much is enough. Scattered and kept unidentified within moderate income neighborhoods.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Specialized or impersonal services such as rubbish disposal or traffic control that can be provided more efficiently because of low demand from, or complex interfaces between, individual municipalities.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Favor limiting absolute autonomy only to direct educational expenditures and allowing other operational items cut by two-thirds vote of aldermen.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "Authority has been aloof and dictatorial. Must work closely with the people affected, listening to their concerns and applying sensitivity and responsiveness, plus willingness to make reasonable compromises."

Howard — (Continued from Page 3)

HOUSING: Newton should fulfill its obligation and present plan in providing the required low-housing in order to compete effectively for Revenue Sharing funds.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste — expanded beyone Newton-Waltham; Police and Fire services should not be considered at this time.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Providing the State Legislature would allow budget control, I would support limiting the fiscal autonomy of the School Committee.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Should implement programs for the citizens of Newton in order to inform them of the functions of the NRA and the issues before it.

Alderman-At-Large

Eliot Cohen

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Attorney, B.A. from UMass; J.D. & LL.M. in Taxation from B.U.; president of the Board of Alderman; former vice-president and chairman of the Legislation & Rules Committee; member Public Works and Street Traffic Committees.

OPEN SPACE: Yes, "subject to the terms and conditions of the acquisition itself and the nature and location of the space involved. "I do not favor a compounded $1 increase in the tax rate every year.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste; purchasing and storage of materials and supplies.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes, with reference to new construction, repairs and capital improvements of school buildings. Mayor and Board should have right to cut or eliminate the appropriation requested and School Committee should have the right to override the reduction by a two-thirds vote.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "By being sympathetic, understanding, and listening to the views of the neighborhood, together with the neighborhood councils organized for the specific redevelopment in question. Action taken by the Authority should be in conjunction with the views expressed by the neighborhood group."

Wendell Bauckman

(Alderman-at-large, incumbent) Sales representative and consultant; Norwich University, Boston University, president emeritus of the Board of Aldermen; member Finance and City Planning committees.

OPEN SPACE: Yes.

HOUSING: 200 units, scattered

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Rubbish disposal–to eliminate problems from fly ash.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

Leland White

(Alderman at large) College student. Boston University. Newton Coalition Steering Committee; president, Newton Youth for Change; Newton Fair Housing member.

OPEN SPACE: Yes. All existing open space should be purchased by the city and put into a land bank.

HOUSING: Yes. Townhouses (two or three units in each) could be built on land now occupied by condemned or abandoned structures.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Police, recreation, mass transportation, health and drop-in centers, public works, street and road maintenance, sewers and solid waste. More efficiency.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: "A more diverse set of members should be appointed to the NRA." Future appointments should be based on qualifications and "not patronage from the mayor."

Jefferson — (Continued from Page 3)

located provided sufficient space is available."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste, "provided reasonable means could be worked out that would satisfy both the needs and interests of the communities involved.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. I would do it similar to the way we fix other budgets, but with two exceptions: the Board of Aldermen should have authority to restore cuts made by the Executive Branch; and the authority to increase or decrease the budget by a three-fourths majority vote.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By making an honest effort to find out what the people want; by talking out differences that might exist; by involving as much of the neighborhood as possible in the planning stage; by proceeding with a mutually agreed plan consistent with good planning and adherence to governmental regulations.

Tennant — (Continued from Page 3)

OPEN SPACE: Yes. The City Planning Committee is now requesting funds for appraisal of 100 acres to be possibly acquired by 1975 by $1-2 million bond issue.

Impeachment Resolution

A resolution urging the Massachusetts congressional delegation to work for the impeachment of President Nixon and another asking its support of an appointment of an independent special prosecutor were passed this week by the aldermanic Legislation and Rules Committee.

The first, offered at last week's meeting of the full Board of Aldermen by Ald. Richard McGrath, failed to obtain a vote to suspend the rules and was thus referred to the L&R Committee.

In discussion this week, Ald. Louis Egelson advocated the amendment of McGrath's resolution to delete the alternative of resignation of the President.

McGrath's resolution states, "Whereas, the actions of President Nixon have developed a crisis in the government which is unprecedented of the history of the United States...

"Whereas, the actions of President Nixon indicate that he is not able to ease the crisis but is persisting on a course that seemingly can only result in disaster for the government of the United States...

"Be it resolved that we the Board of Aldermen of the City of Newton, reluctantly but urgently ask the Massachusetts delegation to the Congress of the United States to initiate and-or fully cooperate with the efforts which will result in the impeachment of President Nixon."

The original resolution was signed by 13 aldermen.

The second resolution, composed at the L&R Committee meeting, calls for the congressional delegation to support action "favoring the appointment of a special prosecutor for the Watergate grand juries, independent of the Executive branch, and that said prosecutor be so empowered with statutory authority to pursue this investigation freely and in lawful manner."

Another resolution, proposed several months ago by Ald. Robert Tennant, which would "give praise to those who labored to find the key to this new era of peace, honor, and hope," was denied 5-2 by the committee.

All items will be voted on at the Nov. 5 meeting of the Board of Aldermen.

Norris — (Continued from Page 9)

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Library, public works, incineration, leaf composting, transportation, water and sewer. Will "produce better efficiency and reduce costs."

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "No."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By closer communication with the residents affected "so that the authority can understand the problems and consequences of their action."

Fleurs des Siecles by Gorham

These exquisite floral arrangements of enameled and jewel-finished metal flowers have been designed by brilliant American designer Jane Hutcheson. Taking inspiration from 17th and 18th century Vincennes Porcelaine floral pieces, found now only in museums and private collections, she has created a new American art form of great value today--of greater value tomorrow.

Reminiscent of the jeweled treatment utilized by Faberge the great Russian court jeweler, in decorated enameled object d'art, each piece, each leaf and flower has been hand-assembled, handcrafted and hand-enameled.

Each flower and miniature jeweled cluster is mounted on slim gold plated wire, giving vibration to the arrangements which are created by artisans under the direction of Mrs. Hutcheson. Arrangements are color and style coordinated to fine containers reproduced from 18th century porcelains and crystal imported from all over the world.

The Fleurs des Siecles collection embraces all ages. Each arrangement in the presentation group is a work of artistic creativity. Truly an item for the collector of fine art.

Gorham is indeed proud to present Fleurs des Siecles.

Mad About Hats

Hats are back.

The current vogue of shorter, less teased hair has prompted the return of no-nonsense hats. Long a favorite, the fur kind that is so flattering is reappearing in both fake as well as the "real thing." Everything from fun hats to elegant satin turbans will protect ears and scalp from icy winds this winter.

Of course if you knit, you can whip up a pull-down head-hugger while watching your favorite television show. And if you happen to have two skeins of Bernat Berella Dreamspun (or a similar type yarn), a pair each of straight knitting needles Nos. 5 and 7 (or any size needles that will give the stitch guage given below Basic Rules) you might want to knit the following attractive head-hugger. But first, some basic knitting rules, courtesy Bernat Yarn:

Fashions By Ruth Lenson

BASIC RULES

Stitch Gauge

The term "Stitch Gauge" is the most important part of all knitting directions, since the sizing of any knitted garment is planned on this gauge. You MUST work to the gauge which is given or your finished work will not be the size indicated in the directions.

Stockinette Stitch

K 1 row, P 1 row alternately when working on straight needles. When working round and round on a circular needle or double point needles, knit every round.

Garter Stitch

Knit every row. It will take 2 rows to make 1 ridge.

Ribbing

On the first row work in the ribbing pattern given. On all other rows, K over K sts and P over the P sts.

To Slip A Stitch

Whenever the directions specify a sl st, always insert the right hand needle in the st to be slipped as if to P, unless otherwise indicated.

Joining Yarn

ALWAYS join a new ball of yarn at the beginning of a row.

Markers

When work specifies the use of a marker, use a small round paper clip for this purpose. In working, always slip this marker from one needle to the other.

HAT

GAUGE: 4 sts equal 1 inch 10 rows (5 ridges) equals 1 inch

Directions:

Using smaller needles and 2 strands of yard, cast on 100 sts. K 12 rows (6 ridges) in garter st. Change to larger needles and continue in garter st until piece measure 5 inches. SHAPE TOP: Row 1: *K8, K2 tog, repeat from * across row - 10 sts dec. Rows 2, 3 and 4: Knit. Row 5: * K7, K2 tog, repeat from across row - 10 sts dec. Rows 6, 7 and 8: Knit. Row 9: * K 6, K2 tog, repeat from * across row - 10 sts dec. Continue in this manner to dec 10 sts every 4th row until 10 sts remain. Break off yarn, leaving a 12 inch end. Pull yarn through remaining sts and draw up tightly. Sew seam.

Non-knitters can purchase these colorful knit hats for as little as a dollar, and a visit to your nearest Army-Navy store might net you an authentic French beret.

Sweaters being the most fashionable statement of the season, team nicely with big bulky knit caps or kitten-soft cashmere pull-ons. These styles are great worn with pants as well as skirts or dresses.

More tailored clothes call for the Great Gatsby era type little felt cloches and small brimmed hats. It's the tilt this year that makes hats look exciting.

There was a time when a visit to the millinery department meant that an anxious saleswoman hovered and finally felt compelled to tell you, "Sorry, but you've placed your hat too far off your face," and then painstakingly settled it carefully on the correct corner of your head.

Not any longer. It's up to you this year to pull the brim or cuff way down to your eyebrows, tilted rakishly or perched on the back of your head. As a matter of fact, the hat fabrics are so pliable you don't have to wear your hat the same way two days in a row.

The veil is in vogue again. It was first shown a year or so ago by Kenneth, the New York hair stylist king. He came up with a collection of hair and make-up "looks,"

Across The Kitchen Counter

Ruth Lenson

A recent letter from a reader bemoaned the fact that her raised coffee cakes came out like "lead" and that though she is married for nine years and is an excellent cook, she can't bake as she would like to, was "desperate" and would love to master the art of baking with yeast.

Cheer up! If you're patient, willing to follow simple directions, there is truly no reason at all why you can't produce golden loaves of bread and magnificent coffee cakes. If you are one of those who has never experimented with yeast baking, an exciting experience is in store for you. You will not only save on the family budget, you'll also enjoy one of the finest taste treats the world has to offer.

If you have an electric mixer, you can use it for beating in the first part of the flour (a spoon and strong arm can also do the job). Gone is the tricky step of dissolving active dry yeast in water; now yeast is added with the dry ingredients. Following are some typical questions and their answers:

QUESTION: Why are all yeast baking recipes vague regarding the measurements of flour?

ANSWER: A flour "range" is given rather than an exact amount because temperature and humidity affect flour's absorption of other ingredients. Use the least amount recommended and make additions gradually.

QUESTION: How do I know when I've added enough flour to make a "soft" dough?

ANSWER: You've added enough flour when the dough pulls away from the bottom and sides of the bowl. Adding too much flour results in a heavy baked product.

QUESTION: Kneading is a problem. How do I knead and when do I stop kneading?

ANSWER: Kneading is the energetic step that changes the dough from a soft, sticky mass into a satiny smooth, non-sticky, elastic ball. Stop kneading when the dough is at this stage—you will also see little blisters on the surface. Proper kneading technique consists of a "fold-push-turn" action. Form the dough into a round ball; use your fingers to fold half the dough toward you; then using the heels of your hands, push the folded dough away from you with a rolling motion. Give the dough a one-quarter turn on the board and repeat the folding and pushing. Kneading usually takes 5-10 minutes. As you knead, add only enough flour to keep the dough from sticking to the board and your hands. Knead firmly but do not tear the dough.

QUESTION: Where do I put the dough to rise?

ANSWER: Yeast doughs rise best between 80-85 degrees. If the kitchen is cool, set bowl of dough on a rack over hot water or put bowl of dough in SLIGHTLY PREWARMED oven (do not heat oven when bowl of dough is inside). CORNMEAL YEAST BREAD

5½ to 6 cups all purpose flour
1 cup yellow cornmeal
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
2 cups milk
¾ cup (1½ sticks) margarine
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs
melted margarine
sesame seeds (optional)

In a mixing bowl combine 2 cups flour, cornmeal and yeast. In a saucepan combine milk, margarine, sugar and salt; heat until warm (120-130 degrees). Add to flour mixture; add eggs. Beat ½ minute at low speed, scraping bowl constantly, then beat for 3 minutes at high speed. Add 1 cup flour and beat 1 minute longer. Stir in enough remaining flour to make a soft dough (dough will pull away from the bottom and sides of bowl). Turn onto lightly floured surface and knead 5-10 minutes or until smooth and satiny. Place in lightly oiled bowl, turning once to grease top. Cover with foil or plastic wrap and towel; let rise on a rack over hot water until doubled (about 1 hour) punch down; divide in half. On lightly floured surface roll each half into a 9x12-inch rectangle. Beginning with 9-inch edge, roll dough tightly; seal final seam well with thumbs. Place in two 9x5x3 inch greased loaf pans, seam down. Brush with melted margarine; sprinkle tops with sesame seed (if desired). Cover and allow to stand in warm place until doubled, about 1 hour. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 35-40 minutes, until loaves are golden brown. Turn out of pans onto wire rack to cool. Makes 2 loaves.

GOLDEN HONEY ROLLS

3¼ cups all purpose flour
1 pkg. active dry yeast
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
½ cup cooking oil
2 tablespoons honey
2 eggs (reserve 1 egg white)

TOPPING

one-third cup sugar
2 tablespoons margarine, softened
1 tablespoon honey
1 reserved egg white

Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup and level off. In large bowl, combine 1½ cups flour, yeast and salt. In saucepan, heat milk, oil and honey until very warm (120-130 degrees F.) Add liquid and eggs to flour mixture; blend at low speed until moistened. Beat for 3 minutes at medium speed. By hand stir in remaining 1¾ flour. Dough will be soft and sticky. Cover; let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size; 45-60 minutes. Generously grease two 8 or 9-inch round cake pans or a 13x9-inch pan. Stir down dough by beating for 30 seconds. Drop tablespoonfuls of dough side-by-side in single layer in prepared pans, making about 10 rolls per pan. Combine Topping ingredients and drizzle half over rolls. Cover; let rise again in warm place until doubled in size, 20-30 minutes. Drizzle remaining Topping over rolls before baking. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bake 25-30 minutes until golden brown. Immediately remove from pan. Makes about 20 rolls.

Another organization cookbook arrived, and it's a beauty! Compiled by the Easton Historical Society of Easton, Massachusetts and sent by Mr. Kenneth C. Barnes, Brighton, the cookbook is dedicated to Anna C. Ray Ames, born in Nantucket, 1840. In 1860 she married Oliver Ames 2nd who became the 35th Governor of Massachusetts. Some of her recipes are included, in her own handwriting, from her original cookbook started by her as a bride in 1860. Here is a sampling from the cookbook:

SESAME SHRIMP

¼ cup peanut oil
3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon honey
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
1 large clove garlic, crushed
1 pound uncooked jumbo shrimp, shelled and deveined
One-third cup toasted sesame seed

Combine 2 tablespoons peanut oil, lemon juice, soy sauce, honey, ginger and garlic. Mix well. Stir in shrimp. Cover and refrigerate for 2 hours, stirring once or twice. Heat remaining 2 tablespoons oil in a skillet over moderate heat. Fry shrimp 1½ to 2 minutes on each side, or until done. Dip each shrimp in toasted sesame seed, lightly coating each side. Place on heated serving platter. Serve hot. Serves 4-5.

We are indebted to Mrs. C. C., Walpole, who writes, "I am sending you a very old, rather homey dessert that has been in our family for ages, it seems. We serve it at our home on Sunday, after a heavy dinner.

SHERRY CUSTARD SAUCE

3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk, scalded
¼ cup sherry
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Beat egg yolks with sugar and salt. Blend in hot milk. Cook over hot, not boiling water until mixture coats a spoon. Stir now and then. Slowly beat in sherry. Remove from heat and stir in butter or margarine. Cool and serve over warm pudding.

Question: A friend recently returned from a visit to California, and she has raved about a dish called "Cioppino" (I think that is the spelling). I would really like to have this recipe because I know I won't be going to California. Thanks. — Mrs. B. C., West Roxbury Answer: One of California's most famous seafood concoctions is Cioppino, a savory fish stew with tomatoes, onions, garlic and herbs. The name, Cioppino, supposedly is a word coined by Italian fishermen who settled in the state and means "chopped a little." This highly seasoned seafood stew is similar to the bouillabaisse of France. A nice chunk of French bread is especially good for sopping up the last delicious drops of the broth.

CALIFORNIA CIOPPINO

½ cup (½ medium onion) chopped onion
2 tablespoons peanut oil
2 cups clam broth
2 cups peeled and chopped ripe tomatoes
1 cup chopped celery
1 carrot, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 bay leaves
½ pound shrimp, shelled and deveined
½ pound scallops
½ pound shucked oysters
1 can (6½ oz.) crabmeat

In a large saucepan saute onion in peanut oil. Add clam broth, tomatoes, celery, carrot, garlic, salt, mustard, oregano, paprika, and bay leaves. Simmer for 1 hour, stirring occasionally. Add shrimp, scallops and oysters. Simmer 10 minutes longer. Stir in crabmeat. Serve. Makes 12 1-cup servings.

Question: Would you please publish a recipe that would be considered a diabetic dessert? If it contains apples, I would be especially grateful. — D. D., Norwood

Answer: The following Apple Bread Pudding is: Food exchanges-serving: two-thirds meat, 1 fruit, ½ bread (carbohydrate, 16.8 grams; protein, 6.0 grams; fat, 3.2 grams) 114 calories per serving.

APPLE BREAD PUDDING

4 slices white bread
1½ cups reconstituted nonfat dry milk, scalded
4 eggs
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
Dash salt
Noncaloric sweetener to equal one-third cup sugar
1 medium apple, peeled, cored, and diced
One-third cup raisins

Toast bread on baking sheet in 350 degree oven till golden, about 10 minutes. Cut in ½-inch cubes. Turn into 8¼ x 1¾-inch round ovenware dish. Add hot milk, let stand for 15 minutes. Beat together eggs, cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, and noncaloric sweetener till light. Add apple and raisins; stir into bread mixture. Place in shallow baking pan; add hot water to larger pan to depth of ½ inch. Bake at 350 degrees till knife inserted off-center comes out clean, 30-35 minutes. Serve warm or chilled. Serves 8.

Our thanks to Mr. T. A., Needham, who writes: "I suppose everyone has his pet recipe for Scalloped Potatoes, and I'd like to submit mine in the hopes that your readers will enjoy them."

SCALLOPED POTATOES

4 medium sized potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced
1 green pepper, shredded
1 carrot, shredded
1 medium sized onion, chopped
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
Chopped parsley
Salt and pepper to taste
One-third cup shredded American cheese

In a well-greased 1½ quart casserole, arrange layers of potato slices, sprinkling each layer with green pepper, carrot, and onion. In a saucepan melt butter and blend in flour; add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and smooth. Add parsley; season with salt and pepper; pour over potatoes. Sprinkle with cheese; bake, covered, in a 350 degree oven about 45 minutes; uncover and bake 45 minutes longer or until potatoes are tender and cheese is delicately browned. Serves 4.

The gown's A-line skirt had scattered appliques of matching lace in a floral effect, a mock-flounce with lace trim, and a hemline trimmed with the same lace.

A matching full-length mantilla edged with Venice lace completed the total look, and she carried a cascade bouquet of small white roses.

Miss Lenora Picariello of Needham was the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Albert Corsetti of Belmont, sister of the groom, and Miss Paula Babcock of Needham.

Serving as best man was Kenneth Vlass of Newton, and ushers included Ron Dexter, brother of the bride; Fred Virgilio and Tom Gordon of Newton, and Albert Corsetti of Belmont. Jay Corsetti, nephew of the groom, was the ring bearer.

A beautiful Persian rug that will be a museum piece tomorrow.
An average Persian rug consists of 300 to 400 knots per square inch. You can just imagine how much time and effort a weaver puts into the weaving of such a beautiful rug. Persian rugs make better investments than stocks. The Dow Jones Averages showed that for the past two years, very few stockholders made a profit on their investments. A few of the Blue Chip stocks registered an annual increase in yield of 5% to 10% but because of inflation, the investors still suffered a loss.

"Good Evening" A Funny Revue

Peter Cook is the tall one and Dudley Moore is the short one and it would be hard to figure which is the funnier. Peter looks as if he came from good respectable farmers who carried their produce to the village market once a month. But he was educated at Radley College and Pembroke College, Cambridge, and was made president of the famous Cambridge Footlights Club in 1959. He even wrote two London shows while he was at college.

Dudley might have worked his way up from being a humble call boy in a provincial repertory theatre yet he won a scholarship to the elite Magdalen (pronounced Maudlin if you live in London) College at Oxford. Veering from a serious study of the organ to jazz, Dudley became interested in show business. And in 1959 Moore and Cook joined forces, and, with Jonathan Miller and Alan Bennett, wrote and performed "Beyond the Fringe" which ran four years in London and three years in New York, Boston, Toronto and a couple of other cities east of the Mississippi. They liked New York too much to go any farther West.

Now they are in this country again, in "Good Evening," a revue which has had a two weeks prior to Broadway showing at the Shubert and which they wrote with the idea of wowing two continents once more.

"But can you make this revue into a film?" I asked curiously, knowing that both of the gentlemen have had movie experience. They really don't know yet. Play it by ear, they answer, and then see. Very few revues have been able to bridge the great differences between the two mediums.

"If this becomes a motion picture we'll have to write it ourselves and that would take too long," complained Peter. "Some of the present material might become outdated."

They have no intention of poking fun at Watergate in their show. "It's much funnier on TV, day by day," says Dudley. "Nothing we could write in jest would be half as amusing as the truth. So why try."

Together they played motor car racers in Ken Annakin's elaborate comedy "Monte Carlo Bust" and the picture laid a very large egg. But Federico Fellini became enamored of Peter, whose face he said, must be in his next film.

"I asked him what the film was about," said Peter, somewhat flattered. "Fellini said the subject matter meant nothing. I asked him what role I was to play, and did I wear a costume or was I to play the part nude. He replied that none of these things mattered in the least. I was a Fellini type and that was that."

"Then he asked for my birth date. When I told him he reacted with horror. 'You are a Scorpio,' he screamed. I can never work with a Scorpio.'

"So that's the reason why I didn't appear in 'Satyricon' which was a disappointment. I'd like to have worked with Fellini."

"Bedazzled and "The Wrong Box" made in England, won them a large cinema public in the more sophisticated cities like London and Edinburgh. But it's their satirical revue humour which has made them a sure success in Australia.

Discussing the differences between English and American audiences, as well as Australians, the two men think the Aussies and the Yanks show their enthusiasm a little more than the English. In Australia, however, if they don't like your act, they let you know loudly. "The Americans are politer, like the English," the actors commented.

The two comedians are near of an age - Peter was born in 1937 and Dudley in 1935. For press purposes they wrote biographies of each other, which is new in theatrical circles but refreshing. Publicity men display little humour in their praise pieces.

According to Dudley Peter would like to be Elvis Presley above all men, has ripped out the front seats of his battered Citroen to indicate to his public that he is a man of simple tastes, and spends his spare time playing the horses or improving his golf game.

In return, Peter says that Dudley probably bribed his way into Oxford, where mingling with his betters resulted in an effete upper class accent; that he studied women with the same enthusiasm he gave to music, and that Mae West was his ideal of true womanhood.

"Like may smallish men - Napoleon and Hitler to name two - Dudley has a superficial charm and warmth that deceives many. Underneath there lurks a demented sadist, capable in private of unspeakable deeds. It is my personal belief that his secret ambition is to initiate World War Three," is how Cook writes of Moore.

"Good Evening" was brought to Boston by Alexander H. Cohen and Bernard Delfont. Cohen has made a specialty of presenting this type of show - and his successes include "An Evening With Mike Nichols and Elaine May," "Maurice Chevalier at 77" and Marlene Dietrich's One Woman Show.

Cinema Capsule

SIDDHARTHA is as beautiful a film as ever brought to the United States from India. Exquisite is a word you don't often see today except to describe jewelry or certain forms of art—it is seldom used in the cinema world. Yet it is the perfect description of this picture.

Based on the idealistic and philosophical book by Herman Hesse, Nobel prize winner from Germany, the picture won the Silver Lion award at the 1966 Venice Film Festival with a cast headed by Shashi Kapoor and Simi Garewal, the most successful and beloved of the native Indian players. Their acting together is poignant and passionate, as they become lovers and finally separate when Siddhartha leaves his worldly joys to turn back to his former quest for soul peace. Some of the most magnificent palaces in Bharatput were lent to Conrad Rooks, the producer, director and adaptor of the work. Especially effective are the scenes of a trek through the forests by the holy men, called Sadhus. This part of the picture is wholly authentic.

Combining spiritual values with photographic loveliness, the story follows the life of a young Brahmin who discovers, after his hair has turned gray and his body has become bent through hard physical labor, that there are no gurus who can teach others what life means. You must find out meaning and peace inside yourself.

Ski Swap At Blue Hills This Weekend

The Massachusetts Junior Ski Club will be holding its second annual 128 Ski Swap at the Blue Hills Ski Area this Saturday and Sunday, November 3 and 4. Over 4,000 items of new and used ski equipment, clothing, and other ski items have been lined up for the occasion—all at bargain prices.

The purpose of the ski swap, according to a club spokesman, is to allow people to come and buy and sell used, but good, ski equipment. Youngsters especially outgrow their equipment in a year or two and can sell their outgrown equipment while buying some new equipment that fits.

To be sure that everyone will find what they need the club, which sponsors a complete skiing program including lessons, transportation, and supervision for local youngsters, has lined up truck loads of new and used equipment from various sources.

The swap will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days and is open to everyone.

Sisterhood Plans Season

Sisterhood of Temple Shalom of Newton is planning a new fall schedule and will begin the season with a paid up member luncheon to be held in the social hall on Wednesday, November 7 at 11:30 a.m. A full course, home cooked gourmet luncheon will be served and will be followed by an informal presentation by Pat Mitchell, entertainment critic of WBZ-TV.

Paid up members are invited as guests and may make reservations by calling Mrs. Albert Meltzer (332-1334) or Mrs. Lee Fentin (332-1406). For non member guests the charge will be $2 per person.

On November 28 at 10:30 a.m. an open board meeting will be held for members. There will be a business meeting which will begin promptly at 9:30 a.m. to be followed by guest speaker Betty Green, author of SUMMER OF MY GERMAN SOLDIER. Coffee will be served and Mrs. Henry Kharfen, president, will be held on Tuesday mornings at 9:30 November 20 and 27 and December 4 and 11. Rabbi Murray I. Rothman will be the group leader and the subject will be "Job: the Man, the Myth, the Form and the Faith."

The Sisterhood has reopened its Thrift Shop located in the carriage house on Myrtle Street for the twentieth consecutive year.

Armenian Churches To Mark 75th Anniversary

Armenian Churches in Eastern Massachusetts will mark the 75th anniversary of the founding of the Armenian Church Diocese of America with an ecumenical church service of praise and thanksgiving on Thursday, Nov. 8 at 8 p.m. at the Holy Trinity Armenian Church of Greater Boston, 145 Brattle st., Cambridge.

Presiding at the church service will be Most Rev. Archbishop Torkom Manoogian, Diocesan Primate of the Armenian Church of America. Participating in the church service will be leaders of Roman Catholic, Orthodox and Protestant churches and denominations.

The combined choirs of the Armenian Churches of Eastern Massachusetts, under the direction of Very Rev. Oshagan Minasian, director of the Erevan Choral Society, will take part in the services.

After the church service there will be a public reception in the Holy Trinity Armenian Church Cultural Hall.

The Council of Armenian Churches of Eastern Massachusetts composed of the Holy Trinity (Cambridge), St. James (Watertown), Holy Cross (Lawrence), Sts. Vartanantz (Lowell), and St. Gregory the Illuminator (Haverhill) Churches, under the chairmanship of James Derderian of Methuen is sponsoring the ecumenical church service.

Fr. Papken Maksoudian, pastor of the Holy Trinity Armenian Church of Greater Boston, is chairman of the committee for the ecumenical church service.

The Diocese of the Armenian Church of America was erected in 1898 by His Holiness, Mgrditch I, Catholicos of All Armenians. At the time of its founding, the Armenian Church of America had ecclesiastical jurisdiction over Armenian Church faithful in all of the Western Hemisphere, including North and South America.

In spite of the vast area included in its jurisdiction, the Diocese in 1898 numbered but a few thousands faithful and only one church in Worcester, Massachusetts.

At the present time the Armenian Church Diocese of America has been divided into three autonomous dioceses in New York, Los Angeles, and Buenos Aires with a combined total of over 300,000 adherents and over sixty churches.

Prescription Parents Plan November Meeting

Prescription Parents, Inc., a parent-to-parent group for parents of children born with cleft lip and-or palate, is planning its Nov. 8 meeting to be held at the Plaza Room of the Basic Pediatric Science Research Building at Children's Hospital Medical Center, 320 Longwood Avenue, Boston.

Dr. George Gifford, associate in surgery, Division of Plastic Surgery, Children's Medical Center Hospital, Harvard Medical School, will be the guest speaker, addressing himself to the topic, "Cleft Lip and Palate — the Fourth Dimension." Dr. Gifford particularly is addressing himself to the fourth dimension of growth, the effects of growth upon appearance in the child and young adult.

Prescription Parents, Inc. was founded late in 1972 and has been holding regular monthly meetings for parents and interested professionals since March, 1973. The group welcomes new members at any time; there is no membership charge.

In addition to monthly meetings, which are usually organized around guest speakers, Prescription Parents offers a Big Sister-Big Brother program whereby parents share information, ideas, and problems with other parents from their local area to better understand and help their children.

Many parents have formed committees to research educational services and funding availabilities for children affected with these defects, the second most common major congenital birth defect in the United States.

Prescription Parents has been most fortunate in the time and service given by members of the medical community; serving on the group's Medical Advisory Board are prominent physicians from New England Medical Center, where the group first formed, Children's Medical Center Hospital, Massachusetts General Hospital, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Beth Israel Hospital, among others.

The officers of the group are Mrs. Donald Delaney of Marshfield, founder; Mrs. Donald J. MacDonald, Jr., of Watertown, president; Mrs. Richard J. Carey, of Quincy, vice president; Mrs. Lois C. LaBonte, of Quincy, secretary; and Mrs. Robert L. McGrath, of West Roxbury, treasurer.

Information about Prescription Parents and about the upcoming meeting is available by calling 482-3396 or by writing P. O. Box 855, Quincy, Mass. 02169.

Boston Ballet Soc. Plans After Performance Party

The Boston Ballet Society announced that its traditional Friday-after-performance party will be held on Nov. 9 at the Back Bay Railroad Station. It is dedicated to Italy and the Italo-Americans.

"We have not had enough space to accomodate all the party-goers in the past, this will be no problem this time. We want the evening to become a grande ballo which everybody can enjoy, friends of the ballet, friends of the South End, and Italians alike," said Miss Betty Gibson who heads the steering committee.

Other members of the steering committee are Contessa Maria di Carpenetto, Dr. Robert Bertolli, Councillor Gerald O'Leary, Mrs. Albert Pagliarulo, Mr. Gino Cappelletti, and Mrs. Frederick Davino.

They prepare to turn the Back Bay Station into a fiesta hall. There's Italian cuisine, and the guests, dancers, and the leaders of the Italian community will join in dancing to Italian music. Dancers Mr. and Mrs. (Laura Young) Tony Catanzaro are being welcomed back to Boston.

This Italian serata is sponsored by the Boston Ballet Society, a non-profit organization devoted to further social contacts and to promote and support the Ballet Company. Under Mrs. William J. O'Reilly's energetic presidency, the Ballet Society is enjoying unprecedented success and popularity.

For earlier in the evening at the Music Hall Theatre, Miss E. Virginia Williams, artistic director of the Ballet Company, has devised a program which is both the opening of the Boston Ballet's tenth anniversary season and a bow to Italy and its cultural contributions to the world. "Tarantella" is presented for the first time by the Boston Ballet to Boston audiences and "Donizetti Variations" is a classic, choreographed to Donizetti music.

For season tickets to the ballet call Liz Dunton at 542-3945. For reservations to the Italian party at the Back Bay Station on Nov. 9 call Betty Gibson at 262-1245.

Q. Last night I received a long distance telephone call from a land company in Florida that wanted to sell me commercial property and indicated that, at a minimum, I could expect a 20 per cent annual return on my money. This didn't sound right to me. Is there any place I can check it out?

A. You bet! Any land development corporation selling over 50 lots using any means of interstate commerce must register with the Housing and Urban Development Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration. HUD will send you a Property Report on any registered property for $2.50. The address is Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration, Department of Housing and Urban Development, 451 7th Street, S.W., Washington, D. C. 20410.

Q. I bought our home on a 30-year GI mortgage. An aunt died recently leaving me a small windfall. Is there some way I can use this to pay down on my mortgage?

A. Very definitely. You may partially or fully pay off your GI mortgage at anytime ahead of schedule provided payments are for not less than one monthly payment or $100 which ever is less.

Q. The new safety tops on aspirin bottles are a great safeguard against nosey children exploring cupboards. Will all drugs be required to have safety caps?

A. Ten product categories have been ordered to provide safety closures. The ten were selected as the ones most frequently the cause of accidental poisoning of young children. These ten include all prescription drugs, with few minor exceptions, as well as a wide variety of toxic substances commonly found in the house.

Q. Are any provisions made for product safety legislation on the state and local levels?

A. One of the functions of the Consumer Product Safety Commission is to provide for state legislatures "model bills" concerning product safety regulations. A good example of this was the Safety Glazing Legislation recently passed in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island. This brings to 26 the number of states that have passed the new regulations on both patio doors and tub and shower enclosures.

Q. Among my father's last effects was a certificate for 100 shares of Delta Prime Construction Inc., a Delaware corporation, dated January 6, 1923. Does this stock have any value?

A. The Security Exchange Commission recommends you contact the Secretary of State of Delaware as to the status of this corporation. There is a series of publications available called Fisher's Defunct Corporations that might have pertinent information. We know there is a copy in the Kirstein Library, 20 City Hall Annex, Boston.

Q. Does the Coast Guard conduct public boating education courses?

A. Yes, the Boating Safety Division of the First Coast Guard District says that the Coast Guard Auxiliary conducts free public education boating courses each fall and spring. In Boston, call 223-3607.

Q. I'm a small suburban businessman who is solicited frequently for ads in newspapers and police-fire association journals I never heard of. I want to do the right thing but how can I be sure?

A. Ask the solicitor if he has approval of the Better Business Bureau and the Board of Trade, then check yourself. In the Boston area recently, ads were "lifted" from a legitimate Police Association's annual edition and mailed to the firms with the note, "Enclosed is suggested copy for publication in the official Police Journal." The second "publication" was a phoney.

Q. How can a guy enjoy the role of a consumer when he hasn't even got a job? I just got out of the Army after serving two years in the Medical Corps. Any advice?

A. Check your states MEDIHC program — Medical Experience Directed Into Health Careers. They'll help you on job prospects as well as training and educational opportunities available to you. In Massachusetts: George T. Card, Mass. Hospital Association, 5 New England Executive Park, Burlington.

Published monthly by the Boston Federal Executive Board. Please direct all queries to Boston Federal Executive Board, Room 2200, John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Boston, MA 02203.

The Historical Board of St. Margaret's Hospital Centennial Committee is seeking the public's help in preparing for the hospital's 100th Anniversary, being celebrated throughout 1974.

Do you think you have the most generations born at St. Margaret's? Are you the oldest person living who was born at the hospital? # Salvation Army Proves Its Value

The fire which destroyed over 18 blocks in Chelsea and which left at least 1,000 people homeless is rightly considered a disaster of major proportions. Such a disaster puts the ability and effectiveness of relief agencies to a most severe test. On the speed and type of response hang the lives and well-being of people faced with overwhelming tragedy.

The Chelsea fire broke out a little before 4 p.m. on Sunday, October 14. By midnight, according to Major William Hulteen, Chelsea Salvation Army head, an estimated 675 gallons of coffee, 200 gallons of soup, 5,000 sandwiches, and 200 dozen donuts had been served by The Salvation Army through the Chelsea headquarters and seven mobile canteens.

This was just the beginning. The Chelsea Corps Community Center, at the corner of Fifth and Chestnut streets, has been a constant beehive of activity ever since. No one has stopped working; the door has never been locked; the telephone never stops ringing. Open 24 hours each day for the duration of the present emergency, every effort will be made to serve every need of every person, according to Major Hulteen.

Appeals broadcast over Massachusetts radio and television stations and printed in newspapers brought an immediate response from a shocked public. Contributions from corporate giants sending truckloads of food and clothing were nearly overshadowed by literally thousands of ordinary men and women bringing a shopping bag or box loaded with as much as—or possibly more than—they could spare.

Salvation Army state-wide resources, under the direction of Major Paul Thompson, divisional secretary, were thrown into the battle. Personnel and vehicles from across the state were put on the scene. Volunteers, officers, and employees worked side-by-side, packing groceries, making sandwiches and serving coffee. Open around the clock, the state headquarters located at 147 Berkeley street, is the nerve center for a massive relief operation which is expected to continue for many days to come.

Maj. Thompson, speaking for The Salvation Army—in Chelsea and throughout the state—noted that although the fire may be out, the emergency is not yet over. Many long hard hours of work must yet pass before all the families are resettled in a new home, resupplied with food, clothing, furniture—ready to start over again. "The response from the community," Maj. Thompson notes, "has been truly heartwarming. It is good to know how many people are really interested and concerned over the welfare of their fellow men. And it is good to know that we can rely on the support of the people of Massachusetts to help The Salvation Army get the job done."

United Way Reaches 51% Of Its Goal

The United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign has reached 51 per cent of its $14,500,000 goal, it was reported to 400 volunteer campaign workers at the UW's third luncheon meeting at the Sheraton Boston Hotel on Friday noon, Oct. 26.

Campaign chairman George B. Rockwell' urged all volunteers to maintain the pace of the drive so that victory will be assured at the final meeting on November 15th and "services to people" will continue.

Frank Maher, president of John Hancock Insurance Co., Pacesetter chairman, reported 84.9 percent of goal.

A highlight of the meeting was a skit by the "Raytheon Players," who converted the famed "three little pigs" story into a campaign technique. Employees at Raytheon's Waltham plant reported campaign contributions of $128,000 this year, compared to $92,000 last year.

The United Way's next campaign report meeting will be on Friday, November 2.

Junior Ski Club Announces Winter Program

The Massachusetts Junior Ski Club announced that its winter ski program for local youngsters between the ages of 9 and 17 will continue again this year.

The skiing program which includes ski lessons, transportation, and supervision is now in its fifth year. Buses will pick up the skiers and their supervisors at convenient pick up points in Norwood, Dedham, Newton and Needham early each Saturday or Sunday morning, bring them to the New Hampshire ski areas for a day of skiing and instruction, and return home early the same evening.

All instructions are given by professional ski instructors at the ski area and ranges according to ability from beginners to racing and "hot dog" courses. The program is open to all youngsters in the local and surrounding area. Individuals interested in getting more information on the program may call the club in Needham at 449-3074.

Student Rate At The N. E. Aquarium

One dollar plus an I.D. admits any college student to the New England Aquarium between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, except holidays.

In announcing the all-day student rate, John H. Prescott, managing editor of the Aquarium, noted that "the Aquarium is not only a recreational facility, but also a serious research and education institution." He added that by providing a special rate, it is hoped that every college student will be able to visit the Aquarium.

Free movies are shown weekdays in the lecture room at 2:30 p.m. The movie of the week for Oct. 29 is titled "The Sea." The following week, "Venomous Animals of the Sea" will be shown.

OPEN SPACE: Yes.

HOUSING: Yes. In excess of 200 units on sites like the Division of Instruction site on Chestnut Street.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Should be studied in connection with police, fire and schools. At least partial regionalization could be achieved in each of these areas.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By having neighborhood people both on the authority and in participation with it.

Cabot PTA Awards Chefs

On Saturday, Oct. 27, the Cabot School PTA sponsored a baking contest for the students in the school gymnasium.

All entries were baked and decorated by the students and included such items as bread pretzels, warm cookies, piano cake, eclairs, and mini-cherry cheese cakes.

A grand prize was given to the baked item judged superb on the basis of taste, decoration, and originality. It was awarded to Sean Feeney, 7, who baked a butter pecan pumpkin faced cake.

Other winners were Hope Kirschner, first prize; Andy White, second prize and Charlotte Wiig, third prize; in the K-one to second grades.

In the third and fourth grades the winners were Andrea Walker, first prize; Elizabeth Gancer, second prize; Gabrielle Reyes, third prize.

Fifth and sixth grade winners were Laura Witt, first prize; Noreer and Evelin Carson, second prize; Meri Kriendel, third prize.

The PTA will hold a cake sale outside the school gymnasium on election day, Nov. 6. Coffee will also be available for the voters.

Guzzi Upholds School Freedom

Rep. Paul H. Guzzi (D-Newton) spoke recently before the ninth Annual Joint Conference of Massachusetts Association of School Committees and School Superintendents in Hyannis.

Rep. Guzzi, a member of the Committee on Education, expressed concern over the threat to fiscal autonomy of local school committees especially due to an initiative petition drive by the so-called "10 Men of Massachusetts."

Rep. Guzzi pointed out "the real issue is tax reform. Costs in every municipal sector are growing enormously. The solution lies in finding suitable alternatives to the property tax as the basis for raising municipal revenue.

"At a time when cutbacks in Federal education dollars are being made by an administration which has shown an obvious unwillingness to support critical programs affecting our children, we must implement the recommendations of the Master Tax Plan Commission to shift reliance away from the local property tax." Guzzi said.

Rep. Guzzi also said "The proposed initiative petition drive is an excellent opportunity for those legitimately concerned with education to take the issue of fiscal autonomy to the people in every community in the State."

"However, to shift the decision making process to another group of local government officials because the costs of education are soaring avoids the real issue. Local school committees are elected by the people and are directly responsible to them for control over the schools," he added.

Rep. Guzzi concluded by pointing out "we must recognize, however, that fiscal autonomy is not the solution to the state fiscal crisis. We must work to solve this problem through legitimate tax reform."

Ward 3

Richard J. Bullwinkle

(Alderman, incumbent) Manager, medical electronics; B.S. and B.A. degrees from Boston College and Bentley; graduate, Raytheon Management School; member, Finance Legislation & Rules, Education, Cable TV, Drugs & Kenrick Fund committees.

OPEN SPACE: Yes. "The 'land bank' acquisitions will be of much more value in the future if purchased now."

HOUSING: Yes. At least 100 units of low-income housing; the larger need is for moderate income housing. Locations should be scattered and built on "renewable" sites rather than open sites.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: "Some matching of specific committees with specific functions." Solid waste (larger than just Waltham); possibly a Public Safety Region and possible Recreation.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. But if Schopl Committee is unresponsive to citizen's needs, would work diligently for candidates who are responsive.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Be aware of those needs, requirements and desires of the renewal community and respond within reason.

Paul K. Daley

OPEN SPACE: I question the arbitrary figure of $1. "The acquisition of open land is important, but the priorities of any such purchase should be weighed against the impact on the tax rate and taxpayers."

HOUSING: Supports low-income family housing for those Newton residents who need and legitimately qualify for it. "Locations should be based on consultation with the neighborhood involved."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste; "mutal aid assistance by Fire and Police departments is a form of regionalization in which the autonomy of Newton is protected."

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. "Savings may be realized by careful scrutiny of other school related expenses not contained in the annual operating budgets."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: Recent changes in NRA eased relations between it and neighborhood. "Use of local advisory units can assure a minimum of friction."

Ward 4

Leonard Frisoli

(Alderman) Attorney. B.S. in finance from B.C., B.C. law school; Knights of Columbus, Mass. and Middlesex bar associations; former assistant district attorney for Middlesex County; faculty Boston College School of Management.

OPEN SPACE: I cannot summarily favor such an increase to Newton's already high tax rate. Favor outright purchase of such land if fiscally responsible and look toward bonding for such purposes only if necessary.

HOUSING: Present policy of awarding 10 per cent of new multiple dwelling construction Housing Authority and leased housing program should be given an opportunity to succeed.

FRISOLI — (See Page 30)

Richard J. McGrath

(Alderman, incumbent) Irrigation contractor. Attended Boston College. Member, aldermanic Lane Use, Public Buildings, and Franchises & Licenses Committees.

OPEN SPACE: Open areas given high priority by Conservation Commission should be acquired or protected by the city. There are other ways besides acquisition to protect this land, but if left with no other choice, would vote for the $1 addition.

HOUSING: "200-300 multibedroom units scattered throughout the city."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste, public works, some areas of mental health care, but must be handled better than our present attempt at a solid-waste district.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "No, but I would encourage the establishment of a Committee of overseers . . .to constantly. . .evaluate actions."

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By allowing the people in the affected areas real participation with the authority.

Ward 5

Susan Schur

(Alderman) Housewife. B.A., Goucher College. Secretary, Newton Democratic City Committee; former vice-chairman Newton Fair Housing; former vice-chairman Newton Americans for Democratic Action; Ward 5 Democratic Committee.

OPEN SPACE: Yes, but reallocate funds if possible. The least we can pay to ensure a good quality of life in future.

SCHUR — (See Page 30)

Edward Uehlein

(Alderman, incumbent) Lawyer. Bowdoin College, Harvard University Law School. Past president, PTA Council; Newton Community Council; director, Newton Community Service; member, aldermanic Finance and City Planning Committees.

OPEN SPACE: Wants to acquire open spaces, but not sure about setting $1 limit.

HOUSING: Yes. "I have stated

Rotarians Induct Members

At their meeting on Oct. 19, at Valle's Steak House, the Rotary Club of Chestnut Hill inducted two new members, football coach Houston Antwine and Hans Lorentzen, dean at Boston College.

Past President Sid Lee presented the new Rotarians certificates of membership and outlined their responsibilities to the club and community.

The speaker at the meeting was Attorney John Kerrigan, member of the Boston School Committee. He described some of the problems of education in the core city.

On Oct. 12, the club was addressed by John Hayden of the Rotary Club of Boston. He spoke on "Environmental Impact and Ecology."

On Oct. 5, Sam Tyler of "Mass-Action" described some of their work in bringing fiscal responsibility to the state legislature and discouraging the abuse of political power.

Chestnut Hill Rotary will have a "Ladies' Night" on Nov. 11, at the Chateau DeVille in Randolph.

You can learn a lot about how your cigarette will smoke.

Cut open one of your cigarettes. Look at the shape the tobacco's in.

The shorter and choppier the tobacco, the harsher it'll smoke.

Now, look into a Kent.

We blend 24 premium tobaccos and carefully cut them into longer and more uniform strands, so they smoke more evenly.

That's important.

Because with a nice even smoke, you get the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Transcript Feature Writer Speaks To Woman's Clubs

SYLVIA ROSENFELD

Sylvia Rosenfeld of Westwood, Transcript Newspapers feature writer and public relations consultant, addressed the Fall Conference of the Massachusetts State Federation of Woman's Clubs on Monday, Oct. 29, at Bentley College, Waltham. More than 400 women attended the event.

Speaking on "How to Build Membership through Public Relations," Mrs. Rosenfeld addressed the group with her associate, Mrs. Eleanor Mamber of Waban, with whom she founded M-R Communications three years ago.

Since its inception, the agency has provided public relations and advertising services to social agencies, hospitals and businesses throughout Massachusetts.

Prior to the formation of the young agency, Mrs Rosenfeld was associated with Ginn and Company, textbook publishers; several advertising agencies; and Pariseau's of Manchester, New Hampshire, where she served as advertising manager. She is also a free lance feature columnist with the Transcript Publications.

Mrs. Rosenfeld lives at 73 Whitewood road with her husband, Richard, and their two children, Carolyn, 12, and Nancy, 9.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

About 32,000 pesticide products, made from one or more of about 900 chemical compounds, are registered with the Environmental Protection Agency.

Residues from these insecticides, herbicides, plant growth regulators, rodenticides, bactericides, and fungicides appear regularly in our food.

In addition, thousands of other chemicals are added intentionally to our food, in the form of presevatives, food coloring, sweetners, thickening agents, artificial flavoring, synthetic emulsifiers, the growth hormones and antibiotics fed to animals, etc.

And some of the best parts of the food such as the nutritious portion of the whole grains, are frequently processed out.

Although various government agencies monitor additives or residues and set legal tolerance limits, no one evaluates all the chemical accumulation or knows how all these chemicals, working together, may affect us over a lifetime.

Trying to feed a family nourishing food without an overdose of unknown chemicals is complicated enough to drive a housewife to total frustration.

Having wandered through several complicated, and sometimes contradictory articles and books on such subjects, I recommend a very brief, sensible leaflet just published by Concern, Inc., as the simplest guide to minimizing the family's intake of the "chemical feast."

It is impossible for any American to exist without eating strange chemicals along with the food, but by avoiding certain foods and highly suspect chemicals, and by eating natural, unprocessed foods one can lessen the dangers.

Two changes now being proposed would help the housewife greatly in choosing food wisely. One is complete ingredient labeling, not now required by law in such common foods as bread, ice cream, jam, mayonnaise, soft drinks, hot dogs, etc. At present, even if lists of ingredients are given on these items, the lists do not have to be complete . . . and naturally a food manufacturer is tempted to list only those which make the product seem attractive.

Regulations to increase the responsibility and effectiveness of the Food and Drug Administration in monitoring the safety of our food supply are also being considered at the present time. Concern says, "There is no need for a national food policy, coordinated between the Food and Drug Administration, the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, the Department of Agriculture, the Federal Trade Commission and the Environmental Protection Agency—a policy which will deal with present and future human health as it relates to the safety and quality of food."

For a copy of the brief guide to food, chemicals, and health, send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Eco-Tips No. 6," Concern, Inc., 2233 Wisconsin Ave., N. W., Washington, D. C. 20007.

Mad About Hats

and wrapped each hairdo with a veil. The veils consisted of large dramatic squares of netting in black, bright red or blue, wrapped into unique shapes around the head.

According to Kenneth, a veil imparts mystery, leaving in its wake a haunting image. Behind the veil Kenneth styled the hair softly. It is a small head shape with the look of thickness and body to the hair. He also stated that women are more interested in hair health because they understand that hair need not be teased into concoctions or a "scouring pad" look and that the neckline need not be "squared off" or shaved up the back in a masculine manner.

The newest veils produce a dramatic emphasis—hats with veils say it boldly—no wispy bits of veiling but bold beautiful designs. For example, Dior's casual mohair knit tam is stiffly veiled . . . Giorgio di Sant 'Angelo's night look includes a glittery rhinestone cloche with full chin-length sooty black veiling . . . Frank Olive's white envelope fedora is banded in black grosgrain with chalk white veiling.

The little black dress is back, accessorized with crystal jewelry or pearls. This look calls for a bit of glitter such as a Lurex turban or satin cloche.

Suggested for the smaller woman, the profile with a flip brim; the turban calls for good cheekbones; the fuller irregular line brim camouflages a large jaw and small brims do wonders for a narrow forehead.

Day or night women will be wearing hats not only because they're an "in" fashion but because they're warm and comfy.

N.A.A. Lions Win League Title

The N.A.A. Lions won their first League crown since its inception five years ago by walloping the Arlington Spy Ponders 22-8.

The Suburban Pop Warner entry was facing a sky-high Arlington outfit who was playing for a last ditch effort for first place. The loss was Arlington's 2nd of the season and was perhaps their most emotional of the season.

The Lions took the opening kickoff and marched to the Arlington 27 where the drive stalled. After the Lions punt was downed on the 9, Arlington advanced the ball out to the 27 where the Lions defense really popped the ball carrier causing a fumble and a recover for the Blue and Gold. Halfback Rich Proia and fullback Rich Filler took turns bulling the ball down to the 2 where Filler cashed in behind the blocks of John Kane, Andy Toyias and Mike Hernandez. Proia attempted the points after touchdown, but was cut down short of the goal line.

On the first play following the kickoff, Arlington reeled off their biggest gainer of the half, an 18 yard reverse. The play carried to the Lion 35, where tackle Joe Donoghue hauled down the ball carrier.

When Arlington was unable to move on two successive plays, they attempted to pass and tackle Joe Donoghue made an unassisted sack for a 13 yard loss and a punting situation. That threat was the biggest Arlington could muster in the first half.

The Lions didn't score until there were just 28 seconds left in the half, but launched the scoring drive from their own 45 well inside the three minute mark.

Proia carried for 4 yards and got out of bounds stopping the clock. Halfback Paul Butters carried for 11 more yards behind the trap block of guard Andy Toyias, halfback Rich Proia hit end Shawn Daley with a seven yard pickup on the sideline stopping the clock. A big break came when Quarterback Brian Kinsella threw a deep post pattern to Proia who was knocked down resulting in a pass interference call and a 1st down at the Arlington 26.

Then on the first down play Proia carried for 22 yards to the four. The play was made possible by the excellent blocking of guard Jim Schmidlein, tackle Mike Hernandez, halfback Paul Butters and Shawn Daley, fullback Rich Filler and quarterback Brian Kinsella.

However, Proia was stopped for a no-gain and Brian Kinsella managed one yard on a sneak. Then Rich Proia tallied from the three. Kinsella rushed the extra point and the Lions took a 14-0 lead at halftime.

The third period saw no team gaining any significant advantage, although the Lions had one long drive snuffed out at the Arlington 35. Late in the third period defensive halfback Jim Quinn was detected for pass interference.

In the opening moments of the fourth period the Arlington quarterback threw a hurried pass due to an excellent charge of tackle Mike Hernandez. Monsterback Brian Kinsella tipped the ball and halfback Jim Quinn intercepted bringtin the ball out to the N.A.A. Lion 42, though the drive stalled at the Arlington 41, the Lions punted and downed the ball at the Arlington 28.

The biggest run of the day came when halfback Jim McGlennon reeled off 30 yards to the Lion 35. This set the stage for the most bizarre play of the 1973 season. Defensive guard Pete Boisvert, tackel Mike Hernandez and end Glenn Errickson really popped the ball carrier forcing the ball into the air. Def. guard Rich Filler Filler picked off the ball into the air. Defensive guard Rich Filler picked off the ball in mid-air, was spun around by an Arlington player, and started to jaunt 65 yards to paydirt.

However, Rich advanced the ball in the wrong direction an Arlington in confusion was unable to tackle him. Mr. Filler was so psyched that even his own teammates had trouble cornering him. In fact, Filler eluded 21 tacklers on his way to the end zone. This play so confused everyone that even the officials were bewildered. As Rich Filler stood in the end zone no one knew what to do or what to call.

After some delay an Arlington player tackled him. To the astonishment of many, theofficials ruled the play a touchdown for Arlington which raised the words of outrage from Lion supporters. After a 15 minute delay and much deliberation by coaches and officials the final ruling was pronounced to be six points for Arlington. The conversion rush was good and what looked like a breezy 14-0 win to the Lions was now a 14-8 squeeker.

As in the past the Lions have demonstrated poise and clutch and the ability to control the football when the chips are down. This time was no exception. Paul Butters returned the ensuing kickoff 15 yards to the 40. Proia carried for 6, Butters for three, and Kinsella 4 for the first down. Kinsella carried for another 6, Proia for 4 more and Filler for 2 and another first down. Then from the 38 halfback Rich Proia turned right end behind some excellent blocking, dazzled four would-be tacklers and scored the clinching T.D. Quarterback Brian Kinsella faked to Proia on the P.A.T. and kept the ball to cap the 22 point scoring.

The last ditch effort came when Arlington threw a completed pass and defensive HB Rick King outmuscled the blocker to make the stop. The Lion coaching staff was very pleased with the performance of the offensive line, who included: John Kane, Jim Schmidlein, Andy Toyias, Joe Donoghue, Mike Hernandez, Shawn Daley, Jim Proia had Scott Seidman. Rich Proia had an excellent day picking up 119 yards in 17 carries.

The defensive unit also had an excellent day, they include: Glenn Errickson, Jack Forti, Doug Bullen, the best pair of tacklers in the league Mike Hernandez and John Donoghue, Pete Boisvert, Sean Foley, two-way standout Paul Butters, Jim Quinn, free safety Shawn Daley who palyed an excellent game both ways, and linebackers Brian Kinsella and Rich Proia who played hardnosed all day.

With one game to go it can aalready be said the 1973 N.A.A. Lions are worthy of the crown, champions.

N.A.A. Lions, Patriots in Garden City Game

When two teams engage each other as traditional rivals, they say that past records are out the window. This is what the Suburban League Champion N.A.A. Lions (7-0) must realize as they prepare to travel to Albemarle Playground this Sunday where the defense minded Newton Patriots (4-3) are waiting to pull the upset of the season.

Last season when the roles were reversed, the mighty undefeated Patriots invaded Newton Highlands to hopefully humiliate a winless N.A.A. Lion team. When the final score was totaled, the Patriots were 14-12 victors, but many felt that the Patriots were fortunate to win and badly outplayed.

Last year's Lion team was a young one, and many of those boys are back this season and hope to avenge the loss and regain the "Garden City Cup".

On a relative scale, this game will be as important as a B.C.-Holy Cross, Army-Navy, or Harvard-Yale game.

Late Tiger Score Tips Medford 7-6

By BOB LOW

Putting together an 80 yard touchdown drive in the final minutes, Newton High overcame a 6-0 deficit to defeat Medford 7-6 in a non-league game last Saturday.

Up until the final minute, the afternoon had held nothing but frustration for the Tigers. Twice they had had drives stopped deep in Medford territory when they failed by inches to get a first down; they had not completed a pass; and they were victimized by some questionable officiating in key situations.

GAME SUMMARY

The Tigers held Medford on their first possession and got the ball on their 36 after a punt. Quickly, Newton's running backs got the team moving downfield. It took just six plays for Newton to reach Medford's seven yard line, but there the drive stalled. On fourth down and inches to go on the five, Joe Rondina was stacked up for no gain, and Medford took over.

Once more Medford was forced to punt, and Newton got the ball in Medford territory. However, on fourth down a poor snap from center enabled Medford to get control of the ball on their own 42 yard line.

For the first time in the game, Medford began to move the football. Three consecutive penalties on Newton put the Mustangs on Newton's 35, but a penalty on Medford, their only one of the game, erased a long pass completion. Several plays later, Newton's Steve DeBendetto pounced on a poorly thrown lateral to get the ball back for the Tigers on the 13 yard line.

Newton picked up a pair of first downs, but outside of that, neither team threatened any further in the half, and after the first twenty minutes it was a scoreless tie.

SECOND HALF

The second half was primarily a battle between the defenses. Medford's Bill Flynn recovered a Newton fumble on the second half kickoff, but the Mustangs could only pick up one yard in four tries.

Taking the ball over on their 33, the Tigers were moved backwards by Medford's defense. On fourth down, Robert Rosie broke through Newton's line and blocked Gordon MacNeil's punt (the third blocked punt against Newton in two games). The ball rolled into the endzone where Flynn fell on it for a Medford touchdown. Robert Keefe then made what turned out to be a big play for Newton, by blocking the try for the extra point, and the score remained Medford 6; Newton 0.

In the next few minutes the game developed a pattern; each team would pick up a couple of first downs. Newton reached the Medford 44 where a fourth down pass fell incomplete, and later drove down to Medford's 21 where Cal Moffie was tripped up less than a half foot away from a first down.

NEWTON PENALTY

At that point, however, the pattern ended. The Tigers held Medford, and on fourth down the Mustangs attempted to punt. Gary Breton put on a hard rush, but was called for roughing the kicker when he brushed against the Medford punter who then fell down. The call was hotly protested by Newton but it stood and gave Medford a chance to use up more time as well as fifteen yards.

When Newton got the ball back, they were on their own 20 yard line with less than four minutes left to play. Up to this point the Tigers had moved the ball well, but Medford's defense had been extremely tough in key situations and had stymied all of Newton's passing attempts.

After an incomplete pass, Gerry Keleher got the drive started with a 12 yard run. Bob Kinsella hit John Connolly for ten yards and Newton's first pass completion. Keleher raced for 16 more yards and then Connolly caught another pass to put Newton on Medford's 31. Two plays later, Keleher ran outside to the 20. Two more runs by Keleher gave Newton a first and goal to go on the six with less than a minute to go.

Moffie ran for two yards, and then threw a pass out of bounds to stop the clock. Faced with a third down and four, Coach Norman Walker sent Newton's other quarterback Kinsella, back in for Keleher in order to run a play that had failed earlier in the game.

MOFFIE SCORES

Moffie took the snapl lateraled to Kinsella who then fired the ball back to Moffie who streaked into the end zone.

With the score tied at 6-6, John Connolly lined up to try for the extra point. His kick was partially blocked, but miraculously had enough momentum to clear the crossbar and gave Newton the lead, 7-6.

Medford mounted a desperate drive in the final seconds, but got only as far as Newton's 27. They tried a 44 yard field goal, but the kick was well short and Newton came off with their fourth straight victory.

This week the Tigers return to league play as they meet Cambridge Latin at Dickinson Stadium, Saturday at 1:30.

Tiger Soccermen Win 2,

By BOB LOW

Newton High's Soccer Team assured itself a spot in the Eastern Mass. tournament by recording wins over Medford and Waltham. The wins extended Newton's unbeaten string to thirteen games and moved them closer to a Suburban League crown.

Newton started the week by recording a 3-1 win over Medford. Coach Mike Buzzi, expecting close coverage on star scorer Rudi Viscomi, shifted Viscomi to wing in order to give him more room. The move was effective as Viscomi picked up a goal and an assist to pace the attack.

Jon Eagle opened the scoring in the first period. Viscomi sent a pass to Eagle who trapped it nicely 15-20 yards in front. His shot went into the far corner and made the score 1-0 after one period.

In the second quarter, Frank Bodengraven chipped the ball ahead to Viscomi who deflected it by a fullback and took a high shot that slipped through the goalie's hands.

Later in the period, Sami Fam made the score 3-0 on a freakish goal. He carried the ball down the left wing and put a centering pass across. However, the ball sailed over the goalie's head, hit the post, then the ground and then the post again before it went in for a goal.

Newton held Medford off the scoreboard until the fourth period when the Mustangs scored after a scramble in front of goalie Ricky Olin. However, that was all the Tigers allowed as they recorded a 3-1 victory. Newton has now defeated every Suburban League team at least once.

Three days later, the Tigers walloped Waltham 6-0 and clinched a tournament berth. Waltham held Newton even until late in the first period when Joe Moussalli scored. The game turned into a rout in the second quarter as Newton tallied three times. Jon Eagle banged home a shot from close range, Alan Friedman scored on a long, high shot that rebounded off the post and in, while Tom Burke made good on a penalty shot.

In the final quarter, after Doug Giron had scored Newton's fifth goal, Viscomi scored his seventeenth goal of the year to move within one of the school record. The goal also finished off the scoring as Mark Wasserman and Ricky Olin combined for Newton's eighth shutout of the season and handed Waltham its fourteenth loss in a row.

Guaranteed a playoff spot, the Tigers are now shooting for a first place finish. They can clinch the title if they win either one of their final two games. Cambridge Latin will also be entering the tournament as will Brockton if they can win both of their remaining games. A new 75 per cent rule is making it possible for three Suburban League teams, and not only the top two, to make the tournament.

Unbeaten Stoughton Blanks South 35-0

By HOWARD APPELSTEIN

On a cold and windy day at Dickerson Field, the powerful Stoughton Knights crushed the Lions by a score of 35-0.

After viewing the first half, you would never have expected it. After two periods, it was only a 7-0 ballgame. The Lions defense was just tremendous in the first half.

The only touchdown was set up on a 40 yard pass from Bill Kezer to Ralph Pollilio. Pollilio was knocked out of bounds at the 10 yard line of the Lions. Three plays later Jack Gafney banged it over from the two yard line. Bob King converted the extra point.

The third quarter was another disaster for the Lions. This was the quarter that Stoughton chalked up 21 big points.

Their first touchdown resulted from a Walt Fatini fumble. Five plays later Ralph Pollilio scored from the 1 yard line. Bill Kezer threw to Tom Butler for the two point conversion making the score 15-0 in favor of Stoughton. After Stoughton made South cough up the ball, they came back quickly to score another touchdown. Kezer hit Butler again but this time for a 37 yard touchdown pass making it 21-0.

The ensuing kickoff really broke the Lions' backs. Kevin Hoban fumbled the kickoff into the end zone; then, he tried to run it out but was stopped on his own 2 yard line by a gang of Knight tacklers. On first down Fatini fumbled again and Stoughton recovered on the 5 yard line. On the first play from scrimmage, Bob King ran it over from the 5, giving the Knights a 27-0 lead. King also kicked the extra point. With the score 28-0, the third quarter finally ended.

Stoughton got their final touchdown early in the fourth quarter when Steve Bishop intercepted a Matt Sabetti pass and ran it 27 yards for the touchdown. King again converted the extra point closing the scoring at 35-0.

Again the Lions big problem was their quarterback. Coach Winkler used three quarterbacks, Tony Lombardo, Jeff Lawson, and Matt Sabetti. All three were unsuccessful in moving the Lions. Lombardo started the game for the Lions but he injured his ankle in the second period.

Injuries again plagued the Lions. Tony Lombardo and Walter Fatini both suffered ankle injuries during the game. On the line injuries forced Rick Toronto and Haskell Kingston to the sidelines.

The defense really didn't play too badly. The Knights never did generate any long drives against them. Linebackers Greg Moan and Aaron Moynihan stopped the outside running attack pretty well all afternoon. Cornerbacks Arthur Murphy and Kevin Hoban outside of the long bomb touchdown shut off Stoughton's passing attack pretty well also. It was the inside running that hurt the Lions.

Sophomore Gerry Freid got his first start and his inexperience showed. Paul Tormey coming off a great game against Bedford had trouble with the inside run also. The other starters in the line like Dennis Anastasia, Pete Maples, Hal Bennett, Matt Sabetti, and Bob Taglenti also had their problems with the tough Stoughton line.

I can't understand why Coach Winkler even played Stoughton this year. There are 9 teams in the Hockamock division. Why he selected the undefeated and defending champions, Stoughton Knights I'll never know. After losing to them 41-13 and 35-0 it wouldn't surprise me if they're not on next year's schedule. It just wouldn't make sense to play them again.

This was the fourth time in six games the Lions were shutout. I think Coach Winkler has two fine running backs with a lot of speed in Kevin Hoban and Pete Nathanson but he doesn't utilize them at all. He doesn't mix his plays the way he should. But you can't blame Coach Winkler for the three Lion fumbles.

Next week the Lions travel to Acton to face Acton-Boxboro. Acton possesses a 5-1 record and they're a pretty tough team. Their only loss was against Wayland last week by a 21-15 score so they'll be hungry when they face the Lions. My prediction is Action-Boxboro by 14 points. So far I'm 2-1 in this department.

South Soccer Team Beaten 3-2 And 1-0

By RANDY GRODMAN

Currently possessing a 2-8-1 league record, the Newton South Soccer Team lost its two games last week.

On Tuesday, October 23, South travelled to Bedford, a team which South had previously beaten badly, and lost another heartbreaker-this time by a score of 3-2.

Bedford instigated the scoring in the second period on a beautiful corner kick.

Making the score 1-1, South's Aris Bidianos took advantage of a penalty kick, and South was back in the ball game.

In the third period, Bedford took a 2-1 lead after a scramble in front of South's goal.

With only four minutes remaining, senior Aris Bidianos tied the score at 2-2 on a beautiful shot from a seemingly impossible angle.

Although South was determined to score again in the overtime, Bedford beat them to it, and made the final score 3-2 by scoring on a beautiful shot in tthe second overtime.

Seniors Larry Benders and Aris Bidianos should be congratulated on their fine performances in the Bedford match.

On Friday, October 26, South hosted a powerful Weston team, and received its seventh one goal loss. Playing under extremely cold conditions, neither team was able to net a score during the first 56 minutes of play; however, with only 3:30 remining in the game, Weston scored on a shot which hit the post, bounced out, and hit South's goalie, and then bounced into the goal. But anyone who thinks that this is a typical way for a Newton South team to lose a contest has not been reading up on his schoolboy sports!

Although South lost the game by a score of 1 - 0, junior John Bamel should be recognized for his expertise, both on and off the field.

Also to be noted for their diligent "line-running" are seniors Matt Bellin, Chet Birger, and Amy Cooper.

The Newton South Junior Varsity Soccer Team has been playing extremely well, and now holds a 5-4-2 league record.

On Tuesday, October 23, South hosted a weak Bedford team, and beat them by a score of 2-1.

South's Jan Waaliwyn opened the scoring in the first period on a good hustling play.

Making the score 2-0, junior Howie Appelstein scored on a shot from about midfield which the Bedford goalie misjudged.

Late in the last quarter, Bedford got on the scoreboard by connecting on a breakaway. The final score of the game was Newton South 2, Bedford 1.

As South combined in a great team effort, no one individual can be noted for an exceptional performance.

On Friday, October 26, South travelled to Westwon, and sneaked by the home team 2 - 1. It should be noted that Weston was undefeated prior to this contest.

Weston took the lead 1 - 0 on a rebound in the first period.

Coming back to tie the score, South's Doug Sheff scored in the period, on a shot which found the lower left corner.

Early in the fourth quarter, South was awarded a penalty kick, and sophomore Carson Milgrooom scored the winning goal on a well-placed bid.

Excelling for South in this well-earned victory was captain Mark Shuster, who has been playing consistently well.

South Runners Lose

By RANDY GRODMAN

Finishing its season with a disappointing 3-11 league record, the Newton South Cross Country Team lost its last meet on Tuesday, Oct. 23.

The victors this time were Concord-Carlisle, probably the strongest team in the state, and Maynard, whom Newton South had previously beaten.

South's runners had a difficult time on the 2.6 mile course at Mount Ida Junior College, and were shut out by the powerful Concord-Carlisle squad 15-20. However, Newton South lost to Maynard by the respectable score of 25-31.

Placing for South were senior Mike Shockett, who placed eighth all-round and earned the best time for a Newton South runner this year at Mount Ida (13:53); Jeff Karol, who finished ninth, sophomore Dennis Bauke, captain Bob Lein, and senior David Robinson. Senior Ara Shishmanian also participated in the meet.

The Newton South Junior Varsity entered four runners in the race. They were Gary Abramson, Arthur Brown, Russ Kintner, and Stuart Rothman.

On Saturday, Oct. 27, Newton South was one of 26 Class B. schools participating in the State Divisional Meet. Six Newton South Harriers ran on the 2.8 mile course at Franklin Park in Dennis Bauke, Russ Kintner, David Robinson, Stuart Rothman, Ara Shishmanian, and Mike Shockett. Captain Bob Lein was unable to attend the meet due to illness, and academic commitments prevented Jeff Karol from participating.

The top two runners finishing for South were Mike Shockett, placing 47th and Dennis Bauke, who placed 104th. There were 170 runners entered in the race.

Although when noting the team's final record it may appear that all hopes went down the drain, many team members feel that being a part of this spirited group of boys has been a truly rewarding experience.

Waxman Carries

Newton High halfback Peter Waxman finds the going a little rough as he drives his way upfield in Newton's 7-6 win over Medford Saturday. Helping Waxman out with some blocking are teammates Tom Dargan (85), Gardner Oleson (76), and Pete Toyias (32). (Jom Easton Photo)

Going My Way?

Junior College Gets Two Interns

Newton Junior College has accepted two teaching interns in the Department of Humanities for the current year. They are working mainly in the area of Freshman English.

Linda S. Goldberg is a graduate student at Boston University in a C.A.G.S. (Certificate of Advanced Graduate Study) program. A native of Philadelphia, she holds a B.A. Cum Laude from the University of Hartford and a M.A. from New York University, both degrees in English. In addition to her teaching experience, she has worked as editorial assistant at Harper's Magazine and the Ziff-Davis Publishing Company of New York and has done editorial work and research at the Institute for Scientific Information in Philadelphia.

John Cate, a native of Wisconsin, holds an A.B. from Macalester College and will receive an M.A. from the University of New Hampshire in 1974. He has taught in inner city programs for children in addition to varied experience in teaching at the College level, including the position of Departmental Assistant in the English Department at Macalester College.

Cate was a Peace Corps Volunteer in Iran, and has served as a TEFL instructor for Japanese High School English teachers at the University of New Hampshire. In addition, he is the author of many poems which have appeared in national publications.

Ward Alderman

Ward 6

Ernest Dietz

(Alderman, incumbent) Contractor, A.B. from University of Michigan Ed.M., B.U.; Harvard graduate school; former president, Newton Civic Assn.; chairman, aldermanic Public Buildings Committee; member, Franchises & Licenses, City Planning, School Buildings Advisory committees.

OPEN SPACE: "Until specific areas are analyzed in terms of availability and cost, it is unwise to set a definite figure as a commitment."

HOUSING: Yes. Scattered throughout the city in small clusters "to the extent of meeting local demand as a first priority."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Public health, mental health, children's services, trash and garbage disposal, transportation and higher education.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. I support aldermanic control of non-academic salaries and review of the four per cent allowed for maintenance and repair of school buildings under the new charter.

Ward 7

David Cohen

(Alderman, incumbent), B.A. degree from Harvard University; graduate, Boston University Law School; member, aldermanic Land Use, Public Works, Street Traffic committees.

OPEN SPACE: "I favor a program of yearly open space acquisition funded by annual appropriation by Board of Aldermen.

HOUSING: Yes! Sites proposed in the 1968 study, also with advent of NHA's two-family prototype vacant two-family zone sites are appropriate.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste disposal because recycling is more economically workable when done regionally and we're running out of space to dump our incinerated rubbish.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By putting more residents of the neighborhoods to be redeveloped on the Redevelopment Authority.

Ward 8

Theodore Gross

(Alderman) Graduate, Newton South High School, attended Newton Jr. College and Miami-Dade Jr. College; associate member of the Ward 6 Democratic Committee.

OPEN SPACE: Yes. Only until we have sufficient funds to purchase the land that can be used.

HOUSING: Yes. Enough to fill the needs of people who need it. Scattered sites.

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Trash collection for recycling, Fire and Police protection and some public works operations.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

REDEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY: By allowing the people in the neighborhood to have a say in the way it operates.

Alan S. Barkin

(Alderman, incumbent) Attorney, Brookline High, University of New Hampshire, B.U. Law School; chairman aldermanic Land Use Committee, member aldermanic Franchises & Licenses, Public Buildings committees.

OPEN SPACE: No.

HOUSING: Yes. "I would like to see the 28 units that are on the way built and in operation before we are committed to any more except in the leased housing program."

REGIONALIZED SERVICES: Solid waste disposal and garbage because regionalization is the only answer to our problem.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No, because school costs will continue to go down because of declining enrollment. The dramatic increase in school spending occurred about 10 years ago and should have been taken care of then.

Planning Committee

Annual Camellia Ball To Aid Boys' Town Of Italy

The 28th annual camellia ball to benefit Boys' Towns of Italy will be held on Friday evening, November 16 at the Statler Hilton in Boston. Mrs. Louise Raia Palci, recently appointed as director of the Mass. Chapter of the International Organization for Homeless Children, is general chairman of the ball.

Rubin Epstein, and Ralph Tedeschi are co-chairmen of the Program Souvenir Journal. Epstein is also chairman of the Scholarship Fund Drive in memory of Mrs. Lucia Vollono, socialite from Newton Centre who died last November. Mrs. Vollono had been the originator and executive state chairman of Mass. Boys Towns for the past 27 years until her death.

Mrs. William Pote of Newton Centre, the only daughter of Mrs. Vollono, heads the large planning committee which includes from this area: Dr. and Mrs. Vinzo Comito, Newton; Mrs. Joseph Marcantonio, Westwood, and Mrs. George Peznola, Needham.

Tickets may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Palci at the Boys' Town Office, 33 Broad street, Boston, or from any member of the committee.

Dance To Benefit Charles River Workshop A Success

As a happy guest was heard to remark "At last, people are willing to stand up to be counted when moral and financial encouragement is needed, to provide a way for those with limited capabilities to earn a modest living with dignity." It should be noted, that they not only stood up to be counted, they did the polka, cha-cha and all the modern swings of dancing for the cause, and "for the fun of it."

The first annual dance for the Charles River Workshop was a resounding success last Friday evening at Moseley's on the Charles, and though credit for the outstanding success, must be shared by many, Al Pearson and his wife Joanne, spearheaded the event, working endless hours for smooth sailing.

The Lions Club of Needham gave solid support in selling ticktes, newspapers provided publicity, Roche Bros. Supermarkets donated the buffet and hundreds of individuals purchased tickets and came with the kind of enthusiasm that was contagious.

Last, but far from least, junior hostesses from the Sarotta Club of Needham High, attended guests with graciousness that was a credit to their school, their community and to their generation. The young ladies serving were: Trish Keller, Judy Carey, Mary Corcoran, Maggie Coggeshall, Patty Kane, Claire Lombard, Mary-Jo Lynch, Holly Mick, Donna O'Duggan, Debbie Roche, Tricia Sampson, Renee Sugrue and Sue Tanner.

Earle Mountain, who first inspired the concept of the handicapped working at the Charles River Workshop and has served as guiding light since its inception, drew the winning number for the grand prize, a huge basket of "goodies" donated by The Lambert Rainbow Fruit Co. The Needham Jewelry also offered a door prize of a lovely lady's wrist watch.

Two enchanting centerpieces decorating the buffet tables were artistically created by Joanne Pearson, attracting great admiration with pretty faces painted on huge pumpkins, with velvet ribbons and fresh flowers. It had been planned that the centerpieces were to be presented at the end of the meeting to Ann DiMilla, wife of Guy DiMilla, president of the Needham Lions Club and to Eileen Roche, wife of Bud Roche of Roche Bros. Supermarkets as a gracious expression of appreciation for the outstanding support both organizations have given in the plans for the gala event.

As "Lady Luck" would have it, neither of the recipients were able to accept the lovely gifts in person. Ann DiMilla, though present, was wearing a neck-brace as the result of an accident, and Eileen was unable to attend, due to minor surgery. All the more to be appreciated, the centerpieces were gratefully accepted on their behalf by Guy DiMilla and by Rita Sanford, consumer hostess of Roche Bros. Supermarkets.

Nearing the end of the evening a stirring column of guests spontaneously marched around the hall, winding through tables singing all of the popular themes of the military, and as a grand and moving climax, the entire audience stood to sing in unison "God Bless America" and "This is My Country," a fitting tribute to the occasion, for it, too, is the country of thousands of unfortunate handicapped.

TICKER TAPERING

NEW YORK (UPI) — Now that the traditional stock ticker has been replaced by faster electronic devices in the Wall Street office, there is an acute shortage of ticker tape for New York's fabled salute to the nation's heros.

When the next ticker tape parade comes around, officer workers undoubtedly will make do with shredded business machine cards, newspapers and torn telephone directories, says Doremus & Co., of the financial community.

PREMIUM INCOME

NEW YORK (UPI) — The premium income of property and liability insurance companies in the free enterprise world grew by 10 per cent in 1970 to about $150 billion, the new edition of Insurance Facts, published recently, reveals.

Fine Arts Museum Showing Work Of Local Painters

The Museum of Fine Arts and the Institute of Contemporary Art co-sponsor "Boston Collects Boston," an exhibition at the MFA through Nov. 25. Andrew C. Hyde, director of the ICA and guest curator of the exhibition, describes the paintings on view as "the best contemporary work being produced by Boston painters and acquired by Boston collectors over the last five years."

"Boston Collects Boston" demonstrates the working relationship of the Museum with the ICA, a pioneering institution which shows art but does not collect it. This exhibition provides viewers and collectors with an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the artistic creativity of the Boston community.

Drew Hyde selected the work of Natalie Alper, Sharon Friedman, Jacqueth Hutchinson, Joel Janowitz, Todd McKie and Katherine Porter after visiting artists' studios and viewing private collections around Boston. Differing in style, technique and vision, each artist demonstrates an approach which challenges the nature of art.

Natalie Alper works with a spray-paint technique to create color fields of expansive space and fluctuating light. Her work asserts that color, applied in varying densities, provides an exciting visual experience in itself.

Sharon Friedman emphasizes the actual materials used in creating her images. She stains and blots paint and allows it to soak into raw, unprimed canvas. This technique forces the viewer and the artist to relate the technical process to the creative image which results.

The works of Jacqueth Hutchinson present a spontaneity and joy in the handling of paint which engages the viewer emotionally. Her narrow abstract compositions incorporate chance effects and fuse conflicting structural elements into a unified whole.

Todd McKie, whose paintings are the only watercolors included in the exhibition, spoofs artistic styles of the past. He exposes the dilemma faced by contemporary artists who try in their work to break with the influences of tradition.

Katherine Porter imposes a grid-like pattern on her work to test the limits of its structural control in her paintings. With the use of rough, defiant colors, she challenges her own tendency to create "beautiful" paintings.

A sense of loneliness pervades the "realistic" paintings of our environment by Joel Janowitz. Pointedly omitting the human figure, Janowitz uses muted colors to create the mysterious effect of a frozen moment in time, nostalgic and anticipatory.

In conjunction with "Boston Collects Boston," the Museum exhibits "Recent Acquisitions on Paper by Artists Working in New England," in Corridor CC. Demonstrating the Museum's real commitment to contemporary art, these prints represent the degree of skill and variety achieved in works by local artists.

A 20-page catalogue, fully illustrated in color, accompanies the exhibition.

Church Women United Observe Community Day

A program is being planned by Church Women United in Newton for the observance of World Community Day to be celebrated Friday, Nov. 2, at noon at St. Bernard's Parish Hall, 1530 Washington St., West Newton.

The program, based on the national theme, is under the direction of Mrs. R. Curtis Reed, celebrations chairman, and Mrs. William C. Lowe, spiritual life chairman, and will take the form of a musical playlet entitled "Where in the World is My Neighbor?" Among those taking part in the skit are Mrs. Robert Hamilton, Mrs. Proctor W. Houghton, Mrs. William Johnston and Mrs. J. Wendell Yeo who will serve as pianist.

Mrs. Fernand Boudreau, president of Church Women United in Newton, will open the meeting by inviting all to a sandwich-luncheon, at no charge, which will be served promptly at noon. Luncheon arrangements will be handled by Mrs. Peter F. Harrington and Mrs. Richard McGrath, the hostesses for the day. Free baby-sitting services will also be provided, as usual, but mothers are asked to provide a lunch for their own children.

At the recent Community Action Day Meeting of Church Women United Barbara Rubin, president of the Newton Mental Health Association, spoke of the many people who need a helping hand, a friendly atmosphere and a place to live until they can resume their lives normally in society. Mrs. Rubin explained that different types of housing are needed for different kinds of people. After her talk, the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

We, the Board of Church Women United in Newton, out of our concern for housing needs, voted unanimously our support of affirmative housing programs that will meet the needs of ALL people in our city.

Therefore, we hereby resolve to implement and actively support building programs for low and middle income housing and more housing for the elderly; open housing throughout the city; halfway houses to meet the needs of people returning from mental institutions; people coping with alcoholism; prisoners returning to the community; facilities to house mental retardation people; housing facilities to meet special youth needs.

Hence, we strongly urge each church, temple, social and fraternal organization to promote and actively support these much needed housing programs.

Women Of St. Mary's See Cathedral Slides

The Women of St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Newton Lower Falls will hold their regular monthly meeting next Tuesday, Nov. 6, at 1 p.m. at the church.

Mrs. Holton Wood will show slides of the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. Mrs. Wood is the Eastern Mass. Regional chairman for the National Cathedral Association.

She is also vice president of the Episcopal Churchwomen of the Diocese and has recently returned from the Triennial Meeting of the Women of the Church in Louisville, Ky., which she attended as a delegate. She is also a recent past president of the Bay Colony Society of Embroiderers and has done many pieces for the Church.

Hostesses for the meeting are Mrs. Robert S. Hoffman, Jr. of Wellesley and Mrs. Russell Rowe of Natick. Devotions will be led by Mrs. Otis B. Robinson of Waban.

Concert To Benefit Church Organ Fund

A program of music for organ and brass will open a fall series of musical events at The Newton Highlands Congregational Church. At 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 4, the first event will feature Carrol Hassman, The Highlands Church organist, and the Commonwealth Brass Quartet.

The Quartet consists of two trumpets, French horn, and trombone, and its players are all members of the Boston University Orchestra. The organ and brass will play Norman Lockwood's "Concerto," Gabrieli polychoral canzonas, and Vaclav Nelhybel's "Three Movements for Organ and Brass."

Hassman and the Quartet will be assisted in the program by percussion and unison chorus. Percussion will be featured in Daniel Pinkham's "Concertante for Organ, Brass, and Percussion." Tympani will also assist the ensemble in two marches by Jeremiah Clarke and in Henry Purcell's "Voluntary in C Major." The unison chorus will join organ, brass, and tympani for the program finale. Flor Peeters' "Entrata Festiva."

The community is cordially invited to attend this program and those that follow it in the series.

The second event is a liturgy of contemporary song and dance to be staged by The Highlands Church Senior High School Troupe on two nights, Nov. 18 and 19, at 7:30 p.m.

Final event of the series is a solo organ recital by Hassman at 4 p.m., Dec. 2. Hassman's program will show off The Church's Hayward Memorial Organ, a 1924 Hook and Hastings.

The programs in this series are presented as a cultural service to the community and to benefit the church's emergency organ fund. There will be no admission fee to the events, but donations will be collected.

Rabbi Riemer Discusses Soviet Union And Israel

"To Russia With Love" will be the title of the lecture this coming Tuesday evening, Nov. 6, when Rabbi Jack Riemer, the spiritual leader of the Beth Abraham Synagogue in Dayton, Ohio, addresses the third meeting of the Combined Adult Education Program of the Newton area Conservative Temples.

Given the current focus on the Soviet Union relative to both Israel and the United States, this talk - to be given at Temple Mishkan Tefila at 300 Hammond Pond Parkway in Chestnut Hill - should be of great and general interest.

Rabbi Riemer is not new to this area in that he has previously been Rabbi of both Temple Beth Hill in Mattapan and of Temple Sinai in Marblehead.

He is the editor of "New Prayers for the High Holydays," and two new books "Jewish Insights Into Issues of Our Time" and "Modern Jewish Reflections on Death" are scheduled for publication in 1974.

In addition, he has served as the editor of "Conservative Judaism" and has published numerous essays in all the major journals of Jewish thought in America, England, South Africa, and Israel.

Finally, and of special relevance to this particular lecture, Rabbi Riemer has visited the Soviet Union on numerous study missions and has lectured in adult education programs on campus and in synagogues throughout the country.

The mini-course segment of this adult education program begins at 8 p.m. Rabbi Riemer's lecture is scheduled for 9:15 p.m. and the cost for this single lecture is $1.50. All students are admitted free.

Lawrence L. Suttenberg of Newton, member of the Executive Committee of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and Greater Boston philanthropist and civic leader, recently attended the inauguration of Dr. Gerson D. Cohen, new chancellor of the Seminary, at the recent Sunday convocation which marked the opening of three days of inaugural activities. Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller gave the main address at the Sunday, Oct. 21, convocation.

Temple Holds Crisis Service

Dr. Marshall I. Goldman, professor of Economics at Wellesley College and associate at the Russian Research Center at Harvard, will speak on "The Middle East, The U.S., And The Energy Crisis" at the Sabbath Eve Service at Temple Shalom of Newton on Friday, Nov. 2 at 8:15 p.m.

A post-service discussion will follow.

Members of the community are invited to attend the service and hear the discussion on this most important subject of major concern to us all.

Temple Shalom of Newton is located at 175 Temple St. in West Newton.

Distribution

Norumbega Council Appoints Staffer

Norumbega Council, Inc., Boy Scouts of America, announced the addition of Larry A. Bearfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Bearfield, 49 Crafts St., Newtonville, to the professional Exploring Division's staff this week.

Bearfield has been active in Scouting for many years and achieved the rank of Eagle Scout while a member of Troop 331, sponsored by Newton Catholic School (formerly Our Lady Help of Christians). He was also a member of the Order of the Arrow and served as lodge chief and vigil member.

For the past two years, he has participated in many key volunteer positions within the Exploring program. These included chairman of the Explorer Presidents' Association for two years; chairman of Nobstock '72-73 (annual rock concert; chairman of the BiggiE newspaper committee, plus assisting in many other capacities.

A graduate of Newton High School, class of '69 and Vesper George School of Art '72, Bearfield brings not only his knowledge of Exploring to Norumbega Council but also his commercial art ability.

The Exploring program, which is the high school-age division of the Boy Scouts of America, is the fastest growing youth program in Newton, Wellesley and Weston.

Exploring is coed, nonuniformed and concentrates on the practical career guidance of high school students. This is accomplished through the formation of Explorer posts in various career interest and general interest fields. These groups are sponsored by businesses, public and religious organizations and institutions with special expertise to offer to the students.

Since the inception of the new Exploring program two years ago, the membership has grown from 67 members in 7 groups to over 1,000 students in 45 groups. It is projected that Exploring will have over 1,200 members in 50 special interest and general interest Explorer posts by this December.

School Committee

Ward 1

Henry Delicata

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 1; investment accounting; B.S., Bentley College.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. "I believe the School Committee should be free in administration and should not have to answer to any other boards or persons. The School Committee is an independent party and should remain that way."

ELECTION BY WARD: School Committee members should be elected by wards. "The at-large election means that it is very hard and almost impossible to beat incumbents. School Committee elections on a smaller scale, such as the wards, will give the opportunity for others to seek such a position."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "A combination of good fundamentals and innovative programs makes education easier and learning an experience. While new methods and techniques make it easier to relate to students, fundamentals and basic skills are most important."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "There does seem to be some friction between city administration and the schools." Mutual trust and good two-way communication will solve problem.

SINGLE CHANGE: None offhand. "Changes require study and research."

David J. Mortimer

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 1; director of Administration and Finance, Boston Teen Center Alliance, a federally–funded, delinquency prevention program; M.A. candidate, Northeastern University, recreation education with a speciality in therapeutic recreation; A.B., Boston College, political science; member, National Parks and Recreation Assoc.; Member, executive board of the Newton-Wellesley Weston Council for Children; member, Spina Bifida Assoc.; coordinator, Lincoln-Eliot Community School; associate member, American Legion Post 440, Nonatum.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Absolutely opposed to tampering with it. "The public has the opportunity to provide a check on an overzealous or irresponsoble School Committee through the ballot box."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "The present system insures a broad base of representation while de-emphasizing overly parochial concerns."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "I advocate the continuation of the search for new and fresh approaches so that the average student might be stimulated."

ADVERSARY POSITION: The system itself fosters this situation by creating different bodies (mayor, aldermen, school committee) to serve differing constituencies. "Any attempts to change this adversary relationship would diffuse the constituent's right to adequate representation.

SINGLE CHANGE: "All citizens must realize that what is at stake in this election is the renewal or stagnation of the public schools, not the restructuring of the entire system."

Ward 2

Eleanor S. Rosenblum

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 2; (Incumbent); A.B., Cincinnati; M.S.S., Smith; chairman, School Buildings Sub–Committee; Design Review Committee; trustee, Newton Junior College; trustee, Freeport; Lincoln-Eliot, Title I Advisory Committee.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Do not tamper with it. "The complexities of setting school policies, hiring staff and developing a school budget require the undivided attention of elected officials with no other responsibilities."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "The present system provides good balance between local representation (ward residency) and responsibility to the city-at-large. I do favor staggered terms for members."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: Both are necessary because students differ and choices should be offered in curriculum and organization. "Innovation is a necessary part of improving and enriching content and method."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "The willingness to forgo scapegoating for political purposes and fostering mutual trust are most important." More frequent contact between aldermen and School Committee and an exchange of information would help the situation.

SINGLE CHANGE: "Implementing the recommendations of Arthur D. Little to improve business management procedures is essential." Planning for declining enrollment, deteriorating buildings, Chapter 766 services to the handicapped, and metropolitan cooperation is necessary.

S. Leonard Spitz

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 2; manufacturing manager, Raytheon; B.S. in mechanical engineering; M.S. in management; graduate work in education; professional engineering organizations; college undergraduate instructor for over 20 years.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "I reluctantly support it. Reluctantly, because the voters are denied the right to place responsibility on a single individual. Support, because the unpaid school committee members are less political than the city's chief executive officer."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "I favor the neighborhood school concept, and I consider that ward representatives are more likely to be sensitive to this philosophy."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: I favor "traditional" education. "As a lecturer at Northeastern University, I know that Johnny can't read or write and Susan can't divide. I feel that greater emphasis on the basics and not experimentation will address these shortcomings, although innovation and traditional modes are by no means mutually exclusive or even competing systems."

ADVERSARY POSITION: Nothing should be done to change the adversary roles. "An adversary system builds in desirable checks and balances and provokes individuals on both sides to carefully consider the issues."

SINGLE CHANGE: "I would explore the possibility of a 12-month year for the entire system and an eight-hour day for teachers. If feasible, this would address quality education by providing a framework of true professionalism for teachers with the attendant characteristics of motivation, excellence and availability. It would simultaneously be cost effective by optimizing facility useage."

Ward 3

Gerard F. Byrne

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

ELECTION BY WARD: The present system is the best." "With an eight man School Committee, all wards are represented by each member, and repetition and long tedious discussions are avoided with decisions reached effectively."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "The Newton Schools should emphasize basic skills taught with imagination and innovative approaches."

ADVERSARY POSITION: Communication is the key. "Each city agency must recognize certain common goals and work towards achieving them.

Editor's Note

The Newton Graphic sent questionnaires to all candidates for election to the School Committee, regardless of whether or not they are opposed in next week's election.

Each School Committee candidate received the following five questions and responded with their indicated answers. A small biography accompanies each reply.

Each candidate was also invited to submit their photograph.

The questions and their designations are:

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Would you favor some limiting of the fiscal autonomy of School Committees? If so, how?

ELECTION BY WARD: Should School Committee members be elected by ward only instead of at-large from each ward?

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: Should the Newton school system emphasize "traditional" or "innovative" education?

ADVERSARY POSITION: What should be done to minimize the "adversary position" that sometimes occurs between the School Department and the city administration?

SINGLE CHANGE: What single thing would you change about the operation of the Newton school system?

Ambulance Bill Passes

Historic emergency medical care legislation sponsored by Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) was signed into law on Wednesday by Governor Sargent with an emergency preamble attached by the Governor.

Rep. Pines stated "Statistics indicate that every citizen in Massachusetts will need emergency medical care some time in the next ten years and this legislation which will regulate ambulance services, requires specific training of emergency medical personnel and technicians, establishes a communications network between emergency vehicles and hospital facilities and sets up an advisory board is one of the most important bills to be passed in recent years."

"It has been tragic that so many lives have been lost year after year because of poor emergency medical care," she continued.

"It is ironic that Massachusetts has the finest hospitals in the world but provides the worst service in emergency medical care, but now we can look forward to providing the best in emergency medical care, too," stated Rep. Pines.

"High quality emergency medical care is the first step in saving lives and in the past most ambulances provided merely transportation for the injured individual and not life saving treatment," she explained.

"I am very pleased to have been instrumental in the passage of this critical legislation," she concluded.

Among the 200 people attending the bill signing ceremony which took place in Doric Hall at the State House were Mr. and Mrs. Roald Osvold of Bolton, the parents of a 7-year-old boy who recently died because of inadequate ambulance service. Mr. and Mrs. Osvold allowed WCVB-TV to use the story of their tragedy in an effort to inform the public of the need for this legislation.

Rep. Louis Bertonazzi (D-Milford) and Rep. Thomas McGee (D-Lynn) were co-sponsors of the new law with Rep. Pines.

School Committee

Ward 4

Manuel Beckwith

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 4; (Incumbent); executive; Boston University; vice president, Auburndale Village Improvement Society; president, Burr-Williams PTA; president, Newton High School PTSA; Newton School Committee, 1956-1973; chairman, Newton School Committee, 1969-1973.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No.

ELECTION BY WARDS: No.

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "Both should receive their proper emphasis particularly related to a student's ability."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "In many instances this is a natural position."

SINGLE CHANGE: The authority to build school buildings should be given to the School Committee. "The city would have saved many millions of dollars in the last decade alone if the School Committee had been in a position to expedite construction."

Ward 5

Sumner R. Silton

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 5; proprietor of insurance agency; Boston Latin School; A.B., Harvard College; member and past officer of the Waban Improvement Society; present chairman, Traffic and Safety Committee; Little League coach; NAA football coach; commander, U. S. Naval Reserve.

SILTON — (See Page 37)

Joan R. Needleman

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 5; (Incumbent); 80 Puritan Rd.; math teacher, Wayland Junior High School; A.B., Smith; M.A., Radcliffe; LL.B., cum laude, Boston University School of Law; M.Ed., Northeastern University; Ed.D., Boston University; former Brookline Town Meeting member; Sub-Committees of the School

NEEDLEMAN — (See Page 37)

Ward 6

Herbert F. Regal

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 6; (Incumbent); business; A.B., Harvard College; member, Newton School Committee; chairman, Negotiating Sub-Committee; past president, Newton PTA Council; past chairman, Newton Democratic City Committee.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Absolutely not. "To do so would have questions of educatihal priorityrs resolved in the hectic political arena of the city."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "A school committeeman elected by the ward might be overly responsive to that ward. He must be responsive to the differing educational needs of all eight wards of the city."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "The system should continue to emphasize both the basic skills and the innovative. Either neglect of the basics or failure to adapt to emerging educational needs would short-change Newton students."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "Increase face-to-face meetings between the School Committee and the aldermen, individual with individual, sub-committee with sub-committee, and full body with full body."

SINGLE CHANGE: "Eliminate non-productive field trips. Retain in the regular school program only those trips which save real content and for which students are being adequately prepared. Extra charges to parents for such trips should be eliminated."

Robert Cohen

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 6; attorney; Boston Public Schools; Boston University College of Business Administration, B.S.; Boston University School of Law, J.D.; past president, Newton Young Democrats; past member, Newton Democratic City Committee; vice president, Newton Centre Improvement Assoc.; member, Americans for Constitutional Action; Young Americans for Freedom; assistant trustee, Jackson Homestead; past president, American Trial Lawyers Assoc.; Mass. Chapter.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: Yes. "The most appropriate method would be to restrict the budget of the School Committee by amendment to the City Charter so that any increase, without permission of the Board of Aldermen, is limited to a percentage of the prior year's budget."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "A member's interests may be too strongly focused on a particular section of the city without regard to the city's overall welfare."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: Neither should be emphasized over the other. "Neither must suffer because of the existence of the other and both can be very effectively employed in the curriculum."

COHEN—(See Page 37)

Ward 7

Dorothy M. Reichard

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 7; (Incumbent); School Committee member; B.S., Simmons College; advanced studies, Merril-Palmer School, Vassar; former teacher; School Committee Collective Bargaining Committee; Early Childhood Education Committee; Title I Advisory Committee.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. "By state law school committees must provide education to all children through effective management and are as accountable as any elected officials to the voters."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "School Committee members must know the needs of the divergent groups in every ward since they vote on issues that affect all children of Newton."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "Innovation is essential in meeting different needs of children. However, teachers should be responsibile for providing skills as needed for the development of their students."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "Clearer understanding of each others aims, goals, and motives would result in a better sense of trust and a more productive working relationship."

SINGLE CHANGE: "I support the recent research and evaluation which demonstrated that the Newton School Department must provide more adequately for children of lesser ability."

Harry W. Resnick

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 7; engineer; B.S. in electrical engineering, Drexel Institute of Technology; B.S. in electrical engineering, Michigan State University; member Review Board, Boy Scouts of America; manager, Little League, Newton; third vice president, Lions International.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "There should definitely be a limit on fiscal autonomy. A

RESNICK — (See Page 37)

Ward 8

Alvin Mandell

Candidate for School Committee, Ward 8; (Incumbent); project engineer, Raytheon; instructor, Northeastern University (evenings); B.E.E.; M.S.E.E.; Reg. P.E. (Mass.); present School Committee member; Date Processing Sub-Committee; former Charter Commissioner.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "I am philosophically not opposed to a four-fifths aldermanic plus mayoral veto for annual increases above five percent. However, this creates conflicts between existing state statutes requiring judicial clarification."

ELECTION BY WARD: "This problem is better solved by a more responsive School Committee elected by ward only. Charter Commission studies indicated more competition occurs in Ward elections."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "Eighty to 85 per cent should emphasize core curriculum to provide solid educational background in traditional subjects. The remainder could be innovative to maintain stimulating atmosphere for students and staff."

MANDELL — (See Page 37)

MDC Closes Grounds A Chestnut Hill Reservoi

The Metropolitan District Commission announced recently the closing of the Chestnut Hill Reservoir grounds to the public effective Nov. 1.

Misuse by many individuals was given as the main reason for the closing. A part of MDC policy has been to allow maximum use of all MDC property but in the case of the Chestnut Hill Reservoir abuses have been noted.

Several years ago an iron picket fence surrounding the property was opened in order that residents of neighboring communities could utilize the grounds for recreational purposes. However, there has been a substantial amount of littering, and a general lack of concern for the property.

MDC officials said they review the situation at a date if their announced desi maintain the area in pr fashion receives better sup from the public.

The new war in the Middle East halted filming of an ABC special, "Jacob and Joseph," in Israel. Almost 75 per cent of the Israeli crew had to report for military duty, as did four of the nine actors playing Joseph's brothers in this Biblical story.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: "Philosophically, I am opposed. Fiscally irresponsibile School Committee members can be eliminated via the mechanism of the biennial election."

ELECTION BY WARD: The current method is sound. "It provides for local representation and yet allows the entire electorate a voice in selection of deserving candidates in all parts of the city."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "I must insist on the basics of education (i.e. reading, grammar, spelling, math, etc.) being accorded priority. Innovation, yes-but only when ostensibly justified and closely monitored."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "School Committee members with the proper qualifications should solve any 'adversary position.' Such qualifications for example would be pragmatic fiscal sense and responsibility and the sincere, strong and unselfish motivation of parents of public school children."

SINGLE CHANGE: "The time is right for the return to the basics of an education."

ELECTION BY WARD: "The schoolcommitteeman should represent the ward he resides in and should continuously keep abreast of his constituency desires. He should also be held accountable to these voters. Therefore, he should be elected by ward."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE: "Innovative programs should be introduced after reasonable doubt has been removed on the overall benefits. However, traditional fundamentals should not be overlooked."

ADVERSARY POSITION: "Better communications are necessary. One way of accomplishing this is to plan for joint meetings of the School Committee and the Board of Aldermen."

SINGLE CHANGE: "There are several outstanding issues that require changes in the Newton School system. These are obtaining a quality education to meet all the children's needs, restriction on fiscal autonomy, and maintaining the neighborhood school system in the face of a declining school population."

Alvin Mandell

ADVERSARY POSITION: "Improve dialogue. Both sides require more objectivity and respect for the others' viewpoint. A spirit of mutual trust must be fostered."

SINGLE CHANGE: "Strengthen basic curriculum and tighten discipline to provide essential skills of science, language, numbers and orderly thought in order to transmit the intellectual, moral and aesthetic heritage of our American traditions and cultures."

Robert Cohen

ADVERSARY POSITION: "First a limitation on School Committee spending, and secondly, a more active participation by the Board of Aldermen with the School Committee" will minimize the effect of the position.

Cabot School Renovation Okay

Approval of another $25,000 for the renovation of the Cabot School toilet facilities and authorization for a $730,000 bond issue for alterations and additions to the Davis School were voted by the aldermanic and Public Buildings Finance Committees last week.

Also voted was $6,000 for the improvement of the atrium in the new Day Junior High School.

All items will be voted on at the next meeting of the full Board of Aldermen Nov. 5.

The Cabot School problem with the bathrooms started about five years ago "low key," according to Public Buildings Commissioner Emil Larson.

By early 1972, the problem had become acute. The School Committee authorized the necessary work to be done and voted an architect-engineer to draw up the plans.

In August, 1972, the question arose over whose budget, the city's or the School Department's would bear the cost. According to the new City Charter, the School Department is allotted 4 per cent of the previous year's budget for ordinary maintenance and repair.

However, what should constitute "maintenance" and what should constitute "capital improvement" has never been clearly defined, despite several attempts by two city solicitors.

Apparently the Cabot School toilet facilities will be paid for from the city budget for capital improvements.

During the debate on whether the Cabot work could be called maintenance Ald. Jason Sacks quipped, "Not unless you give them new 1927 fixtures."

The existing toilets and plumbing were installed in that year, according to Larson.

The first bids received for the improvement of the facilities were submitted in April, 1973. Approximately $38,000 was the low bid, well oover the original amount of $25 appropriated by the Board of Aldermen in 1972.

The bids were sent out again and returned late in the summer. This time the low bid plus the contingency amount brought the total up to $50,000.

Larson called the facilities "deplorable," and, passing around pictures as documentation, said the school children call the bathrooms the "slum areas."

Larson expects work to begin Dec. 1 and with a completion date during January 1974.

The Davis School addition and renovation, which will give the school four additional classrooms and a gymnasium, has gone up in estimated cost by about $300,000 since 1971, when the project was undertaken.

A spokesman for the architects, Haldeman & Goransson, said at the joint committee meeting that he is "reasonably confident in the last estimate."

Of the total of $730,000 to be bonded, $54,000 is for architects' fees, including $15,000 for administration of the construction contract.

Bids on the Davis construction will be returned on Nov. 8, Larson said, with all work to be completed by June, 1975.

Davis School is the only school in the city without a gymnasium School Superintendent Aaron Fink, who was present at the meeting, said.

The Day Junior High School atrium, an open courtyard in the middle of the building, will be improved by student-built benches and planting of spreading yews and small flowering trees.

The atrium is now locked because, as Day principal Edward Martin put it, the combination of glass window and loose stones around the edge of the atrium, placed there for landscaping and weed control, "is a bad mixture."

Dorrit S. Senior, a landscape architect who is donating her services, has planned the plantings. Professional hand labor will be required t prepare the area for planting Labor cost will exceed $2,40 because of the inability to ge machines into the restricte area, while plant material were estimated at about $800

The benches to be made b the students will replac cement benches. Materials fo these plus flags, banners, an flag mounts were estimated a $3360.

Committee-Indemnification Insurance, Rules and Regulations, Policy Guidelines.

FISCAL AUTONOMY: No. "The operation of the schools must be kept totally divided from municipal politics. I am definitely opposed to limiting fiscal autonomy."

ELECTION BY WARD: No. "Election at-large insures that each member is concerned with the entire school system and not the neighborhood school."

TRADITIONAL OR INNOVATIVE : It is not "an either or" proposition. "Traditional and basic skills and content can be and are incorporated within innovative pedagogical frameworks."

ADVERSARY POSITION: There is no adversary position between the Mayor and the School Committee. "I believe that more frequent joint meetings between school and city might clear up any misunderstandings before they become magnified."

SINGLE CHANGE: "I would like to see clearer statements of goals of curriculum, criteria upon which successes or failure will be decided, and more specific follow-up of subsequent changes."

VW Owner's Security Blanket Raises Standard Of Service

Volkswagen of America's new "VW Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis," includes a comprehensive warranty for 1974 VWs, use of "loaner" cars, guaranteed repairs, "Express Care" for small jobs and VW's unique Computer Analysis.

"Don" Glaser, General Manager, Herb Anderson Volkswagen, Route 1, Norwood, said, the program "gives buyers of 1974 Volkswagens the strongest warranty we have ever offered, plus a combination of additional features to provide them and owners of older VWs a new standard of service and convenience. We want VW owners to know that during the entire time they own a VW, we are going to take care of them."

The most important component of the "VW Owner's Security Blanket" is the 12-month, 20,000-mile – whichever comes first – warranty on 1974 Volkswagens. The warranty protects the owner against defects in workmanship and materials on everything except filters, fluids and lubricants. Tires are covered by a separate warranty.

Glaser said that even defective brake pads or linings, mufflers, windshield wiper blades, light bulbs, points and spark plugs would be replaced during the life of the warranty. Points and plugs will automatically be replaced during the recommended 12,000-mile Computer Analysis checkup at no cost to the owner.

Routine maintenance, required to keep the warranty in effect, is at the owner's expense. It would normally include such services as oil changes and lubrication, adjustments to operating equipment such as brakes, clutch, valves, timing and wheel balancing or alignment. New car purchasers are entitled to free Computer Analysis at VW dealerships – the electronic check-up that lets a car "tell" a technician if anything is wrong.

Glaser said "we decided on 12-month, 20,000-mile coverage rather than the traditional '12 and 12' after research showed that the average VW owner drives his car about 17,000 miles a year. We wanted to make sure that our owners would get a realistic warranty."

In addition to the 12 and 20 warranty, an extended policy protects 1974 VW owners against defects in internal engine or transmission parts until the vehicle is driven 24,000 miles or reaches its second birthday.

If the 1974 vehicle must be kept overnight in the course of scheduled warranty repair work, VW dealers will allow the owner free use of a car under "Our Fault Transportation," another major component of the Security Blanket program. Dealers will be reimbursed by Volkswagen of America when "Our Fault Transportation" becomes necessary. Even after the car's warranty period is over, VW owners whose cars are laid up are protected against being left without "wheels" – they can take advantage of VW's "Service Rent-A-Bug" nominal-cost loan cars, available at most VW dealers.

In addition, Security Blanket includes a six-month or 6,000-mile guarantee – both parts and labor – on all repairs made with genuine VW new or rebuilt parts. It also includes "Express Care," a pledge made by VW dealers that "if we can fix your VW in 30 minutes or less, we'll fix it while you wait."

Glaser said, "We can offer this comprehensive program only because of the quality built into Volkswagens. We believe that the VW Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis complements the quality of our products – giving the Volkswagen owner a total transportation package.

"Our success in America has been built upon the high standard of quality the public has come to expect from our product, and the high standard of service they have come to expect from our dealers. The Security Blanket extends these standards a step further."

STOPPING THE STORK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Much progress has been made in development of the long acting contraceptive first reported in the Michael Reese Medical Research Institute newsletter four years ago.

The current Newsletter says: Changes in the design based on research over these years has brought it closer to the day when it will be available to all women who want it. The basic design, then as now, is a T-shaped intrauterine device (IUD) which contains a hormone, progesterone, which is released slowly and in macroscopic amounts. A prototype of a commercial model of this is being tried in 14 clinical centers around the country and abroad, the Newsletter reports.

Pet Care Corner

By RICHARD W. BRYANT
Director of Education
Animal Rescue League Of Boston

Cats may be agile and surefooted, but their natural curiosity can lead them into danger if you don't take steps to safeguard them.

With a few simple precautions, you can cat-proof your house and yard. When you bring a new kitten home, don't let him out in the yard until you've checked your fence for holes. Inspect your garage and basement for poisons, paints and varnishes, all of which should be tightly sealed and out of reach.

Inside the house, closets, cupboards and drawers are tempting spots for a snooze. Keep them closed at all times but look inside before closing to make sure you are not imprisoning your pet. Flatten dangerous tin cans and screen all high windows. Also, watch out for sewing baskets and dangling cords from electrical appliances, both frequent sources of accidents.

If your bathtub is filled with water, keep the bathroom door closed. Also keep your toilet lid down at all times. Many a curious kitty has had an unexpected and unwelcome bath as a result of a stroll around the edge of a toilet or tub.

Holidays can be especially hazardous to cats. Discarded wrappings from presents — particularly ribbon, cord and string — can cause serious digestive upsets or even ulcers if swallowed. Tinsel and broken ornaments also make a dangerous diet, while artificial snow and mistletoe are actually poisonous.

Aspirin can also be poisonous to your cat. Consult a veterinarian before dosing your pet with any commercially available medicine.

If your cat wears a collar for identification, be sure it is loose enough to slip over his head if necessary or made of stretch material. Tight collars or ribbons around the neck can choke him if they catch on something. Remember, when it comes to your pet's well-being, don't be caught catnapping.

By observing these simple safety measures, you can help ensure a long and happy life for your feline friend.

Q. Mr. A. L. of Arlington asks: How many goldfish should we put in our new 15-gallon aquarium?

A. The general rule in stocking an aquarium is one inch of fish per gallon of water. For example, your 15-gallon tank could hold five three-inch fish or seven two-inch fish. This gauge also applies to stocking outdoor fish ponds, but only larger fish — over three inches — should be purchased for outdoor living. Tiny fish succumb more easily to temperature changes.

Homemade Christmas Cards Creative And Different

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

HOMEFRONT, U.S.A. (UPI) — Happy with clutter up to your knees, fingers stuck with glue and splashed with paint or ink? You're ripe for making your own Christmas cards.

It's creative, it's different, it probably won't save money. But very satisfying—even if you have to put the cards in the oven to dry the week before Christmas because ink or paint is wet—day after day after day.

The points I make are based on experience—years of going right up to the mailing deadline with wet cards or with cards that came apart because too little glue was used.

I have had cards that leak through the envelope, cards (actually Xeroxed letters) that turned out lumpy in the envelopes.

Whatever, it's pure joy getting the homemade Christmas greetings into the mailbox on time. That means getting them there at the latest, Dec. 24. The postmark must be before Dec. 25.

Homemade cards come in three main types. One, the photo. Two, the letter reporting on family happenings. Three, the art card—painted, block printed, pasted, made of felt or even a needlepoint design.

Easiest is the photo card. The biggest problem here: getting the family to agree on a picture. Scenery, people or pets, you've got to get a picture that suits. And then you've got to get enough copies in time. Early November is none too soon to make the selection. Families with little children sometimes dress all in the same outfits—nightgowns and nightcaps and slippers. They gather round the fireplace and each holds a candle. You can vary the costumes but make it something in the holiday mood. Next go to a photo store or an art supply place and get suitable folders for the pictures.

For the Christmas letter or annual report, you'll need an evening or two of brain-picking. Each family member must come up with highlights or his or her life during the past year —acquiring a turtle or getting over the chickenpox, winning a race or losing a tooth. Promotions are okay to mention. But skip any demotions.

Think Positive

Everything in the report ought to be positive. This kind of "card" probably is the least expensive. Once you get it typed—just have it Xeroxed or have copies made some other way. Then affix Christmas stickers here and there to impart a holiday touch. If someone in the family is artistic, a cartoon enhances this type homemade greeting. The letter card has limitations. You can't send it to everyone on the list.

The most appreciative recipients usually are relatives, grade school friends and really close acquaintances.

For help with an art card it's best to first visit an art supply store. Your cranium will fill with visions of grandiose productions as you look over easy-does paints, linoleum block printing equipment—rollers, press, ink, papers, cutting tools. After looking, go home and think. Before settling on the design of a card figure the time to produce and the cost. Before going ahead be sure—you can afford the price and the time.

At our house we make linoleum block prints, a Christmas custom that started when our son learned the technique in grade school. We all pitch in on the design, submitting ideas. Some too complicated, are discarded. Last year it all was very last minute—started three weeks before Christmas. We settled on a stylized drawing of the word "Joy."

Each card, hand printed, involves inking the block—a process that cannot be speeded up. It takes from five to 10 minutes at least to print each card. Then each one must be dried. There have been years when we had the cards hanging on lines all over the house until the drying was completed. Ovens are used as a last resort.

If you think linoleum block printing is an art form for yo homemade card that art supp store will have available booklet of simple instructi The basic block must be carv with tools that are a cro between a surgeon's and jeweler's tools. Practice mal the carving perfect.

Another art type card volves mounting the ma works from youngsters kindergarten or the prima grades. Their abstract wo cut into Christmas tree shap and pasted on the front homemade cards are su winners.

Persons with a bit of artis talent—and most have som can practice with felt tip pens fast-drying water-based pair trying to come up with cheerful holiday design. It m be a stylized tree, a candy ca an avant garde bell. If you such a person, practice. Wh you come up with a desi that's pretty, easy to duplic without too much expenditu ask the family—does this your vote for our homema Christmas card this year?

Keep trying 'til you come with a design that pleases. While you're making it, put to work addressing envelope writing the message inside e card with a felt-tip pen.

What should you say? W there's Merry Christm Happy New Year.

But if time is of the esse how about—"Joy!"

Hard Life On The Farm Changing

By JERELYN EDDINGS

ATLANTA (UPI) — Today's American farmer is a man who controls his environment and enjoys air conditioning, music and carpeting —while he works.

Leading manufacturers of farm equipment, meeting at an industry convention in Atlanta, agreed that farmers are becoming increasingly concerned with comfort and safety on the job.

Robert J. Carlson, senior vice president of Deere and Company, said, "One of the big things that's newest is tractors and combines being built with bodies like cars, with temperature and humidity controlled and low sound levels."

Carlson said his company is manufacturing farm equipment with tape decks, radios and other conveniences that allow farmers to "extend their productivity."

The added comfort "enables them to work at a higher degree of efficiency," he said. Some combines perform as many as five farming jobs simultaneously, including plowing, planting and fertilizing.

R.E. Kidder, vice president in charge of farm equipment at the White Motor Corp., said, "Most tractor-combines are becoming as quiet as living rooms," and 35 to 45 per cent of the combines sold are equipped with the new cabs for controlled environment.

Among recent innovations in farm equipment, Kidder said, are highspeed planting equipment and monitoring instruments to warn the farmer of malfunctions. He said his company emphasizes speed. Some equipment can operate at six miles an hour.

More Horsepower

Kidder said horsepower in the machines is up to more than 100 from 80 and he predicts it will exceed 200 before long.

Fewer farmers are feeding more people than ever before and their work equipment must be made to accommodate the work load.

Darwin G. Kettinger, senior vice president at Massey Ferguson, Inc., said his group makes the largest combine on the market "so one man can do more work."

He said farming today involves less manual work and more efficiency. Some machines also are made with seat belts and roll bars for protection in case the tractor overturns.

"We're also making them easier to service—you can do it from one point with fewer items to check," Kettinger said.

The big, new farm machines "substitute labor with machinery," according to Ben Warren of International Harvester. "Before, if you needed 10 people (laborers), you could hire them," he said. "Now you can't find all those people."

Warren said every farmer feeds about 50 people in the city. "He does most of the work himself, and has to preserve his efforts." So the farmer's work must be made more comfo ble to let him spend more t in the fields and produce m at the same time.

The innovations also induce more young people stay on the farm, rather t move to the city as busine men, Warren said. He n that the average age of tod farmer is 52.

"Anything a farmer can in a tractor to make his w more efficient, he can affo said Robert C. Leary of F Tractor Operations. He said innovations are not luxu but conveniences.

Leary noted that autom transmissions, power stee and swivel seats can be b into tractors. He said mo machines are so easy to ope that it is not uncommon to young, attractively dres women come outside and do work while their husbands g for lunch.

Energy

LOGAN, Utah (UPI) — Utah State University has given its students and staff a list of hints on how to cut the school's electricity bill during the energy crisis.

Val Peterson, director of the physical plant, feels the conservation campaign could save a full 10 per cent of USU's electricity and fuel bill—if it gets full cooperation.

His suggestions — applicable everywhere—included:

—Turn off a light if you'll be gone more than 15 minutes.

—Wear a sweater and lower the heat in your office three to four degrees.

—Lower the heat in rooms that receive little use.

—In rooms having several banks of light, see if reading is just as easy with some of the lights turned off.

—Use room air conditioners only when critical.

—Check windows and outside walls for cracks and leaks.

—Remain in offices after regular working hours as little as possible.

—Let custodians clean during office hours.

—Schedule events during off-peak hours to level out energy usage.

Meetings

ATLANTA (UPI) — During the military occupation of Atlanta by Union forces following the Civil War, Maj. Gen. John Pope issued an order requiring the presence of the mayor, a marshal and a force of policemen present at all public meetings of citizens.

The order made the mayor liable to be tried by court martial in the event of a disturbance if he were not present in compliance with the order.

For his own protection, Mayor James E. Williams asked the city council to pass an ordinance, which was adopted, prohibiting citizens from holding public meetings without first giving the mayor 12 hours notice.

BICENTENNIAL OPERA

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Russell Peck, Indianapolis composer, is working on a Ford Foundation grant opera focusing on 19th Century communes in Indiana and Tennessee to be presented as part of the nation's 200th anniversary celebration.

The work is to be called "The New Harmony Opera" after the name of the town that was the site of Robert Owen's commune.

To China With Love, by Pat Barr
(Doubleday, $7.95)

This is the well told story of how Protestant missionaries from 1860 to 1900, armed with the strength of their Victorian religious convictions, set out to bring their type of Christianity to a China they regarded as heathen.

Men such as the Cambridge Seven, Gilmour of Mongolia, the Rev. Hudson Taylor and their many compatriots apparently believed that the Chinese would be immediate, willing converts. They were wrong.

They carried Christianity to an empire that predated the birth of Christ, one that had various religious beliefs already intact, with idols of its own. Before the Renaissance, China had in fact been more advanced in technology than the west.

The missionaries faced hazards of health and culture that cost many of them their lives. Their beliefs were questioned, tried and eventually forged in blood in a series of events capped by the Boxer Rebellion of 1900 in which 135 Protestant missionaries were martyred.

Barr writes of the ubiquitous stench of China that should have warned newcomers (who just thought China backward) that among other things this was a land of typhoid, cholera, smallpox; and "that no sort of national public health or welfare authorities existed so that the cleansing and maintenance of waterways, streets, towns depended on the energy or whim of provincial officials, and that in consequence there was not one really good stretch of road anywhere in the Empire."

John E. Barton (UPI)

Daily Life in People's China, by Arthur Galston
(Crowell, $6.95)

Several hundred Americans, doctors, journalists and basketball players among them, have visited China since the thaw in U.S.-Sino relations. Galston, a Yale University botanist, with his wife and daughter was able to spend three weeks living and working with the peasants as "residents" of the Marco Polo People's Commune. Since 80 per cent of China's almost 800 million people make their living from the soil, the insights and observations Galston records are extremely valuable to better understanding China.

Upstairs at the Whate House, by J.B. West
(Coward, McCann & Geoghegan, $8.95)

The White House's chief usher (general manager) from 1941-69 has written the most informative book about the private life of the first families yet published by a presidential staff member. It is highly respectful, rather than gossipy, but far from dry, with highest accolades to the Trumans and a new insight into Bess Truman's role in affairs of state.

Whistle Blowing, edited by Ralph Nader, Peter Petkas and Kate Blackwell
(Grossman, $6.95)

Based on a report from the January, 1971, conference on professional responsibility, this abosorbing books tells of the men and women who "blew the whistle" on organizations involved in activity they believed dangerous to the public—the General Motors engineer who told Nader Corvairs were dangerous, the FDA doctor who exposed a link between cyclamates and cancer.

The Future of Literacy, edited by Robert Disch
(Prentice-Hall, $6.95)

One nice thing about putting together an anthology of articles discussing what may be the coming death of literacy—it's bound to hit its audience where they live because by definition a book's audience consists of readers. This one is provocative and even contains an article warning of the dangers to the language of corruption and pollution.

Library Participates In Book Fair

Choose your favorite pathway to creativity with a stimulating visit to the Newton Free Library's Booth at the Boston Globe Book Festival, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 2, 3, and 4, at the Hynes Auditorium, Prudential Center, Boston, where a potpourri of creative activities will excite your imagination.

Drama, pottery, music, creative woodworking, photography and chess are the varied activities scheduled for the Newton Free Library Booth, inviting book lovers to use their imagination to find their own pathways to creativity.

Heading the list of special events is a demonstration of the fine points of creative pottery, by Nancy Freeman of the Clay Workshop in Newton, on Friday, Nov. 2 at 6:30 p.m. This skilled artisan will make both hand-built and on-the-wheel pottery, as well as arranging a select group of her works for exhibit.

A second highlight of the Newton Free Library's Book Festival programming is the Young Adult Drama Workshop's premiere performance of A.A. Milne's "The Man in the Bowler Hat," Saturday, Nov. 3 at 2:30 p.m.

The play, directed by Dick Power, is a semi-melodrama selected for its wide appeal to adults and children. The Drama Workshop, which meets at the Newtonville Branch Library throughout the year is cosponsored by the library and the Newton Recreation Commission.

At 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 3, Dan McCabe and Peter Clark, two creative woodworkers, will demonstrate woodcarving, and toy and furniture making.

"Music to Read By" performed by musicians from the Berklee School of Music in Boston, headline Sunday's Newton Free Library activities at 2 p.m.

Throughout the Festival, the Newton Free Library's booth will be enhanced by a first rate continuous slide show arranged by Camera Club members. Club President Leo Myers, as well as Jim Saret, Phil Coyne and other club members will be available to discuss cameras, film and photography.

Chess Club President Andrew Schmidt is bringing along members of the Chess Club, who will engage passers-by in informal games of chess. They will have books on display, and will be on hand to discuss the intricacies of this unique game.

A striking mobile and a bright orange, yellow and brown "pathway to creativity" form an imaginative backdrop for the Newton Free Library booth activities. The decor, designed by Elinor Persky and Jody Baker of the library staff, has been worked out in cooperation with Newton Free Library Director Virginia A. Tashjian.

A selection of "how to" crafts, hobbies and career books and magazines from the Newton Free Library's extensive holdings will be on view.

The Newton Free Library is one of several Eastern Region Libraries participating in the Festival as guests of the Boston Globe. During the Festival, which attracts more than 30,000 people to its three-day programs, members of the library staff will man the Newton Free Library booth and will be available to discuss their creative hobbies as well as the Newton Free Library's multiple resources available to the community.

All Newton Music School Has 3 New Dance Classes

The All Newton Music School announces three new courses in the Dance Department.

Starting Oct. 25, Mrs. Louise Bruyn, who returned to the school after two years of leave of absence, will be teaching a course in MODERN DANCE FOR ADULTS.

This class will include basic modern techniques for gaining in body strength, control, and agility. Individual responses to creative problems will be encouraged and group relationships explored. Previous dance training is not required.

MODERN JAZZ DANCE CLASSES will provide exercise and the opportunity to improve coordination through the development of jazz techniques - steps and routines. There will be courses on two levels. One course is suitable for non-dancers. The students, while exercising, do acquire the feel of dancing rather quickly. The more advanced jazz class is for dancers who want to broaden their dance background.

Adult classes will be offered Wednesday mornings at 9:30 a.m. Graded classes for teenagers will be offered Tuesday evenings at 7 p.m.

The courses will be taught by Ellie Grossman who is a ballet dancer trained by Robert Joffery and Madame Pryeslavic. She has studied jazz ballet with Matt Mattox and Consuelo Atlas. Her class for adults will start October 24th.

Mrs. Katherine Ostrovsky is offering an ADULT BALLET BEGGINNERS CLASS for people who wish to explore ballet technique. No previous training required. The time will be set on mutual agreement.

People interested in those classes will get more information by calling the music school 527-4554 and asking for Mrs. Gombosi or Mrs. Nelson.

'Washington Square' Performance Slated

The Drama Club of Newton College is currently in rehearsal with "The Heiress," an adaptation of the novel "Washington Square" by Henry James.

The play will be presented in the Quonset Theatre on the Centre Street, Newton campus at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8 and Friday, Nov. 9. The event is open to the public. General admission will be available at the door.

The drama is set in New York City in the 1850's, and the basic story revolves around a shy, young girl, Catherine Sloper (played by freshman Susan Mara) who falls desperately in love with a delightful young fortune hunter.

Catherine's lack of worldliness prevents her from realizing that the young man proposing is not entirely drawn by her charm. Catherine's father, a successful doctor, is more realistic and forbids the marriage. However, his daughter proposes an elopement which fails to materialize because the young man knows most of her expected fortune will go elsewhere if he marries her. Catherine retires into her own world. But the fortune hunter turns up once more and again proposes marriage.

The substance of the drama lies in Catherine's handling of the situation.

Newton Chorale Presents 'Medley'

The Newton Chorale, under the direction of Mrs. Hans J. Seligman, will present a "Medley of Songs" at the Annual Donor Dinner of the Touro Chapter of B'nai Brith to take place Sunday evening, Nov. 4 in Taunton.

Featured will be original arrangements of Israeli and Yiddish folk songs as well as show tunes and classics. An added attraction will be the violin accompaniment of William Poltorak as well as the piano accompaniment of Mrs. Ralph Dephoure.

Anyone For Bridge?

The Newton Free Library makes a bid for bridge players to join the Newton Free Library Bridge Club Monday evenings, Nov. 5 at 7 p.m. at Newtonville Branch Library, 345 Walnut St.

The Club, which meets the first and third Mondays of every month, is free and open to the public.

Mrs. Edith Brooks Corman of Newton will give bridge instructions at both November Bridge Club meetings.

Ms. Cirillo Is Guest Soloist

Nancy Cirillo of Newton will be guest soloist with the Concord Orchestra on Nov. 3, 8:30 p.m. at Emerson School, Concord.

For this first concert of the season, Richard Pittman will conduct the orchestra in Brahms' Violin Concerto in D Major," Virgil Thomson's "Wheat Field at Noon," and P.I. Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. 2."

Miss Cirillo, who is currently on the faculty of Wellesley College and the New England Conservatory, performs with the Boston Musica Viva, an ensemble founded and directed by Pittman that toured Europe this past summer.

Miss Cirillo studied with Frank Cirillo and Louis Persinger, and attended the Mannes College of Music.

A recipient of the Naumburg Award, the Arrigo Serrato Award in Rome, the High Fidelity Award in Tanglewood, and a Fromm Fellowship, Miss Cirillo has given solo recitals at Carnagie Hall and Town Hall, and has traveled with the Manhatten soloists, the Manhatten Trio, and the New Art Trio.

She has been a part of the Marlboro Music Festival for many years and toured with the group.

Miss Cirillo is married to Mathew Ruggiero, bassoonist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and they live in Newton with three daughters, aged 12, 9 and 7.

This concert is the start of the 22nd season of the orchestra and Pittman's fifth year with the group. Before assuming his present position as instructor in Orchestral Conducting and Conductor of the Repertory Orchestra at the New England Conservatory in 1968, Pittman served on the Conducting and Opera Faculty and as director of the Eastman Musica Nova at the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N.Y.
